FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE Dave Lamb: "There are a lot of mangrove snappers and flounder around now but I haven't seen a good trout all week. Dick Here are some catches made this week: Dave and Dale Bateman, Mike Rabin and Adrian Goode, 22 dolphin to 11-0 on ballyhoo in 600 ft. NE of the SL Inlet. Lou Papsidero and Jim Shelton, 14 channel bass, 8 mangrove snappers, 2 lookdowns, and a flounder on live shrimp fishing just north of the Jensen Causeway. Jeff Isner, 12, 4 snook to 7-0 on live shrimp fishing from the tackle shop's pier. Joe Isner, a 3-8 Lane snapper live shrimp. Ernest Lyons, Bob James, 8 whiting, sand fleas, surf. Holiday Inn.

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "We finally made a successful trip and went out 15 miles to try out that new wire line reel but couldn't do any thing out there because of a strong current. Even two window weights wouldn't do it. We went back to 40-100 ft. and got 4 kings, a Cero mackerel and 2 bonito on rigged ballyhoo with a shirt. Some catches we've recorded this week: Scott Attey, an 8-0 snook, live pinfish. Ernest Lyons, Guy Wallengren, an 8-8 trout, live shrimp on the grass flats just south of the power plant. Conrad White, 5 kings and an 8-0 cuda on ballyhoo and squid in 200 ft. and 4 kings and 5 bonito in 90 ft., NE of the SL Inlet. Scott Beck, an 8-4 flounder, live shrimp. Nettles Island Causeway Bridge. Bob Irons, a 6-4 snook, a Krocodile spoon west catwalk. Frank Wacha Bridge. Jensen Causeway.

JOHNNY CRAWFORD, from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "Fishing is still poor. Dick There are a few snook in the river taking bucktail jigs and live bait and in the surf hitting spoons. The trout have picked up a bit north of Jensen around the power plant and above it all the way to Fort Pierce. They're getting some Florida large mouth bass in the Savannas. How about this one, Dick? David Trusso caught a 4-4 Florida freshwater gar from the Evans Crary Bridge. There are lots of bonito offshore and a few dolphin."

The Nook's log: Rich Sowden, 5 snook to 3-0 and a trout, 7 M series mirrolure, wading the river near Sewall's Point. Lou Smitten, an 11-4 snook and 4 jack crevalles, a No. 6 reflecto spoon, surf. Herb Weber, a 7-12 snook and a 3-4 trout, louts, wading, north of Jensen. Dave Hynes, a 5-12 trout, louts, same place. Tom and Carol Ryan, 3 flounder, live shrimp, Jensen pier. Tony Longo, 6 bass to 3-6, plastic worms, Savannas. Bill Salls, 3 trout to 3-8, Zara Spook, Indian River Point pier. Tom Stewart, a 5-0 channel bass, 5 mangrove snappers and a flounder, live shrimp, wading. Big Mud Creek. Curtis Riggins, 2 snook to 17-0, bucktail jig, Roosevelt Bridge. Elwin Pasmelman, a 10 8 snook. Hopkins spoon surf. Sandy Downes, a 34-8 dolphin and 3 bonito 120 ft. east of the SL Inlet on ballyhoo with a green skirt. Kelly Childs and Charlie Arens, 4 trout and a bluefish, trout louts, wading in the river north of the Jensen Causeway.

Werges leads Treasure Coast

The Treasure Coast Women's League recently held their monthly field day on the Martin County golf course in Stuart. Sixty-four members from Sandpiper Bay, Martin County, Indian Hills and Vista Royale country clubs competed for individual low gross, net and putting awards. Play began at 8:30 and was followed by a luncheon at the Martin County Club.

Low gross honor for the field went to J. Werges, S.P.B., who toured the course in 80 strokes. M. Wenger, I.H. shot a net 67 for field winner and the best putters were P. Janelli, I.H. and R. Macomber, V.R. each with 29.

The 2nd flight was led by P. Nutter, M.C. with a gross 92. M. Zuhlman, M.C. shot a net 72, while C. McLaughlin, M.C. and P. Jefferies, M.C. each had 73. S. Mauzy, S.P.B. took putting honors with 31.

M. Shuster, M.C. was gross winner in the 3rd flight with 95. Net winner was E. Holeman, V.R. at 74, followed by C. Lorenzen, S.P.B. and H. Knowles, M.C. tied at 75. Another tie existed between J. Potter, M.C. and J. Bowrosen, S.P.B. each with 33 putts.

4th flight gross winner was J. Nowicke, V.R. with 108. M. Kelleher, M.C. took net award with 77, while A. Dillon, M.C. and R. Rhoades, M.C. were next at 79. K. LaFlair, S.P.B. and J. Schaeffer, I.H. were tied with 31 putts.

The next field day will be held in September at the Indian Hills Country Club in Fort Pierce.

Course on boat safety offered

The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will be sponsoring a public education class on boating skills and seamanship beginning August 19 and running through September 25.

The class will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Flotilla 58 building 1 Flagler Street, Stuart, Florida.

The course is designed to give comprehensive safety to boaters and will consist of topics such as boater's language and trailering, boat handling, legal requirements, rules of the road, and aids to navigation.

Instruction will be given by David Kimmel assisted by several guest lecturers.

Florida opens arms to endangered whoopers

BY DICK LUNDIN

THE MAJESTIC WHOOPING CRANE has been a symbol of endangered species in America since the 1930s when there were reportedly only 14 of these tall, elegant white birds remaining.

Since then, thanks to conservation efforts, there are about 130 whooping cranes in the U.S. and that number could seven double someday relatively soon under a program being initiated by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Biologists with the Division of Wildlife will begin work this fall on a plan to establish a nonmigratory population of whoopers in Florida, once known to be part of the bird's range, according to Don A. Wood, endangered species coordinator for the Commission.

The approach being taken is patterned after a similar, successful project in Idaho. Biologists will place whooping crane eggs in the nests of nonmigratory Florida sandhill cranes, like those frequenting the fairways of the Sante golf course at Sandpiper Bay, and see if the chicks will forsake their migratory instincts and adapt the pattern of their foster parents.

"Our ultimate goal is to have a nucleus of 20-30 breeding pairs of whooping cranes in Florida, but that is some 10-15 years down the road. There are a lot of initial questions which must be answered before we reach that goal," Wood pointed out.

"Our first objective is to determine if genetically migratory cranes can be reared as nonmigratory by nonmigratory parents. During the next two springs, eggs of the migratory greater sandhill crane will be placed in nests of nonmigratory Florida sandhill cranes and the behavior of the young observed," he explained.

At least one foster parent of each pair will be radio instrumented as will be its chick prior to fledging to aid in observation of their behavior. In addition, during this time, study sites for the whoopers will be selected and Florida sandhill pairs studied to select the best possible candidates for foster rearing. If this first phase of the project is successful, whooping crane eggs will be introduced perhaps as early as 1983, with the Commission obtaining between five and six eggs annually from the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Laurel, Md., for the project, Wood said.

All currently remaining whooping cranes (Grus americana), a large white bird with red face and black primary wing feathers, are a part of a flock that winters in the Aransas Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf Coast where it migrates for Canadian breeding grounds, in the Idaho flock, and a few in captivity.

That the five-foot-tall birds once lived in Florida is evidenced by fossil remains and reported sightings from near St. Augustine in the late 1920s and near the Kissimmee River in 1936.

Biologist Stephen Nesbitt will be heading up all field work associated with the project, operating out of the Commission's Wildlife Research Lab in Gainesville. The lab is located near Payne's Prairie, one of the possible rearing sites for the whooping cranes.

THE 1981 EDITION OF THE SHOOTER'S BIBLE is off the press, gold tidings for shooters, hunters, gun collectors and gun enthusiasts. The newest Shooter's Bible has 576 pages filled with up-to-date information on just about everything a gun lover would want to know. There are feature articles by leading gun and outdoor writers, a fact filled reference section and the latest information on sporting arms and accessories from all over the world -- something for every body with any interest whatsoever in guns.

If you are in the market for a gun or gun accessories (or if you merely want to see how your purchase of a year or two ago has increased in value), you'll find descriptions, specifications and prices of more than 25,000 hunting and shooting items and 8,500 illustrations.

The articles cover one of the great weapons museums of the world, the military museum at West Point, black powder guns, gun collecting, and Luger pistols, to name a few.

If you like to do home gunsmithing, you'll find an extensive table of hand do's and don'ts, all arranged by maker and model number. For those who want to prepare the game they bring home, there's even a collection of new and unusual recipes by Alfredo Poffe, a world-famous restaurateur.

Published by the Stoeger Publishing Company and on sale now at sporting goods stores and bookstores, the 1981 Shooter's Bible is also available at $9.95 postpaid from the publisher at 55 Ruta Court, South Hackensack, New Jersey 07606.

BASSERS will be into something a bit different Aug. 20-23 out at Grand Lake O'the Cherokees near Grove, Oklahoma where BASS will sponsor the $20,000 Bassmaster Chapter Championship for six-angler teams from 38 states and two foreign countries -- Spain and Zimbabwe (formerly Rodesia). They will be fishing a 66-mile long reservoir which contains 59,000 surface acres of gin clear water along the courses of the Neosho, Spring and Elk rivers in northeast Oklahoma.

SAND GNATS, sand flies, no seeums, or whatever you call them, can be literally ferocious and keep you from fishing your favorite spots, but insect repellents can offset this menace and Kyle Hill, writing in the July-August issue of Florida Wildlife, goes into the subject as a Wildlife Officer required to perform his duties, sand gnats not withstanding.

He said he found that the most effective repellent he had come across is Muskol, a Canadian product that contains 100 per cent active ingredients, dries, is not sticky and is quite resistant to perspiration. "Thus far, it is the only product I have tested that will keep insects at bay for several hours, in highly infested areas, without a reapplication," Kyle wrote.

"ON THAT SUBJECT, I'd like to make a note myself. Several years ago, I spent a couple of nights at the Snook Motel on Marco Island and fished for snook at night from its lighted pier. Wearing shorts, I was annoyed by biting gnats but toughed it out. The next morning my reddened legs were on fire with bites. I put everything on them possible but the torture continued. Finally I tried the saltwater of the Gulf, also to no avail, but, showering after the dip in the Gulf, I noticed that the hotter the water the better the legs felt. Finally, enjoying every steaming droplet, I turned the hot water up until I couldn't stand it any more. I felt great, and for two to three hours afterwards there was no itching.

"From then on, whenever I've had sand gnat bites, all it takes is one or possibly two applications of near boiling water to take all the itching out of them for hours or even longer. It worked so well with sand gnat bites that I've tried it on mosquito, horsefly and other bites. It works for me every time. The big point is that the water has to be hot and you have to apply it just as long as you can stand it without burning yourself.

As we continue to celebrate 50 years of service we remember the 1960's. The Space Age took on a new meaning when Neil Armstrong made that first step on the moon in 1969. Publix was taking giant steps, too, by opening sophisticated new stores. These supermarket showplaces had giant Delis and a new innovation: standing cabinets with self-closing doors that held frozen foods and kept them frozen.

Social Security is only part of the answer

BY BRUCE FERGUSON
SSA Field Representative

People planning ahead for their retirement should be aware that social security was never intended to offer a complete retirement income

Social security benefits provide a partial replacement of earned income lost or reduced because of the retirement, disability or death of a worker

Some pension experts estimate that retirement income should be 60 to 70 percent of pre retirement earnings in order for a retiree to maintain a standard of living similar to that before retirement

Social security benefits generally provide 2a to 60 percent of pre-retirement earnings depending on the individual's earnings over the years With an eligible husband or wife benefits would be 37½ to 90 percent of the worker's previous earnings

People can supplement social security retirement benefits with income from company pensions, insurance annuities savings stocks and bonds individual retirement plans or other investments

The important thing for a worker to remember is that social security is not the total answer It is a base upon which each worker should build his or her retirement plans

More information about social security retirement benefits as well as about disability and survivor benefits can be obtained at your social security office There are many free publications describing social security benefits and copies can be obtained by phoning 283 5700 or 464 5700

THE BEEF PEOPLE

Accent on Excellence...

All W-D Brand steaks and roasts are closely trimmed of excess bone and fat, BEFORE they're weighed and sold. You don't pay steak prices for meat scraps. When you buy W-D Brand beef, you know what you're getting for your money...more choice meat...less waste.

Winn Dixie has a full stock of school supplies right now. So just add them to your grocery list and take advantage of the extra savings at Winn Dixie.

IRCC Itinerary

Is there some subject about which you'd like to become a leading expert? Some problem in science or, society that you'd be intrigued to explore? Some historical figure who has always fascinated you? A certain hobby you plan to master?

YOU CAN! The joys and rewards of scholarship, inquiry and learning can be yours at Indian River Community College. A broad array of offerings awaits you ... right in your own backyard. Classes begin the week of August 25, so you'll want to decide which of the many courses are right for you and sign up now. Turn this Fall into a special one by getting involved in the excitement of learning at your community college.

Learn to Carve Wood

Ernestine Peace, an experienced teacher in wood carving, will help you take the mystery out of this ancient and beautiful craft. Learn the nature of different woods and how to adapt patterns to wood as well as how to attain a good basis for continued carving. Pre-registration is August 22 at 1:00 p.m. in the Port St. Lucie Community Center. Or you can register there the first day of class, which is Friday, Sept. 12 at 1 p.m. Registration fee is $5.

Sign Up for Floral Design

Interested in designing with flowers? Contemplating entering this field as a profession? Go ahead ... sign up for one of the three floral design courses. The Beginner course will be held Mondays starting Sept. 10 from 5:30 - 8:00 p.m. Intermediate and Advanced classes will meet Mondays from 8:00 - 10:30 p.m., also beginning September 10. Mrs. Albert Kurtzis, a nationally known designer and commentator, will instruct all classes. Registration fee is $5. For more information call Guidance at 464-2000, ext. 323.

Study the Birds of Florida

Open your eyes to a most fascinating study by learning about Florida's Ornithology with Mrs. Ida Cantwell, a renowned expert on the subject of birds. But this class is not limited to just the study of birds. It goes beyond to cover conservation, ecology, and survival for man and nature. The class includes field trips to various parts of Florida, with transportation provided by the college. You can register now through Guidance or on the first night of class which is Tuesday, Sept. 16 from 7 - 9:30 p.m. in Room R 104. Registration fee is $5. Don't miss this chance to study one of nature's most spectacular creatures.

Take Up Oil Painting

Want to express yourself with colors? Just for you, IRCC is offering the Oil Painting class to be held at the Port St. Lucie Community Center. Instructor Frankie Sloan will conduct these Friday classes beginning Aug. 29 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Registration fee is $5. For more information call Guidance, ext. 323.

Coping With Separation and Divorce

For those thinking of or moving through the divorce process and those already divorced, IRCC's Women's Program offers a seminar on coping with separation and divorce. The group setting will focus on the tools for positive self-growth and self-trust with special emphasis on values clarification, interpersonal skills and emotional coping. Classes will be held Wednesdays, Sept. 10 through Oct. 29 from 8 - 10:30 p.m. in Room R 115. You can register the first night of class when you pay the $9 registration fee. Call the Women's Program, extension 229, for more information.

Vero Women's Program Offers Consumer Know-how

A special consumer know how class will take place at IRCC's Mueller Center in Vero Beach. Instructor Shirley Wagenec will help you with valuable tips on consumer problems. Special guest speakers are to include Sue Marshbanks of First Citrus Bank, J. H. Norton of the Vero Beach Chamber of Commerce, The Vero Beach Press Journal's Sam Rohlfing Lee, and Lynn Traiba of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Class begins Tuesday, Aug. 26 from 8 to 10 p.m. You can register the first night by paying the $5 fee. Call the Women's Program at 569-6333 for further information.

Health Educators Seminar on Aging

A course designed to sensitize the health care worker to the needs of the geriatric population will be conducted for college credit. The class, available to health and community care professionals, will begin Thursday, Aug. 28 from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. Instructor Dorothy Hodges, R.N., B.S.N., will lead the class for which an IRCC Certificate of Attendance will be issued to those who successfully complete the course. Call the Guidance Office on the main campus (464-2000 ext. 323) or at your local site for further information. (Stuart Site, 283-6550; Vero Beach Mueller Center, 569-6333; Okeechobee Site, 763-3473.)

Learn to Lead the Nursing Team

Team Nursing is to be offered for Registered Nurses already working in the profession and to IRCC Associate Degree Nursing students. Taught by Mary Lee They, R.N., the class will include instruction in leadership techniques, role differentiation, effective patient assignments for staff members, team conferences, and interpersonal skills. This one semester class begins Tuesday, Sept. 2, meeting from 5:30 - 8:30 p.m. in J 223. Contact Guidance for additional information.

Don't Forget to Register.

Remember that registration for Fall Semester is Aug. 21 and 22 from 8 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. with classes beginning Monday, Aug. 25. Fees must be paid in the Business Office by 8:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 22. Don't let this Fall Semester start without you!

DR. ANN VICKERY

Doctoral degree is presented to Ann Vickery

Ann Christine Vickery has received her doctoral degree from the College of Medicine of the University of South Florida.

Dr. Vickery is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Christensen of Stuart and the granddaughter of Mr. and Ms. C. H. Soavne also of Stuart.

Dr. Ann Vickery had her primary education in Stuart and graduated from Martin County High School in 1968 with a music scholarship which took her to the University of Florida at Gainesville. In 1972 she entered science and in 1975 gained her baccalaureate degree in microbiology at the University of South Florida Tampa.

Her prime field of interest has been the modulation of immune responses by parasite infection. Early this year she presented some of her results to an international meeting in Montreal Canada. She has just returned from another meeting in Paris, France, where she made a further report on her work which demonstrates that a parasitic infection can markedly lower a patient's resistance to a concurrent bacterial infection.

From this work may come a vaccine against such intestinal parasites as hookworm. If this can be done, it will significantly alter disease statistics particularly in Third World countries. This will be one avenue Dr. Vickery will investigate now as Assistant Professor in the Department of Comprehensive Medicine of the college of Medicine at University of South Florida.

Dr. Vickery lives in Hudson, Florida, and is the wife of Dr. R. C. Vickery, with whom she has traveled extensively in Europe, the USA and the Caribbean. Her hobbies, apart from travel, are horseback riding, photography and the study of English history.

Theatre Studio to open in Jensen

The Theatre Studio announces that what began as a class in Theatre Games, taught by Kim Rand for members of Stuart's Barn Theatre, has evolved into a privately owned studio.

Training in the performing arts for the child or the adult, the novice or the professional, will be offered for the first time in this area. The Theatre Games method, developed by Kim Rand through her work with Northwestern University, Chicago's Second City Improvisational Theatre Company, and the Piven Theatre Workshop, is a unique and innovative approach to acting techniques and communication skills. Classes begin Monday, Sept. 15 at 3038 Commercial Plaza in Jensen Beach.

Theatre Games begin with traditional children's games and lead to an indepth study of character, environment, and scene. Using improvisation, the scene is played out as towards and spaces the students create them selves.

The purpose with young people is to focus their natural sense of play on the creative process of theatre. The games and improvs strengthen a child's awareness and build receptiveness to other people and the world around them.

The novice is exposed to stage presence, group interaction, and performance technique in a comfortable, non-competitive environment. Emphasis is on the process of theatre experience rather than performance.

An intense, creative atmosphere will offer the professionally minded student a fresh approach to the principles of theatre. The workshop experience stresses ensemble work, improvisation, scene study, and audition skills.

Boaters should make safety list

BY DICK LEWKINS

BOATS AND HURRICANES don't go well together but yours should ride it out safely if you'll just make out a safety check list and adhere to it religiously. Take the weeds off the trailer and allow the hubs to sink into the ground. Take the boat down and be dead sure you use extra heavy duty line.

If your boat is afloat and can't be dry-docked in any way, be sure it's safely moored or anchored. Survey the area beforehand and see if you can't find a sheltered cove or canal where you can anchor or moor your craft with relative safety. Get out plenty of slack lines and be sure the boat's moorings are chafe-proof. Shift in the marina-storage anchorage is probably the best way to safeguard your nautical sweetheart.

STOW ALL LOOSE GEAR and tie down whatever can't be put away safely in the boat. Don't forget to take down a Bimini top, by all means. Keep your fuel tanks full. Batten down all hatches and windows.

Above all, do not stay on the boat. It's far too dangerous.

In brief, work out a hurricane plan with your family, stay tuned to the radio and TV, be sure to have fresh batteries for your radio in case the power goes off. Tape all windows, bring in all loose gear like fuel cans, garbage cans, chairs and the like, and above all, take good care of that boat while there's still time. An ounce of prevention

What to do if your car is flooded by hurricane

If your automobile was substantially submerged by flood waters, temporary emergency repairs should be performed immediately.

Most flood-damaged vehicles can be restored to operating order provided that fast action is taken.

Vehicle owners should follow these basic procedures:

Don't try to start or operate the car. Disconnect the battery. If the car is towed, do so with the drive wheels off the ground. Remove seats, floor mats and drain plugs and flush interior and quarter panels thoroughly with cold water. Leave all trim attached.

Dry out the interior of the car by opening all windows and doors. The interior should be dried out as rapidly as possible to avoid molding of the fabric. Permit the air to get to the upholstery.

Drain the differential and engine. Refill differential with kerosene. Refill engine with a mixture of five parts of kerosene and one part engine oil. Put oil on top of pistons through spark plug holes.

Be especially careful not to crank or start the engine with oil on top of pistons when spark plugs are in place. Serious damage to the engine can result.

Drain the transmission and flush with kerosene and oil, operate and repeat.

Steam clean chassis, if steam cleaning facilities are available. Otherwise, flush with high pressure clean water.

Protect the paint by washing off the heavy sediment. If the sediment is not removed, it will stain or discolor the paint as the automobile dries in the sun or heat. Use detergent or suitable solvent if oil is on the car.

Protect the car from thieves.

If your vehicle is under warranty, follow your dealer's advice to maintain the warranty.

So Bell is prepared for blow

Southern Bell maintains a high degree of preparedness to deal with interruptions of telephone service from any cause. With the arrival of hurricane season, special preparations are made to assure readiness in case one of the tropical storms strikes anywhere in Bell territory in Florida.

William K. Dumont, Manager of Southern Bell in Stuart, said "Certain precautions against storm damage are in force at all times. Our central offices are equipped with batteries and generators to make our switching capability virtually immune to commercial power failure. We also maintain reserves of fuel for our emergency generators to get us through an extended period of time without commercial power."

Dumont stated, "With hurricane season upon us, we are completing special precautions including briefing our people, checking our emergency lines and civil defense circuits."

When an actual storm begins to brew, such preparations are accelerated. Western Electric, the Bell System's supply arm, begins to assemble supplies of emergency repair equipment and cable at distribution centers near where the storm may strike.

As the storm approaches a city, Bell employees in that area are placed on special alert, extra shifts are set up, and final briefings are held. Vehicles are readied and generators tested for the final time. Bell employees in other areas are prepared to move in and help with restoration.

"This Bell System team effort has proven over the years in emergency situations to be very responsive. If a Florida community were struck by a hurricane, we could rely on help from AT&T, Western Electric, Bell Labs, and other operation companies. You might see trucks from as far away as Ohio or Pennsylvania," Dumont said.

"While customers have telephone service as a storm approaches and hits land, there are several ways they can help us," Dumont added.

They are:

Use a phone for necessary calls only. Leave the lines open for emergency calls.

If there is an outage or damage to telephone plant, there is no need to call us. We will be monitoring our system and will be aware of problems.

If there is difficulty in getting dial tone, we are experiencing exceptionally high calling volumes. We will be aware of and working on this network overload condition and there is no need to call us about slow dial tone.

Be patient. We will maximize our facilities and employees to keep providing service and to begin repairing damage as soon as it is safe to work.

If you cannot complete a necessary call, wait and try later. We will be doing our best to help out with emergency communications.

'steady as she grows'

HURRICANE ALMA in 1966 was wet and windy.

Here are insurance tips for those with damage

Owners of insured property damaged by a hurricane should notify their insurance agent or broker as soon as they can assess the damage.

Be prepared to give your agent a description of the damage. The agent will report the loss immediately to your insurance company or to a qualified adjuster who will call on you as soon as possible to inspect the damage. Be sure to give your agent a telephone number where the adjuster can contact you.

Protect your home from further damage. Make whatever temporary repairs you can. Cover broken windows and holes in your roof or walls. Your insurance company will reimburse you for reasonable expenses in making temporary repairs to property damaged by insured perils.

Do what you can to salvage and protect damaged building equipment.

If you feel it is necessary, secure a detailed estimate for permanent repairs from a reliable contractor and give it to the adjuster when he arrives. The estimate should contain detailed specifications of the proposed repairs, detailed repair cost prices and replacement prices.

Take photos of the damaged areas. These will help you with the presentation of your claim and will assist the adjuster in his investigation of your claim.

Prepare a detailed inventory of all damaged or destroyed personal property for the adjuster. Be sure to keep a copy. Your list should be as complete as you can make it and should include: description of the item (and number, if more than one); date of purchase of approximate age; cost at time of purchase; estimated replacement cost today.

Collect cancelled checks, invoices, receipts or other papers that will assist the adjuster in obtaining the value of the destroyed property.

Obtain repair estimates for furniture or other personal property that can be repaired economically.

If you must leave your home, be sure it is secured and protected from further damage. Leave a note on your front door or other conspicuous place, advising where you can be reached.

Even with many additional adjusters, it will take time to process the thousands of damage claims being filed. If your home has been destroyed, or yours is a serious case, tell your insurance agent that you need help. He will do all that he can to be sure that your case is given priority.

Thousands died in 1928 'cane floods

In an area that's been ravaged by the second deadliest hurricane in U.S. history, you'd think folks around here would be very wary of such a storm, but disaster preparedness officials feel this may not be so.

In September of 1928, the monster storm began forming off Africa and swept westward through the Caribbean before slashing into Florida. In those days, weather forecasting was in a primitive stage and there was scant warning of the big blow coming.

The hurricane made landfall around Palm Beach, then moved directly over Lake Okeechobee, literally pushing the water from the lake onto the surrounding lands. U.S. Department of Commerce information on the storm lists the official death toll at 1,836 persons — most of whom lived near the lake. Some local residents say that death count is low, and that as many as 3,000 persons died in the storm.

The only hurricane to claim more U.S. lives than the 1928 cane was one that struck Galveston, Texas in 1900. That one killed 6,000 persons.

Since the 1928 hurricane a series of canals and levees were built to help prevent Lake Okeechobee from overspilling its banks. The 1949 hurricane that blasted our coast moved inland, but the eye of the storm passing over the lake. Great damage was expected, but the levies held and prevented the flooding experienced in 1928.

Dirk Lideen of Fort St. Lucie, who weathered the 1949 storm in downtown Stuart, said that while no official wind reading for that hurricane was recorded from Stuart, a gauge on a fire station in downtown Stuart showed 160 mph before the gauge was blown away. Lideen noted that the gauge did not register higher than 160 mph, so there was no way of telling if winds were higher before the gauge was lost.

Since 1949, Martin and St. Lucie counties have not been hit by a real bad storm, and the same holds true for much of the rest of Florida.

While weather forecasters aren't anxious for the drought of hurricanes in South Florida to end, history tells us that another blow coming our way is inevitable. And, the forecasters say we're overdue for a bad one.

That scares many disaster preparedness officials, because it is now estimated that about three fourths of the persons living in Florida have never witnessed the massive destruction and killing power of a major hurricane. Because many folks here have never lived through a bad one, disaster officials are deeply concerned that residents will take the hurricane threat too lightly, and that as a result lives will be lost that need not be lost.

Steve Wells of the Martin County Disaster Preparedness Office says he's heard estimates that as much as a third of the county's population could be killed by a bad hurricane. He and other disaster preparedness officials are doing all they can to make sure emergency officials are ready — sure to know what route to take they can be for a hurricane. But he says the most important thing that can be done to prevent the loss of life is for residents to heed the warnings issued and to evacuate the flood prone areas.

If particular concern to the officials is the evacuation of Hutchinson Island the island if a hurricane is headed this way, and says it's important to leave well in advance of the storm as it may be difficult or impossible to leave when the storm gets close.

In this special hurricane issue, a map of the evacuation routes from the island is included. Home residents should study that map, so they'll be

After hurricane David hit here last year there was a feeling among those who weathered the hurricane may be complacent about preparing for the next one

David brought winds of about 90 mph. with gusts estimated about 30 mph higher in spots. In terms of hurricanes that was mild and that's why the disaster officials were worried, as they feared some folks may have felt if they could weather that one they could weather anything.

That was my fear at first. But hurricane Allen a couple of weeks ago seems to have helped change that attitude. It has a major hurricane could make people realize hurricanes can be much worse than David. Now there is a real appreciation of the hazards. I hope so, says St. Lucie County Disaster Preparedness Director Phil Rodi.

Island residents urged to leave

BY BOB FRYER

When hurricane David hit the area last year an evacuation order was issued for Hutchinson Island.

The evacuation went smoothly, according to St. Lucie County Disaster Preparedness Director Phil Rodi, and he is hopeful that when another big one comes it will go just as smoothly.

However he says that to happen, folks on the island must be ready for evacuation well before an evacuation order is issued.

Rodi points out that when hurricane Allen hit Texas a couple of weeks ago, it hit with a 13 foot storm surge.

"Here in hurricane force winds of 74 mph we call it a storm surge. It is the storm surge that is the most deadly. It kills more people than the winds. If we had a 12 foot storm surge, water would cover the island. We are fortunate that the water off the island is deeper than in the Gulf of Mexico, so a hurricane of equal strength would create a higher storm surge in the Gulf than here. Those winds can whip up the water pretty good, even here. Rods said.

"If I were in a mobile home in a hurricane I'd get in the strongest room I could find, such as a bathroom or closet. I'd even get in the bathtub and cover myself with a mattress. I'd also be sure I had a battery operated radio and flashlight handy."

Rodi says the need for folks to leave the island during the hurricane season should know all all times they are there, where they will go if a hurricane hits whether it is to leave the area, go to a relative or friend, or to a hurricane shelter. And, anyone planning to go to a shelter should remember that they're not needed and that they should bring with them the necessary provisions, he said.

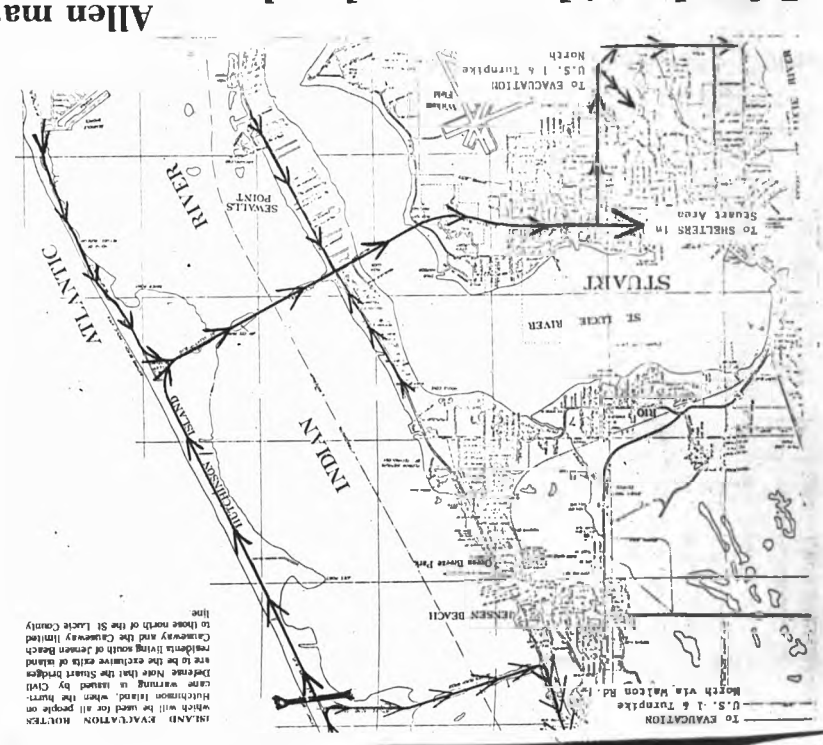
The evacuation plan calls for all island residents north of the nuclear power plant to go north on A1A and exit the island across the Peter Cobb South Bridge then to proceed to a hurricane shelter or to your relatives or friends. Or if you're planning to leave the area, proceed north on U.S. 1 then either stay on that road or take the Florida Turnpike north.

Those south of the nuclear plant who live on the St Lucie County portion of the Jensen Beach causeway, cross the island should go south on A1A to Indian River Drive and Walton Road causeway, then head for U.S. 1 via Suburban Drive. Those living on the island and the mainland ave. cross the causeway then proceed to A1A, then west on A1A to go north to U.S. 1 then continue on that road or take the Florida Turnpike north.

Shelter for residents of Jensen Beach is the Stuart Square Area. Shelter for residents of Hutchinson Island is the Fort Pierce Area.

Rodi says the island area is not a good place to be during a hurricane. Those living on the island should leave the island as soon as possible.

Rodi says that most hurricanes approach the area from the southeast and that the storm usually moves to the northwest.



ISLAND EVACUATION ROUTES which will be used for all people on Hutchinson Island, when the hurricane warning is issued by Civil Defense. Note that the Stuart bridges are to be the exclusive exits of island residents living south of Jensen Beach Causeway and the Causeway limited to those north of the St. Lucie County line.

Allen may replace after David

That means it is very likely the major storms feeding north will already be heavily traveled by persons from the island all those south of the Jensen Beach Causeway should head south to Palm Beach Road from there the to evacuation route is either by Palm Beach Road through Lantana to Federal Highway (Dixie) then down Colorado Avenue to U.S. 1.

Those living along Mackinaw Boulevard on the island are basically in the section I've been stating that people will probably take the next hurricane to hit here actually. The storm tides may cut off the island from the mainland.

Those south of A1A are to go north to A1A, then west on A1A to go north to U.S. 1 via Okeechobee Blvd. Those living on A1A are to go north on A1A.

Small Point residents who live south of A1A are to go north to A1A, then west on A1A to go north to U.S. 1 via Okeechobee Blvd.

Those residents who live on the island are to evacuate while those living on the mainland are to remain in their homes unless directed otherwise by authorities.

Those living on the island should leave as soon as possible. Those living on the mainland should leave as soon as possible after those on the island have left.

Those living on the island should leave as soon as possible. Those living on the mainland should leave as soon as possible after those on the island have left.

Red Cross lists hurricane steps to take

Red Cross officials have issued the following list of procedures local residents should follow in the event a hurricane comes this way.

If a tropical depression grows to hurricane proportions, listen to southeast Florida radio and TV stations for frequent advisories concerning the hurricane's progress.

When a hurricane watch or warning is announced for Martin County or St. Lucie County, tune to your Emergency Broadcast System radio station listed elsewhere in this edition or if you can get them, to Perry Cable TV Channel 11 or WTVX (X 11) message stations for local government and Red Cross advisories. And make sure that when statements are announced that they apply to your area.

Each resident of Martin and St. Lucie counties should have in mind a course of action to take if a hurricane threatens. Actually, there are only three alternatives. These are:

1. Stay at home and weather it out.
2. Leave the area.
3. Go to a Red Cross shelter a motel, hotel or a friend's home.

The following are some factors to consider:

a. If your home is built to withstand strong winds, is in good condition and is not in a low lying area you should be perfectly safe in your own home.

b. Know the elevation of your property above mean sea level. If you don't know, ask your County Engineering Department. Another consideration is that even though your home may be in high ground, access roads might flood and parts may be covered with water. If you are in a low lying area which is certain to go under water you should plan to leave home early. Previous tides may run as much as 10 per cent to 20 per cent of casualties result from water. Winds are of secondary importance.

c. If you live in a trailer, boat or mobile home or if your residence is old or not in good repair or you feel unsafe in your home you should by all means plan to leave home early.

Whatever your course of action, there are certain basic precautions you should take.

FOR THOSE WHO STAY AT HOME

1. Lay in a supply of food, particularly canned foods and other items that do not require refrigeration, check your first aid kit.

2. Your water supply may fail. Store in your bathtub and other containers by scrubbing and then swabbing with ordinary bleach and fill with water that water before drinking.

3. Check emergency cooking and lighting facilities and be sure that adequate fuel batteries, supplies etc. are on hand.

4. A battery operated radio is essential for receiving weather reports after the power fails.

5. Turn your refrigerator and freezer to the coldest setting. Open only when absolutely necessary and close quickly. Most home freezers will maintain food preserving temperatures up to 36 hours or more if left closed. Ice in the trays may be damaged and should be used as a safety precaution whenever such a hurricane threat exists.

6. If there is considerable damage to the electric system restoration of power could be delayed several days. Find out in beforehand if and where you can get dry ice.

7. Fill the gas tank of your automobile and keep the tank topped. Gas pumps operate only by electricity and signs, trash cans, outdoor lights, etc. They have a way of becoming high speed missiles during hurricanes. Half empty swimming pools and lower TV antennas.

8. Most windows will withstand high winds but it is the flying objects such as tree limbs, roofing materials, etc. that cause the damage. Storm shutters and awnings must be closed and secured and unprotected windows should be boarded up or taped inside. A supply of materials, such as boards, nails and a hammer should be kept on hand for emergency repairs.

9. Keep a window partially open on a side of the house opposite from which the wind is blowing. All internal doors should also be kept open. During hurricanes the barometric pressure outside could become so much lower than inside that windows blow out by themselves. As the storm passes the wind will shift to the opposite direction. Don't forget to close the window and open one on the other side of the house.

10. If the storm center or "eye" passes your area there will be a calm period or lull lasting from several minutes to a half hour. Wind and rain will cease and the sun may even shine, but do not be fooled. Do not go out except to make quick emergency repairs. The wind will resume from the opposite direction often with greater force than before.

FOR THOSE WHO GO TO SHELTERS

1. If you live in a mobile home or cruiser or you feel insecure in your home and can't leave the area for one reason or another, go to the nearest Red Cross Shelter as soon as they open. Evacuate exposed beaches and islands early. Do not wait until the last minute.

2. Any of the Red Cross Shelters are not opened until the Hurricane Warning is announced. However, during the Hurricane Watch period you will be informed of the shelters that will be opened should a Hurricane Warning be issued.

3. Food, such as sandwiches ready for the local meal which requires no cooking, should be taken to the shelter along with blankets, pillows, medicine and personal items for the family.

4. Parents of babies must remember to bring formulas, baby food, diapers and any others to keep formula.

5. During the storm no one will be allowed to leave the shelter unless an emergency exists.

6. No alcoholic beverages or pets will be permitted in the shelters.

7. Sterilize and fill your bathtub and other containers with water. The water supply may fail or be contaminated by sometime after the storm subsides and you return to your residence.

8. Tie down or place indoors all loose objects. Secure your home and turn off all power and fuel supplies.

9. Fill the gas tank of your automobile and keep it topped.

10. If you have sick persons you feel should be evacuated consult your doctor to determine if evacuation should be made to a shelter or to a hospital. This also applies to women in their last stages of pregnancy.

FOR THOSE WHO LEAVE HOME AND A

a. To begin as plan, make sure all house objects. Secure your home and turn off all power and fuel supplies. If you leave behind a trailer or mobile home be sure to [illegible] and fasten it [illegible] tough will be

Martin County has been placed on a Hurricane Watch. This is to reduce the possibility of traffic jams and high wind problems which will surely occur if everyone delays their departure until the Hurricane Warning is announced. This particularly applies to persons pulling trailers.

4. Where you go to escape storm danger is a matter of personal choice and a factor always to be considered is the direction the storm is moving. The northeastern part of the state appears to be a good choice. Unless you have friends to stay with, select a good motel hotel and "hole up" for the duration.

AFTER THE STORM

1. Avoid all fallen or low hanging wires.

2. Do not tamper casually with wreckage. A harmless looking carton may harbor a snake. Animals and reptiles are driven out of lowlands by high water and are as distraught and probably hungrier than you are after the storm.

3. Use your phone for emergencies only. If the damage is widespread, do not jam the telephone system to report interruptions. Individual electric, gas, water and telephone services. Utility companies have plans for complete service restoration. Report individual trouble to utility companies only after services are returned to normal in your neighborhood. Jammed switchboards may prevent emergency calls for police, firemen, doctors, ambulances. To report immediately to police or utility companies any hazardous conditions such as downed live electric wires, broken water mains and overturned bottled gas tanks.

4. Don't get in your car immediately after the storm and drive around to see the damage or how your neighbors made out. This contributes to the inevitable confusion. Allow utility restoration and roadblocks thoroughfare dangerous.

5. Remember that streams and rivers may rise higher after the heaviest rain has ended.

6. If you intend to file any insurance claim don't repair anything until your insurance man has had a chance to see it.

7. It's wise to boil drinking water until it has been determined that the water supply hasn't become contaminated.

Mobile home owners should not stay put

"If you live in a mobile home, there is no way in God's earth you should stay there in a hurricane," says St. Lucie County Disaster preparedness director Phil Rodi.

The danger is not only from the high winds but from the tornadoes which are often spawned during hurricanes. For some reason there seems to be a love affair between tornadoes and mobile homes. If you live in a mobile home during hurricane season, you should already have made plans for leaving before a hurricane arrives," he added.

Rodi said the three mobile home developments in the Port St. Lucie area, Spanish Lakes, Spanish Lakes Riverfront, and Golf Village seem to have a healthy fear of hurricanes. "They have made plans for a hurricane. They have equipment for their recreation centers for use as hurricane shelters. They have wood to cover the glass walls of the centers, emergency generators, water, and so forth," he said.

Rodi credited the management of the parks for helping to prepare for a hurricane, and also said the strong homeowners associations at the parks have taken a leadership role in making preparations.

Last week, a group of Spanish Lakes Riverfront homeowners gathered at their clubhouse to make a "dry run" at preparing the clubhouse as a shelter. The park management bought plywood to cover the large glass doors as well as a generator and a variety of other equipment that would be needed in a hurricane.

About 20 men teamed up to attach the plywood to the building, covering the glass doors, as Rodi watched. He said things went very smoothly and praised the group for being so well prepared.

The park's homeowner association has a list of disabled persons and others who need special attention, so they can be brought to the clubhouse shelter first. At that park, as well as at Spanish Lakes and Golf Village, teams of registered nurses are lined up for duty at the clubhouses if a "cane comes this way."

Rodi said the three parks should be an example for other parks to follow in preparing for a hurricane.

AUGUST 27, 1980, 26 PAGES

Municipal tax district established

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Jensen Beach and Rio became a city Tuesday, but without incorporation.

The county commission passed ordinance 170, creating a "Municipal Service Taxing Unit" of the area bounded on the east by the Indian River, the north by the county line, the south by the St. Lucie River (excluding Sewall's Point, Ocean Breeze Park and Stuart) and on the west by U.S. 1.

The ordinance gives the county commission the right to provide just about any service asked for by the people of the area, including fire protection, law enforcement, beach erosion, recreation service and facilities, water, streets, sidewalks, street lighting, garbage and trash collection, and disposal, waste and sewage collection and disposal, drainage, transportation, and other essential facilities and municipal services from funds derived from service charges, special assessment or taxes within such units....

The application of the Jensen Beach-Rio area is added to the already existing ordinance covering the municipal service taxing units of Hutchinson Island and mid, and western Martin County.

Thus, the county commission has accomplished what has been tried, but failed, in incorporation efforts of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce over the past twenty years. And, it was done by ordinance, instead of creating another layer of government.

The effort was designed to provide the tax income so that the county could build bike paths and acquire a regional park for the area.

In establishing the boundaries of the new taxing district, Commissioner Frank Wacha asked that the boundaries be expanded to the centerline of SR 5 (U.S. 1) so that a bike path could be built along the east side of the highway from the north Stuart line to the north county line.

Despite the broad range of services outlined in the ordinance, the present use of the ordinance would be to pay for bike paths and acquire land for the regional park.

Wacha said, "Each time someone is knocked down by a car we get an emotional cry for bike paths. Along with emotional concern for bike paths, we should also have pocketbook concern."

Dennis Doyle, representing the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce as executive director, offered support for the ordinance asking that if the new taxing district could not be implemented for the coming budget year that $100,000 be assessed under the Special Taxing District A so that a start could be made on the building of bike paths in the coming year.

The Chamber has had as its primary role this year the acquisition of rights-of-way for building bike paths along Indian River Drive from Palmer Road to the Jensen Causeway.

Doyle asked that $100,000 in millage be added to the budget earmarked for $50,000 in construction of bike paths and $50,000 for park acquisition.

Commission Chairwoman Maggie Hurchalla suggested that if the park was to be a regional park, it should have the financial support of the adjoining district of Commissioner Higgins.

John Heyburn of Jensen Beach also spoke, supporting the proposal. Heyburn said he had "talked to numerous people and I have not seen one yet who is against the bikepaths."

The ordinance passed unanimously.

IN OTHER ACTION affecting Jensen Beach, the commission:

ACCEPTED the bid of $70,377 from Joe Moseley and Sons for construction of the Jensen Beach Community Center and Fire Station on South Savanna Road with the work to be done in 180 calendar days. Wacha said, "I am very happy about it."

APPROVED the bid of Dickerson, Inc. of $26,912.50 for improvement of the intersection of U.S. 1 and SR 707A (Commercial Street), which will be completed within 30 working days. The amount will be paid out of General Development Corporation impact fees from their Mid-Port development.

HEARD Wacha announce that new goal posts and soccer posts had been ordered for Langford Park. Commissioner Higgins joked, "Did you say gold posts?" to which Wacha answered, "When we get the bill we might think they are gold."

Lightning strikes, golfer saves life of Bill Jahn

BY MIKE SANDY

Quick thinking on the part of Sandpiper Bay resident Warren Thorpe could very well be attributed to saving the life of fellow golfer Bill Jahn, who was struck by lightning on the Sandpiper Bay Saints' course late Saturday afternoon.

Playing in a foursome with Jim Oram, Norm Nardone and Thorpe, it was reported that Jahn was approaching the sand trap near the 17th green when he was struck. Thorpe quickly started "mouth-to-mouth" resuscitation on his fallen friend, who appeared lifeless.

While Jim Oram ran to summon 911 help, Thorpe continued to breathe life into Jahn. Bill responded after five or six minutes, only to fall back into lifelessness, but Thorpe continued feverishly and it is reported that Jahn responded some five minutes later and was immediately transported to Martin Memorial Hospital where emergency treatments were administered.

Medical attendants at the hospital were united in opinion that whomever performed the emergency breathing saved the life of Jahn.

Another foursome playing behind the Jahn quartet knew that someone was down near the 17th green. That group saw two strong bolts hit in their vicinity and sped to the green where Jahn had fallen. That foursome included Lou Mariano, Dolf Ciferri, Earl Baugher and Larry Rosene. Each of them were prepared to assist in the resuscitating process but Thorpe had the rhythm of breathing life into Jahn.

Meanwhile Jahn is at home with his family on Adair Road here "thanking the Lord and Warren Thorpe." He will have to grow a new crop of hair on the left side of his head and along both arms where all the hair had been singed. He has two burn scars, one on his left hand and another in the palm of his right hand. Reports from authorities theorize that that the bolt struck his left hand, traveled up his left arm, around his shoulders, down his right arm and emerged from his right hand.

He is eating well but feels like he has been hit by a 20-ton truck and vows that in the future he'll run as fast as possible with the slightest hint of a storm approaching.

Inlet claims 3 lives in accident Sunday

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Three Stuart residents lost their lives in the St. Lucie Inlet when a 20 foot boat filled with eight people capsized.

The ten-foot waves claimed the lives of Michaele Milley 30, of 3150 Fairmont St., Stuart, Arthur Hewis 36, of 1259 Fairmont St., and his six year-old son, Darrell Hewis. In critical condition at Martin Memorial Hospital is two-year-old Marty Milley Jr.

Survivors of the two families include Brett Hewis 10, Alan Milley Jr. 9, Carol Hewis 23, and Alan Milley Sr.

The boat capsized at approximately 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 24, when Milley Sr. was headed west, attempting to negotiate his 20' Wellcraft through the inlet in rough seas. Milley said the accident occured when he slowed the boat down to allow a large wave to pass. Unable to regain full power, a second swell hit and capsized the boat.

Luckily for some of those on the Wellcraft, Cliff Efinger, a Stuart resident, witnessed the tragic scene and came immediately to help. Using his lifejacket to stay afloat, he abondoned his jet ski so that survivors could cling to its handlebars.

Corporal Bill Pakonis of the Martin County Marine Patrol and officer Cliff Bell received the call for help and took the marine boat to the wreckage. Once there, they saw people and debris floating about 100 yards south of the channel.

Despite the high seas, Bell and Pakonis threw out a tow line and took Brett Hewis and Alan Milley Jr. aboard. Larger swells prevented them from taking on any more survivors. Instead, they tried to tow the people away from the waves, but the survivors soon lost their hold on the rope.

Forced to return to shore, the officers met with those aboard a 24 foot Topaz who said they had found the two year old boy lying in the water. Thanks to the efforts of Dr. John Schoppe and Bob Pelosi, who not only dove in the water to rescue the child, but resuscitated him as well, Marty Milley remains alive, in critical condition from a brain concussion.

Other survivors were taken aboard the Lady Stuart and immediately transported to the Sailfish Marina, where an ambulance was waiting.

The U.S. Coast Guard sent down its 42 foot Cutter along with a helicopter for assistance. Fortunately, for two other boats who capsized that same Sunday, they were there.

Both a Zodiac raft and another small boat, each carrying two passengers, capsized in the rough waters, and were immediately picked up by the Cutter.

The Inlet is a well-known treacherous one that has claimed many lives in the past. Figures show that in July alone, the Coast Guard Auxiliary offered 17 boat assists, for a total of 56 people.

According to Coast Guard Auxiliary, officer, Louis Petrone, "Too many small vessels go offshore and they don't use very good judgement." He went on to stress the importance of lifejackets and good old fashioned common sense.

Last January, there was a similar tragic instance when an 18 foot boat capsized in the rough inlet. Of the five on board, two lives were lost.

Petrone was on hand for the accident on Sunday, but was forced to remain near shore when huge swells almost broached his 34' boat. His fellow worker, Bill Burte says, "Lou is a competent captain, but the seas were too rough." He remained inside the inlet, where he could help shuttle victims to safety.

Lek Sharon was operating the Stuart Radio Two Station when the call for help came in. She says that, "we lost people not through carelessness (on the part of rescuers), but through too heavy waters....everybody tried to help."

Though some life jackets were found floating in the water, none of the survivors or victims were found wearing any.

After decades of efforts to secure funds to improve the dangerous inlet, construction on inlet improvements began last year and were originally expected to be completed by the end of this November. However, the project is running behind schedule and may not be finished until sometime early next year.

The improvement project calls for extending the north jetty by 600 feet, building a 1,000 foot south jetty, constructing a detached breakwater on the southeast side of the inlet, and dredging the inlet channel to a deeper depth. So far, part of the north jetty work is completed, but very little visible progress has been made on the south jetty and no work has begun yet on the breakwater.

Sewall's Point residents think law too harsh

BY CATHIE FARAGO

More than 100 signatures have been gathered in a petition against the town of Sewall's Point parking ordinance No. 118.

The incident that forced the issue is one in which a resident, Richard Trevison, was cited for exposing his 1978 Ranchero.

According to town rules, any non-conforming vehicle, including Ranchero's, must be kept concealed from view.

According to Trevison, organizer of the petition, the incident has "brought the whole community up in arms." He and others like him feel that the commission has taken too tight a rein on the residents of Sewall's Point.

Legally, Trevison may have violated the law, but he feels the circumstance under which the ticket was issued was not taken into consideration.

At the time, he was out in the yard working on the sprinkler system. Because of his periodic trips to the garage for tools, etc., the door remained open, exposing the Ranchero. He felt to be issued a citation in this situation was pressing the issue a bit too far.

"There are more important things for the police to do than check garage doors being open or closed."

Trevison maintains that he "likes the area" he has lived in for the past eight years and is "in favor of a parking ordinance" that will keep junk cars from cluttering the neighborhood. But, he feels too much of a good thing can be damaging.

"Every time you want to do something, you have to read the rules," and the volumes of by-laws. He adds that according to those rules, an International Scout Safari, complete with rollbar, is conforming. "My Ranchero is still more of a car than that thing is," he claims. Volkswagen buses are also allowed, provided they have seats while his car is outlawed because it allows for transporting items in the back.

Alternatives to the problems have not yet been addressed. To date, time has been spent gathering the needed signatures to place commissioners that enough residents exist who want a law revision to warrant a change. Hopefully, the petition will be ready to present at the Wednesday, Sept. 3 town meeting.

In addition, Trevison will also present a petition from his neighbors in Mandalay. Of the ten houses in the subdivision, eight residents have attested to the fact that they don't mind his Ranchero being exposed. The two remaining homeowners are away.

Trevison's complaint lies with the issuance of the law rather than the enforcers of it. Although irritated by what he feels is the pettiness of the citation issued him, he said, "Officer (Louis) Savini is doing his job ... sometimes, he comes on a little strong."

Outboard open house planned

The Outboard Mechanics Program (OMP) is sponsoring the September meeting of the Marine Industries Association on Tuesday, Sept. 9.

Members of this organization have helped in establishing the Outboard School by donating time, effort, and material. Of particular value has been the cooperation in planning the curriculum to include the technical, economic, and business aspects of this profession.

The group will be welcomed by Dean Ernest Tesley and thanked for their participation. A tour of the Outboard Facility, one of the finest in the country, will be conducted by Robert Chester, head instructor. All motors, training aids, test fixtures, and instrumentation will be shown. Chester will discuss the plans being made with ex-military personnel, Veterans Administration and CETA as part of the student body.

The Association business meeting will then be held. Upon conclusion, refreshments will be served. Copies of the latest Outboard Brochure and resumes of the latest graduates will be distributed.

Volleyball clinic for officials

Indian River Community College will host a clinic for all individuals interested in serving as volleyball officials during the 1986-87 season.

The clinic will be held on Friday, September 12 and Saturday, September 13. It will be run by Carol D. Smith of Miami-Dade South. The area booking agent for volleyball officials.

The clinic begins on Friday evening with registration at 7 p.m. at the IRCC gymnasium. A demonstration on volleyball techniques will be given that night by members of the IRCC team as well as several local high schools.

The clinic continues Saturday morning with a written exam given to all candidates at 9:30 a.m. At 11:30 a.m. several area volleyball teams will play and give the officials a chance to be evaluated.

Total cost of the clinic is $16 for the two day session.

Volleyball rule books and study guides for the exam are available prior to the clinic by calling 464-2000, ext. 238.

WWI Vets will host district meeting Sept. 5

Barracks 854, Veterans of World War I and their Auxiliary will host the second District meeting on Friday, Sept. 5 at Haag Hall in the All Saints Church on Jensen Beach.

A luncheon will be served at noon followed at 1:30 p.m. by the District meeting.

The lifeguard's role; narcissic or functional

BY CATHIE FARAGO

The lifeguard. The recipient of every girl's childhood dreams. To her, he represents that bridge that helps her [illegible] maturity.

What becomes of those left behind? Does the once idolized, confident, lifeguard remain nobly for the new school of children to adore? Perhaps, but that is a remainder version, unencumbered by youthful dreams.

To the lifeguards, the reality is vastly different from the illusion. The job is a 9-to-5 one which requires a watchdog over who can accurately anticipate problems before they arise. More than just saving swimmers caught in rip tides, or watching for sharks, lifeguards have the responsibility of protecting people from themselves.

According to Jensen Beach guard, Mark Cirillo, it's more than just a matter of counting heads in the water.

"You have to watch the people before one foot is set in the ocean." To Mark, bathers are divided into mental categories by the guard.

There are the tourists, easily recognizable because of their white or red skin. They must be watched closely because they aren't familiar with the worm rocks that make up the reef.

In all cases, familiarity breeds contempt. In fact, one irate swimmer who had a too-close encounter with worm rocks was so upset that he asked Cirillo if he could, quite seriously, blow up the reef.

Cirillo takes it all in stride and considers it part of the job of being around people. He admits "there's never a dull moment," and "you see things you normally wouldn't see."

What he also sees are people coming to the beach in various stages of inebriation. "These are the ones that "could go under in knee-deep water."

There are the kids on rafts, the daredevils, and the people who just get tired, all clustered together in groups of hundreds.

Although Cirillo admits he will never become independently wealthy lifeguarding, he does it, quite simply, because he enjoys it.

"I lived by the ocean all my life. I like being near the water."

But what about a career, responsibility, or a wife and children? Cirillo claims no interest on all three counts, which is why he is doing this.

Coming from New Jersey, he enrolled at Florida Institute of Technology as an oceanographic student. To supplement his schooling, he took a parttime position as a lifeguard. Soon, roles were reversed, and as Cirillo puts it, lifeguarding got into his blood.

Despite [illegible] pressure and strong influence from relatives to switch to a more recognized lifestyle, Mark dogmatically adheres to that which he likes best, if only for the moment.

For the new school of upcoming teenagers, he will play the part of the hero. For himself, he's doing a job that carries no accolades, but one that he enjoys best. Lifeguarding.

WHAT IS TAX SHELTER?

QUESTION: Frequently, I hear the term "tax Shelter" but I have never heard a really good explanation of what this means. Would you explain the term and give an example of how tax shelter works in real estate?

ANSWER: In real estate, tax shelter is created by certain income tax deductions which are available to investors. Most notably, these include the interest and depreciation deductions and normal operating expense deductions. Deductions often create taxable income which is less than the actual cash flow that investors receive from the property.

Any time that less income is reported to Uncle Same than is enjoyed from the property, "tax shelter" is created. Quite frequently, the deductions that are available from real estate investments exceed the property's income. In this case, a tax loss is reported from operations even though there is a positive cash flow. This is the ultimate "tax shelter."

Here's an example: Let's say that you own a small income property with rents last year that totalled $18,000. Let's say your operating expenses, real estate taxes, insurance, repairs, and utilities were $5,000 and that your net operating income was $10,000.

In addition to these operating expenses, the cost of interest plus your depreciation deduction total $12,000. Three deductions exceed the net operating income by $2,000. Thus, a tax loss of $2,000 is created.

Let's say you enjoyed a $1,000 cash profit from the building. However, you will report a minus $2,000 taxable income. This shelters your entire $1,000 in positive net cash flow and gives you an offset against other income.

If you were in the 50 percent tax bracket the $2,000 in "tax loss" would save you a thousand dollars in taxes you would normally pay.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by

What will open and close on Labor Day

As the first anniversary of Hurricane David's historic visit to the Treasure Coast nears, many local Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach residents are preparing for a gala holiday feast free from tropical storm activity.

According to recent weather reports they may well get clear skies on Labor Day Monday, September 1st, and the majority of area food and convenience stores will remain open to meet the demands of picnicers and Labor Day partyers.

All Winn Dixie supermarkets will be open for business on Monday, the 1st, but only until 6 p.m. A representative of the Publix stores indicated that they will be closed both Sunday and Labor Day.

Area convenience stores will open during their usual business hours on Labor Day, including: Shop n' Go, 6 a.m. to midnight; Seven-Eleven, 24 hours; Lil General, 24 hours; and Cumberland Farms, 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Although partyers will have access to edibles on the first, they had better secure spending money in advance of the holiday weekend, as all local banks and savings institutions contacted said they will be closed on Labor Day. Bank representatives mentioned that their respective institutions will resume normal operating hours on Tuesday, September 2nd.

In addition to the financial institutions, all Martin and St. Lucie County governmental offices will close for Labor Day, as will the Port St. Lucie city hall.

The Jensen Beach and Ft. Pierce post offices will be closed on Monday and no mail delivery will be made on that day. The Port St. Lucie contract post office stations will close on the first as well.

On August 29, this man will do everything in his power to make your belt buckle a collector's item.

Endless hours of painstaking craftsmanship went into the creation of the Florida Commemorative Collection.

And in a few minutes on August 29th, the entire series of molds for the Collection will be destroyed—thus assuring that no more of these hand some belt buckles will ever be produced.

With a few blows of a sledgehammer, your buckles become part of a truly limited edition. And the possibility of their increasing in value is enhanced many times over.

The Florida Commemorative Collection consists of three solid brass or bronze belt buckles depicting scenes and events of historical significance in all Floridians. Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida, our native alligator, and our Indian Heritage.

Originally, these buckles were to be available only through July 31. But because of the enthusiastic response to this offer, we're extending their availability through August 29th. But that's all. Our interest above will make sure of that.

All you have to do to get one is make a qualifying deposit at any Southeast Bank. Depending on the amount you deposit, you'll receive the buckle of your choice free or at a reduced price.

After making your qualifying deposit, you can buy additional buckles and three buckle display sets with a leather covered hardwood display plaque at special less prices. (See chart below for exact requirements.)

Come to a Southeast Bank and pick up the buckle of your choice now. On August 29th, you're going to own a collector's item.

Supplies of some designs are running out, so get in soon to be sure you can get the design of your choice.

We are Martin County's savings and loan

First Federal of Martin opens East Ocean office

The finishing touches have been applied to First Federal of Martin's newest office at 2001 S.E. Ocean Blvd., just across from the Ocean East Mall. Inside, the modern facility will include 2000 square feet, and outside, a two-lane drive-in and a large parking lot will be provided for the convenience of customers.

Now open for business, First Federal of Martin's East Ocean office is the second branch of Martin County's largest financial institution to become operational in the past six months, and First Federal customers may now choose to do business at any one of seven locations.

William T. Wallis, president of Martin County's oldest Savings and Loan Association, announced that Priscilla T. Bailey will manage the East Ocean office.

"I take great pleasure in naming Mrs. Bailey to manage our newest office," Wallis said. "In addition to holding impressive credentials, Priscilla has a great deal of experience supervising branch offices and is the type of individual who assures customers that they come first with us."

Most recently, Mrs. Bailey was a branch manager with Southern Federal Savings and Loan Association of Broward County. Her experience also includes supervisory positions at First National Bank of Cobb County in Marietta, Georgia and Fulton National Bank of Atlanta.

A graduate of Indian River Community College and John Carroll High School in Fort Pierce, Mrs. Bailey attended Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina and holds a Certificate of Banking from the American Institute of Banking.

The East Ocean office will be open from 9 a.m. through 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. through 6 p.m. Friday. For the safety of First Federal of Martin's customers and all area residents, a pedestrian crosswalk will be located connecting the entrance to the branch office and the Ocean East Mall. The crosswalk will include a button which signals the traffic light to stop approaching vehicles.

Sheridan opens office in Stuart

Sheridan & Associates, a newly formed public relations firm has opened at 201 S.W. Monterey Road, Suite 34, in Stuart.

Doris W. Sheridan, owner and president of Sheridan & Associates, was a partner of Sheridan and Wolfe Public Relations Consultants for the past 5½ years.

Ms. Sheridan has been a resident of the Treasure Coast area for ten years. Prior to settling here she was with Eastern Airlines for thirteen years as a stewardess and then as a manager for Eastern's In Flight Services Department. After moving to the area, she served as marketing assistant at Ocean Village on Hutchinson Island.

The public relations executive is known for her involvement in community affairs. She is an active member of the Jensen Beach and Stuart Martin County Chambers of Commerce. She is secretary-director of the Martin County Economic Development Council.

"Martin County is one of the fastest growing areas in Florida. With the improvement of the St. Lucie Inlet, Martin County is becoming a prime economic market for water oriented people and businesses, plus the high quality of real estate communities offer excellent living conditions which in turn makes the area a desirable place to work and live," said Ms. Sheridan.

Ms. Sheridan was instrumental in planning the St. Lucie Inlet Festival last October. She served as chairwoman of the public event and was responsible for coordinating the private reception for Governor Graham held at Sailfish Point.

Sheridan & Associates is a full service public relations agency, with a staff of account executives and a trained administrative office assistant.

Special taxing district brings bike paths

There is a solid support among community leaders for the proposed special taxing district that would be established to bring the completion of a bike path system to Jensen Beach and Rio.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has just about completed the survey of property owners along Indian River Drive, with the greatest number of owners giving letters of intent to donate the necessary rights-of-way for a bike path from Palmer Road to the Jensen Beach Causeway.

It will now be up to the county right-of-way agent to get the property descriptions and "easement without deed" papers written so that the property owners can give the right-of-way.

There are other areas that need bike paths, and most of the property owners will donate the needed easements when contacted.

With an estimated $44,000 per mile cost of a bike path, the Jensen-Rio area will need a municipal taxing district to pay for the paths.

A path is needed on the Jensen Causeway from the east end at A-1-A to the west end at SR 707. The path from Indian River Drive and Commercial Street west to South Savanna Road is complete. Also, the path from Commercial down South Savanna Road to the VFW is complete.

With Sewall's Point town council in construction of the bike path from East Ocean north to the Outrigger property, and the right-of-way already donated through the Outrigger, the bike path construction is taking giant strides forward.

Eventually, the path would extend to the City of Stuart, which would construct its share to the Roosevelt Bridge.

The people must pay the cost, and it looks as if the people will be in favor of the very much needed bike paths and the special taxing district.

As Jensen Beach grows, so do the needs for recreational facilities. A regional park fits into the plans for that growth.

But, should that regional park come at the expense of the people of Jensen Beach, or should the regional park be constructed and maintained at the expense of the entire population of Martin County.

This is a question that will face the Martin County Commission in its consideration of a special taxing district that would lump both the regional park and bike paths into one fund-raising effort.

Langford Park is a perfect example of the problem of a regional park. It was originally intended as a community park, operated to the benefit of the people of Jensen Beach and Rio through Taxing District A. It has become more than that.

The park is open to all, county-wide, and through its very popular tournaments, to teams statewide.

The various leagues that have expanded to tax the capacity of the park contain teams from throughout the county. All have been welcome, and the people of this taxing district have paid the freight for the facilities and the lighting of three ball fields.

By its very nature, a regional park is a facility that is open to all areas of the county. If that is so, then why shouldn't the park be financed by the entire county, rather than just the people of Jensen Beach and Rio?

The Jensen Beach urban area was finally included in the overall county zoning plan, ending five months of hearings.

The entire faculty of Jensen Beach Elementary School included Ernest Varvil, principal; Helen Winebrenner, secretary; and teachers Lucy Merchattle, Phyllis Bevin, Billy Cryse, Jane Anthony, and Lucille Chicky.

The new A-1-A from Jensen Beach opened, and was described as "a paradise for bird watchers, and a nature wonderland."

In the face of stiff resistance from Legion Heights residents, the county decided to build a sidewalk on county right-of-ways, rather than seek additional rights-of-way from residents along South Savanna Road.

Thousands were expected for the fund raising Mickey DeLoach Day to help the young man who was struck by a baseball bat and suffered a crushed skull.

Sheriff Roy Baker announced that he had arrested 85 users or pushers of narcotics thus far in the year. Also, 38 glue sniffers were arrested.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce had a thirty-member committee [illegible] incorporation of the community.

Dick Campbell

After all, it's only money

Crusty Senator Ev Dirksen once said, "A million here, a million there; eventually it adds up."

There are many ways to get on the Federal dole. The money is the power, and cities and counties and states have fought for years to get their share of federal dollars.

The power of that money is what keeps many elected officials in power. The congressman or senator who brings home the bacon is the congressman or senator who gets reelected.

That power of money has even reelected [illegible] congressmen.

Everyone seems to become tainted by money — even to the point of not recognizing what it has done, and being righteous about it all.

The fuss over the need for bike paths is an example. When we first editorialized about it we received a letter to the editor from an FIT student in Washington, D.C. stating that there were millions of dollars available in government grants for bike paths.

This all came to mind when Jim Navitsky announced a $300,000 alternate education program designed to rehabilitate disruptive or disinterested students. The idea sounds good, and there is bound to be a bunch of those students who have come from broken families, or neighborhoods that need rehabilitation.

After all, there are 9,000 students going to school in Martin County. It seems a small investment to help a group that needs help.

But wait, Navitsky also said that the program is for 65 students in high school and 25 to 30 students in the middle schools, a total of about 95 students.

The program would have the students in a special class program at the Jensen Environmental Center. They would be taught behavioral modification to motivate them to return to regular classes as good students.

It sounds like a good program, and, best of all, the program will be totally funded by the state. Not one cent would come from Martin County unless you remember that we pay taxes to the state, and that is where our state money is coming from.

That is the fallacy of it all. We don't have to pay a dime. The state will pay it all.

The most frightening aspect of it all is that it is going to cost about $3,157 for each of those 95 students to be taught not to disrupt classes.

Even then, Navitsky admits that all of them will not be saved for the school system. Some will continue to drop out.

There was a time when a student got a spanking when he or she got out of line. Now, that is brutal.

There was a time when a student would be thrown out of school for being a disruptive influence, and not allowed back until he or she was willing to live by the rules. Now, we offer to spend $3,157 to try to get each one back on the right track.

The wonderment that comes to mind is whether the program was designed because of need, or whether the program is being instituted because a grant of $300,000 was available.

Would the $300,000 be better spent by using $35 more in education for the 9,000 students who do not get in trouble and are in school to get an education?

I really don't know why I complain. After all, the nation is in an energy crisis, yet we spend billions of dollars on fuel busing students miles and miles to achieve racial balance, while citizen taxpayers wait in lines to fill their tanks.

We spend billions of dollars on an all-volunteer military, even after it has been proven that the concept doesn't work.

We increase the sheriff's department budget to get more deputies to catch vandals who are immediately released by the courts because they are juveniles.

Why complain. After all, it's only money.

Sally Latham

School daze

This time of year always conjures my conscience with anxieties, reflected from down the years. It's called the back-to-school syndrome, and the questions raised were 1) What will I get the kids dressed for school in, and, 2) How will we pay for it.

Somehow, the questions must have been answered satisfactorily, because we got four of them through the ordeal called school days without either them or us being arrested. But at the time, it seemed an insurmountable project, each year with increasing difficulty.

While we lived in Addison, N.Y. and there were only three to worry about, the question of clothing the multitude didn't seem so tough. I'd simply march them over to my sister's department store, and let Ruth Anne take over. She always seemed to know just the right things to put the little blighters in for the proper first day of school impact. She was up on what the little Miss Jane and Little Sir Joe would be wearing, so I left the whole thing to her.

But by the time we moved to Oak Ridge, Tenn., the family had grown another notch, with the arrival of Bruce, and the top three, Bill, Valerie and Robin were all in school.

That first August, when the thread bare bears needed dressing for school, was a hectic one. We had no car, so the annual hegira to the stores meant walking up to Twomile through the woods, doing the best we could with what the stores there had to offer, and hiking back home, arms filled with awkward sized bundles.

It also meant that I would be wielding needle and thread like mad. You're ready to do a lot of altering of hemlines and pants cuffs before you walk it back to town to trade in for another size.

From the second year on, until we left Oak Ridge, we became Sears of Knoxville's chief customers. The annual hegira became a ritual — line up the kids, get each bathed and dressed in some semblance of decency, pop them in the car before they could get dirty again, and take off for Knoxville.

I know that Mr. Sears must have had a special detail staked out to watch for us. "Attention all stations — Red alert — Latham family bearing down from the west — batten down all toys and small objects."

It's not that the kids were bad. They all just had the feebes. In order for an object to exist, it must be felt of. Robin had a way of making his path around the toy department, one hand in pocket and the other outstretched, like a seeing-eye antenna. Val's ploy was to knock the coveted item to the floor. Then she could pick it up and feel it with good excuse. Bruce was the observer, standing back and watching the ploys so he could get them down pat before using.

The trick was to get them away from the toys and into the children's clothing department, where the stacks of dungarees, shirts, socks, underwear had first priority on our money. And to get each respectively to hold still long enough to come close to being measured for size. At those ages, if I blinked my eyes too many times between measurements, one of them was sure to grow out of the size I had him pegged for.

Next came the shoe department. School meant three new pairs of shoes per child — one everyday pair, one for Sunday best and a pair of gym shoes. Therein lies the national debt to begin with. And a discouraging investment, knowing that those lovely, shiny fresh smelling shoes would all too soon become victims of the red Tennessee clay of which the landscape is made.

Laden with our piles of purchases, we'd wend our way back to Oak Ridge, with only a few minor bruises and contusions derived while arguing over who sits on the back deck of the wagon, our modus operandi acquired several months after arriving in the Atomic City.

Yes, in our family, those were known as the Sears years. Every month, at least a quarter of our combined paychecks made their way faithfully into the sears coffers. We bought all our furniture there, our washing machine, stereo set, all the kids' bicycles. The Lathams were on the prime customer list, I'm sure.

Hence, it was a shocker, a few years later, to find out what a short memory Mr. Sears has. The scene and the times had changed. I had left my husband and had taken a new job in Fort Lauderdale.

One of my first acts was to apply for a Sears charge account, giving them the full history of my previous dealings with their august store.

Weeks poked on without hearing from the application. Then finally came a stiff letter, saying they'd be happy to do business with me — for cash. My change in status from house wife to divorcee had apparently made them do a turnabout in their thinking about me as a customer.

In a high dudgeon, I went down the street to Britt's Department Store. Yes, they'd be happy to open an account for me.

But time changes everything. My bitterness over the incident has vanished, and I look back on those Sears years as a precious part of raising a family.

PAPER MASH

THE printed word controls my life
It really is absurd —
As toddler, teener, struggling wife
I'm lost without the Word.

In smitten tongue or bawdic
In love or out again
This paper-magazine-shtick
Is lost without the Pen.

Through the Bible, through a ballad
Busily I munch
Carpetbaggers for a salad
I take Pirch to lunch.

My house is littered with the news
From Washington, Cuyuga,
From art museums, book clubs, zoos
From Maine to Chattanooga.

If I'm brilliant at a dinner
It's because I quote
From Cornelia Otis Skinner

Busing presents challenge

The anti-busing group in Port St. Lucie seems to have taken up its cause with great energy.

They staged a march last week and several hundred persons participated. And, they have showed up in large numbers at school board and city council meetings to state their case.

They feel an injustice has been done by forcing their children to ride as much as 20 miles to a school in north Fort Pierce, when two schools are closer.

They argue they should have the right to have their children attend the community schools and that it is a waste of expensive gas for busses. They even point out that if a nuclear disaster occurred at the power plant on Hutchinson Island, they could be separated from their children at a very traumatic time.

They further argue that the bus rides would be physically and psychologically damaging to their young children and say no consideration of their children was given when the busing plan was approved by a federal judge.

The other side of the coin is that busing would have never been instituted across the nation if equal educational opportunities had been offered to minority groups, and would not have been required by court order here if the St. Lucie County school board had not dragged its feet on desegregation about a decade ago.

The anti-busing group says they don't object to the forced busing because of racial prejudice, but because of the harm it will do their children.

However, there is one disturbing thing that was said at a recent city council meeting by a member of the anti-busing group. She pointed out that there was a real sense of community spirit last year at Port St. Lucie Elementary, as many parents participated in the Parents, Teachers, Students and Friends organization. She said she doubted that there would be the same community spirit this year and said the PTSF group seemed to be suffering from the busing order.

I remember from covering Port St. Lucie Elementary School news for the Mirror a couple of years ago that the PTSF group there was very active. And, there were many school volunteers performing invaluable services for the school. Back then, the school was overcrowded and in its first year of double sessions. The feeling among parents seemed to be that if double sessions had to be contended with, they were determined to minimize the adverse effects of it by pitching in to help. Back then, the completion of Morningside Elementary was anxiously anticipated as an event that would be beneficial for the children. Now, in light of the busing order, many folks who thought their children would go to the new school have found they'll be going to Garden City Elementary in Fort Pierce instead. And a lot of parents who thought their kids would remain at Port St. Lucie Elementary and finally have a year without double sessions have also learned their kids must go to Garden City.

Distance alone makes the potential for lack of parent participation in school events real. It could very well mean fewer volunteers and a lessening of enthusiasm for the three schools and their programs.

Those are problems the anti-busing group will be quick to point out. They will be difficult to overcome. But if the bottom line is concern for their children, they are problems that must be overcome.

While they continue their long battle to get [illegible] counter-productive nationwide, they must face the reality of today's situation and redouble their efforts to make whatever school their children attend the best it can be. It won't be easy, but double sessions weren't either, and when that problem faced the parents of Port St. Lucie, they showed they were up to the challenge.

And, if the distance is simply too great for them to make frequent trips to Garden City to lend assistance there, it would be a shining example of their commitment to better education if they lent assistance to our local schools. Perhaps that would encourage some of the folks in Fort Pierce who have kids bused down here to do the same at Garden City.

Letters to the editor

To the editor:

I am sure that by now most of your readers have heard of the school busing situation in St. Lucie County. I am also sure that most say, "That's a shame, but it doesn't affect me. I am a senior citizen, or I live in Martin County, or my children are in private school," and then go on to their next article.

I am asking now for all of their help. This issue affects every person in the State of Florida, if not the entire country, because everyone is paying for it, either financially or through decreased supplies of gasoline.

Martin County is having a larger teacher turnover this year than in the past. I feel certain that low salaries were a factor in this. Every county in the state seems to be having a similar problem. Wake up!!! St. Lucie County cannot absorb the entire cost of operating these buses. The money is coming from every county in the state, by one means or another.

Private schools are not the answer either. Many I have checked with are not accredited and many teachers are not state certified!

We are sacrificing basic education to pay for gasoline. Why not build bicycle paths instead? It would probably be a lot cheaper and everyone would benefit then. Obviously, I am not going into the racial issues involved. That could be another whole letter!!!

Please, please help us fight this. We need a Constitutional Amendment, so write to your Congressmen and tell them to stop forced busing. If you have friends in other communities that bus, ask them to join us too.

To the Editor:

Compared to Stuart Causeway and Beach, as well as Hobe Sound, Jensen Beach is a disgrace. The Causeway has no tables. We could use cement ones. Trees are uprooted. Mounds of debris, there so long that grass is growing out of it.

The beach needs paved parking, a cement building for the lifeguards. Our beaches are one of our attractions. Doesn't anyone care?

LABOR DAY 1980
by
ALLEN F. BREWER

We've come a long way since eighty-two,
When the Knights of Labor parade,
That first Monday in September,
Set the stage for the later crusade.

Encouraged, Sam Gompers, in eighty-six
Sparked the A.F.L. into life,
And Labor grew up in identity,
By mediation rather than strife.

But dont let it go to our heads—just cause,
Labor Day is the leavening theme
To harmony, justice, equality—
Let's keep U.S.A. on the beam.

PAT VILLA

New Mirror staffers named

Pat Villa of Stuart has joined the staff of The Mirror Newspapers to serve as account executive. It was announced this week by Richard Campbell, editor.

Villa, a resident of this area for six and a half years, will service advertising accounts in Stuart, Rio and Palm City.

Though she was born in Rome, Ga., Villa has lived in Florida most of her life and says, "I hope to stay here the rest of my life."

In addition to prior sales experience, she is a graduate of Hillsborough High School in Tampa, is a member of the Martin County Audubon Society, and does some work for the Martin County animal Rescue League.

Villa is an avid angler, and especially loves offshore fishing.

Mirror editor and publisher Richard E. Campbell has announced the appointment of Cathie Farago, 26, a news reporter and feature writer, to the staff of the Mirror.

Farago, 28, has been a regular freelance contributor to the Mirror for the past year and previously did freelance writing for Indian River Life magazine and several Vero Beach publications.

The daughter of Hutchinson Island residents Dr. and Mrs. Peter Farago, Cathie has resided in Jensen Beach for the past seven years, after studying journalism at Vermont College and Randolph-Macon Women's College in Lynchburg, Virginia.

She will be responsible for reporting government and local news happenings in Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach.

Treasure Coast Archery Club meets Saturday

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Peg Ray and Betty Leister

BY RUTH BOWES

Assisted by Peg Ray, Betty Leister

The 8th Annual Holiday Out re union was held Aug. 12,13,14, at Algonac State Park, Algonac Mich. The Park was on the St. Clair River, gateway for the Great Lakes freighters. Pleasure and sail boats passing by. The re union was hosted by Kay and Harvey Sanders, and attended by 28 persons. It was very beautiful and peaceful, socializing cards and talk was enjoyed by all. A cocktail party was hosted by Beryle and Cecil Rey and a dinner at the Voyager in St. Clair.

Several took the ferry over to Canada; at that area, Canada is south of U.S.A. Guests were Dot & Browne Bowne Lisbee & Artie Smith, Paul & Betty Dome, Evelyn & Bob McLean, Edith & Steve Ponston, Dick & June Groves, Ruby & John Bietrek, Norma & Bill DeKoning, Ken & Maxine Ritter, Jean Davis, and Daughter Rhonda, Rita & Elmer Dobson, Frank White (Boodie was too ill to attend). This year is the very memorable occasion that all well remember.

News from Lisbee & Artie Smith, who has been very busy this summer. A trip to St. Paul, Minn., to attend the F.C.M.A. convention was most enjoyable. They traveled through seven states. While home they had relatives visiting, now they will take it easy until their football game on the 6th of September. Then they follow the team [illegible] November. Then the Smiths and Bennetts will be back to H.Out.

Good news! From "Tuck" Schaerer. He is home from the hospital. Regaining his strength, driving his car a little, but the Dr. will not permit him to drive to H.Out at the present. But we hope it won't be long until he returns.

News from Edwina Palmer & Earle; they are really enjoying the summer at home in the mountains at Oquossoc, Maine. They have been to the coast to get their wonderful lobsters a few times. And just returned from a trip with their son & his family (who will be H.Out visitors in Feb.) to a remote pond that took them out of Maine thru Quebec and back into Maine up near Alagash Lake, they caught some lovely red spot trout, and large lake trout. Very hot weather and also high winds and rain made tenting a challenge. Next month they will go back to their trailer at Newcastine dunk Lake for more red spot fishing. Then will turn to start the trek to H.Out. And the Mirror is a welcome visitor, it helps to keep in touch with our large family.

Vicki and Mac McKeever write of a lovely summer, hot in the cities, but cool at their lake. They just returned from a week at Hampton Beach, N.H.

The Mays & the Armocks are preparing a big cookout as Lil and George Bares will stop for a visit. The G Bares had a lovely trip to California and now on their way to Ohio, to ready themselves to return to H.Out.

Alice Perreault writes that Tuesday evening was quite chilly, so she lit her fireplace for the first time. The Ed Frosts and Alice have been passing the summer away playing cards?

Joyce O'tern has been teaching Peg Ray some of the finer points of scrabble this past week. Joyce is a fine teacher.

Ethel and Bob Shilhorn wrote from N. Carolina that the food is great at the ranch, so it's a diet for the both of them when they return. The pool there in spring fed as they only ventured in three times as it was too cold. They will leave Candler, N.C. on Tuesday, Aug. 26th, for Opryland, U.S.A. in Nashville, Tenn.

Wedding Anniversaries Congratulations— Carrie & Charles Ullmann 8-31, Mary & Russell Dunnavah, Evelyn & Gerald Tibberiagen 9-2, Betty & Bob Lehdell, Anne & Henry Bischoff 9-3, Edith & Chester Granstorff 9-4.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Erma St. Louis, Avonelle Ewick 8-29, Gordy St. Louis, Dorothy Abraham 8-30, Charles Ullmann, Roy Lemon, Edna Young, Katherine Michaels 8-31, Edye Spencer, George Ewalt 9-1, Harry Beegland, Alban Collette, Ursilka Young 9-3, Mac O'Donnell 9-4, Edward Frost 9-5.

Traffic was held up Saturday on the causeway for miles both ways, and not a horn was blown. The reason, a mother raccoon with three very small babies were crossing and playing both sides of the road. It took about four men to get them off. They were last seen scampering up a tree. Hopefully till it was safe.

GOP Executive Committee to meet candidates

The Republican Executive Committee of Martin County will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday Aug 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ridgeway Clubhouse off U.S. 1 in Hobe Sound.

This meeting will be devoted to a "Candidates Introduction Program", during which all Republican candidates who are running in the Sept 9 primary or the general election in November will appear. This program will be continued at various locations throughout the county, to make it convenient for everyone to meet and greet the candidates.

The public is invited and refreshments will be served. Master of ceremonies will be county chairman R. Craig Werle.

PRESENTORS—Stuart Chamber of Commerce exec Ray Navitsky talks with Mike Baldwin and Tom Sandsbury, following Sandsbury's presentation on Martin Downs at the Chamber coffee last week. PIER FISHING—is fun fishing and something that anyone can do, especially handicapped persons who want to fish but have to sit to do it. Two piers that come to mind are the wooden pier near Poor Bob's on the Jensen Causeway, and this one adjacent to the Little Jim Bridge on A1A just east of U.S. 1 and the North Bridge above Fort Pierce. This pier is actually the west remnant of the original wooden bridge replaced by the new one in the early 70s. The Little Jim Fish Camp is right there if you need tackle or bait.

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Ocean Breeze Park has had the greatest shufflers around since Harry Hoke started them off with 'potato masher' bamboo sticks and handmade wooden blocks many years ago, and they proved it again at the North Carolina State Singles Tournament in Hendersonville, the week of August 11, 1980.

Mrs. Frances Runyan of Pepper St. took first place in the Lady's Amateur event and Pete Muller, ExOBPer of Kumquat (now Spanish Lakes) took first place in the Men's Pro Event. Then, a week before that, Irma Fair of SW Fifth Ave. took another first place in the Pro event of the North Carolina State Doubles Tournament. Congratulations all, Ocean Breeze is proud of her champions.

There were some other recent winners that will be of interest to the Mirror readers. They won as follows, in the 'Blue Ridge Draw Doubles' tournament: Art and Yevonne Tondreau of Port St. Lucie took first in the amateur main event; Oscar Kohl of Spanish Lakes was first in Pro Consolation; Vera Purse was first and Cliff Wocesterholm third, both of Spanish Lakes, and Howard Claystone of Ft. Pierce took fourth in consolation. So you can see that Florida shufflers of the Central East Coast District are winning wherever they go.

some very hot weather. (It looks as though they were rubbing it in, as Martin County has had lower temperatures.) They said they missed the OBP column and would have plenty of items for next fall. Also, they mentioned they had some health problems that they wished would go away.

Jim and Ellen Nixon write from Center St. saying there were 60 at the August Pot Luck supper in the Clubhouse and as usual most ate a wee bit too much and had to walk it off strolling around the park. Then a final note, Phil Dionne's gardina bush is again in bloom.

Myron Schuman of 18 Cocoa St. writes from 1934 Wahlen St., Madison, Wis. 53704, saying that his 'back' problem of last winter has improved, so that he was able to plant a small garden of vegetables and flowers and is able to mow the lawn.

In fact, Myron is so chipper that he decided to take a trip to Door County, Wis., where he and Mable always spent their summer vacations.

Along the way, Myron stopped off to see many Ocean Breezers: at Menasha, Dorothy Calder was visited; and at Larson, it was Loretta Wheaton, both were fine and planning to return to OBP this fall. Then, in Door County, Mrs. Arnold ' (Lu) Logerquist was visited; she was busy with a big garden, entertaining her grandchildren and her brother and wife, Oscar and Rose Wagner, who also winter in OBP.

Dot Synder of Oak St. writes from somewhere in New England, saying that she is staying a few days with Ethel Rafuse, an ExOBPer of Fifth Ave., who has a home right on the shores of Lake Winnipesaukee; she says Ethel is fine. Then, Dot is going to visit the Mausserts, who are Gladys Baier's folks and have been OBPers themselves for years. After that she is going to head south with stop-offs in New York and at Atlantic City Cassinos. Hopes to be back here by mid-September.

Helen Lauchly of Banyan Terr. writes that the regular 4:30 p.m. thunder showers are making the grass grow fast and green. Says, it's awful quiet around, only Winn Dixie and Publix showing signs of life. However, there is a new upholstery shop in old five and dime place and Millie in the Thrift Shop is taking care of a few customers.

Ruth Woodruff, writes from Cedar Pointe that 'Allan' had them worried a bit, as they could vividly remember 'David' of a year ago. Says the heat and humidity are darn unpleasant, so wants to know about the retirement home 'Rosemount', at Balsom, N.C. that is about 9 miles west of Waynesboro. So, it will be investigated for her.

PARK ITEMS

The OBPers up here in Hendersonville were dumbfounded to read in the Mirror that there were only 472 of them living in the Park last winter according to the official 1980 U.S. census. Why, they said there were more names than that listed in the Mirror as they returned from the northlands. It looked to them as though the census clerks must have mislayed a whole stack of forms.

Then there was comment on the occupancy figures as they know from actual count that there are at least 750 mobile home units in the park and there is scarcely a shuttered up home during the season and at least half of them have double occupancy with quite a few homes with three persons. But, using 1980 census figures of 472, it gives an occupancy rate of only 0.63 persons per home, which is quite ridiculous. So, it is hoped that this census SNAFU gets straightened out, as the town and residents do have some fund distributing advantages with correct population figures.

Word has been received that the Night Security Patrol is still on the job as the dedicated few (most go north) in the 'black chariot' or on foot go up and down the streets from dusk to dawn, making sure there are no prowlers around. They are effective, as there have been no breakins so far this summer and it was the epidemic of them last year that caused the patrol to be organized. All OBPers say thank you very much. Your tireless efforts sure are appreciated.

LETTERS FROM OBPERS

Len and Betty Brunt write from NE Ninth St. to say they hoped the Hendersonville OBPers were enjoying

News from Ocean Breeze

BY LETA KEITH

We are so glad to see folks returning, and remarking, "It's cooler in this Ocean Breeze than where I've been."

Irene Burgess and Irene Finch are back.

Al and Jean Tomaszewski are back. They rode the Auto Train to Virginia and only had to drive about twelve miles to son Clifford's home. They toured the Washington, D.C. area, visited the Whitehouse, and the whole government complex. They visited the Kennedy Center and enjoyed a historic pageant.

Mrs. Clifford (Elizabeth) Cassaday fell on July 3 and injured her spine. She spent thirteen days in the hospital and is still spending most of her time in bed at home.

In July, we lost several long time residents, Flora Derr of Middletown, Pennsylvania, Rausy Methews of Kent City, Michigan (near Grand Rapids) and Art Lewis.

Last week Emmett Maher died quite suddenly here. Our sympathy is extended to wife Anita. They formerly lived in Minnesota.

THANK YOU

The family of Art Lewis wishes to thank all of their neighbors and many other friends for the time of their loved one's death for the varied expressions of sympathy.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Art (Doris) Lewis
Daughter Jean Davidson,
Elmira, New York and Grandchildren Karen & Scott

EMPHASIS
A REPORT TO OUR CUSTOMERS BY FLORIDA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY

SUNLIGHT WILL HELP POWER SPECIAL HOUSE

FPL and the Florida Solar Energy Center have joined to equip a house at Cape Canaveral with photovoltaic cells and to monitor its performance. A photovoltaic cell converts sunlight directly into electricity.

The house will have 167-photovoltaic rooftop panels which will supply 5-kw (5,000 watts) of peak power capability during favorable sunlight conditions. The house will need FPL generation when power requirements cannot be met from the panels.

By the way, each kilowatt of photovoltaics, installed, costs about $12,000.

ENERGY STARVED

Some states have energy resources to spare, others have none. According to a study by Chase Manhattan Bank, Florida produces only 20 percent of its energy needs. The other 80 percent must come from sources outside the state.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF RELATIONSHIP exists between the American crocodile and FPL. It's one of protection for the rare crocodilian. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife reports that while alligators are prospering, crocodiles are barely surviving.

They are being helped at FPL's Turkey Point plant where FPL protects and manages one of their two remaining habitats.

"We must make our choice between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude. If we can prevent the government from wasting the labors of the people under pretense of caring for them, we will be wise."
– Thomas Jefferson

"MOST ECONOMICAL GENERATION" PURCHASES SAVE CUSTOMERS $$$

Since January, FPL has saved customers over $6-million through purchases of economical generation when available within the state. Florida utilities buy and sell among themselves based on the least expensive electricity available for resale.

In addition, another $2.8 million in savings resulted from purchasing power from the Southern Company (Georgia) when less expensive power was available.

LESTER STRICKLAND AND LARRY MASON progress the second phase of a four-phase bulkheading job on the Jensen Causeway. The bulkhead will extend from the forms in the foreground to the first phase forms in the background.

MORE BLOCKS—A truckload of blocks to be installed in the new water erosion bulkhead on Jensen's Causeway stands ready for unloading at the site. At the rear, an end loader is repaired as workmen battle time and late fall storms to complete the bulkhead job.

BY DICK CAMPBELL

The grand dream of experimental bulkheading to control erosion on coastal beaches came true for the U.S. Corps of Engineers when the contractor for the Jensen Beach project was unable to continue work.

The contractor listed for $286,000 for two years covering a period of addition a year in which there wasn't a single [illegible] on the bulkhead on the north side of the causeway. The contract was let over a year ago.

The Corps photographed the job, and the contractor had to settle for just over $160,000.

The frustration was evident as hard working employees of the engineers, in a fleet of trucks arrived on the Jensen Causeway to try to complete the job that had been delayed for many months.

"We'll be out of here in two months, depending on the weather," said Larry Mason, who works out of the Clewiston office of the Corps of Engineers.

The weather includes the northeasters storms that bring high tides and wave action that prevents construction of the bulkhead, and the possibility that an approaching hurricane would force the contingent of Corps workers back to home base in Clewiston to secure the Lake Okeechobee area from the storm.

Mason and Larry Strickland, also of Clewiston, toured the project, showing the work already done. Two sections of bulkhead were framed by wood boards. One section is already completed.

Eventually, over 900 feet of bulkhead will be placed, with four different kinds of bulkhead materials used.

The first section has the Turfstone material that interlocks with other blocks.

To set the bulkhead, a base is prepared that will allow the blocks to be placed two feet below the river level. A filter cloth is placed on the base, and six inches of gravel is laid on top of the cloth. Then the blocks are placed, interlocking to a height of 4.1 feet, then angling back to a 5.3 foot height above the river level.

Sand fills the spaces in the blocks, and sea grasses will grow over them.

The angle of the bulkhead will be such that a person will be able to walk down to the river, instead of the vertical drop of other causeway bulkheads.

County Commissioner Frank Wachs said that the project should have been finished by now, and added he was pleased that the Corps has stepped in to get the job done.

That contractor moved in there and stockpiled a lot of blocks and things, and left them there. People stopping by took a piece at a time, and soon there was nothing left," Wachs said.

MONOSLAB—Larry Mason, Clewiston employee of the Corps of Engineers, holds one of the "Monoslab" blocks that will be used in one of the four sections of the experimental bulkheading on the north side of the Jensen Beach Causeway.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE—Jr. Junior League football is well underway at Langford Park in Jensen Beach. Though you aren't likely to find any kids at the park with the talents of the big leaguers you see on television, they make up for any lack of talent and experience with enthusiasm.

REALTOR PAUL ZINTER (right), President of Welcome Center Real Estate, Inc., recently received the Certified Commercial Investment Member (CCIM) designation from the Realtors National Marketing Institute. It was the first CCIM award in Florida and the first ever to a Realtor in St. Lucie, Martin or Okeechobee Counties. The plaque representing completion of post graduate-level courses in investing, exchanging, marketing, financing and developing was presented to Zinter by Irene McLocklin (left), vice president of the Fort Pierce-Port St. Lucie Board of Realtors during a recent board meeting at the Pelican Yacht Club.

FIRST SECTION—The interlocking pieces of "lab-gard" bulkheading blocks are shown above. The first section is completed, and the sand in the lower portion of the section has been washed back into the river. It will build back in time, the project hopes.

Landscaping home grounds

A special class to aid the homeowner landscape his property will be offered at the Stuart Community Education Center beginning at 6:30 p.m. on October 1st. This ten week class will cover design, form, landscaping materials and their use, functional use of plant materials, plant identification and care and maintenance of the landscaped area.

Students will plan and design the landscaping scheme for their own home. Therefore, they will need a site plan of their home set on a 1" x 1" ¼ inch graph paper.

There will be a $25.00 registration fee for this class which will be taught by James McElhenny, a local landscape architect and land planner. Students must pre-register in person Mondays - Thursdays between 6 and 9 p.m. beginning Sept. 3rd through Sept. 24th. The center is located on the Stuart Middle School campus, 575 Georgia Avenue.

Little did the Zoo Medical Products Co. of Downey, Calif. realize they would receive an endorsement for their PRECOMP preparation from the male species. According to the labels PRECOMP is for the relief of cramps, headaches and painful discomforts during menstrual function.

However, as the story goes, Bert McDonnell came off the ninth green at Sandpiper's Saints course suffering severe pains in his legs and asked "keeper" of the Saints pro shop, Don Smith if he had anything in the first aid kit which might give him relief that he might continue to play the remaining nine holes.

Don opened up the First Aid kit and showed him a packet of Precomp which included four tablets. Bert, being very concerned said, "I'll take them." Knowing full well what the product could do for women folk and with a "chuckle" he downed two tablets and went on his way to complete his round of golf.

He came in late in the afternoon and informed Don Smith that he played without discomfort and emphatically put his stamp of approval on the product which we are told he now carries in a small ladies purse. He later told his golfing partners he didn't want the Precomps to be in strange surroundings — the reason for the ladies handbag.

See where Larry Rinker added another sizable purse to his winnings in J.C. Goosie's Space Coast Golf Tour when he pocketed $3,250 for his first place finish in Tournament 2, Series 3 event played on the Lone Palm C.C. in Lakeland. He won by one shot over 1979 Florida Open champion Larry Mowry. Rinker's two rounds included 67 and 68. Larry, however didn't fare too well in the Tournament 3 event at Sunset CC in Haines City, finishing "out-of-the-money" with 76 and 75 as Dick Mast took first place over Allen Strange, reported to a brother-in-law of recent Westchester winner Curtis Strange.

Frank Bialock, who has been tabbed "the Dairying Bear," by neighbor Bill Coane, pirouted around the Saints 18 hole course Thursday to capture the top award among Sandpiper Men golfers in a test that was labeled Blue Nine With Handicap. Bialock displayed agility and consistency in putting together a best nine round of 30, beating his closest opponents by two shots.

Showing no signs of an early hibernation, the Dancing Bear put on a great show as he went two shots better than his kin Charley Brown. The latter was in a five-way tie with Will Ferraro, Bert Upper, Charley Hyde and Harold Roberts.

Thursday's scheduled event will have foursomes pitted against each other competing in a Three Best Ball event utilizing the Stableford scoring system.

Then there's the story told about Bob "Humperdinkle" Engelbert, an avid church-goer who wanted to show a couple of nuns the game of golf. He escorted them together with wife Marty, to his club in Grand Rapids, Mich. The nuns, as you might imagine were awed at the serious attitude of the players. On the very first hole Bob landed into a sand trap. He attempted to blast out and on his sixth swing at the pellet, the ball skirted across the green and into the cup. It was then that one of the nuns was heard to utter, "Heavens, how will he ever get that ball out of that small hole?" Praise the Lord!"

Catholic Women club to meet

This was the last meeting to be held there. The next meeting, which is to be held on Sept. 7, and all future meetings will be at the Civic Center of Port St. Lucie.

New members were admitted to the club and already bhd new ideas to offer for the club's benefit.

Plans for the fall Italian Day celebration were discussed. It will be a time to welcome back vacationing members.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Ella Romero and Mrs. Millie Formosa.

PSL Masons to meet Wednesday

The first meeting of the season of the P.S.L. Masonic Club will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the North Port Marina on Prima Vista Boulevard.

Brother Vaughn Lewis will be the speaker. The new membership list will be ready for distribution.

School opening smooth at Jensen Beach Elementary

In spite of the noise from construction work still underway and a few tearful children who hated to leave their mother behind, the first day of the new school year at Jensen Beach Elementary went fairly smooth on Monday.

The attendance figure of 726 for the opening day is down a bit from the 756 students who showed up for school on the first day last year, but school officials say they expect the student population will increase as the school year progresses.

Last year the school reached a peak population of a little more than 806 students, and a secretary at the school indicated that a similar peak population this year is not unlikely.

School official Lou Rizzolo noted that an expansion project at the school, funded by a bond issue that was approved by voters, should be completed around Oct. 1. The project includes building a reading lab, two special education rooms, a kindergarten classroom and a primary grade classroom, a music complex, a guidance suite, a library storage and conference room, and a physical education storage room.

When asked where students are placed who will fill the new facilities when they are complete, Rizzolo said two portables have been added this year. "We crammed them (students) in here, there and everywhere. We have enough room, but it is crowded room," he said.

Rizzolo said he will welcome the completion of the new facilities, adding, "It means for the first time in three years, we can use the multi-purpose room for its intended uses." He said those uses are for scheduled drama and public speaking events, for activities that may be too noisy for a classroom, for art activities and for "rainy day activities."

The school has 10 new teachers, though some are replacements for teachers who didn't return from last year, rather than additional teaching posts.

One new position filled at the school is that of a language disorder teacher. This was funded by a state PREP (Primary Education) bill, and no local school funds are used for the post.

Three compensatory math tutors, for children in grades four and five who are having problems with math, are on the staff this year to give the children an extra hour of math training. A second physical education teacher has been hired for this year, as have a primary specialist and aide, who will test and place children and offer remedial help.

On the opening day of school, teachers had dozens of notes pinned to children by their mothers to sort through, but this seemed to be standard procedure for each new school year.

Several children in the lower grades were seen crying, apparently a bit overwhelmed by the process of going to school, but Rizzolo said, "This is normal and will pass with time."

Some new students wanted their mothers to go with them to their classroom, but Rizzolo said this was not allowed. "It only makes it worse, and more confusing," he said.

COFFEE TIME—While Debie Hoffman, left, and Eileen Gorman, right, listened to teachers at Jensen Beach Elementary School tell them last week what their kindergarten-age children would be exposed to when they started school on monday, young Sean Gorman decided it was time for a coffee break. Sean is only two and a half years old, but was there because his mom was attending the orientation for an older child.

LINING UP—Youngsters who attended their first day of kindergarten at Jensen Beach Elementary on Monday did something that may be new to them, but that they'll have to do a lot of for the rest of their lives. That something, of course, is getting in line.

JOHN CRUPI gets his name tag affixed to his shirt by first grade teacher Carole Romano during the first day of school at Jensen Beach Elementary. Though the school is overcrowded because a construction project to add more rooms to the school isn't finished, the new facilities should relieve that situation around Oct. 1.

DAN DOAK held his son Ryan and listened attentively as teachers at Jensen Beach Elementary School conducted an orientation session last week to acquaint parents with procedures at the school. The orientation was held for parents of kindergarten students.

HE'S NOT SO SURE that this business of attending school is all it is cracked up to be. At least that seems to be what Mark Nibling's expression was saying when he reported for kindergarten at Jensen Beach Elementary on Monday.

Carter gets FLA kingfish plan protest

THE FLORIDA LEAGUE OF ANGLERS has complained to President Carter and the Secretary of Commerce about the kingfish management plan proposed by the Gulf and South Atlantic Councils, calling the plan and its Fort Pierce Options a "time bomb" that could explode resulting in serious bodily injury or death."

According to the FLA, the solutions offered by the options (separate areas to be alternated on an annual or daily basis or closure to all if death or serious bodily injury or significant gear loss occurs) guarantee only that some 300 hook and line commercial fishermen will be deprived of their livelihood, and that the charter, headboat and private recreational king fishery will be severely impaired, if not destroyed.

The FLA further states in its release that even if the fishery is not destroyed, one or more fishermen may be killed or suffer serious bodily injury in order that some 30 large roller rig net boat operators, who have in recent years intruded into the king fishery, shall enjoy special privilege to exploit Florida's remaining kingfish popula tion.

Separating the groups by area and alternating on an annual basis has proved to work only until the roller riggers have cleaned out the fish within their area and then they move in on the hook and liners. To alternate areas on a daily basis will doom the hook and liners virtually from day one, for, after a net strike, kings are not caught in that area by hook and line for a matter of days or weeks thereafter."

The FLA has asked the President and Secretary "not to wait until some more are killed or suffers serious bodily injury or the kingfish populations are completely decimated, but to accept the reasonable solution proposed by the FLA ... prohibit the catching or taking of king mackerel by means other than hook and line, thus eliminating all gear conflict and threat to life and limb, and impose a possession limit of five king mackerel per person ... except for daily bonafied hook and line commercial fishermen, seafood processors, wholesalers, retailers, restaurants or taxidermists."

Its proposal, the FLA continues, is based "on the conviction that our fish can't stand the technological overpeople pressure they are getting; that neither destructive gear and techniques nor excessive catches by recreational fisherman can continue."

THAT'S ONE SIDE of the coin. President Jerry Sansom of the Organized Fishermen of Florida (OFF) has quite another version of the kingfish plan.

He decries the hue and cry being raised by the FLA as just another ploy, like the fish trap campaign, to swell the ranks of the FLA by making such ado about glamour issues.

According to the OFF, if the general public expects to see mackerel in sufficient quantities in seafood markets it takes commercial netters to put them there, not hook and liners who catch perhaps less than 10 per cent of all mackerel caught annually — so Sansom told me recently, deploring the apparent support of the FLA in the kingfish controversy.

Jerry avers that, as the Gulf and South Atlantic Councils have contended, the kingfish fishery is in no immediate danger of overfishing, and that the roller riggers aren't the big, bad menace being painted by the FLA.

Whether or not the OFF or FLA is right in this matter, and the answer may lie somewhere between them, it's certain that we need to look ever more closely at our saltwater fishery to be sure we conserve the protein and recreational resources represented by such fish as king and Spanish mackerel, spotted seatrout, channel bass or redfish, and really the whole gamut of edible saltwater species.

If roller riggers really are a potential threat to that fishery, then it's high time the Councils responsible for that 200-mile limit make plans to keep their activities under close scrutiny.

We need fish on the table and fish in the sea. You can't have one without the other. It's that simple. Achieving the required balance may take another King Solomon, which the FLA, OFF and SAFC hardly resemble at this time.

PERMANENTLY DISABLED residents are no longer required to buy hunting or fishing licenses under a law enacted by the Florida legislature this year. Permanent licenses will be issued beginning Oct. 1 to residents who can show proof of disability. Apply to your County Tax Collector for yours.

In the meantime, a letter from the Veteran's Administration documenting permanent disability, or two letters from different physicians attesting to permanent disability, will be validated by the Tax Collector and may be used in lieu of a license, according to Lt. B. F. Lampton of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's Regional Office in West Palm Beach.

Be sure to keep such letters in your possession while you are hunting or fishing in order that they may be presented to Wildlife Officers upon demand.

The only other sportsmen who are not required to possess a valid hunting or fishing license while afield are children under 15 and senior citizens who have reached that 65th birthday.

Fees for resident hunting and fishing licenses range from $17.50 per year for a combination good state-wide down to $6.50 for a state fishing license.

In addition to the basic license you need a $10 wildlife management stamp to hunt on a wildlife management area this fall, and archers and muzzleloaders need an additional $5 permit before participating in either the archery or black powder seasons.

Duck hunters, in addition to the regular hunting license, must buy both a federal and a state duck stamp, $7.50 for the federal at any post office, and $3.25 for the state stamp at your Tax Collector's office.

It's good to get your ducks in a row, so to speak, early, what with the hunting season coming up statewide on Nov. 8.

A WILDLIFE ALERT CALL to the GFWFC will net a Miami man a cash reward, because, based on his call, Wildlife Officer Pat Reynolds was able to arrest five Dade County men and charge them with 11 violations of the state's wildlife rules and regulations. Four shotguns were seized during the incident near the Tamiami Airport.

Wildlife Alert is a citizen's reporting system operated by the Commission. Through the program, citizens who observe violations of wildlife laws are asked to call in their observations promptly to 1-800-432-2046. An officer will be assigned to investigate the complaint and if an arrest is made, and the citizen has requested it, he will be entitled to a reward. Many who call in are asking that no reward be paid, however.

The money for the program comes directly from groups such as sportsman's clubs, airboat clubs, Audubon clubs, bass fishing organizations and others according to Lt. Lampton.

The Wildlife Alert program in south Florida has resulted in arrests for such illegal activities as killing alligators, poaching songbirds, taking deer, and more.

BASS'N GALS will participate in their final qualifying round of the 1980 tournament season, the Skyline Bass'n Gal Texas Invitational, scheduled for Sept. 12-13 out of Frontier Parks on Toledo Bend Reservoir. Write Bass'n Gal, P.O. Box 1686, Grand Prairie, Texas 7501, or call 214 263 5967 or 214-642-023 for additional information and details.

Incidentally, the Ouchita River will be the site of the 1980 Bass'n Gal Classic World Championship, Oct. 23-24.

MISTY MORNING—A red ball of flame is muted in early morning mists, but still struggles a reflection on the Indian River. The Pounciana Cottage dock offers a roosting place for seagulls and pelicans. Two fishermen cast for snook as a single pelican searches for a meal. (Dick Campbell photo)

Kings, bonito good but fishin's slow now

By Dick Lundin

FISHING IS SLOW generally now and it's pretty hard to find anything like a hot spot. You really have to work for what you get like never before.

There are scattered snook and mangrove snappers in the Indian River, a few whiting and croakers in the weedy surf, some spotted seatrout on the flats and around the spoil islands above the Jensen Causeway and in Big Mud Creek, and bonito and king mackerel offshore near the St Lucie Inlet and south to Jupiter.

If you like night fishing, try for snook at the Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart where a few are being taken each night by anglers using live bait and shrimp.

BLUE CLAW CRABS really turn on a lot of folks and this might be a good time to go a-crabbing at the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge on East Ocean Boulevard east of downtown Stuart. Use fish heads and chicken necks in your crab traps and drop them from the west side of the bridge.

Bob Conklin reports that he and Karl Uhlarik crabbed there from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. recently and brought up 34 nice blue claw crabs, using four traps between them. That's pretty good crabbing.

Bob's wife, Ann, said that just catching crabs isn't enough; you need to prepare them properly. She offers the following recipe as one guaranteed to provide maximum gustatory enjoyment:

For a steaming medium combine 2½ cups of water, ¾ cup of vinegar, 3 bay leaves, ½ lemon or lime cut into pieces, a garlic clove (can substitute garlic powder), 2 tsp. of Oregano, 2 tsp. of dry mustard, ½ tsp. of crushed red or cayenne pepper, ½ tsp. peppercorn ground, and 3 tbsp. worcestershire sauce.

Fill a large pot with this concoction and then put in about 12 blue claw crabs. Cover and steam for 15 minutes. Shift the crabs so that those on the top are on the bottom, and steam for an additional 15 minutes. (Total steaming time is 30 minutes). Remove crabs and place them in cold water until cool. After that comes the real fun, cleaning and eating the crabs.

BLUE CRAB

CAPT. PHIL SHERMAN of the Lady Stuart, party boat going half days from the Sailfish Marina east of Port Salerno and A1A below Stuart (286-1660): "Offshore bottom fishing's been pretty good on the inshore reefs where we've been getting some Lane and vermillion snappers, trigger fish, grunts and sea bass. It's not red hot but better than it has been. The water's warming up a little and the fish are there again and starting to bite a little. We've been getting quite a few kings, both snakes and smokers, many in the 20 lb. class, and lots and lots of bonito out at Six Mile Reef."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Johnny Crawford standing in for off-vacationing Tom Stewart: "Fishing is very poor. There are a few trout in the river but it's not too great, mostly north of the Jensen Causeway. There are scattered seatrout and mangrove snappers in the river. That's about all in the river. There are some bonito and a few kings offshore. Bass fishing is good now in the Jensen Savannas. The surf is full of tiny grass which makes for generally poor fishing, although there are whiting and croakers there if you can get at them."

The Nook's Log: Tim Madden, 4 mangrove snappers, live shrimp; Frank Wachs, Bridge on the Jensen Causeway, Jeff Inman, a jewfish, 14 mangrove snappers, 6 puffers and spots, live shrimp; Pack's Lake south of the St Lucie Inlet in the Palm Beach Canal, Charlie Kessler and Johnny Crawford, a snook, a trout, a 4-8 (4 lb.) bluefish, 5 mangrove snappers and 3 jack crevalles, live shrimp, wading in Hartman's Bay just south of the power plant; John Deschamps, 2 snook to 10-12, 72-21 series mirrolure, surf; Johnny Jenkins, 7 mangrove snappers, live shrimp; Frank Wachs; Chuck Delario, 15 kings, ballyhoo, 60 ft. of water east of the St. Inlet; John Pruett, a 9-2 trout on a 7M21 mirrolure, wooden pier, Jensen Causeway; Lou Papadero and Jim Smelton, a 3-8 red snapper a 10-4 white grunt (a big one) and 5 rainbow runner on the inshore reef near the St. Inlet; squid; Bert Carr, a 7-4 Fla largemouth bass, plastic worm, Jensen Savannas; Harold Egeland and Ed Wagner, 8 trout, trout trolling the spoil banks north of the Jensen Causeway.

MURIEL WEIDEMAN from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S.1 over the St Lucie River just north of Stuart: "Not much of anything going on here now, Dick. They caught a few snook Monday night. The drum are gone again, just a few mangrove snappers. Nothing fantastic like we had it here two weeks ago. We had a bridge full of fishermen Saturday but nobody caught anything. We just hope we don't get blown to smithereens next Monday like last Labor Day."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Dave Lamb: Craig Baker had 2 trout to 16-8 on a Fred's popper with a tanner somewhere in the river, he wouldn't say; Joe Lasser, a 5-0 permit, a 7-0 channel bass and 4 trout to 4-6, live shrimp, near the power plant; Bob James, 8 whiting and 2 croakers, sand fleas and clams in the surf south of the Holiday Inn; John Seymore, 6 trout to 3-6, live shrimp, grass flats north of the power plant; Jay Shank, a 6-0 blue, live pinfish, 2 trout to 5-0, a 4-0 channel bass and 20 mangrove snappers to 3-0 on live shrimp. Big Mud Creek: Fishing is pretty good generally and Big Mud may be the best place right now. I'll call you, Dick, when Keith Deering gets here to take over.

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: Fishing is very slow. I don't have very much for you, Dick. Kings are pretty good outside but from what I hear they're really tearing them up down off Jupiter. Jim Buggel had 3 trout to 5-0 on a needlefish and live shrimp fishing from that little Mosquito Bridge at the east end of the Jensen Causeway.

ON THE FRESHWATER SIDE, Frank Dobson from Blackhead Ridge Marina (813-763-2826) on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee a few miles east of the Kissimmee River Bridge off SR 78: "They're getting some nice big fish (largemouth bass) but not too many of them, mostly in the Tin House Cove area on black and black grape plastic worms. Very few yearling bass are being caught now. They must be out in deep water. Fair fishing in mediocre, mostly some Big bluegills (bream). It has been a poor year for shellcrackers. Few are fishing for specks (black crappies) now but with so many of the little ones netted; I predict that we'll be catching 3 lb specks here within the next 2-3 years." Bill Harcross of Okeechobee came in the other day with two (2) 10-lb bass and a 20-inch snook he caught on a Johnson spoon fishing out in the lake below Tin House. How about that for a catch, Dick?

HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL—at least it did for Port St. Lucie's Eileen Bradley fishing from the Jensen Causeway east of the Frank Wachs Bridge. She admitted that she hadn't caught anything so far but felt something would turn up any minute. We hope it did, Eileen.

Posting a three under par round of 69, Steve Cunningham of Ft. St. Lucie got his game back together to lead the pros in the Sandpiper Pro Am last staged Friday on the 18 hold Santa Course Chuck Knobels, of Mariner Sands, paced three of his amateur partners to a Two-Best-Ball team victory with a 25 under par of 119.

Crane Creek golf director Jay Pyle finished second among the 25 pros only one shot off Cunningham's pace carding a two under 70, while Knobels and Sandy Scharlau (teaching pro at Martin County) ranked next with 71's and Tom Cioffi, pro at the New Heritage Ridge C.C. in Stuart, was at even par 72.

A team led by pro Dave Turner ended in second place at 24 under par 120 with amateurs Bill Teufis, Dr. Caldwell and Chuck Alfrey contributing to the cause.

Third place went to a foursome pro-ed by Cioffi and included Ray Knipe, Dave Foreman and Bernie Saudow, while five teams deadlocked in the next slot. Pros included Dave Gower, Martin CC, Lou Sabo, Crane Creek; Steve Castigliano, unattached; Bruce Harrison, Sandpiper Bay and Scharlau. Amateurs of the five teams were Tom Chapman, Jack Dalton and Jim Furst of Sandpiper; Doug Espeseth, Jay Moore and Dave Larson, of Stuart; Dave Nogay, Brian Dowling and Armand Mastodonardi, Mike Douglas, Russ Destito, Jack Bennett, Vic Georgeff, Mac Upper and Toby Acierno.

The next Pro Am event will be staged at the Mariner Sands course on Friday, August 29.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

Dolphin mistakes help Vikings

BY DICK LUNDIN

COACH DON SHULA summed it up pretty well in the dressing room after Saturday night's loss to the Minnesota Vikings in the Orange Bowl with "It was a game where we made so many errors. When you get down there so many times as we did and then come away with nothing, you can't expect to win."

That tells the story of the 17-10 defeat that ended a streak of 10 straight preseason victories for the Miami Dolphins.

Miami had all kinds of chances to put the Vikes away but couldn't do anything right down near the goal line.

Its only touchdown resulted from a turnover that produced a score in two tries from the three-yard line.

It was an exercise in frustration for Miami's heralded four quarterbacks as Coach Bud Grant's latest version of the Purple People Eaters, led by defensive ends Mark Mullaney and Randy Holloway, and tackles James White and Dave Roller, controlled the line of scrimmage all night long.

THE RUNNING GAME of the Dolphins hit what must have been an all-time low, especially in the first half when Miami rushers garnered a paltry 11 yards in 11 carries for an unimpressive 1.0 average. They did somewhat better in the second half, but wound up with a still unimpressive 65 yards on the ground.

Nothing was more apparent Saturday night than that Miami's offensive line needs a lot more work together, and that the Dolphins have a crying need for a fullback who can run with authority. Steve Howell seems to be a better prospect than Bob Tarrey, but neither looks ready for NFL warfare this season.

It could be a long season if Coach Shula is unable to find a fullback in the NFL trade marts by the time the Dolphins square off against the Buffalo Bills up there on Sept. 7.

Hear what Coach Shula had to say about his running game after watching it in "action" against the Vikes:

"You can't expect to win football games with the kind of a running attack we had out there tonight. I was very disappointed in it, because there just wasn't any. Howell's fumble was a costly one, too. We were just lucky this thing didn't happen to us during the regular season."

Miami's head man indicated that he was satisfied with the line-backing performance of A. J. Duhe, formerly a defensive end until Doug Betters won it away from him in 1979.

THAT SECONDARY SITUATION was touched upon by Shula, but he wouldn't be drawn into any extended discussion over what is going to happen in the deep part of it. Norris Thomas and Gerald Small started at the cornerback positions, and Tim Foley and Don Bessillieu at the safeties. Glenn Blackwood, Mike Kozlowski, Ed Taylor and Jeff Allen also saw action, but last year's starter, Neal Colzie, sat this one out.

About all Coach Shula would say was that Bessillieu looked "aggressive and impressive" as a kick returner, heavily breaking one on a 56-yard return in the first quarter.

Colzie, obtained from the Oakland Raiders in 1979 for a third round draft choice, may not fit into Miami's plans for 1980 and could be traded before the start of the regular season. Allen, an 8th round draft choice this year, seems likely to be another secondary aspirant to go in this week's cut of 10 or next week's final five waiver fingered by the dreaded Turk. He didn't help himself any when he let Ahmad Rashad get behind him on Minnesota's winning 31-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter Saturday night.

Once Miami's youthful secondary (veteran Foley excepted) gets a game or two under its belt, things should be much improved over 1978 and 1979 when good quarterbacks like Brian Sipe of Cleveland could penetrate it with relative ease.

COACH GRANT seemed more intent on playing his regulars into condition than on testing his rookies and free agents, whereas Coach Shula evidently wanted another look before making this week's cut of 10. As a result, Minnesota's starters were still in there on defense when young David Woodley was bombing away for a tying touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Although exhibition results are meaningless, and the small crowd of 36,116 had little to cheer about Saturday night, let's take a quick look at what transpired in the Orange Bowl.

Tommy Kramer quarterbacked the first half for Minnesota and looks like he has arrived as an NFL signal caller. His first drive, however, died when running back Rickey Young fumbled at the Miami 31.

Don Strock, mainly on a 43-yard pass to Nat Moore, got the Dolphins to the Minnesota 31 but bogged down and had place kicker Uwe von Schamann fake a field goal but punt instead. The play backfired when Uwe shanked the ball out of bounds at the Minnesota 37. After an exchange of punts, Howell fumbled at the Miami 17 and that set up the first Minnesota touchdown on a 3-yard run by Kramer.

BESSILLIEU, running aggressively, set Miami up at the Minnesota 37 with his long kickoff return, but Strock couldn't move any deeper than the 14-yard line and was intercepted by Bobby Bryant in the end zone.

Nose tackle Bob Baumhower sacked Kramer deep on the next Vike series and an end zone punt set up Miami again, this time at the Minnesota 34. Strock hit Moore for 30 to the 4-yard line and Miami was knocking at the door as the quarter ended 7-0.

Once again, Minnesota's defense literally swallowed up Miami's offense, and the Dolphins had to settle for a 24-yard field goal by von Schamann.

LIGHTNING STRUCK on the next play from scrimmage when Kramer, rushed hard, was intercepted by Earnest Rhone who lumbered 21 yards to the Minnesota 3-yard line. This time, Miami was equal to the task, sensing Howell over from the one two plays later, making the score 10-7.

Kramer accepted the challenge, moving the Vikes 66 yards in 14 plays to set up a 21-yard Rick Danmeier tying field goal. The 10-10 tie held through the third quarter as Bob Grieso was unable to put any points on the board for Miami. He did move the ball once to the Minnesota 5, but then was intercepted by Tommy Hannon in the end zone on second down — more frustration for Miami's beleaguered offense.

Shula sent in the LSU rookie and his passes were on target as he hit 5 of 11 for 93 yards, but he was intercepted twice, once by Hannon on a pass that went through Joe Rose's hands and the other time by Kurt Noff on a pass thrown too high.

Woodley's best was a drive to the Minnesota 10 where he fumbled on a fourth down quarterback sneak for a first down.

He didn't put any points on the board this time but captivated the imagination of the crowd and seemed to ignite his teammates. From my vantage point in the press box, Woodley would seem to be Miami's quarterback of the future, but then, he could be gone by the time the Dolphins square off against the New Orleans Saints in the Superdome at 9 p.m. this Friday — it'll be on Channel 4.

The rushing stats Saturday night: Nathan, 4-11; Howell, 8-11; Davis, 2-2; Giaquinto, 4-13; Williams, 7-19, and Torrey, 2-6.

Laurie Rinker of the Golfing Rinker family of Stuart added another niche to her accomplishments on the links this weekend when she finished third in the PGA National Junior Golf Championships played on the Haig course of the new PGA facility in North Palm Beach, Florida.

Her third place finish, which constituted rounds of 75-77-75 and 79, found her nine shots off the winner's pace of 306.

She will join Heather Farr, Jenny Linbeck, Cathy Johnson and Lynda Bridge as members of the USA PGA Junior team. They will vie against a team of juniors from Great Britain on Oct. 20-22 at the Mere Golf Course in Manchester, England. The teams will include the top six male and female juniors in the newly established England-USA PGA Junior Cup matches.

Tracy Phillips of Tulsa, Okla., a 17 year old, led the Rays Division with a four round tally of [illegible] three shots over runner-up John Inmon. Others to represent the boys in England include James Howell, Peter Parsons, Jeffrey Bohn and Mike Tschetter.

Chuck Knebels racks up new Heritage record

BY MIKE SANDY

Chuck Knebels, head pro at Mariner Sands Golf course in Stuart, who has been having "up and down" rounds of late, traveled a few hundred yards down the road having one of his most glorious days on the links at the new Heritage Ridge Country Club course where he posted a new course record with a final 18 hole tally of 57.

The score, which included play on the same nine twice, was fashioned with eight birdies, one eagle and a single bogey. Par for the plush executive layout is 66 and Knebels score erased the previous low of 61 carded by Martin County assistant pro J. D. Murchison.

Included in a foursome with Knebels on Wednesday afternoon were co-developer of Heritage Ridge Terry Keathley, Carl Affrey and David Foreman. Indications are that many area pros are anxious to give the new Heritage Ridge layout a "go" and try to erase the blistering mark evidently established by Knebels who executed some of the best shots ever to achieve the score.

Dolphins fullback from Bucs

The Miami Dolphins have traded cornerback Norris Thomas and running back Gary Davis, both complaining over being relegated to backup status, to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for fullback Jimmy DuBose, 5-11, 228, and a 1982 second round draft choice.

DuBose, former U. of Florida star and the second most productive rusher in Gator history, missed the entire 1979 season with a knee injury but has been working out with the Bucs this summer.

Coach Don Shula announced seven squad cuts Tuesday. Top name cut was vetgran free safety Neal Colzie who apparently became expendable along with Thomas with the No. 1 drafting of Don McNeal and the development of Glenn Blackwood, Don Bessillieu and Mike Kozlowski. Others cut Tuesday were first-year players Chuck Stone, Mark Goodspeed, Eddie Jackson, Chuck Hunter, Mike Hardee and Ron Hill.

Boat parade, christening and rescue planned this Saturday

BY BOB FRYER

A boat parade, a mock rescue of an overboard sailor in the surf, and a boat christening are all on tap for "Operation Refuge" this Saturday on Hutchinson Island.

The Martin County Historical Society is organizing the event to mark completion of the final items involved in the restoration of the 104 year-old House of Refuge.

Major structural restorations of the island landmark was undertaken as a Bicentennial project and the finishing touch will be added this weekend when a 25-foot surf rescue boat, the Albert Blaisdell, will be added to the scene on display at the House of Refuge.

But before the Blaisdell goes on display, it will be christened, and a crew of students from the Chapman School of Seamanship in Palm City will launch the boat in the surf to rescue a sailor in distress.

Planners of the event have invited all local yacht clubs to participate in a boat parade that will take place just prior to the christening ceremonies, and any other boaters who are not affiliated with a yacht club are also invited to participate.

The Blaisdell is named after the man who built the House of Refuge on the island in 1875. It was one of five houses of refuge built along the Atlantic coast for the U.S. Life Saving Service, forerunner of the U.S. Coast Guard. Since much of the coast was sparsely populated, the houses of refuge were built as shipwrecked sailors could be cared for. The House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island is the only one still standing, and now serves as a museum for the Historical Society.

Since it was completed, the Blaisdell has been kept at the Chapman School, where students have been practicing rowing it for the mock rescue operation.

On Saturday, Aug. 30, ceremonies will begin at noon with the firing of a Lyle gun from the House of Refuge. The gun was used years ago to propell life-saving devices through the air to distressed sailors. Cal. James Waldie will fire the gun.

A few minutes later, Mrs. E. R. Crawford, wife of retired Admiral E. R. Crawford, will christen the Blaisdell at a spot along the beach about 500 feet south of the House of Refuge.

As soon as that is completed, David Childs will jump overboard from the lead boat of the boats on parade, and the Chapman crew will launch the Blaisdell and row out to rescue Childs.

The lead boat will be the Dona Maria, owned by Louis Petrone, staff operations officer for Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 58. Representing the Coast Guard for the ceremony will be Captain J. Waldes of the Seventh District in Miami.

Spectators may view the christening and rescue mission from land or from their boats. Ed Benedict is in charge of the boat parade, and says boaters who wish to participate should meet the lead boat in an area west of the St. Lucie Inlet, between buoy 6A and the south tip of Sailfish Point. "The boats are to assemble at 11:30 a.m. and, under signal from the lead boat, will proceed out the inlet, then north to a point off the House of Refuge. Then, when the time comes, the lead boat will issue a distress signal for the rescue operation to begin," he said.

In light of three drownings last weekend in the St. Lucie Inlet, Benedict said "We will be very cautious about the surf situation. We'll monitor the weather starting Friday night and right up to departure time. Unless we have relatively calm seas, we will not go out the inlet, and we'll be communicating with the surf boat crew. If the surf is too rough for them, the operation will be called off, and if that happens, the event will be rescheduled for Saturday, Sept. 13."

Coxswain of the Blaisdell rescue crew will be Michael Mahoney, a Chapman faculty member, and crew members will be James Larson, Clyde Williams Jr., Tim McAuliffe, Bill Henderson, Garry Keys and Sally Ritter, with Valerie Mason.

Business women meet Wednesday

On Wednesday, Sept. 3, the Treasure Coast Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold its monthly dinner meeting at 8 p.m. at the Pelican Yacht Club in Fort Pierce.

Sheriff Lanse Norvell will be the featured speaker. His speech will be "Economic effects on Crime." The St. Lucie County Sheriff has been active in law enforcement in St. Lucie County for a total of 28 years.

After the guest speaker, Treasure Coast Chapter President Ann Rase will conduct the business meeting with assistance from Chapter Vice President Pam Lockey. Chapter members may make reservations by contacting Hospitality Chairman, Mary Ruth Paul at 465-3344 or 461-2172.

We're trying to keep the cost of a good education down.

Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia ...Vol. 1. only 9¢ With $5 food purchase

If you've been wanting a good encyclopedia, but figured you'd have to lay out hundreds of dollars for it, we've got a surprise for you.

The Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

This week, we're offering Volume I for the incredibly low price of 9¢. Which is our way of introducing you to an encyclopedia that covers 193,000 subjects (more than some encyclopedias costing hundreds of dollars). And features over 10,000 maps, photos and illustrations, many of them in full color.

When you and your family have examined Volume I at your leisure (without some high-pressure salesman trying to sell you the whole set), we think you'll want Volumes 2 through 27.

You can complete your set as you shop each week for $2.99 a volume.

In no time at all, you'll have what you've always wanted: a home reference library that contains a wealth of information.

But hasn't cost a fortune.

ONLY $9.99 PLUS TAX EACH WITH $100 IN OUR GREEN REGISTER TAPES

A $29.95 Value Specially priced without tapes at $19.99

★ Don't confuse this beautiful 14 Karat gold filled jewelry with costume jewelry. Nicolo Brecci 14 Karat Gold Filled Jewelry contains 30 times more gold than electoplated costume pieces. That means longer life and lasting luster. A genuine diamond sets off each beautiful piece!

★ Each time you make a purchase, enter total dollar value of tape (including tax) in space provided.

★ When you have accumulated a total of $100 in green tapes, dated August 28, 1980 thru October 25, 1980, turn envelope in at Service Desk and purchase any one of the twenty-six 14 Karat Gold Filled Jewelry Pieces with Diamond for only $9.99.

★ You will also receive at that time a $5.00 Bonus Coupon toward the purchase of another 14 Karat Gold Filled Jewelry Piece for $14.99. Not to be used with any other tapes. Only one $5.00 Bonus Coupon per purchase.

★ Only green register tapes dated August 28, 1980 thru October 25, 1980 will be honored.

LET'S BE HONEST

If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women, who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little bit of hard work for their financial independence and security. To these people, our expanding multi-million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our prompt advance commission system. This is a degreed sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call

Top chefs attend

Mirror Cooking Show is this Friday at Hoke Hall

The popular Mirror Cooking Show will be held this Friday at Hoke Hall, First Federal Savings in Jensen Beach, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Three area chefs will demonstrate ways to cook various items that can enhance the food preparation of the homemaker. The show is free to all, with seating limited to 250 persons in the hall.

Many prizes will be given to those attending, and a grand prize $100 food gift certificate will be given from Publix Markets as the door prize. There are many certificates for steaks and also kitchen appliances and Mirror subscriptions. The drawing will be at the end of the show.

The Mirror cooking show is sponsored by The Mirror and Publix Markets. Pals Appliances will provide the kitchen appliances.

Pat Geddes, consumer relations manager of the Sperry Hutchinson Company (S&H Green Stamps), will be present with a consumer information booth, and everyone attending will receive a book of fifty S&H Green Stamps.

In addition, Florida Power and Light Company will have a consumer related booth for energy conservation.

Those who attend the Friday evening show will learn how to prepare some exciting dishes.

Michael O'Steen, chef at B-Gee's Restaurant in Stuart, will explain a complete dinner, easily prepared to impress guests. The dinner for four includes:

Crabmeat soup en croute; the entree will be Filet de la Maison; there will be Shrimp Potato, and green beans Almondine; the dessert will be Choux au Fraises (strawberry cream puffs).

Nick Modelis, chef and owner of the Hilltop Restaurant, returned from the show last year, will prepare fresh stone crabs with mustard sauce, and a specialty, Fresh Lobster Newberg Thermidore.

The Mirror Cooking Show has become an annual social event in Jensen Beach, and many clubs and organizations turn out for the affair.

The evening show will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. in Hoke Hall, located at Commercial Street and Indian River Drive.

Voters get to speak Tuesday

This coming Tuesday the political candidates will stop talking and the voters of Martin County will have their opportunity to speak.

The Tuesday, Sept. 9, primary ballot is relatively short, especially for Democrats, but regardless of party affiliation, there will be at least one important contest to be settled.

Under the non-partisan column of the Tuesday ballot, incumbent David Crandall will be pitted against Rosemary Dressler for the District Four school baord seat.

Unless you are a Republican, that will be the only local race you will have a choice in on Tuesday. However, for Republicans, there will be plenty of candidates to select, as three county commission seats and the superintendent of schools post are contested.

In the school superintendent race, incumbent Republican V. James Navitsky will seek reelection. He is opposed by fellow Republicans Wayne Bowling and Hazel Watts. Should none of those three candidates win a clear majority, the two receiving the most votes will be pitted in a primary runoff election on Oct. 7.

The winner of the Republican contest will face Democrat school superintendent candidate Clifford Lynch in the Nov. 4 general election.

Two Republicans are seeking the District One (Jensen, Rio and Hutchinson Island) county commission seat. They are Alex Haynes and James Rowe. The winner of that race will oppose incumbent Democrat Frank Wacha in the Nov. 4 general election.

Incumbent Republican Lavon "Bud" Bagwell is vying for the District Three county commission seat against Republican Sherri King. The winner will face Democrat Rex Andrews in the Nov. 4 general election.

Pamela Boswell and A.H. Pitchford, both Republicans, are seeking the District Five (west county) seat, with the winner on Tuesday to face incumbent Democrat John Holt in the Nov. 4 general election.

In addition to the local races, Republicans will be asked to select one of six candidates for a U.S. Senate seat. Those six hopefuls are Ander Crenshaw, Lewis Dinkins, Lou Frey, Jr., Paula Hawkins, Ellis Rubin, and John T. Ware. Unless one of the six receives a majority of the votes cast throughout the state, the top two will be included on the Oct. 7 Republican primary runoff ballot.

Again, should there be no candidate with a clear majority in statewide voting among Democrats, the top two candidates will be in a runoff race on Oct. 7. And, the winner of that contest will face the Republican nominee.

Precinct locations

The following is a list of polling places for the upcoming primary election on Tuesday, Sept. 9, for the Jensen, Rio and Hutchinson Island area.

To determine where you are to vote, look on your voter registration card for your precinct number, then go to the precinct corresponding to that number.

Precinct 2, First United Presbyterian Church, 1715 Pine Lake Drive, North River Shores.

Precinct 22, Elliott Museum, A1A, Hutchinson Island.

For those living on the island in south St. Lucie County, the polling location is the Holiday Out Recreation Hall, precinct 15. Also, for Jensen Mirror readers who live along Indian River Drive in St. Lucie County, the polling location is the Walton Community Center off Indian River Drive in Walton.

Island fire station gets county okay

In an unscheduled action, the Martin County Commission gave permission last week to Indian River Plantation to begin construction of the fire house on the island.

The plans for the new fire station received the approval of the Jensen Beach and Rio fire departments.

In the original planned unit development for IRP, the developer agreed to spend $100,000 constructing the fire house. It will be located south of the Elliott Museum.

Candidate statements inside today's issue

If you haven't yet taken time to examine the candidates for local political offices who will be on the Tuesday, Sept. 9 primary ballot, here's your chance.

All primary candidates for local office were invited by The Mirror to submit statements of 300 words or less on their candidacy. In most cases, the candidates complied with the request, and their statements appear inside today's issue. In a few cases, the candidates exceeded the 300 word limit. When cutting their statements to conform to the 300 word limit meant elimination of a sentence or two that would have left a thought incomplete, the statements were retained as submitted, but those found to be well over the 300 word limit were edited.

County Commission District One

ALEX HAYNES

I am Alex Haynes. I'm a retired engineer and executive. I live on Hutchinson Island, Martin County.

My wife and I settled here 18 years ago, after looking all over Florida, in particular, and other parts of the U.S. We thought at the time Martin County had the most to offer for quality of life.

I'm a graduate of Carnegie-Mellon University with a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering. I hold an M.S. degree from the University of Michigan in Engineering Science.

Just prior and during World War I, I obtained experience in aero-engineering at Curtiss Wright and General Motors. Immediately after the War, I joined Ford Motor Company where I worked for 26 years in various capacities in professional engineering and management.

I've had the opportunity of directing the efforts of 500 engineers and technicians in various phases of design and development of automotive systems. I had the opportunity of administering multi-million dollar programs and budgets.

I hold many patents in various automotive applications. My record proves I have extensive experience in management of complex problems and systems.

Martin County needs good management and new ideas. Martin County needs top notch management! Martin County is exploding! There is no room for incompetence or conflict of interest!

We need commissioners with good management skills!

— who will listen to the people and will serve the people.

— who will protect our environment, and who will encourage enlightened development which will be part of a comprehensive plan so long overdue!

We need commissioners who will be courageous to make hard and tough decisions, and who will fight to keep Martin County a fine place to live!

Let's not allow Martin County to be "hostage" of self-serving interests, or be destroyed by these interests.

We need a change. We deserve a change!

JAMES H. ROWE

The Martin County Commission has been unsuccessful in the adoption of a Comprehensive Plan for many years. I stand with many other voters who wonder why a Comprehensive Plan has been so carefully neglected. One might observe that the County Commission retains considerable power because there is no plan to guide the orderly development of the county. We have all seen this power displayed by commission decisions which have been handed down in an unbelieveably unfair, unjust and inequitable manner.

I pledge my time and effort to correct this injustice.

Let's do away with this small town crony mentality and proceed with an orderly government operating as efficiently and as fairly as a good business does in the private sector.

Our beautiful county can and must retain and reclaim the beauty and cleanliness that brought us to this haven.

Adopt a Comprehensive Plan — now!

Clean up the St. Lucie River — now!

Elect quality commissioners — now!

Commission District Three

LAVON "BUD" BAGWELL

The most critical issues facing Martin County in the next four years are growth, traffic, law enforcement and aid for volunteers. The first two are tied very closely together and of course are connected to the comprehensive plan.

The question is: Will Martin County grow in a haphazard manner like our neighbors to the south or will it grow with comprehensive plans and strict controls to protect our way-of-life. Along with other members of the commission I'm working to control Martin County's growth through sensible planning. We've made great strides but there is still much to do. We must get the land use plan moving again but as we found out in the early stages of planning, the land use plan must be coordinated with a traffic plan.

While there is little question that our area will continue to grow, we must take the steps necessary to protect our sensitive environment. The recent raping of 15 acres of natural waterfront land in Hobe Sound is one example that I will not tolerate. I will bring the full weight of the law against those who damage our environment.

Law enforcement is another area of concern to a growing community. We have all heard the reports of beach vandalism, church vandalism, knocking down mailboxes and increased drug smuggling. Our Sheriff is doing a good job but he needs more help. I supported his request recently and will support whatever is necessary to protect the citizens of Martin County.

Due to a lack of volunteers we recently had to establish a municipal services taxing unit for the tri-area and Indiantown ambulance units. The cost to taxpayers in these areas is over $500,000.00. Our volunteers have the taxpayers of Martin County hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. We must make a great effort to keep our current volunteers and recruit new ones and provide them with adequate equipment and training.

SHERRI KING

As a strong believer in the voice of the people, I feel that the citizens have not been given the opportunity to completely voice their opinions on how our county should be taken care of. I have to offer to the citizens of Martin County fresh and new ideas and the drive to see that plans for the future are completed without any more delay. I hope the citizens will take this opportunity to vote for a full-time eight hour plus a day commissioner. A person who will take action on the demands of the citizens and be available to listen to the people who live in this county.

The total environment of this county will be affected by the completion of the comprehensive plan. Citizens who work for the preservation of our total environment know there are too many barricades in the way. Only when the comprehensive plan is finalized will our environment be stable. This will include law enforcement, roads, bridges, drainage, recreation facilities, wildlife and our precious land. People who are fighting for the total environment are trying to keep this country from turning into an another cement jungle like has happened much too often in other areas.

What I stand for:

1—Advanced life support systems for the entire county, not just for two local areas.

2—Comprehensive Plan — To expedite for the entire county as soon as possible.

3—A stronger local government without intervention from the state and federal government. By implementing a stronger Comprehensive Plan before emergency measures have to be taken.

4—Preservation of our Total Environment. A—Law Enforcement. B—Roads, C—Bridges, D—Recreation Facilities, E—Drainage, and F—Schools.

5—To prevent problems before they occur, not after — To listen to the people.

6—To establish an outreach-ombudsman program to obtain input from the citizens — And to act on it. To follow it through.

Commission District Five

A. H. PITCHFORD

I regret that it has been necessary for me to say and do some of the things I have to other people, in order to make all citizens aware of the bad conditions that exist on the Martin County Board of Commissioners and other departments of the county.

Were I only trying to become elected I would not speak against anyone except those whom I am running against. To do so, has disturbed some friends and old cronies of those I oppose. I believe they are a small percentage of the population and the majority will appreciate my interest in themselves and our community.

If I am elected, I will continue to fight improper practices of those in office, regardless of their political party or associations.

The county must continue developing. Property owners have a right to build and people other than you and I have a right to live here. There are some, who, for personal gain, do not care how great the population density becomes. Please let me help you maintain some sort of sensibility of growth.

Commissioners Wacha, Higgins, and Bagwell showed little regard for the people of Palm City when they granted approximately 14,000 population to only ¼ of the land area of 9,000 acres. They insured that Palm City would eventually have a population of over 50,000. If they would rape Palm City in this manner, they would most likely do the same to any area of this county.

There is so much cronyism in Martin County government it is difficult to get at anyone who is doing wrong or not doing his job properly. To stop this, we must put in new commissioners.

PAMELA R. BOSWELL

I believe the exceptional qualities of our county will continue to cause people to move to our area. Making growth inevitable.

We must insure that the growth we will experience is sensitive to our environment and allows us to retain the unique qualities that surround our lives. I want our waterways to remain clean. I want our water supplies to stay ahead of our needs. I want our beaches to be preserved. To accomplish this balance between growth and the preservation of our environment, we must have a soundly thought out comprehensive plan that provides for well planned moderate growth.

All elements required of the plan must be addressed ... transportation, drainage, services, funding, schools, etc. ... Not just land use. Land use cannot be implemented soundly without taking the other elements into consideration. The public's desires have been expressed through numerous meetings. Numerous studies have been conducted. It is time to act and complete the plan which will be a guide to the future of our county.

I believe the county should strongly support volunteer services, such as our ambulance services and volunteer fire departments, which save the county and taxpayers thousands of dollars each year. There must be a positive effort to encourage and expand our volunteer forces through recognition, and recruitment programs.

I believe Martin County has drainage problems that have not been properly addressed, particularly in western Martin County. A total county plan for drainage needs to be established and implemented. I would work closely with and support the Martin County Soil and Water Conservation District to provide a total drainage study of the area.

I would review the needs of re-establishing necessary drainage districts to support required improvements to prevent flooding.

I believe we need to provide jobs for our younger residents. We should encourage light, clean industry to locate in Martin County to help provide these jobs, which will also broaden our tax base.

School Supt.

WAYNE BOWLING

When I filed my candidacy for Superintendent of Schools I chose as my platform, "Quality education for the students of Martin County."

The issues I have dwelled on, are: double standards, the bond issue, discipline, curriculum, wages for all school employees, budget, lack of facilities for our students, a drug rehabilitation program, alternative education, etc. All of these areas have been neglected because of poor money management and administration.

These problems should have been solved during the past 13 years by the present superintendent. He may have been appointed 13 years ago to do a job but it doesn't always mean he will or can continue to do that job.

After having taught in Martin County the past six years I have discovered we have a grave problem involving our children and we must give them the quality education necessary to be the leaders of tomorrow and to take over where we leave off.

Quality education is the result of quality teachers, non-instructional personnel and administrators. And a cooperative spirit between these groups, particularly between teachers and administrators.

My professional qualifications are a degree in Business Administration, Physics and Math, Chemistry and a Masters Degree in Supervision and Administration of Education. But my greatest qualification I feel, is the deep concern I have for this community's youth. My life is devoted to that program. I have been in education for 18 years at elementary, middle school and high school levels in both teaching and administrative positions. I have been a Physics and Chemistry Teacher, Chairman of the Science Department and Principal.

As I walked the businesses and residences for the past four months I have been asked questions about the education system of Martin County and have answered these questions on all the issues. I also have found that citizens of the county are not against taxation for public schools, but strongly disagree with the policies which do not deliver the quality education for which they pay.

evaluate periodically all phases of the educational system and to focus on the individual needs of all students, young or old, the Martin County School System will be unchallenged as the best system in the state.

V. JAMES NAVITSKY

The job of Superintendent of Schools is one of the most important and demanding elected offices in our community. I have been proud as a Republican and educator to serve you in this office for thirteen years. I am proud of the achievements and successes of our schools in critical years of growth and change. Our schools are second to none in many respects, and this is a tribute to all those who work so hard to achieve these goals. Academically our students exceed the state norms in the basic skill achievement tests surpassing all surrounding counties. Our high school students taking Scholastic Aptitude Tests used for college entrance exceed the state, southern and national norms.

One of the awesome problems of our school system has been the rapid growth of our community without financial resources to allow our schools to equally expand. In 1978 our community responded to the needs of our schools by approving the Bond Referendum, one of a few in the entire country. The Bond dollars, plus interest and state capital outlay funds have allowed us to have most of the most comprehensive building programs in the State. While completing our building plans on schedule, we are also fulfilling promises made of low borrowing interest and diminishing tax rates.

Discipline has become a major problem in America's schools. While many school districts pretend there is no problem, we have taken positive steps to instill the idea that school is the place to learn, and disruptions or disturbance will not be tolerated. Our policy of suspension and expulsion for drug related or chronic discipline offenses has been administered firmly. This is not easily accomplished as each offense must be treated and judged separately.

For all of the above reasons, for new challenges ahead, for decisions yet to be made for programs to be completed, I ask that you consider my background, experience and leadership and support my re-election.

HAZEL WATTS

There is no doubt in my mind that Martin County can have the best school system in the state of Florida. To achieve this goal, however, will take a qualified, dedicated superintendent to initiate and direct this endeavor. It will take a superintendent who recognizes the talents of those within the system and who knows how to utilize them. It will take a superintendent who is not intimidated by an open-door policy and who is able to encourage individual school leaders to adopt this policy.

All educators must realize that the public has the right to know what is happening at every center. The complete cooperation of the public is an important factor in the success or failure of a school system.

A superintendent must be knowledgeable in all phases of school administration and must be qualified to evaluate with complete objectivity those he has appointed to leadership positions. The attempt to build an entire system around a student centered objective and must be eliminated.

A strong superintendent recognizes and rewards the most important link in the system -- the teacher. It must always be realized that the teacher and his client, the student, are what makes the educational system work. Just as teachers praise their students in order to encourage them to work harder so must the superintendent encourage the teachers to strive to do more to improve the schools.

I, Hazel Watts, believe that through a program designed to select the best person for a job, whether it be a teacher or a program director; to work cooperatively with the public; to promote good relations with teachers in order to maintain good faculties; to achieved. It is a must to recognize the good points of the school systems and improve the system by building from those many things that we the Board and overall school system have done right.

During my first term I have been a part of these significant accomplishments:

1. Formulation of facilities plans to relieve overcrowding, which culminated in the passage of the local bond issue and subsequent construction;

2. Adoption of a pupil progression plan which resulted in higher educational standards;

3. Adoption of discipline codes reinforced by strong Board actions to stress students' responsibilities associated with their right-privileges in a public education;

4. Adoption and implementation of a school based management concept.

Further planning regarding facility needs and program goals are needed.

I have the knowledge and experience to again carry out the tasks of District 4 School Board membership.

ROSEMARY DRESSLER

I am a 38-year-old homemaker with two children ages 14 and 18. I've been a P.T.A. member, P.T.A. program chairman, and P.T.A. vice-president. I served as a S.A.C. (School Advisory Committee) member for one year, and also served one year as a S.A.C. chairman. I am past president of COPE.

I've been a member of Choral Parents and Band Parents associations, and devoted many hours toward chaperoning, and aiding these groups in other ways, too numerous to list here.

Because of my participation in school activities, I've received five certificates of awards.

I am a regular school board meeting attendant and have questioned school board policy many times.

I am a dedicated hard worker who cares deeply about Martin County. I believe that I as a school board member can be instrumental in opening up the channels to better communications between school employees, parents, students, and other community members. I have a deep understanding of how our school system is run. I can recognize the difference between extravagant wants and necessary needs. I believe I also have enough walking around common sense to at all times make decisions that will be beneficial to, not just our young people, but all of Martin County.

Our most precious assets are our children. They are our joy for the moment and mankind's hope for the future. The most valuable token of love for our young people we can give is a sound basic education, coupled with caring dedication attuned to their individual needs.

My background in assisting youth, my understanding of our youth, and my dedication to our youth are assets that are necessary to be a good, effective School Board Member.

I will sincerely appreciate your vote on Sept. 9th.

School Board District Four

Any organization that employs over 1000 employees working at more than 13 remote sites has, and will always have, problems. The real issue in this District 4 School Board campaign is the manner in which these problems are handled and resolved. Unfortunately it is easy to criticize and easier to do it in a destructive manner.

I believe in the value of people and looking positively at issues, modifying and correcting where necessary through constructive techniques. People generally want to please and try to do the best job possible.

My approach to School Board problems is to first separate "the chaff from the wheat" and then approach the factual problem in a positive attitude. In order to be effective, I feel I must build on the worthwhile programs, policies, and plans that exist in the school system. It is not fair to tell short the accomplishments already

Samaritans Calling

BY NELLIE D. COOK

BY NELLIE D. COOK

Again this week we call out loud, for our news is all good.

First we wish to offer a big thank you to the residents and management of Hutchinson Island Club for their generous gift to us of $450.00, the proceeds from their cook out and raffle held on Labor Day. So nice of you to think of us.

A few weeks ago we proudly wrote up a short history on each of our newly certified E.M.T.S.

Today we are again proud to announce that Tuesday evening, Sept. 2, we have a class of ten beginning their EMT training at North River Tech Squad Room in Tequesta.

This group differs from the past in that they are all local residents, many who have retired here, but are excited and happy to be able to help their new friends and the community in a practical way.

They are Paul Blood, Rio; Jackie Nelson, Port St. Lucie; Eugene Robinson, Stuart; William and Rosemary Brown of Jensen Beach; Kathy Kelly of Jensen; Ruth Costa, North River Shores; Rose Spence, Jensen; Steve Calvert; and Scott King, Jensen. To this fine and dedicated group of new Samaritans, we all wish you the best of luck. That wish is of course from all the Samaritans and their friends.

A change in the date of the next Samaritans Auxiliary meeting had to be made, so the September meeting will be at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 16 at the Jensen Samaritans Squad Building on South Savanna Road, between the Cumberland Farms Store and Tropical Acres Trailer Park.

For information call Chairman Dot Michna at 334-1119 or her co-chairman, Irene Stephenson 334-1940.

For newcomers, application forms will be available at this meeting. Come join us, we'll find you something interesting to do. Later, of course, we also plan some fun too. Men and women are both most welcome. So ladies don't let him get away by saying "That's only for Women."

Both kinds need the Samaritans and the Samaritans need both kinds.

"Managing For Profitability"

A Course on Financial Management for Business.

The Southeast Banks of Palm Beach and Martin Counties are offering a three-day course to help you manage your business more profitably.

It's put together by bankers for business and professional people who want to become more familiar with financial management and control techniques. We took complex material and translated it into clear, direct language dealing with practical financial problems and solutions.

The instruction covers such topics as Balance Sheet and Income Statement Analysis. Ratios as indicators of effectiveness. Finding the Break-Even Point of pricing decisions. How to prepare a Budget and Profit Plan, how to deal with your banker, and factors to consider when you plan for the normal succession of a business through estate planning.

The course will be taught at the Sheraton Inn at 6-95 & Palm Beach Lakes Boulevard (1901 Palm Beach Lakes Boulevard) in West Palm Beach, Florida, on:

Thurs	Oct. 2	1:30 PM - 9:30 PM (Dinner Served)
Fri	Oct. 3	8:30 AM - 5:30 PM (Lunch Served)
Sat	Oct. 4	8:30 AM - 1:30 PM (Lunch Served)

To register, call Hugh McCall, Senior Vice President at (305) 848-7212. Tuition is $175.00 and includes three sessions, text materials and meals. It's also income tax deductible.

What better way is there to learn a practical approach to financial management and control than from banking professionals.

Do it again, Sam

By CATHIE FARAGO

His name is Sam. He might be labeled a beach bum, mooching off people the way he does with no apparent care for tomorrow, but everybody loves him.

Until last July, Sam was a homeless homing pigeon who found refuge at the Island Club on Hutchinson Island. Residents there say that at first he just used to hang out on the balconies. They kept thinking he'd go away. Finally, people felt sorry for him and fed him seed. It seems that was all he needed to call the condominium home.

Inquiries were made, but no one knew who he belonged to or where he came from.

Al Babb, a resident of the Island Club, was the person Sam most seemed to take a liking to. It was this reason that prompted Al to take responsibility for finding his friend a proper home, so he took him over to his nephew's house in Jensen Beach, thinking he'd be happy there. Sam didn't agree. He came right back.

Al thought maybe the quiet atmosphere of Miles Grant would be more to his liking. Dropping him off, he returned home, changed into his swimming suit and saw Sam sitting on his porch chair.

Still, the only information anyone could lend about Sam was that he was a homing pigeon.

"I know that" said Al.

Al decided to take more drastic action and bring him on his trip to Alabama. He was going to visit his daughter and thought the university would be an ideal location. As Al turned him loose on campus, his newfound friend circled once, as if to say good-by, and flew away.

Al had been back three days when he noticed a familiar form sitting on his porch. It was Sam. Covering a distance of over 700 miles, he had come home. And home was where he was determined to stay, regardless of human interference.

The Island Club has a new mascot who takes his bath poolside and his seed wherever he can get it. Al recently broke down and bought him a cage to go with his porch. Neighbors however, still keep stashes of seed for those frequent times when Sam comes a'calling.

Many adult courses offered at Jensen

With the change of seasons comes the return to school for both the children and their elders. The latter will be offered a wide variety of self improvement and general interest courses both day and night through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center.

Everything from marine biology to astronomy, from yoga to "How to Buy a Used Car" will be offered at one of three locations in Jensen Beach. They are the Environmental Studies Center, Jensen Beach Elementary School and a new facility, the Community Room at Jensen Lanes, adjacent to Langford Park.

A complete listing of all adult classes county wide will be published in local papers the week of September 21. However several courses are scheduled to start that same week, so here are the details on the first few - to give you an opportunity to do a little planning.

YOGA - Pat Thuman will again offer instruction in Hatha Yoga, breathing exercises, relaxation techniques, asanas and pranayamas as taught for centuries in India. Yoga exercise is not strenuous but is designed to increase both mental and physical well-being through concentration and careful application of technique. Separate classes are scheduled for 9:30 - 11:00 a.m., starting Monday, September 22 and Friday, September 26 at the Jensen Lanes.

BUNKA EMBROIDERY - Offered locally for the first time this spring, Bunka is a very old Japanese art form only recently introduced into the United States. There are few qualified teachers as yet, but Alma Burke of Stuart is one of them. Alma's class will also be held at the Jensen Lanes Community Room. It is scheduled for Wednesdays, 12:30 - 3:30 p.m. starting September 24. The materials come in kit form and no artistic ability is required to produce embroidery that looks like an oil painting.

ORGANIC GARDENING - A popular course in these days of skyrocketing food prices. Organic Gardening always draws a full class of students. It will be taught by Joseph Gilio on Monday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 at the Jensen Beach Elementary School starting September 22. Gilio, a biology instructor at FIT, is currently developing a bio-intensive raised garden. He will discuss this method of gardening along with such topics as composting, mulching, varieties suitable for the local climate, disease and pest control, soil ecology, etc.

HOW TO KNOW THE SEA ANIMALS - This course has also proved to be popular with local residents and visitors who want to learn about the strange-looking invertebrate animals to be found around the local beaches, piers and sea walls. Instructor Gary Petti, head of the FIT biology department, Jensen Beach campus, will conduct the 10-week class on Monday nights from 7:30 to 10 starting September 29 at the Environmental Studies Center.

ASTRONOMY - Repeating a very popular course first offered last spring, Mark Perry will again present a six-week introduction to astronomy at the Environmental Studies Center on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 starting Sept. 30. Perry, director of the Florida Oceanographic Society in Stuart, is an avid amateur astronomer. He will cover the history of astronomy, the planets, asteroids, meteors, various theories of the origin of the universe, quasars, black holes, celestial navigation and other topics via films, lecture and demonstrations on Tuesday nights. Thursdays will be "stargazing" nights and students will explore the sky with celestial telescopes.

Further information on any of these or other courses to be offered can be obtained by calling Jay Jarrett, Coordinator, at 334-1283. All courses carry a $3 registration fee.

Glenn Bryan wins a Cessna

Lucky Glenn Bryan, local pharmacist, bought five dollars worth of tickets on a drawing at the experimental aviation show in Oshkosh, Wisconsin recently, and returned home.

Last week he was notified that he won a Cessna 152.

"Our most valuable asset is not listed in our statement of condition"...

Dennis S. Hudson, Jr.,
Chairman, First National Bank
and Trust Company of Stuart.

At First National, we believe there is a lot more to banking than keeping track of columns of figures and dollar signs. We are totally committed to being responsive to the needs of the people of Martin County and our surrounding communities. That word totally is what makes us different from most other financial institutions in the area.

A new trend . . . Here and across the country, large holding companies are acquiring independent community banks. By nature, these holding companies are diversified with interests in many areas outside of the local communities.

First National is different. We are an independent bank, home owned and totally committed to the people of our local communities. A local bank serving local needs. Our resources stay here to support the financial requirements of our communities.

Local doesn't mean small . . . More than two hundred local residents are employed at our four offices. We have five electronic banking machines to serve your banking needs 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Our current assets exceed $150,000,000 with trust assets in excess of $100,000,000.

Our size, growth and progressiveness is impressive, but our most valuable asset is people. The people of our local communities whom we are dedicated to serve. Totally dedicated.

Grannies again begin galloping

Old friend Hildy Lahey comes over to visit her town by the house the other day, with news that the Gallopin' Grannies are back in town, and getting ready for a big fall season.

"We're working up a whole new act," Hildy told me.

It came out in the chatter with the Gallopin' Grannies, wherein a lively group of senior citizens appeared here several years ago by Hildy and her late husband Lennie, both old-time show people themselves, was instituted and the gate to take as much a part.

In almost no time flat they had the audience participating in all the antics of the performers and the old-time show was people enticed to these parts. They've been putting on shows that sparkle with the best out of the country's days of vaudeville.

Before Lenny's untimely death last year, the Gallopin' Grannies had become a national treasure. They were on national tours, and were written up in such publications as U.S. News and World Report.

Most of all, they travelled. As a class act, the Gallopin' Grannies were in demand throughout the state. Her appearances at nursing homes, service organizations and all kinds of special events.

Now, I'm happy to hear, the demand still exists. The first fall 'gang,' for example, will take them to Sea World, where the Gallopin' Grannies will be on the program for the big annual celebration. They'll travel by bus, and will be overnight guests, the only expense to you will be for their meals.

The Sea World appearance is the opener for the season. Afterward, many more, they're being booked for events into December. And the lucky ones love it. The applause, the praise they get for their performances is thanks enough.

The fun part of being a Gallopin' Grammy is that you're earning college credits while you're learning. The program is funded through Indian River Community College, and attendance gets you credits.

Hildy is taking enrollment from both Spanish Lakes and Spanish Lakes Riverfront communities. It is the fun way to keep active and to add a little zest to your life.

One lack which Hildy is going to fill this year, during the troupe's travels, is medical protection.

"I took a list of things we should have with us up to the college, and they're going to provide us with them," Hildy told me. "We know two trained nurses in our cast — they'll know how to administer medicines."

Hildy is particularly emphatic on this point because her Lenny lost his life "in action." Lenny was stricken with a heart attack while going into the finale of a number, from a truck-bed stage at the junior college. There was no life-saving medical equipment on hand to treat him. Hildy doesn't want anything similar to happen to any of her senior performers.

Another pleasant interlude of last week was having lunch at the Hilltop House.

No. Don't rush out to make reservations. Nick is still a couple of months away from opening the doors of his much-rumored back up to the public. This was a bring-in meal, eaten amid the hammering of nails and sounds of sawing. The Hilltop House still has a long way to go before it will be ready to again pursue the public with Nick's cuisine.

It was a friends-developing-in type meal. Doing the trenching were my boss-man Dick Campbell, our lovely assistant manager Peggy Messner, and the always sexy Margo Parris of the Parris Island Shoppe. We came bearing hamburgs, a far cry from the Hilltop House menu, but new challenge for a patron.

Nick Makela, owner of the luxury restaurant that got bombed out by Hurricane David last year, is directing the symphony of building himself. He's very proud of the new cypress panelling which will brighten the walls for dinners in the future and of the new mahogany bar which will go in the lounge. Right now the whole place is a shambles, but one can see that Nick has everything under control with an expert eye tuned to what's shaping up.

It has taken Nick so long to get repairs and remodeling underway because of sturdy wicket and taps never ceased at the insistence coverage of the damage caused by the blow. A tornado touched down, leaving a great gaping hole in the roof, and resulting in water damage to the entire restaurant. In a way, it has been a bigger job than starting from scratch.

Despite all the obstacles, Nick has remained determined to get his baby back in better-than-new shape again, and right now he's heading down the home stretch. He's shooting for a Halloween opening once, and plans are already in the air for a grand opening party.

For one, he's shooting for an appearance of the Gallopin' Grannies, who did such a magnificent job of entertaining during the beautiful get well party Nick gave for me last year. He couldn't pack a better bunch of show biz talent to keep things jumping. All though the whole thing is still in the talking stage, it's sure to be one of the best bashes on the local scene.

I, Thirty, met my counterpart
Of seventeen. Same mind, same heart.
Same yearning to be wise and great.
Same love to plot a different fate.

I, Thirty, counselled Seventeen,

"For love, with all its precious bliss,

But Thirty's mind and Thirty's heart
From Seventeen are poles apart.
I heard a thin, far whisper hear,
"Did you do that, in such a year?"

Mirror recommends

Each year, in the primary and general elections, The Mirror recommends who we feel are the most qualified candidates in various races.

The recommendations are based upon the opinions of community leaders surveyed by editorial staff of The Mirror.

The Mirror's recommendation is not an endorsement. The endorsement will be made by the voters, casting their ballots on election day, September 9. We urge all voters to learn as much as they possibly can about the candidates, select whom they feel are the best, and vote their conscience on election day.

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to your front page article on the St. Lucie hospital.

First those state officials who reported this plan realize how many people this program will benefit? I am not talking about the St. Lucie people, but the people who live and work in Jensen Beach, Nettles Island and Windmill Point.

I know, from where I live in Windmill Point, it is at least a thirty minute drive to Martin Memorial Hospital in Stuart. I am sure it is at least that far from any of the places I mentioned above.

There are so many elderly people, and so much construction going on in this area, I would hate to see what would happen in an emergency.

Sure, we have paramedics through out the area, but, they are not doctors. In a life or death situation, could the paramedics save someone within a half hour that it would take to get to Martin Memorial Hospital? Or, would that person be dead upon arrival because there wasn't a doctor closer by to take immediate actions to save him or her?

I feel certain there are several hundred other persons in this area who feel that we are in desperate need of a hospital in the St. Lucie area. I think the public wants and needs to get involved.

Once a St. Lucie hospital gets approved, it would take at least a year to build it. By that time there could be another 500 families across here.

From what I can see, the easiest we get a hospital in this area, the better. Can anyone tell us how we can get involved?

To the Editor:

Just had to let you know that our first AD in Hurricane Edition of the Mirror drew IMMEDIATE and POSITIVE response from the public. It's hard to believe but our first call came in at 2:30 o'clock on the day the paper hit the stands and we were still taking calls at 9:00 o'clock that evening.

I must say that all of us here at Libra and A to Z Realty were very impressed with the layout that Peg Messner came up with for the AD. Professional work like this is a real plus for your paper and it sure helps our budget when it's done right the first time.

Many thanks to you and your staff for the outstanding assistance and excellent cooperation we have received. KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK.

The Mirror editorially asked, "whatever happened to South Savanna Road?" and cited the completion of the road as "one of the keys to the future growth of the Jensen Beach-Rio area."

Cooking up the fun

It seems hard to imagine that the first Mirror Cooking Show was held in the Jensen Beach Community Center back in 1981.

The afternoon session was held in the open hall, without air conditioning, in the August heat that, inside, had to reach about 100 degrees.

The giant circulating fan was no load it made the speakers hard to hear.

It was a first, and I'm sure Gene Rhinestone mentioned our sanity in scheduling the show for that time of the year.

The room was packed, most of the ladies bringing the standard fans from church to cool themselves.

We thanked the world for Harold's Bar, down the street where First Federal is today. In the darkened interior, we could have a cold beer and sing the metal planks down the hardwood shuffleboard-bowling game.

We hurried out into the blazing sunlight and up the street when each of the sections of the cooking show was due to change.

In the evening, it was a fun thing, because the sun was down, a breeze picked up and everyone was comfortable. We even turned off the fan, loud fan, and just used the floor fans.

The home economists from Florida Power and Light did a great job, as did Dick Prince, a very funny guy who explained cuts of meat, and the Publix pro-tem principle.

Over the years, we kept improving the show and the show got larger and larger. We moved from the Community Center to the air-conditioned fellowship hall of the Jensen Community Church. From there we moved the show to Sandpiper Bay's convention hall.

Last year, due to conflicting schedules, we held the cooking show at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

This year we are having two shows, one at the PSL Community Center in the afternoon and one at Blake Hall on First Federal of Jensen Beach. It is another idea to offer the show in the widest selection of people, in Jensen and in Port St. Lucie.

The format of last year, using professional cooks from this area, will be continued. Newer faces, I guess to much interest as shown by those attending as when the various chefs last year showed the people how they cooked special dishes.

We published the recipes in the newspaper after the program.

I really didn't realize how much the announcement seemed to learn about the way a chef prepares a dinner with such flair. Nick Medelis of the Hilltop Restaurant showed how he prepared his famous rolls, and then went through a step-by-step presentation of a meal of lunch.

It wasn't so much the rack of lamb, a beautiful thing. It was how he did it, and the hints he gave on short-cuts in the preparation of the meat.

After the show, everyone praised the work of the three chefs.

This year we will have a batch of chefs preparing different things. At this writing, I'm not certain what will be prepared, but there is a flaming peppercorn steak (one of my favorites), and the preparation of stone crabs, and a Lobster Newburg Thermidore will be featured.

Popular Pat Geddes, regional consumer relations manager of The Sperry and Hutchinson Company (S&H Green Stamps) will be there, and premiums each person attending a book of fifty stamps just for coming, plus several other prizes.

Prize-wise, the shows will be filled. There will be steaks from Publix, many appliances, and a $100 food certificate grand prizes at each show.

After the show, the cast, basically the staff of The Mirror and the persons who demonstrate and who have the consumer oriented booths with information, samples, get together to celebrate a good show. That party might be highlight for me, as we get to meet and visit with old friends.

Gene mentioned earlier on a few years ago to become the head of advertising for Publix in Lakeland. His long-time assistant, John Bertrand, took over his slot, and last year gave an idea of the new computerized checkout system that will be in use in stores soon.

It will be good to see John again, and Pat Geddes, the attractive consumer expert of S&H. Another long-time friend is Bud Fryer, a public relations expert with Florida Power and Light Company. I'll be on with us back in the studios on our shows.

It is a long way, and a far cry from that first show, but it will be as much fun, and more comfortable.

The really unique thing about the evening shows is that you'll be right back where we started the first one. The Community Center will be a block up the street, and we'll be right over where we sipped that cold beer in Harold's Bar.

It's a homecoming.

Ethically bankrupt?

The Mirror without ethics?

That was a question we had to wrestle this last week after we ran a photo on page one last week of a sportfishing boat crashing through heavy seas.

The photo was great. The boat wasn't breaking up, or in any apparent danger of doing so, but on both sides there was a giant spray of water blasting out and in the distance there was a huge, ominous mountain of water ahead of the boat.

The photo appeared over a story about a boating accident at the St. Lucie Inlet which claimed three lives. The photo was not of the boat that capsized, nor of any other boat going through the inlet that day.

We thought it was a photo of a boat going through the St. Lucie Inlet on some previous day when conditions were rough.

We found the photo in going through material for our hurricane edition a couple of issues ago. It didn't get used then, but we remembered it and thought it would be good as an illustration of how dangerous the inlet can be, to go with the story on the boating accident.

We had what is known in the newspaper business as a PMT of the photo. When a photo is reproduced in a newspaper, a picture, or PMT, is made of the original glossy print, then there are two more steps made with the photo image before it appears in print.

Since we didn't have the original glossy, we didn't know who took the photo or where it was taken, but assumed it had been by a former Mirror photographer who once lived near the inlet and often took boating photos. So, we used it.

We were wrong in our assumption as to who the photographer was and where it was taken. Turns out the photo is rather well known in boating circles and was taken somewhere off Mexico.

The person who told us about the photo said we had no ethics for using it. He said it does not represent conditions at the inlet and that it was designed to scare the wits out of folks.

I disagree that the use of the photo makes us ethically bankrupt. Like the photographer who once lived near the inlet, I too lived near it. On many occasions I made the walk from Rand's Pier to the inlet and have seen the inlet with very turbulent waters. On my first trip out the inlet in my own boat, I very nearly lost my boat, even though moments before I'd left in my boat, I'd viewed the surf near the pier and it seemed very calm.

There are special conditions unique to the inlet that make it dangerous even when it's fairly calm outside the inlet.

The point we hoped to make by use of the photo was that it can be ferocious—a killer. Perhaps in using the photo we did, we were too dramatic in making our point. Our intention was not to scare the wits out of anyone, but to instill in them a healthy respect for the perils of the inlet. And if we're to be criticized for the statement we made by use of the photo, I'd rather it be that we are accused of making the inlet look more dangerous than it is rather than less dangerous.

In the years I've lived here, I've heard of numerous deaths in the inlet and seen the wreckage of many boats there.

Had we known the photo was not of our inlet, I doubt we would have used it and, had we used it knowing where it was taken, I'm sure we would have said it was somewhere other than here.

But we used it, and erred in our assumption of where it was taken. And, in this column, we're setting the record straight. And as to our ethics, or lack of them, I've already said what I think about the accusation, but I'm probably too close to the situation to be objective. So, now that you know the details involved, we'll let you be the judge.

Five Tips For Retirement

Today we offer retirees five suggestions for "staying young"

We urge persons over forty years of age to start preparing for retirement by involving themselves in a program to maintain their interests and their health

Retirement give a person more free time to do all the things he's yearned for throughout his life, provided he has the abilities which to do them This means that he must do some early planning in terms of avocations and health

I recommend the following: (1) Stay active and independent Busy people tend to be healthier and accomplish more (2) Don't quit physical and other activities Continue your activities, especially exercise in moderation (3) Continue to acquire new skills and knowledge (4) Don't succumb to age The effect of chronological age or ability differs with each individual (5) Maintain your health Many symptoms associated with aging are the end results of processes and injuries that began and were not diagnosed or properly treated long before retirement

Youth is a feeling and not an age Health is the simple factor that most determines one's happiness in his senior year The concern of most senior citizens is not to be dependent and to be ambulatory in their senior years Maintain your health with periodic spinal examinations

NOW OPEN — The sales center at Sailfish Point has recently been completed and is now open. The structure is located at the south tip of Hutchinson Island.

Oceanside sales center opens

The Sales Center at Sailfish Point, Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation's yacht and country club community under construction on Hutchinson Island, has officially opened for business.

The structure is a harbinger of things to come at this yacht and country club community in Martin County.

Jim Lee, the design architect on the staff of Mobil Land, and Fenton, Hoen & White, the consulting architects, chose a "berming" technique which involves pushing the earth directly up to the building's walls to harmonize the sales center with the site. Located just behind the dunes and overlooking the ocean, the building appears to rise from its natural surroundings.

The second floor of the Center opens onto a balcony overlooking the ocean. Doran T. Seaquist, Jr., president of Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation said, "We specifically designed the sales center in this manner in order to offer prospective purchasers the same view of the sea that they will have from their ocean-front single-family residences or condominiums."

Fewer than 800 owners, according to Seaquist, will enjoy over six and one-half miles of waterfront, including more than a mile of beach, an 18 hole, par 72 golf course designed by Jack Nicklaus, elaborate country club facilities and the largest, private, seawalled marina in Florida. The community will be comprised of single-family residences, townhouses and condominiums overlooking the ocean, Indian River, St. Lucie Inlet, marina, a 60-acre, sheltered harbor and the golf course.

Condominium residences at Sailfish Point begin at $315,000, while townhouses will be priced over $375,000. Residential home sites start at $115,000, with oceanfront home sites averaging over $350,000.

According to James R. Ottesen, vice president, marketing and sales, Dunes Realty Corporation, the exclusive sales agent for Sailfish Point, sales have already surpassed the $11 million mark.

"Half of the 64 units in 2001 Sailfish Point Boulevard, our first, luxury, oceanfront condominium have already been purchased," Ottesen stated.

William Campbell returns from sea

Coast Guard Subsistence Specialist 1st Class William W. Campbell, son of Thelma Campbell of 604 W. Alden St., Port St. Lucie, recently returned from a four-week Law Enforcement Patrol off the East Coast.

He is a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard cutter Reliance, homeported in Yorktown, Va.

During the patrol, his ship steamed almost 3,600 miles conducting surveillance operations to enforce international treaties and U.S. laws. In addition, the cutter conducted nearly 300 helicopter landings as it qualified pilots from several coast guard air stations in shipboard landings.

"His ship is a 210-foot medium endurance cutter and is the only reserve training cutter in the Coast Guard.

Spanish class to be taught

Conversational Spanish classes sponsored by HROC and taught by Mrs. Gertrude Aviles will be offered again for the 1980 fall semester at the Port St. Lucie Community Center (878-3301) beginning Thursday, October 2nd, at 1:00 p.m. This class will meet twice a week after its initiation for the duration of the semester. There is a $5.00 registration fee for the course and your social security number is a must. For further information please call Mrs. Aviles at 878-3301.

Lt. Noel is new unit commander

The St. Lucie-Martin County unit of the Salvation Army has had a change of command.

Lt. Rick Mikles, who has been in command of the unit since February of 1979, has been transferred to the Melbourne unit and Lt. Charles Noel has been transferred from Orange Park, near Jacksonville, to the local unit, according to announcement of Dan Wasserman, chairman of the local S.A. Advisory Board.

The change became effective Wednesday.

Lt. Noel, 25, has been in active S.A. ministerial service for over a year and had a very successful tour of duty at Orange Park. He is married to the former Cindy Perry, daughter of Major and Mrs. William Perry, who are commanding officers of the West Palm Beach Salvation Army unit. Both Lt. and Mrs. Noel are natives of West Palm Beach.

"We are both delighted to have been assigned to Fort Pierce," said Lt. Noel, "and we will do everything within our power to carry on the wonderful work that was done here by Lt. and Mrs. Mikles. We have been assured by Lt. Mikles of the wholehearted cooperation of members of the Advisory Board and the loyal support of the people of the entire command. We shall do everything that we can to merit a continuation of that support and cooperation and to meet the spiritual and other needs of the community."

The Melbourne unit to which Lt. and Mrs. Mikles have been transferred is considerably larger than the local unit and the budget almost twice as large.

The Salvation Army program has been considerably expanded under the service of Lt. Mikles. Not only has the regular case load increased, but plans are in the process of formulation for expansion of the local facilities to include a new lodge for the accommodation of transients, and other needed facilities. S.A. facilities are located at the southwest corner of Orange Avenue and Seventh Street.

In addition, a new service has been undertaken – a misdemean program under which the Salvation Army takes over the supervision of probationers referred to it by county courts of the area, seeks to rehabilitate them, help them to find employment where needed, and to readjust themselves to the community. There are presently more than 300 cases under this program, according to Lt. Mikles. The program is entirely self-sustaining and has been a wonderful help to those involved in it, it was stated.

Walch M.C.'s fraternity convention

Kappa Delta Rho fraternity held its national convention and leadership conference at Middlebury College over the weekend, Aug. 22 and 23, commemorating the 75th anniversary of its founding at Middlebury.

Highlights of the convention included a talk by Mrs. Elaine Stevens, whose son was killed last year in another fraternity's hazing incident at Alfred University, and participation by Master of Ceremonies Raymond E. Walch, of Port St. Lucie and Harold G. Walch from Farmington, Conn., both Middlebury alumni, whose uncle, Chester Walch, was one of the founders of KDR.

No movie schedules

Due to the Labor Day gremlins that caused everyone to be about one day behind in their usual business, movie schedules could not be obtained in time for the Mirror's deadline this week.

Beautiful Waters Club to meet

The Beautiful Waters Club will hold its first meeting of the fall season on Thursday, September 11, at 12:30 p.m. in the Port St. Lucie Community Center on Prima Vista Blvd.

"Community Center Pre-views" will be given by Fran Gudmanson and Cindy Campbell of the Candy Factory will demonstrate molding candy with summer coatings.

All interested women are invited to attend.

Mini-gardens explanation set at FIT

How to get started in the establishment of an organic mini-garden will be explained on Wednesday, September 10, at 9:30 a.m. at First Federal's Hoke Hall in Jensen Beach.

Professor Joseph Gillio, of FIT, owner of natural farms and instructor of adult education organic gardening classes, will be the instructor.

The program is sponsored by the Nutritional Awareness Club. For further information, call 334-9049.

GETTING MORE DEPRECIATION

QUESTION: Would you please explain how accelerated depreciation works? I understand that it is a way to get more depreciation on a real estate investment. How can I do this?

ANSWER: Accelerated depreciation is a method for taking larger amounts of depreciation in the early years of ownership than is provided by straight line depreciation.

The two basic methods of accelerating depreciation are the declining balance methods and the sum of the year's digits method. In the declining balance methods the straight line factor is multiplied by a percentage of 125 percent, 150 percent, or 200 percent, depending on the circumstances of ownership and the qualification for the method.

For example, let's look at an investment property that qualifies for 150 percent declining balance depreciation and that has a useful life of 25 years. Using a 25-year useful life, the annual straight line depreciation percentage equals 4 percent (100 percent, divided by 25). Using the 150 percent declining balance method, the depreciation factor equals 6 percent (4 percent multiplied by 150 percent equals 6 percent).

If a depreciable improvement on the property, for example, were $100,000, the amount of the depreciation available using straight line is $4,000 (.04 multiplied by $100,000). Using the 150 percent declining balance method, the available depreciation in the first year is $6,000 ($100,000 times .06 equals $6,000).

The sum of the year's digits method also produces an accelerated write off of the asset in the early years. This method, along with the 200 percent declining balance method, is available only to the owners of new residential income property. The 150 percent declining balance method is available to owners of new commercial and industrial investment properties. Owners of used residential income property with the useful life of 20 years or greater may use the 125 percent declining balance method. All other types of investment property are restricted to the straight line method.

IRCC Itinerary

Although Indian River Community College, by nature of its local orientation, is geared toward serving the immediate four-county area, there are enough students at IRCC from out-of-state and from out of the country to give all students an appreciation of the differences that exist between people and customs.

Most of the students attending IRCC, local and non-residents alike, have now settled into their Fall classes, but some of them have not yet settled into places to live. Rentals are scarce, and the Dean of Students Office at the college is trying to help students find rooms, apartments, or houses to rent. Since many of the students are from somewhere else, the arrangement may be beneficial in more ways than one — it will give a student a home and give renters the opportunity to learn more about a different culture. Persons with units to rent to IRCC students, call the college, ext. 326.

Fall credit classes have begun, but there is still time to enroll in many of the Adult Continuing Education classes being offered at IRCC this Fall.

Painting, Ceramics, Sketching in Stuart

Art is not only fun, it's a great way to express feelings and can be profitable as well. Many local artists got their start through Continuing Education classes just like these being offered by IRCC in Stuart this Fall.

Madelene Reheiser will teach "Oil Painting" at the Stuart Site on Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. beginning Sept. 2, and on Thursdays from 1 to 5 p.m. beginning Sept. 18. On Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 10, she will teach "Oil Painting" at the Stuart Recreation Center.

Starting Sept. 8, Marion Chittenden will teach "Ceramics" on Mondays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Stuart Site; and beginning Sept. 10, she will hold classes at the Stuart Recreation Center on Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m.

Jeanlue McClung will show students "Sketching to Paint Better" each Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon beginning Aug. 28, and "Oil Painting" on Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. beginning Sept. 10. Both classes will meet at the Stuart Site. The registration fee for each class is $5; for more information, call 283-6550 or 464-2000.

Art and Craft Classes on The Main Campus

If you've thought about taking up some type of craft as a hobby or a way to earn extra money, but didn't want to invest a lot of money before you really tried it, a new craft class scheduled to meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. may be just what you're looking for. Coral Samosky, an accomplished artist with a Master's Degree in Fine Arts, will lead her class through an exploration of various art forms, including glass etching, macrame, ceramics, weaving, mosaics, batik, and candle-making. Classes, to begin Sept. 2, will meet in Room F101 on the Main Campus. The cost is only $5, plus art materials.

Coral Samosky will also teach "Introduction to Drawing and Painting" on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room F101 on the Main Campus. Instruction will develop skills in a variety of mediums, including pencil, pen and ink, wash, silverpoint, pastels, colored pencils, Litho crayons, water color, acrylics, and oil paint. Perspective and composition will be emphasized, and the class will be open to beginners and experienced artists alike. Classes begin Sept. 2, and the cost is $5. For more information, call the college, ext. 323.

Driver's Education Offered

Anyone 18 years of age or older who has a restricted driver's license may be interested in the Driver's Education course being offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30 to 8 p.m. on the Main Campus. To meet in Room F208, the course will include both classroom and behind-the-wheel instruction. For more information, call the college, ext. 323.

Learn to Sew in Stuart

Vera Traversa is teaching a series of sewing classes at the Stuart Site, and no matter how basic or advanced your sewing skills are, the classes will be valuable to you. Beginning Sept. 2, "Advanced and Intermediate Sewing" will meet each Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. "Sew Quick with Knits" will meet each Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon starting Sept. 4, and "Sewing Lingerie and Bathing Suits will meet from 1 to 4 p.m. on Thursdays beginning Sept. 4. All of these classes will meet at the Stuart Site, and each costs $5. For more information, call 283-6550 or 464-2000.

The Basics of Firearms

To be offered on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon beginning Aug. 30 on the Main Campus is a Basic Firearms course. George and Gloria Emerson, instructors for the institutional credit class, will inform students of the legal aspects, safety, proper care, and proper use of firearms. Cost of the course is $15, and students must provide their own handguns and ammunition. For more information, call the college, ext. 442.

Medical Lab Update

Four classes will be offered in September to give personnel in all the health related fields a chance to update their medical laboratory knowledge. Worth one college credit and an IRCC Certificate of Attendance, the classes will meet from 6 to 10 p.m. in Room J132 on the Main Campus. Schedule and content of the update program is as follows: Tuesday, Sept. 9—Hematology —; Thursday, Sept. 11—Hematology —; Tuesday, Sept. 16—Chemistry Update; and Thursday, September 18—Microbiology. For more detailed information, call the college, ext. 357.

Health Care for the Aged

Registration ends Aug. 28 for "A Perspective on Aging and the Role of the Health Care Provider", a two-credit course open to all health and community care professionals. Classes, to begin Aug. 28, will meet each Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room J223 on the Main Campus. For more information, call the college, ext. 323.

Clinic for Volleyball Officials

Interested in serving as a volleyball official for the 1980-81 season? A clinic will be held in the IRCC Gymnasium on September 12 and 13 to familiarize participants with the rules and techniques of the game, and to evaluate the skills of potential officials. Carol D. Smith of Miami-Dade South, the area booking agent for volleyball officials, will run the clinic.

PSL Community bridge scores

The winners were Nelle Seiple and Maree Haga, 75½; Al Smith and Bob Garcia, 75½; Peg and Jack Wagg, 73½; Laurel Trotz and Zell Gesseaux, 65; Bea Koth and Harriet Cooley, 61½; Al Mason and Jean Bergmann, 61.

Game time is 12:30 p.m. every Thursday at the Community Center, 200 S.W. Prima Vista Blvd. There will be no games held during the month of September. Kay Monroe is director, 334-2462.

FLORIDA NATIONAL IS PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Like Jack Williams and Charlie Harris

That's right. The bank names have changed (Stuart National and Port Salerno National are now Florida National Bank of Martin County). But the people haven't. Jack Williams and staff will continue to greet you by name in Stuart. And Charlie Harris' staff continues in Port Salerno. Charlie will assist Jack in all seven offices.

So it's the same people you've dealt with for years. Now we're a part of one of Florida's strongest, most prestigious banking institutions. For you it means even better service. Handle all or part of your banking needs at any one of our seven convenient offices in the Stuart area and Port Salerno.

For us it means even greater resources. More extensive and more sophisticated services. That adds up to even better service for our customers and friends. The people we know. The people who know us.

Federal fund release gives boost to I-95

For local coverage read The Mirror your hometown newspaper

BY BOB FRYER

The now-it's-dim, now-it's-bright future of the missing link of I-95 is back on the bright side.

At a recent meeting of several Florida congressmen and federal Highway Administrator John Hassel, federal officials agreed to return some $37.5 million for interstate projects in the state in the next fiscal year, rather than sticking to a policy of paying the money to the state over a three year period. And, it also appears that in October, this state may be in line for about $100 million more for interstate projects.

All of this is good news for those awaiting completion of the I-95 link between Okeechobee Road (SR 70) in Fort Pierce and Palm Beach Gardens. Just how good that news is won't be known right away, but state representative Tom Lewis of North Palm Beach has reportedly said it means the road can be brought down from the north to SR 76 in Martin County.

Assistant State Transportation Engineer Paul Pappas said it is still too soon to tell exactly how far I-95 will be brought into Martin County as a result of the extra money, but said it should speed up construction of the road from its SR 70 deadend to SR 714 in Martin County.

Jack McDavitt, an aide to U.S. Representative L. A. "Skip" Bafalis, explained what happened at the recent meeting. "Every year Florida advances money for construction of interstates. Recently the federal administration adopted a rule that the pay back of money to the state from federal funds was to be made over a three year period, rather than right away. This put a hell of a cramp in construction because that money could be rolled over into more interstate construction during that three year time, if the state didn't have to wait for the three year pay back.

"State officials applied for a waiver of that rule and it was granted, so it means that $37.5 million the state advanced (for work already done) will be put back into more interstate work," McDavitt said.

Under funding rules, the federal government pays for 90 per cent of interstate costs, while the state pays 10 per cent. Often, before matching funds from the federal government are provided, the state will advance money for interstate work, and the $37.5 million represents a return for money already advanced. McDavitt said the federal pay back of the $37.5 million the state advanced should come during the next fiscal year.

McDavitt said the effect of getting the money without having to wait for a three year payback means that those funds can generate much more than just the $37.5 million, as they are once again used as state advances on interstate work. He said the money would not be enough to complete all of the missing I-95 link as well as other interstate projects in the state, but said it should speed up work schedules.

McDavitt said that in addition to the $37.5 million pay back, the state is also hopeful of receiving about $100 million more from the federal government in October from the "lapsed fund pool."

He explained that according to the 1978 federal highway bill, a lapsed fund pool is set up for federal funds states do not spend on interstate projects within a specified time limit. He said those funds go back to the federal government and into the lapsed fund pool for use by states with higher interstate priorities. He said so far Florida has drawn about $400 million from that pool and hopes to draw about $100 million more this October, when it is known how much money is in the pool and decisions are made as to where the money should be spent. McDavitt said any money going to Florida would be spent on I-95 and I-75, as well as I-595 in Broward County.

Assistant state Transportation Engineer Pappas said of the pay back, "It will permit us to cash flow a program that will be more than the $37.5 million and has the effect of accelerating the whole program." He said rather than saying one section of an interstate will benefit and others won't, it means all projects will be moved up on the schedule. However, when asked specifically about the I-95 link, he said the pay back should help speed up construction from SR 70 to SR 714. Contracts have already been let for work to bring the interstate to the St. Lucie-Martin County line and the section from the county line to SR 714 should be ready for contract around March, 1987. It was to be funded in 1988, but now it appears it can be funded when ready for contract.

As for the future of the entire missing I-95 link, he said it is still too soon to say if it will be built before federal matching funds expire in 1996, but said the $37.5 million and possible $100 million from the lapsed fund pool "make it look better ... we're going full speed ahead with design and right-of-way acquisition and when opportunities like this come, we'll use the funds."

Hoag helps in Special Olympics

Airman Bonnie L. Hoag, a reservist with the 911th Tactical Airlift Group, was a volunteer in the regional Special Olympics held in Penn Hills, Pa., this summer.

Environmental Center opens

BY CATHIE FARAGO

The aquariums are silent. The rooms are locked. The Jensen Beach Environmental Center is waiting.

Soon, the doors will open to hundreds of children from area elementary schools to reveal mysteries yet unknown to them. Youngsters will laugh as they try to imitate the fish, widen their eyes as they pose at the turtles, and lose sleep as they think about their upcoming field trip.

According to Jay Jarrett, director of the center's adult educational department, funds totaling almost one percent of the educational system's budget are allotted towards the program. Thus, the center, after several years, can still provide a source of knowledge that cannot be learned from textbooks alone.

Jarrett points out that the curriculum is outlined by teachers and designed to expose each grade to specific parts of our Florida environment until students learn the whole ecosystem. While the teachers provide the in-school study programs, the center takes those theories and turns them into practice.

Currently, the topic of mangroves is being introduced in some classes. After proper study, the students will be taken on a field trip. There, they will be given the opportunity to study mangroves as they exist on the shoreline.

The program, initiated several years ago by a concerned teacher, was federally subsidized to help get it underway. Soon however, its success was so widely recognized that institutions such as the Smithsonian were imitating the idea. The center continued to grow in stature to the point where even other countries are corresponding regularly for assistance.

The idea is a simple one. It works on the premise that what children see, they will not easily forget. And what they see at the center is everything from land crabs to wave machines that depict shoal formation.

Although directors of the center are free to personally support or oppose environmental issues, those viewpoints are never transferred to the students. It is understood that as a teaching institution, information must first be absorbed before decisions can be made. They leave the latter to the students' later maturity and understanding.

Jarrett has been closely involved with the environmental center almost seven years. A rather quiet man, he traded his combined professions of journalism and photography for children. At one time he lectured extensively, and spent years advocating environmental alternatives for various problems facing cities.

But for Jay, the future lies with the children. If at an early age they can be taught the symbiotic balance of nature, then perhaps they can learn to work with rather than against it.

The center is fun, for who could not love the interaction of children and wildlife. During the next year, countless pictures will be taken of wide eyes and contagious grins. FIT students will research some of their projects in various rooms, and a few stray porpoise will spend a day or two in the large tank waiting for delivery to Seaquarium in Miami.

The activity will continue. But perhaps, more than a few students will carry with them the memory of what it was that made them smile so. And then, use it wisely as they grow up.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWER 334-4946

Assisted by Elizabeth O Donnell and Peg Ray

Labor Day is over, but everyone has to settle down to work. The school children and the adults returned to work, the retirees to enjoyments they like. We had quite a lot of visitors over the weekend to enjoy the Park and beach. Many grills were blazing, sending out their many aromas.

The finishing up of tree cutting and edging of roads and driveways is nearly completed, looks fine. Carolie Wright and Ellen Mullane have the office nearly ready for the oncoming new season. Seems the summer has flown by. Four early birds have returned to the Park. They are, the Magers, the Bertuzzis, the Lester Ullmanns and the Tom Stebbins.

Bill & Myrtle Muse have been entertaining their son David and wife Dina and grandsons David and Michael from Melrose, Mass. They all had a grand time enjoying the Ocean pool for three weeks. Myrtle & Bill plan to leave sometime in September for a fall vacation visiting their son and family, then touring the Northeast states visiting friends.

Kay & Ray Johnson have spent a hot summer in Massachusetts but have, enjoyed many weeks at Cape Cod.

Marion & Bob Holden enjoyed Alaska, with its many beautiful sights. Anne & Frank Gilbert will be returning to H.Out very soon.

On Friday morning, Aug. 29, Jerry & Jini Belmore were notified of the sudden death of their son Michael, age 36. Mike held a prominent position with Raytheon Co. based in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. He and wife Joan and daughter April have vacationed with us here in Holiday Out over the past few years.

Frank and Millie Pius sent an interesting newspaper from Las Vegas, which was called "The Mirrow" of Las Vegas. They will be heading back home to H.Out the 1st of Sept.

Cecil & Beryle Roy write of a busy summer in Michigan. They had a nice visit with a niece and nephew from Seattle. Also, Beryle's mother and sister stayed a few days. Sandy & Betty Crawford paid them a visit while on their way to Frankenmuth Festival, then on up North to visit the Berrys.

Jackie & Vern Savage came last Friday night. They both needed a well earned rest from building a lovely home in Bryson City, N.C. all summer. Maybe we will see more of them now.

Peg & Al Ray had a nice surprise on Sunday, Aug. 30. Their granddaughter, Allyson, paid them a visit along with her other grandparents, the Rasses, from Ft. Pierce.

Mable & Hal Thurner arrived Aug. 27 after a trip to Buffalo, N.Y. Hal & his son went to Canada for a fishing trip. Hal is waiting for the blue fish to return.

Anniversary Congratulations for— Edie & Chester Gramstorff 9-6, Marcelyn & John Evans 9-7, Billie & Bruce Magyer 9-8, Thelma & Chuck Abel, Stephanie & Fred Kiefaber, Dora & Everet Porteous, Clara & Minor Myers, Dr. Glen Boyd & Ruth 9-9.

Happy Birthday Wishes— Andy Donnelly 9-8, Earle Palmer, Schersly Green, Linda Royal, Janice Goodman 9-9, Carly Ullmann, "Howie" Frank Fanucci 9-8, Arietta Wehlage, Clare Myers 9-10, Gladys Kirkpatrick 9-11, Edward Salthore 9-12.

END OF THE LINE—This boat went to a watery grave recently at the Anchorage Marina in Rio, the victim of worms, dry rot and too many years of service.

Ocean Breeze News Notes

BY LETA KEITH

I was informed last week by a very reliable person, but she got her Irenes mixed up. Irene Williams is back, and Irene Finch is back, but not the other Irene.

Irene Williams had surgery at Martin Memorial and spent a week there. She returned home Labor Day. Her sister, Doris Miah, has come down to stay with her.

Marie Wolverton is back. Ken Blanchard had a stroke while visiting Mrs. Blanchard's sister in Missouri.

Jim Inisa died last week up north.

Helene and Bill Hamilton wrote from Mt. Clemens, Mich., that they had a picnic for Ocean Breezers. Attending were Nellie and Ray Sutton, Clyde and Byron Sutliff, Rose and Mitch Dierwa, Margaret and Arnold Sherman and Doris and Henry Habitzreuther.

Martin County beach erosion to be topic of public hearing

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will sponsor a public meeting regarding the Martin County Beach Erosion Control Study on September 9th at 7 p.m. in the county commission meeting room of the Martin County Administrative Center in Stuart.

The meeting will be chaired by Lt. Col. Robert J. Watterson III, Deputy District Engineer for the Jacksonville District of the Army Corps of Engineers, and will join state and local officials in the effort to prevent future erosion of the Martin County shoreline.

To the project in Martin County officials, federal funds were provided in fiscal year 1977 to initiate a study of Martin shores, in the interest of beach erosion control and hurricane protection.

As the lengthy study is now reportedly nearing completion, the public hearing will be held in order to advise local officials and residents of the Corps' findings and recommendations.

The two main areas spotlighted in the study include Jupiter and Hutchinson Islands. Among the primary items of control measures proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers are initial beach fill, periodic nourishment and offshore breakwaters.

It was noted that particularly for Hutchinson Island, beach fill would be required for some 4,700 linear feet of shore fronting Jensen Beach, and another 1,800 feet fronting Stuart public beach.

The estimated quantity of initial fill that would be necessary for erosion control has been put at 480,200 cubic yards, which includes 10 years of advance nourishment.

The Corps of Engineers further suggested that the 7,900 feet of projected beach would require 141,500 cubic yards of additional material every 10 years to replace anticipated losses.

Primary sources of beach fill for present restoration and future periodic renourishment are borrow areas located from .5 to one mile offshore.

The Engineers also suggested the construction of a low profile breakwater to reduce the anticipated erosion losses at each public beach.

Although these and other measures have been cited as being the most effective means of controlling future beach erosion along the Martin County coasts, Watterson stressed that the federal government will not undertake any state government projects without subsequent authorization and funding by Congress.

The Monday's public meeting will be conducted in order to secure public input as to the beach erosion problem, as well as to determine if the various citizenry wishes county officials to hold or seek federal funding for an extensive erosion control project.

A QUIET LAGOON—as Hutchinson Island remains unattended except for the occasional flight of a seabird. Periodically, lone sailboats can be spied heading in some of the smaller retreats, or fishermen, enjoying the solitude and hoping to catch a big one.

Mock rescue a huge success

INTO THE SURF goes the Albert Blaisdell for its first taste of seawater. The 25-foot long surf rescue boat was built by Pat Kenny and was christened for a mock rescue mission last Saturday.

BY BOB FRYER

The weather was perfect, the surf conditions were just right, and the boat was beautiful.

Under those conditions there could be nothing but success for the christening of the Albert Blaisdell and a mock rescue operation in the surf off Hutchinson Island.

And, by all accounts, it was a success.

The Blaisdell is a 25-foot-long replica of the type of surf boats used about 100 years ago for rescue missions. It was built by Martin County Historican Society jack-of-all-trades Pat Kenny as the final touch in the Society's project to restore the 104 year old House of Refuge museum on Hutchinson Island.

On Saturday, as a fleet of local boaters paraded by just offshore, the Blaisdell was christened, then a crew of Chapman School of Seamanship students launched the boat. They rowed it into the surf with a precision that demonstrated long hours of practice, picked up a sailor in distress, then returned him to shore.

The sailor in distress wasn't really in distress, but played the part well for the mockr rescue. He was David Childs, and when he came ashore, he was wrapped in a blanket from the House of Refuge that had been used years ago for shipwrecked sailors.

The House of Refuge was one of 10 such structures commissioned to be built in the 1870s by the U.S. Lifesaving Service, forerunner of the U.S. Coast Guard. They were to be built along desolate coastal areas to provide food and shelter for shipwrecked sailors.

The House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island was only one of five to actually be built and is the only one still standing. As a Bicentennial project, the old House of Refuge was restored to its original condition.

And, now that the Blaisdell, named for the man who built the House of Refuge, has successfully completed the rescue mission, it will be placed on display at the House of Refuge.

UNDERWAY – The Albert Blaisdell, named for the builder of the House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island, gets under way last Saturday for a mock rescue of a man overboard in the surf. The boat will be placed on display at the House of Refuge Museum. It was patterned after the type of boats used for rescuing sailors in the surf 100 years ago, around the time the House of Refuge was built.

BEAMING WITH PRIDE – Pat Kenny beams with pride as he watched the boat he built, the Albert Blaisdell, successfully make a rescue of a sailor in the surf off Hutchinson Island. Kenny patterned the boat after boats used 100 years ago for surf rescues.

DAVID CHILDS, the "victim" of a rescue in the surf off the House of Refuge, was wrapped in an original House of Refuge survivor's blanket when he came ashore.

LAUNCHING the Albert Blaisdell were a team of students from the Chapman School of Seamanship in Palm City. The team demonstrated procedures involved in making a mock rescue of a sailor in the surf.

IT MAY HAVE BEEN LABOR DAY—but to the birds, it was just another cloudy day. Flying not exactly in Jonathan Livingston Seagull form, they nevertheless remained aloft, with an ever present eye kept below for food.

HIGH RISE CONDOMINIUMS stand sentry in the distance, and seem to be evergrowing in numbers. Concern over the effect the new influx of people will have on the bridges, remains.

Watch for that harvest moon Sept. 23 to 25

THE HARVEST MOON will fill the eastern sky with brilliance from sundown for three nights in succession beginning Sept. 23 and lasting to Sept. 25.

That's just for openers. Next month, the hunter's moon will dazzle viewers in precisely the same fashion at about the same time of the month.

The moon phases in September will produce a new moon on the 9th, first quarter on the 17th, full on the 24th and last-quarter again on the 30th.

The bright planets are just about evenly divided between the evening and morning sky. Thomas D. Nicholson tells us in the September issue of Natural History. There will be two evening stars (Mercury and Mars), one morning star (Venus), and two planets (Jupiter and Saturn) shifting from the evening to the morning sky. You'll probably only be able to see Venus, however.

If sleep is something you can do without, plan to watch from moonrise (about 3 a.m.) on Friday night, Sept. 5 to see the moon approach and pass Venus.

Sept. 22 is an auspicious day. That's when the sun arrives on the equatorial plane, at the point in the constellation Virgo known as the autumnal equinox. That marks the end of summer and the beginning of autumn in the Northern Hemisphere. The date of the "effective" equinox, however, when day and night are equal (and the sun spends half its time above the horizon and half below) is Sept. 26.

Incidentally, boaters keep in mind that on Sept. 24 there will be exceptionally strong tides at night, as perigee occurs just 15 hours after the harvest full moon.

If you feel close to the stars on Sept. 28-29, take a look at the moon from moonrise on (about 10 p.m.). The star close to the moon on the night of the 28th and morning of the 29th will be Aldebaran, a first-magnitude star in the constellation of Taurus.

IMPRESSIONS OF TRADITIONAL ASIA, an article in considerable depth, makes the September issue of Natural History an outstanding one. Walter A. Fairservis, Jr., is an anthropologist and he takes an exhaustive look at the Asian land mass. With the way things are going in the world today, we need to know all we can about the Asian peoples. This is worthwhile reading.

MEMORIES THAT BLESS AND BURN call up many images and one that surfaced for me upon browsing through the closing pages of the September issue concerns Brunswick stew. Raymond Sokolov, whose special interest is history and the preparation of food, talks about "A Squirrel in Every Pot" beginning with the cabins of pioneer America, but my eyes lighted up when his article dwelt, in fact, on the origin of Brunswick stew. He laments that at the turn of the century cooks started throwing vegetables into what had started out to be nothing more than butter, onions, stale bread, seasoning and a passel of squirrels.

What I recall about Brunswick stew harks back to the early Forties in Ashland County (Talladega), Alabama. There, we were introduced to Brunswick stew as a complement to barbecued pig, and enjoyed it many times. The male cooks started preparations early in the morning and by around dinner time everything would be pronounced ready, and after an afternoon of Alabama libations, your appetite would be whetted and how that pig and stew would satisfy it!

By Dick Lundin

There's just nothing like a good Brunswick stew that's been a-simmering for hours and hours!

If you aren't Brunswick stew-oriented, here's the recipe Sokolov presented as a synthesis of several traditional recipes as compiled by Gay Neale in Brunswick County, Virginia, 1720 to 1975: Take one three-pound chicken, two pieces of celery, a small onion, two quarts of tomatoes and three medium potatoes, diced. Add a quart of water and simmer until meat is tender. Cool. Discard celery. Remove meat from bones and shred into small pieces. Then, add ¼ stick of butter, a cup of chopped onion, a quart of butterbeans (fresh are best), and a quart of whole kernel canned or frozen or fresh corn. Continue cooking over medium heat, adding water if necessary and stirring occasionally until the separate identity of the ingredients is no longer apparent — at least five hours! Season with salt, red pepper, and more black pepper than seems sensible — at least 2 teaspoons. Thicken with bread crumbs, crackers or biscuit crumbs. You should get 4-6 delicious servings. Try it. You'll like it!

SAFETY FIRST is a good axiom wherever you are and although fishing is one of the safest sports, fishing accidents can happen when commonsense safety rules are disregarded.

The American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Ass'n has come up with this excellent set of simple safety measures:

Always fish with a companion.

When walking on ground near water, step carefully. Moist tufts of grass often give way or conceal deep holes.

Use caution when wading in water, and don't hop from rock to rock.

Use care in handling fishing equipment, especially lures and hooks. You and your partner don't want to wear one!

Always carry a first-aid kit with such basic items as band aids, various sizes of adhesive tape, antiseptic solution, aspirin, plastic bottles for carrying water, cold packs, elastic wraps of various sizes, gauze pads, soap, flashlight with fresh batteries, scissors and cutting blade pliers, tweezers, tongue depressors, eyewash solution with eyewash glass, sunburn and insect bite lotions, insect repellent like Moskol, telephone number of nearest ambulance service, and phone number and location of nearest hospital.

When fishing from a boat:

Don't overload the boat, and take as many life preservers as there are passengers.

Balance the boat equally with people and gear.

Don't stand in the boat: If you have to change position, stay low as you move.

Watch for changing weather conditions. If a storm looks to be developing, head for shore.

If caught in bad weather, angle the bow of the boat into the waves to avoid being swamped.

Lights or flares and a fire extinguisher are necessary equipment in a boat, especially if you are using a motor.

The following precautions should be taken if a thunderstorm approaches:

If fishing from shore, take shelter in a car or bus.

Avoid trees, especially isolated ones which are liable to attract lightning bolts.

Carry fishing rods horizontally, particularly metal and graphite rods, as they are good conductors of electricity.

It makes sense to play it safe while fishing!

TENNESSEE may not win the Southeastern Conference football championship this year, but six anglers from the state outfished teams from 37 other states and two foreign countries recently to win the Bassmaster Chapter Championship tournament at Grand Lake O' the Cherokees near Grove, Oklahoma.

Billy Phillips of Jackson, Tenn., and Larry Coffman of Kingsport led the victorious Tennesseans who won a $4,000 Hydra-Sports XK260 boat which must be used to raise funds for conservation and youth education projects in Tennessee. Georgia finished second and Oklahoma came in third.

The next event on the bass fishing tour is the $70,000 BASS Masters Classic at Thousand Islands, N.Y. Sept. 24-26.

Optimist golf at IRP Sept.7

A two-man handicap scramble golf tournament will be held on Sunday, Sept. 7 at Indian River Plantation, a fund-raising effort of the Jensen Beach Optimist Club.

The tournament will benefit the youth activities programs of the club at Langford Park.

Many prizes are offered for the winners, including a first prize of two single memberships at Mid Court Racquetball Club, second prize of two professional golf bags, third place of two decorator pictures, and a $500 prize from Indian River Plantation for anyone hitting a hole-in-one on the tenth hole.

There will be prizes for nearest the pin, longest drive and the longest putt, plus a putting contest. Over $1,000 in prizes will be awarded.

The donation cost is $16 per person. For starting times, call 287-5229 from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or 286-4407 in evenings.

Falkenburg wins grass doubles crown

Tom Falkenburg, Indian River Plantation director of tennis, won the National 55 Grass Court doubles championship in Philadelphia on Saturday.

Playing with Buck Archer, the local pro defeated the number one and two ranked teams in the United States to clinch the title.

In the semi-finals, Archer and Falkenburg defeated number two ranked Leonard and Martin, 7-6 (7-5), 2-6 and 6-2. Then, in the finals, Archer and Falkenburg defeated number one ranked Forte and Larsen 6-4, 7-6 (7-5).

Thirty-two of the best "55" players participated in the event.

Mariner Sands annual scramble is Sept. 13

Mariner Sands 18 hole championship course, with its recent improvements, will be the site of the Second Annual Two Man Scramble event Sept. 13, which will also include a Bar-B-Q.

Invitations have been mailed to those who competed in the popular handicap event last season and Chuck Knebels urges all to submit their entry forms as soon as possible. Golfers may select their own partners and will compete in the 'Scramble' which calls for selection of the best shots on an alternating basis. Handicaps will be determined by taking ½ of the low handicappers posted handicap and ½ of the high handicap. Prizes will be awarded in both gross and net divisions.

Entry fee which includes carts, green fees, prizes and Bar-B-Q is established at $40.00 per team. First prize guaranteed in both gross and net scoring is $150 with $100 for second place gross winner.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis · Indian River Plantation

Remember National Tennis Week at IRP? We started off the week with 24 mixed doubles teams in the Lipton Iced Tea team championships.

With many good area teams, Scott Oughterson and Candy Johnson defeated Dr. Jim Grossnickle and daughter Beth in the finals. Then they played Del Ray Beach and moved up the ladder with another big win.

Last week they jumped the big hurdle by defeating Ken Pomerantz and Kimberly Merandi of Miami to win the regional championships 7-5, 5-7, 6-4.

On September 10-14, Candy and Scott will accept an all expense paid trip to Sawgrass Country Club in Ponte Vedra (near Jacksonville) to compete for the national championships.

If they win there (and I hope they do) they will receive an all expense paid trip to Monaco for the world championships. Connie and I would also be there as a prize for running the springboard tournament at IRP.

By the way, after winning the National Grass Court Doubles 55 in Philadelphia last week, Buck Archer and I will be defending our National Clay Court championship in Knoxville, Ky. Wish us luck.

It's amazing how a simple game requiring two or four players to hit a fuzzy ball over a net at one another develops idiosyncrasies among the individuals at play.

You don't have to watch a tennis match very long before you are aware the game somehow is full of bouncers, grunters, blowers, slappers and, of course, hot dogs who can't resist a temptation to show off.

Jimmy Connors is the champion bouncer. Seven times, precisely, he'll bounce the ball before each serve. This upsets some of his opponents and makes them nervous, whereas cool customers Like Bjorn Borg simply relax for six bounces before setting themselves for the return after the seventh.

Billie Jean King is the champion slapper, regardless of sex. She'll give herself a whack on the backside after a bad shot, a good shot or for no apparent reason at all. She doesn't know why she does it and, half the time, isn't aware she's doing it.

Then we have the grunters, the players who put so much into each shot they can be heard in the top row of the grandstand, and thousands of miles away on television. For a champ, bring on Connors again. Actually, the grunt is a good way of exhaling and inhaling. It really helps, but it has to come naturally.

The all time king of the blowers, those players who unconsciously huff and puff into a clenched fist between points, was Bob Falkenburg. For a skinny guy he had enough lung power to inflate the Goodyear blimp.

Chris Evert has a habit of making a quick turn sideways and biting her lip after a poor shot. It's almost as if she's punishing herself for not playing the ball the way she should.

Superstitions also surface in tennis. Lots of players deliberately avoid stepping on the lines before and after a match and even during play. Alex Larson, a star of the Fifties, was the champ in this category, even to the extent of risking injury rather than touching a line. Vitas Gerulaitis is almost as bad.

Others are superstitious about clothes. One who had best remain nameless never changed his tennis togs while he was winning. When he won a tournament, which was frequently, he was what the press corps calls "a tough interview."

Bill Oughterson, our own club champion, has a "thing" about changing rackets every four games. He'll play four with a wood, then switch to an oversized aluminum model and, after four more games, change back to the wood. How come, Bill?

And Dr. Jim Grossnickle is seldom caught hitting a backhand. Being ambidextrous, he'll change his racket from one hand to the other and, surprisingly, he's an effective switch hitter. Also surprisingly, there's nothing in the rules to prevent the practice. In fact, there's nothing to keep an ambidextrous player from carrying a racket in each hand throughout a match.

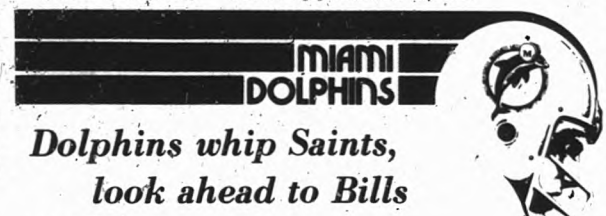
Leaping over the net to congratulate an opponent after a match used to be standard procedure, but is a dying art now. Little Bobby Riggs still does it, but he cheats a little now by pushing down on the net before jumping.

Guillermo Vilas, the talented Argentine, has a habit that should be the subject of official investigation. Every time he serves he rubs the ball along the racket handle to remove moisture. This not only fuzzes the ball, it makes it wet which, in turn, makes it slower. Unlike most things in tennis, there are strict rules about ball size, weight, bounce and pressure. Vilas' habit does things to the ball that shouldn't be done and someone should make him kick the habit.

Almost all players talk to themselves after a bad shot. My wife is no exception and calls herself a plumber after a mistake or a mis-hit. She did it once too often while playing a game with Ed Howard. "What have you got against plumbers?" asked Howard who happens to be in that business.

Whatever you want to see, or if you have never seen it, the 'asphalt jungle' is where you will probably see it. Flushing Meadows is really an asphalt jungle, tennis courts all over the place. During this fortnight you can see some peculiar sights and some marvelous tennis mixed in. Be sure to watch the U.S. Open on TV, and then be very glad that you are in nice quiet Stuart, even when the traffic is heavy on E. Ocean from Confusion Corner to the beach.

Have a nice day.



Dolphins whip Saints, look ahead to Bills

WHAT WAS BILLED as a battle between a high-powered offense and a rock-ribbed defense turned out to be a one-sided football game in the Louisiana Superdome Friday night.

Playing without their 1,000-yard running back Chuck Muncie, tight end Henry Childs and dangerous wide receiver Wes Chandler, the offense-minded Saints were practically helpless against the Miami Dolphins in the final preseason tuneup for both teams, the victors chalking up an easy 20-0 victory.

The Saints have been touted as the up and coming team in the Western Division of the National Football Conference, ready to challenge the perennial champion Los Angeles Rams, but Friday night they were anything but impressive.

If the Saints are for real, the Dolphins look to be in pretty good shape to take on the Bills up in Rich Stadium next Sunday afternoon, but otherwise it looks like the Saints may have to pull out all of the stops if they are to get off on a winning note against the 49ers in the Superdome Sunday.

Coach Don Shula's warriors completely dominated New Orleans Friday night, both offensively in running up over 400 yards, and defensively in holding quarterback Archie Manning and his mates well in check throughout.

That much-maligned pass rush of the Dolphins, led by linebacker A. J. Duhe and defensive end Doug Betters, made life miserable for Manning who was sacked eight times and pressured on nearly every play.

THE FULLBACK SITUATION was apparently the one thing that didn't seem to be under control for Miami against the Saints. Newly acquired Jimmy Dubose only ran a couple of times for short gains, Bob Torrey was unimpressive and Steve Howell no Larry Csonka despite making a couple of good gains late in the game.

The lack of a bulldozing runner capable of getting two or three yards in the clutch was emphasized in the first quarter when Miami failed to punch it over after getting a first down at the New Orleans two-yard line. Coach Shula let quarterback Bob Griese run four straight running-plays but couldn't score against the defensively-suspect Saints.

GUY BENJAMIN, traded this week by the Rams for a 1981 fourth round draft choice and an unspecified 1982 choice, did not suit up for the game, but his departure did solidify young and exciting David Woodley's position as the No. 3 quarterback for the Dolphins.

Woodley saw quite a bit of action against New Orleans and took the Dolphins 64 yards in four plays on his very first possession in the second quarter. He hit rookie wide receiver Elmer Bailey for 54 and 11 yards in the drive.

Don Strock quarterbacked most of the second half, but didn't come up with the heroics that Woodley did. He moved the Dolphins 74 yards in 11 plays late in the fourth quarter to set up a 26-yard field goal by Uwe von Schamann, but aside from that drive didn't seem able to get a drive going.

Of course, his cause wasn't helped any by free agent Nick Giaquinto who put the ball on the ground (fumbled) twice, once at the New Orleans 38 and the other time at about the same place. Giaquinto shows considerable promise as a runner, having quick feet and a talent for following his blockers, but you have to wonder if he'll survive this week's cut-of five, knowing how Coach Shula abhors those who can't hang onto the ball (Benny Malone and Leroy Harris to name a couple of departed Dolphins who had a penchant for coughing up the football at critical moments).

IF THERE WAS a bright spot for New Orleans it had to be the booming punts of Russell Erxleben, former Texas star. He kicked them far and high, once losing the football by kicking it into one of the gondolas far overhead in the cavernous Superdome. What a punter this young man is, but Garo Yepremian is undoubtedly a better field goal kicker and you have to wonder why the Saints didn't keep both.

That's the old numbers game again, probably. It was the same thing with Benjamin. Miami could have kept four quarterbacks but in so doing would have weakened some other area in the eventual 45-man roster. There are just so many spots for the special teams, receiving teams, offensive line, defensive line, secondary and the like. Each coach wants as much reserve strength as he can have and by keeping both Benjamin and Woodley someone would have suffered down the line.

THERE'S A BRIGHT SPOT in the stockpiling of draft choices for Benjamin, Norris Thomas and Gary Davis. It doesn't figure that Coach Shula would have gone in for stockpiling draft choices if he had any real intentions of not remaining with the Dolphins. On that note, he has reportedly promised a press conference before next Sunday's Buffalo game and that seems to be when he'll likely make his intentions known. The betting among the media is that Shula will remain with Miami.

If Shula elects to stay and Miami comes up with a fullback in the Csonka mold, this could be quite a year for Miami.

It would have been great if Miami had been able to get discontented fullback John Riggins from Washington.

BOB GRIESE looked so good dissecting the New Orleans defense in the first half that it's hard to envision anyone else starting against Buffalo. Griese was just plain sharp and toyed with the Saints shamefully. It looked like Miami could have run up a 40-0 score if Griese and Woodley had played the entire game with Miami's first string in there.

The Dolphins won the toss and Griese used a 39-yard pass-run by Delvin Williams to set up Miami at the Saints' 15. After Howell dropped a pass in the end zone and Tony Nathan took it to the 2-yard line on another Griese pass, the Saints stiffened somehow and stopped Miami four times.

After stopping the Saints, Miami came again but bogged down at the New Orleans 23 and had to settle for a 41-yard field goal by von Schamann.

The Saints self-destructed in three plays and the Dolphins were off again. This time, Griese led his troops 58 yards in 10 plays featuring some diving catches by wide receiver Jimmy Cefalo. Once again, the Dolphins had a first and goal down deep but after gaining one yard in two tries by Delvin Williams and Howell (how that Williams is running this summer!), Williams barely got in by going over the top for the touchdown that made it 10-0 early in the second quarter.

New Orleans actually made a first down but had to punt again and that brought in Woodley for his 4-play, 64-yard touchdown, and it was 17-0 at the half.

THE THIRD QUARTER was a dull affair as both coaches began to substitute liberally. Manning stayed in for the Saints — he played practically the entire game for New Orleans — and Strock did the signal calling for the Dolphins. The only noteworthy events were Giaquinto's first fumble and the punting of Erxleben.

The only score in the fourth quarter was von Schamann's second field goal, set up by a Strock-led drive that covered 74 yards in 12 plays, much of it on the running of Giaquinto who finally remembered to hang onto the football.

Miami's 20th first down came about when Woodley raced 19 yards to the New Orleans 40 with less than two minutes remaining.

THAT'S IT FOR THE PRESEASON.

Now, we can get down to cases and see just which team in the American Football Conference is going to challenge the Pittsburgh Steelers for the AFC championship. From here, it looks like Miami just might do it — if a fullback can be found.

Dolphins

The Miami Dolphins are down to the 45-player limit for the opening of the regular NFL season after waiving fullback Jimmy DuBose, obtained from Tampa Bay last week, second-year fullback Bob Torrey and free-agent linebacker Steve Shull of William and Mary.

Torrey and DuBose apparently became expendable when the Dolphins signed 6-1, 230 fullback Don Testerman, a 10th round draft choice of Miami in 1976. Coach Don Shula reports that the Dolphins continue to scour the NFL trade marts for a big fullback.

Shula announced Monday that Bob Griese would start at quarterback when the Dolphins meet the Bills up in Rich Stadium in Orchard Park, N.Y. at 1 p.m. Sunday, but said that any time that the Dolphin attack bogs down backup quarterback Don Strock will enter the lineup.

Heritage has $3,000 purse in pro-am

Invitations are in the mail to leading area pros for the Heritage Ridge Golf Club Summer Invitational Pro Am Tournament Saturday, Sept. 27, 1980. The event will be contested twice over the first nine holes of the plush executive layout. Pro and amateurs will be testing their skills for a total of $3,000 in purse and prize distribution. The field will be limited to 20 four-man teams to include one pro and three amateurs on each team.

The total purse includes $1,000 added by co-sponsors of the event plus a 1980 Mazda GLC Sedan to be awarded to the contestant who scores the first hole-in-one on the 179 yard par 3 hole.

Entry fee has been established at $25 per person and entries will be accepted on a first-come-first-served basis. The fee will include green fees, cart fees and a Bar-B-Q chicken cook out with refreshments.

In addition Heritage Ridge has acquired movies of the 1976 and 1977 U.S. Opens and the 1979 Masters Golf Tournament to be shown following completion of the event.

Pros will play at scratch and amateurs will be assigned 80 percent of their accredited handicaps. The tournament committee will reserve the reight to assign amateur handicaps.

Graham wins Northport golf

Earl Graham won the A flight with a net score of 60 last week among Northport Men's Golf association players.

Clyde Stottlemeyer was second with a 62.

A 54 won flight B for Charlie Stallings. Jim Vanderhyde had a 58. Bill Swiditsch took flight C with a 55. Jim Hensel had a 58. Flight D was won by Frank Rhein with a 64. Herb Bowen had a 68.

Art Gerhardt was closest to the hole on the eighth hole. Graham was closest on the 14th.

Anglers to meet Monday, Sept. 8

The Martin County Anglers Club is resuming its monthly meetings after a summer layoff and will start next Monday, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Federal Savings and Loan of Martin County building in Jensen Beach.

Following a short business meeting, J. Gallagher of the federal Fish and Wildlife Service will present a film, "Lost in the mangroves".

The meeting is open to the public.

Sandtrap

BY MIKE SANDY

Would you believe.... a fourteen hole course?

Had the distinct pleasure of playing the new Heritage Ridge Country Club course to see for myself just what awaits those who are looking for pleasurable course to play. It was just that, a pleasure round around the nine holes already playable. With both Mrs. Bandy and yours truly, we had three other couples from Sandpiper Bay resort with us. The tag line they had added to Heritage Ridge golf is "For the Young at Heart", and that's just the way we found the course. Not back-breaking, not tiresome, but interesting in every aspect of the game. We believe the design of the course is truly what the trend of golf courses will be in the future.

Bert and Betty McDonnel, Howard and Doris Hickman and the Vernoia's, Rick and Nancy enjoyed every minute and stroke around the nine holes.

The par 66 executive layout is most interesting and while the course doesn't demand long shots, the course puts the emphais on the execution of finessed iron shots. The true test is one of skill and not of strength, which of course met the delight of our women folk and those of us who just don't hit that long ball anymore. We recommend the many in the area and especially those who have retired to the area to give the course a personal test.

One thing is certain, you'll have a lot of fun and will learn that scoring par is not as easy as it might appear to be.

We understand that tested pros have already played the nine and have found it to be one of the most interesting to play and many foresee great interest at Heritage Ridge. The dining area is very comfortable and the food is excellent in its variety.

Frank Cardi, president of the PGA of America believes golf has, in terms of growth, sort of flattened out at the end of 70's. Except in women's and seniors' golf, says Cardi, there has been somewhat of a decline in growth rates. Cardi's interpretation of the golf situation appears to be for the design of future courses such as Heritage Ridge Country Club.

"Except in women's and senior golf," says Cardi, "there has been somewhat of a decline in growth rates. The number of men in the 25 to 50 age group have not increased as rapidly as in the past. This is not unusual in that they are in their prime earning and career building years and what with inflation, the cost of educating children and so on everyone must keep his nose to the grindstone.

"At the same time, it is important that this group get at least a taste of golf so that in their later years they can make it a more consistent pastime. One of golf's greatest attractions has always been that it can be played for a lifetime."

How can the 20-to-50s be given the taste of golf that will eventually bring them to the main course?

"For one thing," says Cardi, "I don't think there is any magic to 18 holes making a round of golf. After all, as golf historians will tell you, 18 was an arbitrary number when it became a rule. In other words, maybe their round of golf should be just 9 holes. Or maybe on a given day they can get away with only 14-15. Now the game would consume less time and the busy executive might be inclined to get out more often."

And maybe somewhere down the line, golf associates might agree to finally cut 18 holes to 14 holes. How about that? If such a thing came to pass, what would happen to the other four holes on existing 18-holers?

"If the geography is right," Cardi speculates, "a club might sell off the land for homesites. Or, build additional outdoor, and even indoor racquet game facilities. These could bring in important income. If the course is in farm country, the land might be leased out for grazing, or turned into Victory Gardens, as some clubs did during World War II. A club could produce some of its own food.

That's a little off the wall, but the basic idea is to find ways to speed up play, and cut the cost of golf for both player's and course operators. We are clearly heading into a time when a certain amount of austerity will be necessary, in all facets of society."

It has been shown often enough throughout history that austerity does not necessarily reduce the quality of life, that it can, indeed, enhance it. As related to golf, Frank Cardi agrees.

"I doubt we'll ever go to a 14-hole course, but let's say new courses built are shorter in length, taking up 100 acres instead of the usual 150. (Fazio's new second course at Jupiter Hills in Florida is only 105 acres.) And existing layouts are also reduced in size, which cuts down on maintenance costs. So long as these shorter courses have character in their architecture, put a premium on accuracy and strategy, the game will lose none of its intrinsic charm and challenge. In fact, it will be more fun to play. There could still be a few holes calling for power, but not as many."

But isn't it an American tradition to go for the homerun instead of the bunt?

"Yes," Cardi responds, "but that is in good part a matter of conditioning. There has been too much emphasis on distance, the kind of power the average golfer can't generate. Everyone close to the game knows that many telecasters, for example, tend to overstate the yardages, inflate tee-shot distance, which promotes a lust for the long ball. We must continue to work with television to stress accuracy in this aspect. There's been some criticism of the new program of issuing statistics weekly from the tour of greens hit in regulation, number of putts, ups and downs from around the greens, and so on, but if television gives these stats more presentation, the "homerun" will become less important in people's minds. Not only will they add interest to tournaments, especially ones that happen to be dull competitively, they can help develop a greater interest in the subtleties of the game, the stuff of which I think golf is really all about.

Here's another thought. One day we might see a reduction in the number of clubs per set, 10 instead of 14. Were that to happen, smaller bags would follow, which might get people back to walking around and carrying their own bag. Now the exercise element is put back into the game, which would make it even more appealing to desk-bound workers. The shorter course is not a new idea, and we have been seeing it, but maybe the time has come to really get serious. Neither is the number of clubs in a set. Herb Graffis has mentioned the idea often over the years. What's more, the late Chick Evans won a lot of big championships playing with what is now considered an abbreviated set."

All the above actually cuts across the entire spectrum of golfers — young and old alike — and speaks to the broader economic picture of the game. If new courses take up less ground, they might be built closer to population centers, which would cut the use of gasoline to get to them. These courses might also be closer to train stations or other public transportation, which could eliminate the automobile altogether. Indeed, we could see, Cardi suggests, a return to inner-city golf courses with new ones built in what are now depressed areas. If not that, at least driving ranges may

It's September and the fishing's getting better

IT'S A LITTLE EARLY to get your piscatorial hopes up too high, but now that that long, hot month of August is behind us, the nights should begin to cool down and trigger better fishing, both saltwater and freshwater.

Things are picking up in the surf where there has been good action on whiting this week, and also to a lesser extent on snook, pompano and croakers. Anglers using Reflecto spoons and yellow bucktail jigs, fishing early in the morning, have been catching snook to 20 lbs. in the surf near the Holiday Inn off A1A just below the Jensen Causeway.

Offshore, king mackerel have been accommodating, as have been bonito and barracuda. There are some schools of very small Spanish mackerel just off the beach from Hobe Sound Beach up to the St. Lucie Inlet, hitting Clarkspoons, diamond jigs and sidewinders. Bottom fishing at Six Mile Reef off the St. Lucie Inlet is average. A good spot for a little offshore action is in 70-80 ft. of water about six miles out, and four miles north of the St. Lucie Inlet.

Bridge fishing is desultory with only occasional bursts of action, like at the Roosevelt Bridge over the weekend when anglers fishing early and late on outgoing tides did exceptionally well on black drum, sheepshead and croakers.

FRESHWATER FISHING for bream and speckled perch is good in the Jensen Savannas, according to guide Earl Castner, but over at Lake Okeechobee, fishing's the pits if (you can believe Frank Dobson at Buckhead Ridge Marina on the north shore of the big lake just west of the Kissimmee River Bridge on SR 78. "They're not doing very much. Fishing has been pretty darned slow. We had a pile of fishermen but very few fish this past weekend. The panfishing is a little better than the bass fishing which is awfully slow. With the moon going down, things have got to improve." —Dobson.

CAPT. MARLIN MOUDY, from the party boat Lady Stuart docking at the Sailfish Marina (286-1660) immediately east of Port Salerno off A1A below Stuart: "We're still getting a lot of kings out on Six Mile Reef about four miles north of the St. Lucie Inlet, in 70-80 ft. of water, fishing with Spanish sardines. Bottom fishing is a little bit on the light side. There are lots of big grouper at Six Mile but they won't bite. It takes live bait fished very carefully. Up until four years ago, the kings were plentiful here because two big schools used to come here to spawn off the St. Lucie Inlet. The netters wiped out both schools and now we have to take what happens by. We got into Spanish mackerel Wednesday, good bait-sized fish. How about this, Dick! Last Wednesday night, we caught several small blues in 60 ft. off the Holiday Inn."

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE, Muriel Weideman: "It wasn't too bad over the weekend. They caught a lot of sheepshead and drum, mostly on outgoing tides early in the morning and late in the afternoon. Roosevelt Blackman from Indiantown caught 12 drum and 10 sheepshead, also several croakers and a whiting, fishing with live shrimp. Lazy Reese got a 5-0 (5 lb.) black bass in the Jensen Savannas and Mike LeBron a 2-8 seatrout jigging from the bridge."

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "I caught 7 grouper to 7-0 on squid and a lot of nice sea bass fishing in 250 ft. of water a little south of the SL Inlet. The current was moving so fast out there that it was almost impossible to fish. We caught a few cudas and bonito on the way out. Bill Sadusky had 10 trout wading and using mirrolures in Herman's Bay; William Artons, a 25-0 snook, frozen shrimp, surf; Conrad White, 4 kings and a cuda, 75-200 ft. N.E. of the SL Inlet; Greg McKay, a 5-6 trout, a flounder and several mangrove snappers, live shrimp, Big Mud Creek; Bill and Carol Devine, 4 pompano to 4-0 and 2 blues, Krocodile spoons (pompano on Krocs?), Normandy Beach; Daniel Gronik, a 30-0 wahoo, a couple of bonito and 29 weakfish north of the House of Refuge in 120 ft.

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Dave Lamb: "I'm still here. Wayne Garber, fishing with Tom Higgins, caught a 22-0 channel bass on a live finger mullet at the Cross Roads; Dave Smid, 4 trout to 6-0, live shrimp, Indian River; Craig Baker, a 9-4 trout, Fred's popper with a teaser; grass flats, N. of the power plant; Jay Shank, 3 trout to 4-0, live shrimp, Little Mud Creek about 3 miles north of the power plant; Jeff Ianeri, 12 and Jorge Varino, 14, three Nassau grouper to 8-0 on live mullet fishing from the dock behind Jensen Bait and Tackle."

BY DICK LUNDIN

ED MEYER of the Rorie, trolling ballyhoo and strip bait in 110-120 ft. of water north of the St. Lucie Inlet, and fishing with Nick Whiting and Joel Burgess, reports that they caught 5 kings to 12 lbs. a bonito and a 20-0 barracuda.

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK IN JENSEN, Tom Stewart: "Trout fishing was much better over the weekend. They're getting fish again. It's a lot better than it was. They're getting small Spanish mackerel from Hobe Sound Beach up to the St. Lucie Inlet in 60 ft. on Clarkspoons and small, yellow sidewinder jigs. There is good snook fishing in the surf at the Holiday Inn; Jack McConnell, 4 snook to 11-0 on Reflecto spoons near the Sheraton Inn; Tom Hargrave, 3 pompano to 1-0, 8 whiting and 4 croakers, cut shrimp and clams, Mud Hole, just S. of the Oceana condo; Ron Webb, 20 whiting, clams, Jensen surf; Lou Smitten, 4 snook, Reflecto spoon, near the SL Inlet below the House of Refuge; Timmy and Paul Brennan and Kevin Helms, 8 sand perch, a spadefish, 3 croakers and 7 mangrove snappers, west catwalk, Frank Wachs Bridge, shrimp and clams; Bill Foster and Rich Richardson, 2 snook and a trout, live shrimp baited on a light stout lead head, Herman's Bay; Jon Mastos, 2 trout, Spinanna lure, behind Snook Nook; Jack Prell, 2 trout to 4-0, a channel bass and 2 mangrove snappers, live shrimp, wading Big Mud Creek; Ray Ditzel and Lou Smitten, 6 trout to 5-0 and 2 mangrove snappers, live shrimp, W. bank at Walton Road "where there are lots and lots of baitfish now;" Oscar Dishman, an 8-0 snook, live shrimp, Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge; Charlie Lauricella and Ed Wagner, 8 trout, touts, N. of power plant on grass flats; Joe Bean, a 6-8 trout, live shrimp, Big Mud; Mike Zipko, an 18-0 snook, Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge, nylure jig.

EARL CASTNER, Jensen guide, reports that bream (bluegill) and speck (black crappie) fishing is "at its best" in the Jensen Savannas and that the bass fishing "is pretty good too."

THAT'S ONE BIG TRIPLETAIL—that John Daly is holding. He caught the 15 lb. 4 oz. fish on a live shrimp while fishing in Big Mud Creek just north of the power plant on Hutchinson Island. You won't see many tripletails this big.

PGA Championship this fall

BY MIKE SANDY

The world's largest all-professional golf championship will be making its debut in Palm Beach County this fall with its finest field since its creation 12 years ago.

Entry deadline for the PGA National Club Professional Championship closed this month and PGA tournament officials report a record-setting, nationwide, qualifying of 1,382.

"This is our largest entry on record by nearly 200," noted PGA President Frank Cardi, who is also golf director at nearby Jonathan's Landing. "And it includes at least 25 club professionals who have been past winners on the PGA tour."

The club professional championship was inaugurated in 1968 and was contested the first two years in Arizona. It moved to California in 1970 and then shifted to Pinehurst Country Club in North Carolina, the next four years. Callaway Gardens Resort in Georgia was the venue from 1975 through 1979, finally coming "home" to PGA National and the PGA of America's brand new headquarters for its 13,000 members and apprentices.

Always important in staging a championship of this magnitude is sponsorship support. "The Club Professional is fortunate to have two sponsors this year — Michelob and Michelob Light and Ram Golf Equipment," Cardi said. "The support of these companies is vital in bringing a championship of this caliber to Palm Beach County."

This year's field includes 17 exempt players competing in the $125,000, 72 hole stroke play event Oct. 23-26. And four of them are past PGA championship winners Julius Boros, Doug Ford, Jerry Barber and Dow Finsterwald who own a total of five major championship crowns.

Ford is also a former Masters champion and Boros is a two-time U.S. open victor. This will be the first Club Professional Championship appearance for both.

The Championship is open to PGA members with full-time club professional positions and who compete in no more than a dozen tour events each year. Qualifying has begun in the PGA 40 geographical sections around the country where the final field will be narrowed to 336 starters.

Plans call for competition over three courses — two at PGA National and the north course at Frenchman's Creek Country Club to the north at A1A and Donald Ross Road. After all players have competed once over all three layouts, the field will be cut to the low 90 scorers and ties for the final round.

Among past winners who hope to qualify for the club professional's most significant tournament are Mike Souchak, DeWitt Weaver, Bert Weaver, Steve Spray, Tom Nieporte, Gary Groh, Bob Menne, Dean Refram, Fred Wampler, Dick Hart, Bill Collins, Ted Kroll, Pete Cooper, Charles Sifford, Tommy Jacobs, Howie Johnson, John Barnum, Bill Garrett, Bill Johnston and Fred Hawkins.

Seven of this year's PGA Cup Match team members are entered. They are Pompano Beach's Roger Kennedy, Jack Lewis, Randy Glover, Terry Florence, Dave Barber, Tom Aycock and Whitten.

The previous entry record was 1,205 and, with traditionally more than 1,000 entries, the Club Professional long has had more professionals sign up for the event than any golf championship in the world. First place is worth $20,000. Additional "day money" of $500 per player goes to low scorers on each of the courses each round.

Sandpiper men in individuals

The Sandpiper men golfers will have "their own" when the scheduled competition is designated as individual, play with the member's vieing against opponents in their own respective handicap flights Thursday. Play will be on the 18 hole championship Saints course.

In Thurday's action labeled Three Best Balls of a Foursome with Stableford scoring, the top team gathered 134 points cumulated by a method which gives four points for an eagle, three for a birdie, two for par and one for a bogey. The winning team included Jim Dacie, John Jeffrey, Ray Rutherford and Clarence Kling.

Only one shot off the winner's pace at 133 points had the combo of Duck Landis, Denny Lang, Dr. Bill Arturo and Bob Klinedinst. Tom Chapman led his group into third place, 122, scoring a low for the day 70, supported by Charlie Skinner, Cal Grasser and John Weish.

Taking down the fourth slot with 121 included Ed Fennell, Harry Kessler, Tom Palmer and Zaty Zagacheski.

Sharing individual scoring honors for the day was Ed Learn who fashioned a 78 to tie with Chapman as Wes La Cour came through with one of his better rounds of the year when he carded 79.

Odd-even for Sandpiper Bay ladies golfers

A "Pack A Partner" Odds and Evens" event was played on the Saints golf course recently with 86 members of the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association participating.

Leading the field with a net 72, was the team of Ann Meer and Fran Heiden while just one stroke back at 73 were the teams of Rose Pedersen and Mary Sears and Mary Wilson and Jerry Bevrosen.

Libby Webster and Alberta Crofoot were third place winners and tied at 75 were Joan Oliver and Ernie Schwarz, Edna Fickinger and Bea Jahn. A 3 way tie existed at 76 between the teams of Larry Martell and Ginny Beckman, Jane Hoffman and Mary Manes, and Jan Werges and Kay Sestil.

Six more teams, Iva D Bouck and Emmy Hofmeister, Bee Miller and Sally Lesher, Dorie Beckman and Elsie Mayes, Marian Cole and Marge Simmons, Donna Cook and Terry Skinker and Lorraine Swift and Mary Kuhn were all deadlocked at net 77.

Sports injury course offered

The Continuing Education Office of Indian River Community College is offering a course in sports injury care. Titled "Sports Injury Seminar", the course will be extremely helpful to all high school and youth league coaches as well as to parents of active young athletes.

The course will be taught by IRCC athletic trainer Glenn Lowenburg. Lowenburg has served as trainer to several northern universities, as well as to the New York Apollos of the American Soccer League.

The course will cover many aspects of sports medicine including the care and treatment of common athletic injuries such as ankle sprains, blisters, muscle strains and heat-related injuries. Class presentations will consist of handouts, slides, and practical demonstrations.

The seminar will be held on Wednesday, September 3, in Room R-102 on the IRCC campus. You may register for the course at the IRCC Guidance Office.

For further information, contact the Guidance office at 464-2000, ext. 323 or Glenn Lowenburg ext. 378.

GORDON MC INTYRE—holds a 21 lb. 4 oz. channel bass (redfish) he caught Tuesday on a 52/0 18 stinger/hare (plug) casting in the surf on dead low tide (10 a.m.) south of the power plant on Hutchinson Island near the Sand Dollar condominiums. McIntyre said it took nearly an hour to bench the big fish, using 18 lb. test line.

Winners in shuffleboard are announced

The members of the Port St. Lucie Shuffleboard Club have completed its annual summer competition of the Round Robin Tournament and the Petticoat League.

Bob Cousineau, chairman of the Round Robin announced the following winners: Ward White, first place; Guyn Haydon, second place; Ruth Dobler, third place; and Al Korner, fourth place.

The winners of the Petticoat League according to Pearl Troutman who assisted chairperson Jean Kinsey, were first place, Ruth Dobler; second place, Mary Marsh; third place, Florence Mayer; and Pearl Troutman, fourth place.

The time and place of a combined luncheon and presentation of the trophies will be announced at the next regular meeting scheduled to be held on Tuesday, September 9, 1:30 p.m. at the North Port Marina.

Sailfish Club issues citations

Isabel M. Lado, Port Salerno, Fla., a 6 ft. 9-in. Sailfish. Richard F. Clarke (age 15) Irvington, N.Y. a 6-ft. 6 in. Sailfish fishing from the "Ronnie" Capt. Ernie A. Lado.

IF THE KING MACKEREL—fishery is being threatened, you'd never guess it by this catch of 37 kings, a 28 lb. gray grouper and 7 bonito caught by this happy group of anglers. They were fishing with Spanish sardines from the party boat Lady Stuart on Sea Mile Reef off the St. Lucie Inlet.

New pro-am record is set at the Sands

Jay Pyle, director of golf at Martin Downs Cross Creek course, moved westward to the Mariner Sands facility in Stuart and fired a two under par 70 to walk off with the top pro prize in a scheduled Pro Am event which attracted 18 "pros" and 54 amateurs.

A foursome with three amateurs from the Stuart area headed by Vero Beach pro Joe Kazna came in for a share of the spotlight when it penned a new Two Best Ball record in pro-ams staged at Mariner Sands this year. Stuart stream purps who contributed to the record tally of 57 under par 127 included Hugh Leighton, Frank DiStefano and Dr. Paul Thomas.

The next Pro Am event will be played at Sandpiper Bay's Saints course Friday, Sept. 5, followed by another at Mariner Sands, Sept. 10.

Sandy Scharlan of Martin County finished second to Pyle with a one under 71 followed by Dave Graham, Sandpiper, 73, and a trio of pros deadlocked at 73 included Bruce Harridon, Sandpiper; Kelly Childs, Mid Rivers CC and Kazna.

Lou Saba and Pyle led their amateur partners to second place pro-am ties at 22 under par with these amateur partners respectively — Dave Nagay, Armand Mastrodonardo, Bob Boland, Bill Mangold and the father-son combo of Doug and Don Compton.

The other in-the-money team led by Childs included Cam Harlan, Lou Meriano and Dave Larsen.

GO
GO FOR THE GREEN

As Publix continues to celebrate its 50th Anniversary, we're spotlighting the 1970's, a decade in which Florida's population swelled to nearly seven million. That's a lot of people and a lot of groceries! But just as in our first little store in Winter Haven 50 years ago, our huge supermarkets today maintain the personal touch and extra attention that make shopping at Publix just a little bit special.

LET'S BE HONEST

If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women, who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little bit of hard work for their financial independence and security. To these people, our expanding multi-million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our prompt advance commission system. This is a dignified sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call

Night classes starting at Martin High

Adult and Community Education of Martin County Schools is opening several vocational classes at Martin County High School starting the first week of September. All classes will be meeting at 6:45 p.m. with registration taken at the first class meeting. There will be a registration fee of $5.00 for these classes.

On Wednesday, September 3rd, classes starting are MARINE ENGINE REPAIR meeting in Room 69. This beginner class will be instructed on the outboard engine from the flywheel to the prop, fuel systems, ignition systems, electrical systems, lower units, fuels, lubricants, power systems and cooling systems. Also meeting on Wednesdays in Room 120 is BEGINNING TYPING. This course offers instructional emphasis on keyboarding; the preparation of correspondence and business reports; processing of business forms, keyboard dictation, and statistical typing. CUSTOM DRESSMAKING, meeting in room 140, is designed for students who have completed basic clothing construction. This course provides students with the opportunity to express creativity through specialty sewing, utilizing a variety of fabrics and related materials. Classes starting on Thursday, September 4th are A B C STENOSCRIPT, meeting in room 138. This class is often referred to as speedwriting and is designed for beginning students as an alternative to shorthand. There will be an ADVANCED SEWING class meeting in room 140 designed for students who have completed basic and intermediate clothing construction. Instruction will be on making pattern alterations for problem figures, dealing with difficult fabrics and working with advanced techniques and details.

On Monday, September 8th, classes are: ADVANCED MARINE ENGINE REPAIR meeting in room 69, and designed for students who have already completed the basic marine engine repair course. Students will become involved in diagnosis and repair of outboard engines and stern drives with approximately 75 percent of the course on hands on work stations activities. AUTO MAINTENANCE, meeting in room 69, is offering students the opportunity to learn the basics of auto mechanics and to obtain some "hands on" shop experience in trouble shooting minor problems and general repair and maintenance of their automobiles. BOOKKEEPING will meet in room 123-A, with indepth components in bookkeeping, clerical office practice and business mathematics. This class is open to both beginners and intermediate students.

On Tuesdays, starting September 9th, classes beginning are SMALL GAS ENGINE REPAIR meeting in room 88, offering classroom and laboratory experiences concerned with maintaining and repairing a variety of small engines used on portable power equipment such as lawnmowers, outboard motors, generators, pumps, chain saws, and rotary tillers. Instruction includes principles of internal combustion engine operation and reading of technical manuals. The WOODSHOP students, meeting in room 68, will learn how to work with wood using the table saw, radial arm saw, hand saw, scroll saw, planers, jointers and lathes.

INTERMEDIATE TYPING meeting in room 138 will stress preparation of multicopy correspondence with emphasis including government documents, the billing cycle, publications preparation, proof-reading and duplicating. BASIC SEWING will meet in room 140. This class is designed for students who have limited skills in clothing construction. This course includes pattern selection, body measurements, simple alterations, fabric selection and preparation and will include instruction on stretch and sew. G.E.D. REVIEW classes for sixteen and seventeen year old students will be starting September 3rd in room 83. Classes will be held Monday through Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. Students entering this class must meet with the Director of Adult Education to preregister. For further information on these classes or other classes offered by Adult and Community Education please call 287-8480 extension 138 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Health care aide training program

A new health care aide course will be offered at the Stuart Community Education Center beginning at 6:30 p.m. on September 15th. The course is designed to train aides to provide assistance in the home for persons unable to care for themselves. Upon completion of 60 hours of instruction, covering nutrition, personal care of patients and working in the home environment, students will be awarded a certificate qualifying them to work as a home health care aide. This program is being offered as a cooperative venture between the Martin County Visiting Nurses Association and the Adult and Community Education Department of the Martin County Schools.

Since the class is limited to 12 students, interested students should pre-register at the Center, located on the Stuart Middle School campus, Monday thru Thursday between 8 and 8 p.m. The fee for this course is $5.00. For more information please call Dick Sievinen at 287-4113.

IRCC women's fall schedule

The Women's Program at Indian River Community College wants to make a point. With classes offered this Fall in such timely and beneficial areas as "Stress Management", "Coping with Separation and Divorce", "Consumer Know-How Seminar", "Assertiveness Communication", "Writing for Fun and Profit", "Health Care Seminar", and "Improving Family Relations", the Women's Program wants to point out that it is not for women only.

The program offers classes for all who want to come to grips with themselves and the complexities of the world in which we live. There are classes to help you succeed in your work, make the most of yourself, and get along better with others – in short, the IRCC Women's Program will show you how to become someone you can really like.

First off, "Assertiveness Communication" will be offered on the Main Campus in Room R115 each Thursday from 8 to 10:30 p.m. beginning September 4. Body language, self-awareness, anxiety, and relaxation techniques are included.

Beginning September 10, "Coping with Separation and Divorce" will deal with the emotional and social aspects of divorce. To meet each Wednesday from 8 to 10:30 p.m. in Room R115 on the Main Campus, the class will emphasize group support, values, and coping. Cost of this eight-week institutional credit class is $9.

"New Directions" classes are scheduled for the Main Campus and Stuart Site both during the day and evening this Fall. This non-credit, $5 course focuses on solutions to the special problems people must face when making changes in their lives. Values, decisions, interests, job search skills, goals, and group support are only some of the areas covered in "New Directions". On the Main Campus, the class will meet from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Monday through Friday from 9-15 to 9-26 in Room R115, and classes are scheduled in Stuart from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Monday through Friday between 9-15 and 9-26. At night, "New Directions" will meet in Stuart Monday through Thursday from 8 to 10:40 p.m. beginning 9-29. Dates and times for the night classes on the Main Campus will be announced later.

A seminar on "Consumer Know-How" will be conducted in Stuart on September 27 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. by author and consumer specialist Shirley Wagenge. Participants will be informed of their rights as consumers in Florida and of ways to get the most value for their dollars. The $4 fee will include lunch, and registration must be completed by September 19.

Editor named to SBA board

Richard E. Campbell, editor of The Mirror Newspapers, Inc., has been named to a third term as a member of the Region Four (South Florida/Miami Advisory Council of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

The term lasts from 1988 through 1991. The appointment was made by A. Vernon Weaver, administrator of the Small Business Administration in Washington, D.C. Weaver cited the SBA as "the only agency of the government created specifically to assist small business and refers heavily on the dedication and enthusiasm of the members serving on the Advisory Council."

Weaver added, "I want to thank you for your participation and service and look forward to your continued contributions and support."

Navitsky in runoff, Crandall reelected

Haynes, King, Boswell win primary election

Alex Haynes, Sherri King and Pamela Boswell emerged as winners in county commission primary races Tuesday, while it appears that incumbent V. James Navitsky will be in a runoff for the school superintendent post.

In the District One (Jensen-Rio-Hutchinson Island) county commission Republican primary, Haynes racked up a 3,903 to 2,893 vote lead over James Rowe. Haynes will now face incumbent Democrat Frank Wacha in the Nov. 4 general election.

Challenger Sherri King outpolled incumbent Republican Lavon "Bud" Bagwell by 2657 to 2112 in the GOP primary for the District Three (South county) commission seat.

King must now face Democrat Rex Andrews, who narrowly lost to Bagwell two years ago, in the Nov. 4 general election.

In the District Five (West county) Republican primary, A.H. Pitchford lost to Pamela Boswell by a 3045 to 2264 total. Boswell will now face Democrat incumbent John Holt in the Nov. 4 general election.

A total of 1089 absentee ballots were issued by the Supervisor of Elections in Martin County, but as the absentee ballot trends generally follow those of election day voting, it does not appear likely any of the above results will change. However, the absentee ballots could be the deciding factor in determining who will face Navitsky in the Oct. 7 Republican runoff election.

Navitsky acked up 2,286 votes to 1,808 for Hazel Watts and 1,572 for Wayne Bowling. As Navitsky did not get a majority of the votes cast, he will face either Watts or Bowling in October, then the winner of that race will face Democrat Clifford Lynch in the general election.

In the non-partisan race incumbent David Crandall was easily reelected by totaling 4,013 votes to 2,513 for Rosemary Dressler.

Statewide results for the Democratic senate contest were not complete as of press time.

In the Republican primary race for U.S. Senate, Paula Hawkins came out on top with 2,353 votes to 1,697 for Lou Frey. Ander Crenshaw received 710 votes, Ellis Rubin got 194, John Ware received 112 and Lewis Dinkins received 100 votes in the senate race. Again, statewide results were not complete for the Republican senate contest.

In a breakdown of the Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island and Sewall's Point area precints vote counts, here is the way the votes were cast for local races:

Precinct Two, North River Shores: Haynes, 273, Rowe, 150, Bagwell, 181, King, 225, Boswell, 253, Pitchford, 168, Crandall, 153, Dressler, 301, Bowling, 113, Watts, 132, Navitsky, 205.

Precinct 10, Sewall's Point: Haynes, 99, Rowe, 115, Bagwell, 92, King, 116, Boswell, 109, Pitchford, 102, Crandall, 184, Dressler, 79, Bowling, 70, Watts, 50 Navitsky, 103.

Local sea turtle project to be on tv Sunday

The coming Sunday, Jensen Beach will be on prime-time national television.

Earlier this summer an ABC film crew came to the area to film sea turtles for use as a segment in "Those Amazing Animals", an ABC network program that airs from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sundays.

According to Ross Witham, head of a state Department of Natural Resources sea turtle research project, the film footage on the sea turtles will be shown during this Sunday's program.

While here the film crew shot footage of giant sea turtles nesting on local beaches, as well as footage of Witham and assistant Lou Fallon as they measured and tagged young sea turtles at the House of Refuge. Other scenes shot showed a release of year-old turtles, as well as the struggle of newly hatched turtles to crawl out of their nest. The latter scene was a reconstruction of the natural process, done in a glass-walled fish tank.

Witham and Fallon gather the eggs of green sea turtles from nests on local beaches and place them in protected sand containers until they hatch. They raise the turtles in large tanks at the House of Refuge museum on Hutchinson Island until they are about a year old. Then they measure and tag them with aluminum tags before they release them into the ocean. The keeping of the turtles for a year is believed to greatly increase their chances of survival.

Witham is noted as a pioneer in the sea turtle research field and has written several highly-acclaimed papers on his work.

The producer of the ABC show is Karin Howard, and narrators for "Those Amazing Animals" are Burgess Meridith, Jim Stafford and Priscilla Presley.

The local ABC station is Channel 12.

Witham said that ABC officials called him recently to ask a question about the footage they had shot and while he was talking to him they said the turtle segment had been moved up to this Sunday.

Witham said it appears that the footage to be shown should include sea turtles laying eggs, hatching, discussion of the turtles' problems with light discrientation, as well as scenes of tagging and releasing turtles. However, he added, "They were here three days and shot a lot of film and it's all subject to editing."

Witham said the actors strike apparently did not affect the show, which premiered on August 24.

Island would be breached

BY DICK CAMPBELL

If a class three or four hurricane hit Hutchinson Island, the island is expected to be breached at three points by the ocean surge that would be ten to fifteen feet high, according to Bill O'Brien, director of Martin County Civil Defense.

O'Brien spoke to a gathering of Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce members at the monthly forum, held at Indian River Plantation on Tuesday morning.

A half hour slide show described the various types of hurricanes. Pictures of devastation created by dangerous hurricanes were shown, with closeups of before and after scenes on coastlines hit by the hurricanes.

In a question and answer period following the film, O'Brien said that Hurricane David, which traveled up the coast through Jensen Beach and Fort St. Lucie, was a class two hurricane, termed a "minimal category hurricane."

O'Brien said that if a hurricane threatens the area, residents of Hutchinson Island should leave the island when a hurricane "watch" is announced.

Persons on the Martin County side would evacuate across the two causeways. Persons living on the southern end of St. Lucie County's portion of the island would be allowed to move across the causeway, but would be turned north into St. Lucie County if they were pulling a travel trailer. This is to lessen congestion on local roads.

If the storm surge is from 10 to 15 feet high, O'Brien said Hutchinson Island would become three islands, with the surge taking away the island in narrow places.

In discussion, O'Brien defended the failure of the Miami Hurricane Center failure to communicate the approach of the storm to Martin County. He said that the Center had the information, but the media pool did not get the information out.

Fred Nettare, owner of WRIT, the sponsor of the forum, said he had complained to the Miami Center about the lack of information on the approach of the storm. Nettare said he and another member of WRIT had driven to the storm to find the eye in Vero, found no better report on the approach.

Efforts to place a Hurricane Center at West Palm Beach seem to be getting nowhere, according to O'Brien, who said, "I can't imagine what is holding it up." Such a center would keep this area better informed of the approach due to the fact that radar is only truly effective in locating the eye of the storm within 50 miles.

O'Brien said that if people evacuate low lying areas when the "watch" is announced, the traffic wouldn't be as heavy as when the actual "alert" is sounded.

Local clubs and organizations are being urged to schedule the hurricane presentation. They can set a date for a showing by calling O'Brien at Civil Defense, 287-1652.

Chamber plans a Friday social

The event is set for 5 to 7 p.m. at the riverfront lounge, according to Marg Paris and Barbara Terow, co-chairmen of the event.

"We feel that the Chamber members should have a chance to get together and have some fun, and Friday is the traditional day of the week when we relax from a week of hard work," said Ms. Terow.

The event will be sponsored by the Chamber, and there will be entertainment, snacks and drinks.

Dennis Doyle, Chamber executive director, said, "We want to offer the members the opportunity to get together and have some fun on occasion. This is the first of what we hope to be a series of planned social events to bring our members together to visit and exchange ideas."

Beach widening project gets a mixed reaction here

BY BOB FRYER

A U.S. Corps of Engineers plan to widen Jensen and Stuart public beaches met with a mixed reaction during a public hearing on the matter Monday night.

Though most persons who spoke at the hearing seemed to have no objection to widening the beaches, many voiced concern over proposed 400-foot-long breakwater structures off the two beaches, saying they felt the breakwaters may do more harm than good.

Additionally, several persons expressed dismay that the Corps did not plan to add fill to other beaches in the county.

In the early 1970s, a massive fund drive, involving thousands of local residents, was conducted to buy 100-foot-wide beach access strips at half mile intervals along the Martin County portion of Hutchinson Island. At the time of the Save Our Beaches fund drive, SOB organizers were under the impression that the purchase of access strips at half mile intervals would mean the county could qualify for a Corps beach renourishment program for the entire length of Hutchinson Island within county limits.

But Monday night, Corps Lt. Col. James Waterston said the cost-benefit ratio for beach renourishment was not sufficient for federal funding except at the Jensen and Stuart public beaches. He said that the purchase of access strips may "have set the stage for future work" but said he could make "no promises" as to when the if other beach areas would qualify for a Corps renourishment program.

The Corps conducted an erosion control study for Martin County beaches and on Monday Waterston outlined six alternative plans for combatting erosion. However, only one of those plans had a cost-benefit ratio high enough to qualify for federal funding. That plan calls for pumping about 550,000 cubic yards of sand from areas 3,000 feet offshore onto the two public beaches. This would widen a 4,100 foot stretch of beach at Jensen and a 3,800 foot stretch at Stuart beach. When completed, it would mean those beaches would be about 90 to 150 feet wide, depending on tide conditions.

About 500 feet offshore at both beaches, a 400-foot-long granite breakwater would be built. Corps official Andy Hobbs said this would help keep the sand pumped onto the beaches in place, but he added that about 14,000 cubic yards of sand would erode each year and that there would have to be periodic renourishment of the beaches.

The total initial cost of the project, at today's prices, is $6,062,000. The federal government would pay for all but $2,597,000, which would have to come from county and perhaps state funds. And, local funding of $21,100 per year would be required to maintain the breakwater structures.

Dr. Walter Stokes, co-chairman of the SOB executive committee, pointed out that by providing beach access strips every half mile, there is widespread public use of the beaches all along the island. He noted that the "bathtub" area near the south end of the island is one that gets a lot of public use, as on any given day there are scores of cars parked in the area and that in most cases "these cars carry three to six persons, because it is such a good place for families to enjoy the beach." He also said many of the access strips are used by fishermen and surfers who would not mix well at the Jensen and Stuart beaches where swimming is predominant. "Could you change your mind on the eligibility for federal funding (to renourish additional beaches)" he asked.

Waterston replied, "No."

Ed Gluckler of the Martin County Taxpayers Association cited comments made by Corps officials about the funding prospects for a beach renourishment project when the SOB group was organizing the fund drive. The comment cited implied that federal funding would be forthcoming if access strips were provided at half mile intervals. But Hobbs said that although half mile beach access intervals are desirable, they don't automatically mean federal funds will be forthcoming.

Waterston said that when there is more public use of the beaches in the future, the work of the SOB group may have set the stage for eventual federal funding of a project to renourish those beaches.

After several persons expressed concern that the breakwaters may create more erosion than they prevent, Hobbs said the breakwaters showed a marginal cost-benefit ratio and may be dropped from the project.

County Commission Chairwoman Maggy Hurchalla said if the breakwaters were only a part of the project as "a bureaucratic anomalie" to help get project funding and not because they would provide greater effectiveness, "then please don't give us breakwaters."

Hurchalla added that as a personal comment, and not speaking on behalf of the county commission, she felt, "It's a ridiculous amount of money to spend for the cost benefits. You could go out and buy 30 beach access strips for that (the $2.5 non-federal funding share)."

Local residents Warner Wacha and Mark Perry, as well as several local lifeguards, said they felt the breakwaters could lead to increased erosion to areas on the sides of the beach renourishment projects.

Ross Witham, who conducts sea turtle research in the area for the state Department of Natural Resources, expressed concern that the sand pumped onto the beaches may be too hard for sea turtle nests in. He asked that the sand to be pumped onto the beaches be analyzed to insure it would be suitable for turtle nesting.

If the proposed project is to become a reality, the county commission must first make a commitment to support the project and to provide local funding for it.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha was asked if he felt the project was worth the funds the county would have to come up with. He said he would need more information on how much money the county could obtain from the state before making a decision.

Jensen women volunteer time, service, talents

IT'S CHRISTMAS IN SEPTEMBER—for the ladies of the Fellowship Group for Community Service. They're busy preparing for the holidays by making Christmas ornaments to go on the tree as well as gifts to go under it.

The old saying "many hands make light work" directly applies to the women of the All Saints Episcopal Church in Jensen Beach.

Every first and third Wednesday, from 10 am to 2 pm, women from the area gather to make crafts for various causes. Called the Fellowship Group for Community Service, their goal is to provide for a much needed demand from convalescent centers, hospitals, and needy children.

Providing for the pleasant, but sometimes overlooked things in life, the women sew bedjackets for the bedridden, gingham dolls for the children, and Christmas tree ornaments for those too poor to afford them otherwise.

The many ideas used throughout the year are brought with the women who donate their time and services. One lady decided that perfect bedjackets could be sewn from old, men's shirts, while another found a way to make quilted lap robes.

The ideas not only come from the experienced, but also from those unlamaner was craftwork. Imagination is the key. Watching the 'women work is like going back to the day when quilting bees were the order of the time. Refreshments are served, talk is light, and hands are busy. Many members bring friends who come to not only enjoy the company, but to take part in a valuable community service.

Currently, members are preparing for the annual bazaar. The two day event will be held Nov. 14 and 15 from 10 am to 3 pm. In addition to the craftwork displayed, a bake sale will be held and a surprise table put forth from the Youth Group.

Any interested persons wanting to help should contact Sylvia Kessler at 334-6850.

DISPLAYED—on the table is a Christmas table cloth made by the Episcopal Church volunteers. It represents many long hours of work and patience, but it is guaranteed to bring a smile to any face, young or old, that looks at the holiday scenes.

ALICE BARNWELL—stands behind pillows, stuffed animals and flowers all made for various causes through the All Saints Episcopal Church in Jensen Beach. In addition to the above display, bedjackets are made for the sick out of old, men's shirts. (Photo by Peg Manasser)

LADIES—of the All Saints Episcopal Church are stitching together fabrics in order to make bedpads. Refreshments are served for the get-togethers, and the ladies all enjoy laughing and chatting with friends while they do a service to the community.

Oktoberfest will be Sept. 27

The seventh annual Oktoberfest of the German community will take place at 6 p.m. on the picnic grounds and Dunlap Hall of the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

"Gemutlichkeit" will be the theme for the afternoon of games and the evening of singing and dancing to the music of the Bavarian Alpine Band of Palm Beach, according to Joe Freitag and Mrs. Peggy Krauss, co-chairpersons of the event.

Outdoor games will include horseshoe pitching, darts, bocci, and badminton. Free soda and beer will be served on the outdoor patio.

Supper will be served starting at 6 p.m. in the lounge and Landin Hall of the center. Bratwurst, leberkase, a German meatloaf delicacy, sauerkraut and potato salad will be served under the guidance of the Ladies Auxiliary. Free soda and beer will also be served.

The Alpenglub Dancers, members of the club, will perform during intermission of the dancing to the music of the Bavarian Alpine Band.

Tickets may be purchased by calling any of the following committee members: Karl Bechtel, 878-0102; Peggy Krauss, 334-8274; Willy Degenhardt, 879-9605; Hans Dpetle, 287-4702 and Joe Freitag, 220-1444.

DISASTER—Members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce listened intently as Bill O'Brien, director of Civil Defense for Martin County, made a slide show presentation on hurricane preparedness. The presentation was made at Indian River Plantation for the monthly Chamber forum. Host for the event was Radio Station WRIT.

Clubs should show CD film

The dangers of a hurricane are clearly outlined in the Civil Defense slide show recently presented to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, and The Mirror urges all local clubs and organizations to see the show.

Civil Defense Director Bill O'Brien urged all chamber members to seek out clubs, organizations, condominium associations and mobile home parks to contact Civil Defense to schedule the show for a meeting so that all residents are aware of the dangers of a hurricane, and receive information on what to do when a storm threatens.

For information on scheduling, call Civil Defense, 287-1652.

Learn about life in the sea

If you have ever wondered about the exotic marine animals you see swimming around, crawling over or attached to the local rocks, reefs and beaches, you can learn about them in a 10-week evening course offered by the Jensen Beach Community Education Center starting Monday, September 29.

How to Know the Sea Animals is the name of the course. It will be taught by Gary Pettit, head of the biology department of Florida Institute of Technology's Jensen Beach campus. He will offer the course at the Environmental Studies on 10 consecutive Monday nights from 7:30 to 10. The class will also include two three-hour weekend field trips.

There is a $5 registration fee. Further information or advance registration can be obtained by calling Jay Jarrett, Coordinator at 334-1383.

Bowling league

The Carroll Insurance Classic League bowling Friday, Sept. 5th at 6:45 p.m. in Jensen Lanes, Jensen Beach.

This bush average scratch league sponsored by the Rick Carroll Insurance group will have the best bowlers in the area competing for the largest prize fund ever in Martin County.

This unique league with an unusual format will have three champions as the league will be run over a 36 week period and will be divided into three twelve week sections.

If the same team wins all three sections they could win up to $3600 on the other hand a team could be in last place for 24 weeks and still wind up winning $1500.

Spectators are welcome to come watch this exciting league bowl. Seats are free however early arrival is suggested to insure a good spot.

"Our most valuable asset is not listed in our statement of condition" ...

Dennis S. Hudson, Jr.,
Chairman, First National Bank
and Trust Company of Stuart.

At First National, we believe there is a lot more to banking than keeping track of columns of figures and dollar signs. We are totally committed to being responsive to the needs of the people of Martin County and our surrounding communities. That word "totally" is what makes us different from most other financial institutions in the area.

A new trend . . . Here and across the country, large holding companies are acquiring independent community banks. By nature, these holding companies are diversified with interests in many areas outside of the local communities.

First National is different. We are an independent bank, home owned and totally committed to the people of our local communities. A local bank serving local needs. Our resources stay here to support the financial requirements of our communities.

Local doesn't mean small . . . More than two hundred local residents are employed at our four offices. We have five electronic banking machines to serve your banking needs 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Our current assets exceed $150,000,000 with trust assets in excess of $100,000,000.

Our size, growth and progressiveness is impressive, but our most valuable asset is people. The people of our local communities whom we are dedicated to serve. Totally dedicated.

We renew this commitment in print to thank you for your continued patronage and support of local enterprise.

Dennis S. Hudson, Jr.

Look to the north, and look to the south

This is being written before the county commission primary election on Tuesday. The primary has indicated the direction of the general election, and The Mirror feels that the direction just might be an appeal to emotion, rather than an appeal for a sound approach to Martin County's problems.

Thus far, the candidates have generalized on what the county has needed. They have pointed to traffic problems, to the need for a comprehensive plan, and have fought over whether they are conservationists or not.

It has been a childish campaign, directed by well-meaning people, but bereft with the glittering generalities that provide emotional response, not substance.

For someone to say that he or she will offer an immediate passage of a comprehensive plan is foolish, but sounds good to the people who would like to see a proper plan passed. To propose an immediate passage of the Martin County plan, without tying the various components of the plan together, is sheer lunacy.

How is it possible to have a land-use element of the plan without knowing what the transportation element is going to be. How can someone use land without a road plan?

By the same token, where is the water coming from to service the people who are going to live on that land?

A comprehensive plan is useless without all the component parts fitting together.

At issue in this election is the passage of the plan for Martin Downs in Palm City. There has never been a more compromising development in the county's history. However, the accepted plan is attacked because it is a plan.

No one attacks the hundreds of single home developers throughout the county who build a home and sell it; only the large scale developers who spend top dollars on a plan to properly utilize their investment. Somewhere there has to be honest equity between large and small.

Traffic is another matter. All candidates attack the problems of congested traffic, most subliminally referring to the traffic tie-ups on East Ocean Boulevard, a problem created by the City of Stuart, dumping hundreds of condominiums and professional buildings and shopping centers along the two-lane road without the proper traffic planning and road-lane expansion.

In most cases, the county commission has tried to resolve many of the traffic problems, but found the Florida Department of Transportation a major stumbling block to such a resolution. The DOT has held up the solution of the intersections of A-1-A and the Jensen Causeway road on Hutchinson Island, the same intersection to the west at Poor Restaurant, Indian River Drive and Alternate A-1-A.

The airport by-pass road has been held up by the DOT. We are just getting the letting of the intersection of U.S. 1 and Commercial Street by the DOT — something that should have been done several years ago at that death-producing intersection.

The county commission has been able to do little about the reluctance of the DOT to help solve the problems of Martin County.

Let the candidates address those issues, rather than the emotional protestations that are nothing more than cat-call generalities that mean nothing.

If there is to be equity in the candidacies of the men and women who challenge incumbents, let them address the issues, not the emotions.

One need look only to the north and south to see what Martin County might have been. Drive along A-1-A to the north, and see urban sprawl strewn along the highway once past the Martin County line, with high rises dominating the skyline, thousands of mobile homes and travel trailers dumped into the most inaccessible area to health and safety patrols of St. Lucie County where fire and ambulance depends upon Martin County volunteer forces and where police protection takes a half-hour response after 6 p.m.

Look to the south, where Jupiter Island's tranquil beauty turns into high rises at the Palm Beach County line where land use and urban sprawl makes a mockery of the beautiful Loxahatchee River estuary.

Martin County has problems, but not the problems of less cautious neighbors.

Candidates in this general election coming up in November have the responsibility of addressing issues, not emotions, in the election. It is a time for solutions to the problems, not just a restating of the problems.

Sunday morning coming down

It's Sunday morning.

I can see boaters out on the river, some of them off for a fine spin, others settled in for an afternoon of fishing. Or baking. Or just plain lazing.

The sun is beaming down as ever present beams, reflectant to make way for the turn of the season. The calendar has no effect on the sun, who owns the [illegible]. It is hot.

But the heat holds the hush of Sunday morning. The whole world is a church, worshiping and standing in awe of God. I ask myself why I am not in church. I give the weak answer that "I've been sick." So have scores of His children all of whom answered His call to Follow Me, and they were cured or at least comforted.

But the world is a church, on Sunday morning. A state of mind, a time of prayer. It belongs to the humble at heart, the loving, the caring, the sharing.

It is a time to think of your neighbors, of those dear ones far away, or the stranger at your door, seeking your help.

Sunday morning is for prayer. There is so much prayer on Sunday morning that one wonders how He can hear it all, much less answer it. But then we remember He is Omniscient — all knowing — and all caring.

Sunday morning is a time for removing. All those things I've left undone during the past week have large and ugly — the letters I've failed to answer, the telephone calls I didn't make all weigh heavy on my heart. I put them before the Lord and he gives me another chance.

Yes, Sunday morning is a chapel. I will try to heed the message it brings.

Sunday's a time of getting acquainted with yourself. All week long we let the trivial of daily living clutter up our lives — the little errands that must be run, the deeds which must be made to keep the business running smoothly, the contacts of daily life which are all in good and so necessary. But come Sunday, the thrash and furor of daily living can wait — can make way for the relaxing, trusting alternative of prayer.

Prayer comes easiest to me in poetry:

Thank you God for azure sky
That lets the banks of clouds pass by
I thank you for the gentle waters
A transport for your sons and daughters
A thanks for pelican and tern
Whose deuces we'd so love to learn
For wafting breezes to kiss my cheek brow
For gentle showers then and now
I thank thee for the dancing palm
Which hulas even when it's calm
Above all, Lord, thy healing glove,
I thank thee for the gift of love.

A potpourri of things

A half hour before the first cooking show, it happened. I had put on a suit I never wear, a light blue pinstripe that looks like seersucker. I put it on because I was down to 195, as it had always fit tight on me at 200.

Well, I bent over to set up the electric line to the stage, and heard the sound rrrrippppppf. The seat split from bottom to almost top.

I immediately got the jacket and put it on. The jacket didn't even cover the bottom of the pants, and I didn't know where to turn) or if I should turn at all.

I went into the office and asked if someone had a needle and thread. The secretary did, and offered to sew the split up.

There was I, standing in a closet, with louvered doors, talking with her, asking her to hurry up, when the postman walked in.

"My, a talking closet," he said.

She was a sweetheart, and thirty seconds before the show the pants were sewn and I was out there on stage.

The chefs from Lory's Landing in Stuart were nice guys. After all, when we write in the newspaper that they are from another restaurant, it could have been a sticky situation. I apologized.

I haven't been really right since Salli went north for a week. A Big Mac doesn't replace a pot roast. These things happen.

However, they happen to others. The chef from Sandpiper produced a fantastic dinner, and was getting to the coup de gras, a beautiful dessert called "Bananas Foster."

"We forgot the bananas," laughed Wesson Anderson. Showing the pro in real professionals. Chef Hal Mason produced what he called a "Prince Heinrich" topping for dessert, which could be made with any fruit sauce and any fresh fruit. No one knew the bananas were forgotten. "Use any fruit," Mason said.

Then, we came to the two chefs from Lory's Landing. As they prepared the fait accomph for their dessert, a filling for the beautiful strawberry puffs, chef Mike O'Steen said, "We put in the eggs, and now the sugar, and " he looked around. They had forgotten the flour.

Without a moment's pause, O'Steen said, "Then you add flour. We don't have it here, but after stirring and chilling it comes out like this." He then pulled the finished filling out of the refrigerator and completed the dessert.

It happened so smoothly no one knew the flour was forgotten.

The mirror over the table was another matter. It is fixed for straight ahead, and the people sitting off to the side cannot see the preparations on the table. The mirror does tilt, but when it is down, the people in the front can't see, and when it is up, the people in the back can't see.

After fighting lyres of "Up" and "Down" for awhile, the chefs finally got it in the middle and just went ahead with the presentations.

One of the toughest parts of the show was when a chef finished a steak, flaming peppercorn steak. It was a masterpiece. However, I had not told him that one does not offer a small portion (two steaks) to 420 hungry men and women. He turned with all pride, to the audience, and said, "Would you like to try some?"

He cut the steak in about twelve small pieces, and handed the platter to me. I felt like the Christian tossed into the arena with the lions.

After fifteen years of cooking shows, however, I must say that I learned how to handle it with grace. I just ignore all the calls of "Here, here," and "Start at the back," and "Go down this aisle," and the looks of sheer anger and contempt from people who are not sitting on aisle seats.

I look straight ahead, give out as much as I have, as far as it goes, and beat a hasty retreat back to the sanctuary of the cast area.

"It's a jungle out there," I said, sweat forming on my forehead.

Later, when they made the ice cream dish, I yelled up on the stage, "Please, put them in the freezer."

There were problems with the "hall."

At the Community Center in Port St. Lucie, they had the limit of 300 seats set up. By showtime, we had to run around getting chairs, stealing them from the Bingo room, offices, any where we could get them. It got so bad that we moved the Publix Deli and Danish Bakery items back so that people could sit on the tables against the back wall.

We had 420 in the meeting room, and Hesse had to turn about 50 cars filled with people away because of the crowd. The room was packed.

At Jensen, the week before the show, First Federal sprung a leak in the roof, including the Ladies John. We had an "out of order" sign on it, and I had to announce a unisexual John, unless they wanted to go down stairs.

Despite all the little problems, it was a great show. Thanks to Publix Super Markets, and their great staff from the Publix Deli and Danish Bakery, S&H Green Stamps and Pat Geddes, and the great chefs; Wesson Anderson and Hal Mason of Sandpiper Bay, Mike O'Steen and Pineapple Yangoree of Lory's Landing, and Nick Medalis of Hilltop House.

Bob Fryer

Can I quote you?

"A lie can travel half way around the world while the truth is putting on its shoes."

That's a quote from Mark Twain, one of America's best liars.

I found it in a book called "Peter's Quotations" by Lawrence J. Peter, the fellow who also wrote "The Peter Principal".

It's a great book, with loads of quotes I wish I'd thought of before anyone else did.

Unlike "Bartlett's Quotations", the standard source of famous quotes, "Peter's Quotations" has lots of modern-day ones in it.

I wish I had discovered the book long ago, as it would have made column writing easier.

It is full of good stuff to steal, and had I had it sooner, I could have tossed out some clever quotes to liven up my columns.

So, I figure the only proper thing to do, to make up for all those lost opportunities, is to give you a whole column full of quotations from Peter now.

These are some of my favorite ones:

"George Washington, as a boy, was ignorant of the commonest accomplishments of youth. He could not tell a lie." Mark Twain — again.

"When choosing between two evils, I always like to try the one I've never tried before." Mae West.

"Two liars are company, three are a crowd, and four or more a chamber of commerce." Peter J. Lawrence.

On Marriage, there are several good quotes in the book. For instance:

"Why does a woman work ten years to change a man's habits and then complain that he's not the man she married." Barbara Streisand.

"A man in love is incomplete until he has married. Then he's finished." Zsa Zsa Gabor.

"Of course there is such a thing as love, or there wouldn't be so many divorces." Ed Howe.

On the subject of neighbors, most everyone has heard Robert Frost's quote, "Good fences make good neighbors."

He had no corner on the market, though. From Franklin P. Jones, we have, "Nothing makes you more tolerant of a neighbor's noisy party than being there."

If you're feeling down, or downtrodden, it might be wise to heed these words from Eleanor Roosevelt, "Remember, no one can make you feel inferior without your consent."

For golfing fans, here are a couple of ditties:

Golf is like a love affair: if you don't take it seriously, it's no fun; if you do take it seriously, it breaks your heart." Arnold Daly.

And, speaking of sports, here's a profound quote from Yogi Berra, "You can observe a lot just by watching."

My favorite in the entire book is one I wish I had written in a short story or in the great unfinished American novel I've got tucked away in a drawer at home. It's from King Lardner, who wrote: "He gave her a look you could have poured on a waffle."

And, there are some neat quotes on the media. Here are my favorites:

"Journalism largely consists in saying Lord Jones Dead' to people who never knew Lord Jones was alive." G. K. Chesterton.

"A newspaper is the lowest thing there is." Richard J. Daley, former Mayor of Chicago.

"Newspaper editors are men who separate the wheat from the chaff, and then print the chaff." Adlai Stevenson.

And, finally, here is one that seems appropriate, considering I've just filled a column with material I never thought of myself: "Journalism is the ability to meet the challenge of filling space." Jennies West.

Hurricane Betsy arrived in the area, striking with sixty mile an hour winds and torrential rains. The Mirror published its first (and last) "EXTRA" with a Sunday edition of eight pages filled with hurricane information.

A victim of Betsy was pictured: the boat owned by Gene and Dick Hale sitting on the bottom of the Ocean Breeze marina.

Of more than 100 surfers who tried to battle the big waves generated by Betsy, only two made it, Bruce Pearson from Pompano and Ken Tilton of Jensen Beach.

Great American Raft Race set to sail this month

There is no single event that draws the most boats and the biggest crowds of Port St. Lucie in such great number as the Great American Raft Race.

Every year owners of area businesses and local residents enlist the aid of their employees, relatives, friends, neighbors, and anyone else they can shake a stick at, to construct and man the most innovative, seaworthy and quick-gliding raft they can conceptualize.

On September 27th, these would-be sailors will log their homemade crafts to the waters of the North Port Marina and with the help of a few sixpacks of beer — will attempt to cruise the Marina and cross the finish line before any other.

The 1980 Great American Raft Race will be co-sponsored once again by the instigators of this annual tradition — the Port St. Lucie Exchange Club; WOVV radio station and Budweiser.

Registration for the day's events will begin at 10 a.m. at the Marina.

Eight classes of vessels will be racing in all on the 27th, and each will have a different starting time, making the Raft Race a day-long event for spectating landlubbers.

The following divisions will be racing at their respective post times: Expert Canoe Division, noon; Surfboards, 12:15 p.m.; Amateur Canoes, 12:30 p.m.; Miscellaneous, 12:45 p.m.; Unlimited Raft, 1:15 p.m.; Innertube Sprint, 1:30 p.m.; Innertube Division II, 1:30 p.m.; and Hand-paddled or poled Raft, 1:45.

In addition to the usual Raft Race fare, Budweiser will be sponsoring a bikini contest, reportedly as the inspiration for the race contestants. Prizes will be awarded to winners in all race divisions, as well as for the best bikini.

Taylor Rental will again be providing a Rock n' Disco Show on the banks of the Marina and plenty of beer, compliments of Budweiser, will be on sale.

In the event that storm clouds decide to make an appearance on the Raft Race scene, as they did last year, covered tent areas will be scattered on the banks of the North Port Marina.

One big highlight, unique to the 1980 Raft Race, will be a "Captain's Cocktail Party" to be given by General Development Corporation for all raft captains and crewpersons on the eve of the Raft Race.

Anyone who preregisters will receive an invitation to the bash which, as it will reportedly sport free drinks and hors d'oeuvres, may find a number of crews hung-over, as well as tired, for the next day's events.

All persons interested in participating in the Great American Raft Race are urged to register now, at a cost of $5 per person. Entry blanks may be filled out at most local banks.

The proceeds from the Great American Raft Race will be donated again this year to United Way.

Indian River Life wins Florida awards

Indian River Life Magazine received two first place awards from the Florida Magazine Association for editorialistic excellence in 1980, during the annual awards banquet held Saturday night in Orlando.

The publication was honored with a first place for best editorial written by Barrett Alley, and another first, for the "Most Gusty Story" written by Denis McCarthy, for his article entitled, "Lawyers on Trail; The Best The Not So Best...In Vero Beach".

Indian River Life received a second place for journalistic excellence for General Interest magazines with a circulation under 20,000. A certificate of merit also went to the publication for Best Feature Article in the General Interest category for the article, "Let Them Eat Salmonella", by Denis McCarthy.

1980 marks the Florida Magazine Association's 27th annual meeting. This year, 84 magazines made 525 entries in the competition for the 66 categories to be honored. Members were honored for their achievement in writing, design, art and photography, advertising, and general excellence.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

In reading through the recent issues of "The Mirror", may I say congratulations on the full page layout on the school bus routes. The layout was pleasing to the eye, information concise, and most attractive. Also the page on the opening of school at Jensen Beach in the August 28th issue was noteworthy.

We wish to express our thanks for a job well done, and look forward to your continued cooperation and interest in the Martin County School District.

DEALER OR INVESTOR?

QUESTION: I was informed last week that I will be classified as a "dealer" in real estate by the IRS because I have a real estate license. I am quite concerned because this means I will not be able to report my profit on the sale of a small apartment building at favorable capital gains rates. Because I have a real estate license, am I automatically considered a dealer by the tax people?

ANSWER: No, you are not automatically considered a dealer because you are a licensed or practicing real estate broker or salesperson.

A dealer in real estate purchases a property with the intention to resell immediately and with a plan for such a resale. The real estate dealer is much like the grocer who purchases a dozen cans of carrots and puts them on the shelf for resale. His profit from that resale is taxed at ordinary income rates rather than the more favorable capital gains rates. Real estate brokers and salespeople certainly can invest in real estate just as can the doctor, lawyer, or grocer.

It is important, however, to document your intent at the time you purchase the property. In order to do this, do not offer the property for resale shortly after the purchase. This certainly indicates that your intent was to purchase for resale. Instead document that the property is held for investment. Make sure your records reflect this.

Many real estate people purchase real estate investments. They hold the investment for a period of time and then sell for a profit, reporting that profit as a capital gain. This is fine as long as the property was purchased for investment.

Be careful, however, of frequent and rapid buying and selling. And be sure you can document income from sources other than buying and selling real estate. This will help you avoid the stigma of dealership in a particular transaction.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0707, or stop by:

THE ALL SAINTS EPISCOPAL CHURCH in Jensen Beach is the meeting place for many of the women who come every week to volunteer their time. The cause is for needy people everywhere from nursing homes to hospitals. Once each year, they hold their bazaar, which will include a surprise table and a bake sale.

VOLUNTEERS—from the Fellowship Group for Community Service display some of the fruits of their efforts. All year round, the women gather to donate their time and creative abilities to help those less fortunate. Art associates set September

Martin County Library: Paintings by Margaret H. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson has a B.F.A. degree from Syracuse University and started her career illustating school books, including work on the infamous Dick and Jane series in Chicago, her home city. After marriage and children many business moves occurred and her art work became sporadic and varied. She studied with several artists and was in shows in Indianapolis and Ft. Wayne, Indiana, and in Searsdale and Rochester, New York. Along the way she has worked in many media, including ceramic sculpture. She is a professional portrait painter. For the last few years her main interest has been in multi-colored wood block printing, some prints employing over 25 colors.

Stuart National Bank: All member show continues through September.

Stuart National Bank, East Ocean Branch: Paintings by Ruth Bowman of Jensen Beach continue through September.

First Federal of Ft. Pierce, Cedar Pointe Branch: Paintings by Betty Neubauer continue through Sept.

Monterey Branch: Paintings by Friday Stevens continue through September.

Dale Conklin returns from Med

Navy Hull Maintenance Technician Fireman Apprentice Dale L. Conklin, son of Robert H. and Jean A. Conklin of 181 Riverview Drive, Jensen Beach, Fla., recently returned from deployment with the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea.

He is a crewmember aboard the destroyer USS Forrest Sherman homeported in Charleston, S.C.

During the five-month cruise, his ship participated in various training exercises with other U.S. 6th Fleet units and those of allied nations. Port visits were made in Rota, Spain; Mombasa, Kenya; and Naples, Italy.

Optimist Club announces soccer registration

The Optimist Club of Jensen Beach will conduct registration for its youth soccer program at Langford Park field house on three consecutive Saturdays, Sept. 13, 20, and 27, from 10 am. to 2 p.m.

For the benefit of parents who work on Saturdays, registration will also be held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Sept. 24 and 25, from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The program is open to anyone who will be 7 years old as of October 1, but no older than 16 years as of October 1.

The registration fee is $15.00 and a $30.00 limit on the family plan.

For more information, call Mike Bacchino at 334-4122.

Astronomy course is set

A six-week introductory course in astronomy will be offered at the Environmental Studies Center starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 23. The class will be conducted by Mark Perry, Director of the Florida Oceanographic Society and an amateur astronomer.

The course, offered through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center, will include discussion and films on Tuesday nights and use of a celestial telescope on Thursday nights when the weather permits.

Topics for the Tuesday sessions include the history of astronomy, planets, asteroids, comets and meteors, quasars, black holes and other phenomenon. Also scheduled for consideration are theories of the origin of the universe, distances, magnitude and motion of stars and other topics.

There is a $5 registration fee for the class. Further information and pre-registration can be obtained by calling Jay Jarrett, Coordinator, at 334-1383.

Construction is started on new Jensen Park Estates

BY CATHIE FARAGO

Construction is underway for the new development called Jensen Park Estates.

The project, located off Savanna Road, is slated to include 450 mid priced homes. 116 of those are expected to be completed within the next year and developer Bob Coy estimates construction to begin within six months on the second portion.

The concept behind Jensen Park Estates is to provide a supply of homes to meet the increasing demand for modest priced housing. Homes built on lots ranging in size from 8,500 to 10,000 sq. ft. will sell between $50,000 and $70,000, site included.

Although Coy has established architectural plans that include a choice of 10 models, he adds that roughly 25 per cent of the homes built are custom designed.

"CBS constructed homes are still very much in demand," Coy says. However, "We've seen a trend towards wood homes." He sees that demand rising now that the cost of wood and concrete have become more comparable.

Coy, also meeting the demands of a much more energy conscious market, has employed the use of energy saving materials. As a result, his homes more than meet the standards Florida Power and Light terms "west-wise living."

All 450 homes will tie into the water and sewer plant located on the grounds.

According to reports, building is taking an upward turn out of its slump. However, rising material costs, labor, and an unsure public, leery of higher interest rates, still remain over the market.

To help ease that public uncertainty, at least in Jensen Beach, Coy is in the process of obtaining a financial committment from a lending institution. This would serve as an interest ceiling for buyers in the event of a future rate spiral.

Coy feels that the middle income family is the hardest hit segment of society, being both too rich and too poor to benefit from either side. Florida residents have felt the inflationary pinch, as a high number are retirees on a fixed income. Even condominium living, with its climbing monthly maintenance fees, has proved too huge an investment for some.

Coy feels that the need for mid-priced condominiums, as well as single family homes, exists in Jensen Beach, not only for retirees but also middle income families as well.

In addition to his single family housing development, he is also considering building quadplexes on the front 20 acres off Savanna Road. The tract is zoned commercial, and would allow a total density of 100 units.

Although the concept is yet in the preliminary stage, and no commitment to the project has been made, one factor is certain. To bypass high monthly maintenance fees, deed restrictions would be implemented to uphold the character of the grounds. Coy feels that not only would residents be spared the additional costs, but thinks that these are the type of people, who would enjoy being outdoors, working on their lawns.

RICHARD VATH

Drama will open eyes at IRCC

It's a total cultural experience for Indian River Community College students as the new McAlpin Fine Arts Center on the Main Campus gives IRCC students a chance both to view top notch talent and to take the stage themselves in college dramatics and musical productions.

As a sidelight of the new 3-million dollar Fine Arts Building, drama classes are being conducted for the first time at IRCC, and are under the direction of long time stage and screen veteran Richard Vath.

Vath's background includes nearly 40 years involvement in the theatre arts, with scores of acting roles and extensive experience as a director and producer to his credit. Although he has appeared on television and in films, Vath's expertise runs toward the theatre, with recognized successes in such diverse areas as stock, repertory, Shakespearean, modern comedy, the dinner theatre circuit, production tours, and teaching. Throughout his career, Vath has worked with numerous distinguished performers, including Pat O'Brien, Peggy Lee, Shelley Berman, and John Carradine.

Currently, Vath is teaching Fundamentals of Speech and Elementary Acting at IRCC, and he emphasizes that both classes are geared toward the novice. The Fundamentals of Speech course shows students, through practice, how to project their voices, how to overcome a fear of public speaking, and how to generally communicate more effectively. The acting course will evolve into what Vath calls "a working department."

"This is not going to be strictly a book course, and it will not be just a theory course," Vath commented. "The students will learn to act by actually performing on stage."

Noting that drama classes would not be possible at IRCC without the new 600 seat theatre on campus, Vath sees its value as both inspirational for his students and culturally enriching for this area.

"With the new professional theatre here on campus, I think that we'll be able to put on some excellent productions," he says. "We're really looking forward to this first season."

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-1946

Assisted by Peg, Ray, Betty Lester

All the fine trimming is completed, except the palm trees, which is nearly finished. The Park looks good, even the overhead fan at the Recreation Hall desk was cleaned, looks new again. Getting ready for the returnees. Three returned last week, Mr. & Mrs. Frank Gilbert, Mr. & Mrs. Fred Kiefaber and Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Bond.

My annual letter from Jim & Dorothy Studebaker came this week, from their home in America's heartlands Topeka, Kansas. It too has been hot & dry as so many states suffered this summer. That air conditioning was appreciated both in Minnesota and Canada where they go annually to fish. It was so hot in May and June that mosquitoes didn't show up. They are now planning for a trip to the Grand Canyon, and a visit with grandchildren in Phoenix, Ariz. Returning via Colorado Springs to visit a son & family. Will be returning earlier to Holiday, but this year.

Jack O'Connell has started out bowling in league play in this fall with three 600 series, the last one rolled was 681, look out for the 700 series next.

Mac and Jean McCabe returned from a month's vacation of the East Coast visiting old friends and home in Delaware. Had a good visit while there with Edna Vansant. Enjoyed it very much, but happy to be home.

Bruce & Billie Magee have been enjoying their daughter & grand daughter for ten days. They all came up from Miami and Bruce, their son in law, proudly showed the very first snook they ever caught, and they were beauties.

It seems like the fishing is improving, as Gordon McIntyre caught a large 21½ lb. channel bass "Red fish" at 10:30 a.m. to low tide. And Jack O'Connell & Al Wright some large snook. Nice going "boys".

Harold & Jean Messiers write from Hartford, Conn. of the rainy & damp weather they have been having. They could use some of our sunshine.

Labor Day was a fun day for the Al Rays as they spent it with two couples from Miami. Delicious food, good company and fine, piece orchestra also a beauty pageant. The rains held off until 4:00 p.m. As the Robert Joys & Ed Scotts returned to Miami, with the Rays returning to H.Out.

It was nice to see Ruth & Bob Stewart, Ea H Outers now living in Tequesta on Saturday evening. Both looked well.

Frank & Annie Gilbert arrived in H Out on Saturday evening. Annie said she painted a barn for her daughter this summer. So it sounds like Annie needs a nice vacation now.

Anniversaries Congratulations for Edwina & Earle Palmer 9-18, Rita & Elmer Dolson 9-14, Norma & Earl Bosher, Bill & Dorothy Studebaker, Vicki & Max Butt 9-15, Erma & Gordie St. Louis, Dorothy & James Noble, Verne & Tom Clinger 9-17, Katherine & Jack Berger, Marain & Bob Holden 9-18.

Happy Birthdays to: Doris Berg land, Joyce Morgan 9-14, Jim Williams, Merle Steele 9-15, Ralph Taylor 9-16, Marion Mudano, Max Butt 9-17, Henry Bischoff, Frank Houghton 9-18.

Group home for retarded citizens purchased

The Martin County Association for Retarded Citizens has purchased a residence on California Avenue in Stuart, for use as a group living home for retarded persons. For many years this association has been aware of the need for such a residence. Several such homes are needed in this community and the association plans to establish additional residences as soon as it is feasible.

Preliminary fund raising for this project has been conducted for a number of years. A few months ago a Group Home Committee was reorganized with the mandate to reassess and update previous planning efforts and put these plans into action.

A large home was found on Cahlor nia Avenue and determined to suitable in size, location and zoning and avail able immediately at a fair price. A purchase contract was negotiated with the owner, George Apostolopoulos. Mac Stuckey, local attorney, has vol unteered his services and provided assistance and advice during the pur chase negotiations.

Estimates have been obtained to bring the structure into compliance with the fire safety code, various building department requirements and health standards. Ed Hosh, architect, has volunteered his services in drawing up plans and making neces sary alterations to the home.

It recently became apparent that the savings which the association had accumulated would not be sufficient to make the purchase, repair the home and also provide necessary operating funds.

Thus a public appeal was begun for assistance in completing the purchase. As the contract deadline approached, association President Rudy Adamec, and members Harry Rittle and Robert Batterman offered to personally borrow $25,000.00 on a temporary basis to enable the association to acquire the home and make necessary repairs.

This loan will have to be repaid within thirty days, so the association is still under considerable pressure to raise additional funds and is making a strong appeal to all members of this community for their financial support. Over three thousand dollars have been received to date, but much more assis tance is needed.

Contributions should be made payable to the Martin County Associa tion for Retarded Citizens and sent to P.O. Box 205, STuart, Fl. 33494. The association qualifies as a charitable organization under Sec. 501 (c) (3), and all donations are tax deductible.

The decision whether this will be a home for men, or a home for women, remains to be made and will hinge on a survey presently being made of those having the greatest need. Parents or guardians of retarded citizens are urged to contact the association office in the Dehon Building, 3001 Colorado Ave., or phone 283-2325 for further information or to make application for residence in a group home.

Residents in this first home will be at least 18 years of age and will be employed in the community or attend ing a regular work activities program such as Tri-County Rehabilitation Center. They may be either self supporting or eligible to receive residential funding from the Develop mental Disabilities Program of the Health and Rehabilitation Services of the State of Florida. The state is presently funding eligible clients at the rate of $329.00 per month.

The association is presently in need of applicants for the position of house parents in this group home. Room and board will be provided in addition to salary, and the most important quali fication will be dedication and under standing. The association expects that it may find retired or semi-retired persons who would find this a worth while experience. Students or teachers are sometimes employed as house parents since the principle duties are between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. and the daytime hours are largely free.

Anyone interested in applying for this position should contact Robert Battermann, Chairman of the Group Home Committee of the Association for Retarded Citizens, or write to P.O. Box 205, Stuart.

NESTLED—between the Florida palms, the All Saints Episcopal Church remains atop the quiet hill, keeping vigil over those who have come to rest. The church is a meeting place for the women who come to volunteer their time making crafts for others in need. (Photo by Cathie Farago)

Elections office now open six days

From now through Saturday, Oct. 4, Martin County Supervisor of Elections Peggy Robbins will keep the elections office open six days a week for voter registration.

The office will be open each day of the week except Sunday and registration books for the Nov. 4 general election will close on Oct. 4.

In addition to keeping the office open at the county courthouse on East Ocean Boulevard in Stuart, a series of mobile registrations is planned. The following is the mobile registration schedule:

Saturday, Sept. 17, Port Salerno Bank (Clerk 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 17, First Baptist Church 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 19, Jensen Beach Winn Dixie 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 20, East Stuart Civic Center, Friday, Sept. 23, Pinelake Village in Jensen Beach 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. and Monday, Sept. 26, Super Skate 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Gardening course offered

The fall session of the Organic Gardening class will meet for 10 weeks on Monday nights starting 7:30 September 22 at Jensen Beach Elementary School. Joseph Giba will again be the instructor.

Subjects to be covered in the 20-hour course include basic soil ecology, composting, mulching, seed varieties, companion planting, insect and disease control, intensive gardening methods, green houses and hydroponics.

Giba, a biology instructor at Florida Institute of Technology's Jensen Beach campus, has farmed organically on a commercial scale and is currently developing a bio-intensive raised garden.

The class is limited to 30 students. Further information and advance registration is available from Jay Jarrett, Coordinator of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center at 334-1263. There is a $5 registration fee for the class.

Japanese art course offered

Residents have an opportunity to learn an old Japanese art form recently introduced into the country, as the Jensen Beach Community Education Center again offers a 10-week class in Bunka Embroidery, starting Wednesday, Sept. 24 in the new Community Room of the Jensen Lanes on Highway 707.

The class will be instructed by Alma Burke who introduced the art locally this spring. The class is scheduled for 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. and will continue for 10 weeks.

No artistic talent is required, but a steady hand and patience will be rewarded with a specimen of stitchery resembling an oil painting. The materials are available in kit form in all sizes and subjects. Registration is $5. Those wishing more information or to reserve a place in the class may call Jay Jarrett, Coordinator at 334-1263.

Speedwriting course at IRCC

Through Speedwriting 1, a three-credit course being offered on the Indian River Community College Main Campus this Fall, you can upgrade your secretarial skills to include dictation. To meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30 to 8 p.m. in Room B-105, the basic course will cover the fundamentals of this popular form of shorthand.

A special registration will be conducted for this course when 15 students have expressed interest in enrolling. Since 10 have already signed up, you should call IRCC immediately if you would like to enroll.

Ocean Breeze News

BY LETA KEITH

Several more returned last week. Ada Baum, George and Winnie Henle, Al and Alice Sharp, Mildred Epler, Helen Broberg, and Ruby Wren.

Ruby was so glad to get back to her wee Wren's nest. She visited her daughter in Toronto and had lunch in the highest single building in the world in the Renaissance Complex. It rotates one hour while you are eating. Such a wonderful view from this tower. Then Ruby visited another daughter in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Then to her son's Dr. Hugh Wren, in Detroit, Michigan.

Earl and Irvin Sheehy have enjoyed their first summer in Ocean Breeze very much in spite of the fact that the ambulance was called to their home three times. No more gardening in Wisconsin for them.

Harry Jewsberry writes that his doctor says he may drive his car when he gets back down here.

Loretta Wheaton went from Wisconsin to visit her daughter in Arizona, as soon as she returns her son will drive her down here to Ocean Breeze.

Fritz and Bunny Springman of 7 Vista Drive have been enjoying her sister Betty and husband Henry Johnson from Connecticut. They have decided to settle permanently in this vicinity.

Jean and Al Tomaszewski took Leta and Irvin Keith out to dinner on Labor Day, in honor of their 51st wedding anniversary, Sunday, Aug. 31.

I received a card from Ernie Curwin. "It looks like we will be leaving North Carolina on the 9th of September. It takes us slow pokes three days so we should be back in Ocean Breeze by Thursday, Sept. 11.

A proud mother is Ruby Wren. Her son Dr. Hugh Wren received the Rotary Citizen of the Year Award of Detroit, Michigan, for outstanding community service.

STEAK AU POIVRE

2 Tbl Whole Black Peppercorns
2 Tbl Butter
1 Tsp Minced Shallots
1 Tsp Minced Garlic
4 Strips Sirloin Steaks
2 oz Brandy
½ Cup Heavy Cream

Coarsley crush peppercorns in a pepper grinder or by wrapping them in a napkin and beating them with a blunt object. Melt the butter in a large skillet and sautee the garlic and shallots until brown and remove them. Fold a less spicy steak, now sautee the peppercorns in the same butter and remove them after a few minutes. For the spicy version, work the peppercorns into the meat with the heel of the hand and procede to sautee the steaks at a high heat as to sear the meat and seal in the juices.

Cook until rare or medium rare and add the brandy which you have warmed and ignite some. Remove the steaks to a warm platter and add the heavy cream to the skillet. Boil briefly and pour over the steaks

PRINCE HEINRICH DESSERT SAUCE

1 Cup Light Brown Sugar
¼ Lb Butter
¼ Cup Brandy or Cognac
1 Can of Fresh Fruit
¼ Cup Fruit Flavored Liqueur
Vanilla Ice Cream

Melt butter in a skillet and add the brown sugar when hot. Boil until carmelization starts (Rapid boiling yielding an almost candy-like consistency). Add warm brandy and the liqueur appropriate to the kind of fruit you are using. (Creme deBanana with bananas, Apricot brandy with Apricots etc). Ignite this mixture and stir, adding fruit, until flames subside. Spoon immediately on Ice Cream and serve.

CAESAR SALAD

1 Head of Romaine
2 Anchovy Fillets (Bacon can be substituted)
2 Cloves of Garlic
½ Cup Olive Oil
¼ Cup Wine Vinegar
1 Cup Crisp Croutons
½ Cup Freshly Grated Romano Cheese
Salt and Pepper
1 Egg

Rub the inside of a wooden salad bowl with fresh garlic and discard. Crush the Anchovies until they become pasty. (Anchovy paste can be used) add the yolk of one egg. (Coddle preferably) the olive oil and the vinegar. Toss the cleaned and dried romaine in the dressing and immediately before serving, add croutons and grated cheese. Toss lightly.

POMMES ANNA

(Serves 4)

6 Medium Potatoes
½ Pound Butter
1 Medium Onion
Salt
White Pepper

Peel potatoes and cut them into fairly uniform cylinders. Slice the potatoes in ⅛" slices. Soak the slices in ice water for ten minutes. In a sauce pan, melt the butter. Dry the potatoes thoroughly. In a round, buttered baking dish, arrange a circular layer of potatoes, slightly overlapping each other. Add salt and white pepper to taste, and grate some onion over this layer. Pour a small amount of the butter over the potatoes. Repeat this process layer by layer, until all ingredients are used. Bake covered in a 375 degree oven for approximately 45 minutes.

When tender, brown the top layer briefly under the broiler and serve

2 Ounces of Amaretto
Butter

Par boil green beans until crisp. Drain them off. Saute almonds with amaretto. In another pan put your butter and green beans and heat through. Pour almonds and amaretto reduction over beans

FILET de la MAISON

4 5 oz Filets
8 Escargot
1 Teaspoon Garlic Butter
1 Ounce Bleu Cheese
2 Cups Bordalaise
4 Strips Bacon

Pocket your filets. Then chop your escargot, add your garlic butter, bleu cheese and 1 tablespoon of the bordalaise sauce. Take this mixture and stuff the pockets of the filets. Then wrap them with 1 slice of bacon. Braise the stuffed filets in butter for 2 to 3 minutes. Cover with bordalaise sauce and place in 350 degree oven for 6 to 8 minutes

POMMES SHRIMP

4 Medium Potatoes
Half & Half
1 Cup Shrimp
3 Tbl Chopped Parsley
2 Tsp of Chopped Chives
1 Ounce of Vodka
4 Ounces Cheddar Cheese

Cook potatoes 1 hour at 350 degree. Cut potato ¼ from the side, not in half. Scoop out potato into a bowl. Add vodka, half and half, beat till fluffy. Add shrimp, parsley, chives. Mix well. Scoop back into shells. Top with grated cheese. Bake 350 degrees for 15 minutes

CRAB SOUP EN CROUTE

3 Cups Half & Half
2 Cups Bechamel Sauce
1 10½ Ounce Can Tomato Soup
½ Cup Clam Juice
1 Lb. Crabmeat
6 Tbl Dry Sherry
6 7 x 7 inch squares of puff paste
1 Egg

Add first 4 ingredients in a saucepan over a low heat. Do not boil. Add crabmeat and heat through. Take the soup off the stove, let in cool. Refrigerate over night. Fill soup bowls half way, float 1 tablespoon of sherry. Place puff paste over bowls and press firmly to the sides. Do not crimp because the pastry must be able to rise freely. Brush with egg. Cook at 400 degree for 20 to 30 minutes.

CHOUX AUX FRAISES

(Strawberry Creme Puffs)

Pastry
1 Cup Water
4 Tbl Butter
¼ Tsp Salt
1 Tbl Sugar
1 Cup Sifted All Purpose Flour
4 Eggs
Filling
1 Cup Sugar
5 Egg Yolks
1 Cup Milk (simmering)
1 Cup Heavy Cream
1 Tsp Vanilla Extract
1 Quart Strawberries, 24
½ Cup Red Currant Jelly, Melted

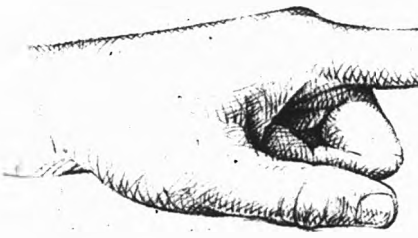
Place water, butter, salt and sugar in a heavy sauce pan. When all has melted remove pan from the heat. Add the flour all at once and stir fast. Return pan to heat for 1 minutes until dough can be rolled into a ball. Remove from heat, add eggs one at a time until combined. Grease and flour sheet pan. Pipe them on at 375 degree for 25 minutes, or golden brown.

Beat the egg yolks with the sugar until lemoned colored. Beat in the flour. Stir in simmering milk and cream. Place on heat, stirring all the time so the egg won't curdle, until it is as thick as custard. Cool custard and top with strawberries. Brush strawberries with currant jelly. Inject with Grand Marnier.

The SunBank 24 Exercise Manual.

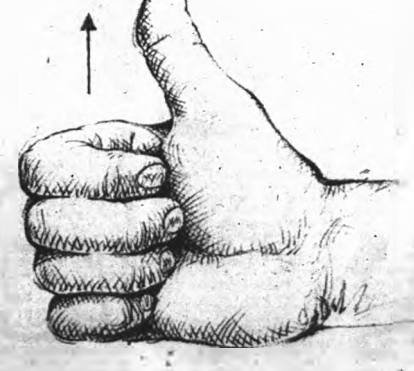
A Guide On Getting In Shape To Use Our 24-Hour Tellers.

The Push. Pretend you're holding a Sun Bank card between your thumb and fingers and push forward 50 times. This will get you in shape for inserting your card into any one of the more than 90 SunBank 24 automated tellers across Florida. If you don't have a Sun Bank card we'll give you one free with a checking account. If you don't already bank with us, you're really out of shape.



The Press. Extend your forefinger (either hand) and press forward 100 times. Once mastered, this move will be used to enter your personal identification number, select the transaction and enter dollars and cents amount. If this looks simple, it is. And our SunBank 24 tellers will tell you what to do every step of the way.

The Pull. Since this is simply The Push in reverse, you need practice only 10 times. This move is used primarily to withdraw cash from the teller drawer. It is also used for withdrawing receipts for deposits and transfers and removing your Sun Bank card. With a little practice, you'll have completed this maneuver in about 30 seconds.



Thumbs Up. This is the gesture used by people who have discovered how quick and easy SunBank 24 automated tellers are to use. Practice it diligently. Because we're Florida's leader in 24-hour banking and convenience, you'll be seeing a lot of it.

Season for marsh hens, gallinules ends Nov. 9

BY DICK LUNDIN

FOR MARSH HENS AND GALLINULES, the 1982-83 Florida statewide hunting season opened Sept. 1 and will end on Nov. 9 for these species, according to word from Col. Robert M. Brantly, executive director for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Hunting hours will be one half hour before sunrise until sunset. Daily bag limits are set at 15 for clapper or king marsh hens and 25 for Virginia or Sora marsh hens. The daily bag limit for gallinule is 15.

The opening date for these birds marked the beginning of what we hope will be a safe hunting season for all Floridians who plan to take to the water, woods and fields this hunting year, Brantly said.

If you have any questions regarding game hunting regulations, contact the GFWFC regional office in West Palm Beach (305-683-0748).

A GUN'S SAFETY should be viewed as an added safety device and not as a device that permits the basic rules of safe gun handling to be ignored, as the National Shooting Sports Foundation tells us.

A gun's safety should never be relied on as foolproof. As with any other mechanical device, it cannot guarantee safety.

At any time when a shooter does not have complete control over the direction of the muzzle, such as in climbing a tree or crossing a fence, safety notwithstanding, the gun should be unloaded first.

The only time your shotgun or rifle should be loaded is when you're in the field, and hunting! When you do load, be sure your safety is in the "safe" position, and don't take it off until just before you shoot.

Some safe gun handling rules to be observed are:

At all times be sure to have your muzzle pointing in a "safe" direction.

Always unload your gun before entering a vehicle or an building. Be sure that your gun is unloaded when crossing an obstacle such as a fence or ditch or when you take a break in the field.

The only time your gun should be loaded is when you're in the field and hunting.

When you're through hunting for the day double-check your gun to make sure there is no shell in the chamber or magazine. Open your gun and leave it open.

Think of yourself and your gun as parts of a system whose safe operation is up to you. Your gun can't think, but you can! Precarious safety depends on you. Make no mistake about that!

I think that the NSSF folks made the point very well.

ARCHERS and muzzleloading gun hunters who plan to take part in special hunts in the Big Cypress Wildlife Management Area are being asked by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to note a regulation change.

The Commission originally declined to allow bow hunters and muzzleloaders to carry their arms aboard airboats during the upcoming seasons, but this has been changed to allow airboaters who hunt with the bow or black powder gun to carry their arms. However, while they are in possession of a bow aboard an airboat, it must be either unstrung or eased. Muzzle loaders must be eased.

The change is being made to provide hunters access to remote areas of the Big Cypress.

The archery season begins this year in the Cypress on Sept. 13 and continues through Oct. 5. The black powder hunt is from Oct. 11 to Nov. 2.

During either of these seasons, buck deer with at least one antler visible above the hairline, hogs with a shoulder height of 15 inches or greater, raccoon, skunk, opossum, armadillo, grey squirrel, rabbit and quail are legal game.

TRACKED VEHICLE OPERATORS may want to attend a public hearing on Friday, Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Palm Beach Hilton Hotel, 2842 South Ocean Blvd., Palm Beach.

The hearing is to discuss a series of changes in the design, size and power of tracked vehicles operating in the Everglades. They are being proposed by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Although these changes will not be effective until the 1983-83 hunting season, hunters should be aware of them.

Basically, they would mandate vehicle width at no more than eight feet, including any swing-out seat, outrigger or other protrusion capable of bearing the weight of a person.

Vehicle height would be regulated to no more than six feet from the lowest bottom surface of the vehicle. No tracked vehicle could be powered by more than a six cylinder, 250 cubic inch gasoline engine equipped with a two-barrel carburetor and standard automotive ignition. Engines could not be modified so as to increase horsepower. All tracks would be required to have track not less than 16 inches in width.

These regulations have been proposed because of the fragile nature of the Everglades, along with an increasing number of vehicles, according to Commission Director Col. Robert M. Brantly.

Written comments are being solicited well in advance of the public hearing and may be mailed to Fred W. Stanberry, Director, Division of Wildlife, Florida GFWFC, 620 South Meridian St., Tallahassee, Fla. 32301.

For more information, contact Lt. B. F. Lampton at the Everglades Regional Office in West Palm Beach (305-683-0748).

THE DEER HUNTING SEASON opens Nov. 8 and hunters might do well to get a copy of "The Whitetail Deer From Field To Table" at $4.95 from the National Meat Institute, 10216 Lajeunesse, Montreal, Canada. H3L 2E2.

The little 64 page paperback, complete with illustrations and a deer hunter's check list, answers such questions as:

How much venison can you expect to get from an average whitetail deer? What's the best method for field dressing deer? How long should you age deer and what are the factors that determine the aging period? What's the quickest and easiest way to skin a deer? What wines go best with venison?

All these and many more are answered in this practical hunter's guide. It does not propose to teach anyone how to hunt deer but to inform conscientious hunters what to do once the tag is filled.

There are even all kinds of interesting recipes calculated to broaden and enliven your venison cuisine, like venison broth, venison sauce, potted venison, venison pie Canadian style, venison pie Diana style, venison stew brother Francois style, and venison cabbage.

IT MAY BE GOING from the sublime to the ridiculous to switch from deer hunting to air rifles, but many air gun owners may still be buying the old fashioned BBs when new there is a premium BB on the market, reporting to David Koehler, marketing manager for Crosman Guns. He makes reference to Copperhead BBs.

"Copperhead BBs are engineered to exacting standards. We start with a bigger piece of metal and take extra steps so each BB is completely round. No skimping means no flat spots or dimples to affect accuracy and hitting power or cause the gun to jam. Each BB is copper plated to keep it from rusting and to let everyone know that those ball's-eyes are the result of good shooting and good ammunition," Koehler points out.

If you're an air gun owner, you might want to try some of these new BBs.

fishing tourney

Every young person under fifteen years of age will win a prize if they catch a fish in the seventh annual Isaac Walton League's youth fishing tournament, planned for Saturday, Sept. 27 at the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Fishing will start at 9 a.m. and will end at noon.

Contestants must bring their own tackle and bait. Handlines are not permitted, nor are spears or nets.

Children under ten must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The fishing will be restricted between the Frank Wacha Bridge and the west shore of the river, including the west bridge and the fishing pier.

SNOOK
Avg. weight 3-25 lbs
Season: Spring and Summer
Bait: plugs, live mullet, shrimp, and feather jigs
World's record 52 lbs. 6 oz.
Food Value: Excellent

BELIEVE IT OR NOT—that's a 28 lb. cobia that Ed Miller of Vero Beach is holding in such a manner. He caught it a week ago from the party boat Miss Fort Pierce (464-4823) out of the Fort Pierce Marina, according to Capt. Larry Fasano who reports also that June Hitt, a Port St. Lucie grandmother, caught one weighing 17 lbs. on Labor Day. He says Miss Fort Pierce anglers have been doing well recently on cobia, gray grouper and king mackerel. The Miss Fort Pierce goes offshore from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Saturday, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Friday and Sunday, and from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

This is the time to go fishing for that snook

BY DICK LUNDIN

IF YOU HAVEN'T caught a snook yet, there'll never be a much better time to try for one than right now. They're catching them at the C-23 and C-24 Canal spillways, from the area bridges and in the surf from the power plant clear down to Jupiter. Live shrimp will do the job but most experienced snooksters are using 1¼ oz. bucktails or spoons like a gator, Reflecto or Krocodile.

Keep in mind that snook must be 18 inches long from tip of snout to fork in tail to be legal, and you may have only four in your possession on any one day.

Because you just might hook a big one (they go as high as 50 lbs.), be sure that you have at least 12 lb. and preferably 20 lb. test line (be sure it's pretty new and has no nicks on the 30 to 50 lb. leader). A big snook can really put some pressure on your tackle.

The best fishing seems to be early in the morning and just before dark and tide changes are best for Old Linesides.

If you go out to one of the spillways you might want to rig up a couple of Buck's Fluffy Tail jigs in tandem 18 inches apart, one yellow and one white. Most of the snook at the spillways are very small and you may have to release three for every keeper you hook.

Two pretty good snook spots now are near the Holiday Inn south of the Jensen Causeway and the west catwalk of the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway.

Any way you look at it, this is the time to go snook fishing!

CAPT. MARLIN MOUDY of the party boat Lady Stuart reports that she is in drydock but should be back in operation by Sept. 20.

FROM THE MISS FORT PIERCE, docking at the Fort Pierce Marina, Rita Fasano: "Surface fishing has been good for cobia, bonito and kings. The bottom fish don't seem to be hungry. Fishing's been decent on the whole though and the weather's been beautiful. Pete Maltese had a 22-0 (22 lb.) gray grouper and Randy Smith a 27-0 king on Saturday, Frank Perrino an 8-0 king on Tuesday, and Jim Kearney a 30-0 cobia on Sunday."

A FRESHWATER REPORT from Ken Hodge at Calusa Lodge on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee off SR 78 some 15 miles west of the Kissimmee River Bridge tells us: "Bass fishing is a little slow. The best action on bass is between the spoil banks and the Monkey Box area. Black grape or black with a red firetail culprit and gator tail plastic worms are popular baits along with Rapala and Devil's Horse plugs. Our guide Ernie Glover has been successful in having his clients limit out every day recently. The really big bass haven't been coming in lately. Very few are panfishing now but those who go after bluegills (bream) are doing pretty well and speck fishermen fishing deep are getting quite a few specks (black crappies)."

FROM D&M BAIT AND TACKLE at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge just north of Stuart, Muriel Weideman: "I don't have anything new for you, Dick. They're still catching black drum, a few mangrove snappers and a lot of small snook. Some really nice drum were caught from the Roosevelt last weekend. Fishing is not too exciting here but it's a lot better than it has been. I understand they're getting a lot of whiting and snook in the surf."

CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "Snook fishing's fantastic, even over here on the Frank Wacha. The C-23 and C-24 Canal spillways are good too. Surf fishermen are taking them on spoons and bridge fishermen on jigs and plugs. Those fishing from the little Mosquito Bridge just east of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge are still catching some nice seatrout. Bruce Davis reports catching four snook in the surf down at Blowing Rocks near Jupiter. He told me they weighed 5 lbs. with the largest a little over 26 lbs. He was using 1¼ oz. Krocs (spoons). Jim Cheatham had a 12-0 drum on live shrimp from the west catwalk at the Frank Wacha; Jon Deschamps, 3 snook and 2 Spanish mackerel on a 7M21 mirrolure at 6 a.m. in the Sheraton surf; Sonny Diber, 11 snook to 6-0 in 3 days fishing with live shiners at the C-23 Canal spillway; Dave Duncan, an 8-12 seatrout on live mullet just south of the Ernest Lyons Bridge.

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Joe Varino: "Snook are good in the surf, from the bridges and at the C-23 Canal spillway. Whiting are good in the surf, hitting artificial lures and live shrimp. Trout's been a little slow. Who's Dick Lundin?"

Varino, standing in for dentist-visiting Dave Lamb, said he'd never heard of Dick Lundin. It was something of a comedown, but I guess you can't win them all. I thought everyone hereabouts read the No. 1 weekly in the state. Incidentally, Joe said that the deal with Keith Deering had fallen through and that Lamb is going to continue to own and operate Jensen Bait and Tackle. That's a real plus. Dave's a credit to the bait-shop business.

TOM STEWART, from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "Trout fishing seems to be a little better this week. The snook are still holding up in the surf, going for yellow bucktails and Reflecto spoons. There's good action on whiting and small pompano in the surf (pomps have to be 9½ inches to be legal). Fishermen using a Buck's Fluffy Tail yellow or white jig have been catching snook at the C-23 Canal Spillway. (You can reach it by crossing the turnpike on SR 76 and turning right at the Corps of Engineer sign.) The best results seem to come from rigging the jigs in tandem with the yellow on a dropper loop and a white 18 inches behind it. Use a 40 lb. leader. Most of the snook out there are under the 18-inch limit and you'll release more than you'll be able to keep. Offshore, fishing's not great, just some kings and wahoo and a few dolphin. It's just too hot now for any mid day fishing. The last two weeks in September should be good for snook at the Jensen Causeway. There's always been a run there then. Lay in a good supply of 77M series mirrolures in your favorite color to be ready when the run begins. That series does a good job on snook.

The Nook's log: Ed Wagner, Pete Baker and Hal Egeland, 15 trout to 3-0 and a 4-8 snook, touts with a teaser, wading north of the power plant around the spoil islands; Jack Prell, 7 trout to 2-0, 7M21 mirrolure, west bank near Walton Road; Jim Deyers, 3 trout to 2-0, live shrimp, Mosquito Bridge east end of Jensen Causeway; Lester Whipple, a 4-0 trout, live shrimp, Herman's Bay; Rich Sowden, a 6-0 snook, 7M series mirrolure, river; John Jenkins, 15 sheepshead and 2 mangrove snappers, live shrimp; Frank Wacha; Eleanor Paoli, 20 whiting, cut shrimp, surf, Oceana condo; Jon Deschamps, a 15-0 snook, live shrimp, river; Tom Hargrave, 7 whiting and 2 small pompano, cut shrimp, Mud Hole just south of the Oceana; Lou Smitten, an 8-8 snook, No. 6 reflecto spoon, Stuart surf; Ed Curtis, 3 snook to 5-0, Buck's Fluffy Tail, C-23; Ken Bellows, a 14-0 bull dolphin, ballyhoo, 40 ft. of water east of St. Lucie Inlet.

IF YOU LEAVE YOUR LIGHTS ON while you enjoy a morning's fishing, you'll likely find yourself in the situation that Port St. Lucie's Neal Shaffer did last Wednesday morning on the Jensen Causeway. Fortunately for Neal, Charlie Downs came along in the nick of time with his jumper cables and the Shaffer auto was soon operable once again; but the incident did cut short any more fishing. Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

BY TOM FALKENBURG

It would be very hard to find a tennis player anywhere that didn't watch some or all of the U.S. Open on T.V. I thought the tennis was very good, and I watched an awful lot, including Borg vs Kriek, Connors vs McEnroe, Evert vs Mandlikova and Borg vs McEnroe. All the sport pages of all newspapers have written up the matches leaving little to be said. The matches were all the kind that seemed to get everyone involved, pulling one way or another.

Yes, me too. However I was sorta fickled, I would pull one way and then the other way, to try and make every match a tie-breaker and-or a five setter. Last week in Philadelphia, I was involved in several tie-breakers, including the finals. At 5-6 with me serving, I was down love 40. Somehow, I managed two aces and a weak return. Then a 7-5 tie-breaker also takes a lot out of you, so I relived some jitters watching the U.S. Open.

Too bad Borg missed the grand slam, but good that an American won. Also McEnroe raises the number of U.S. Open Champs that were left handed to seven in the last seven years.

I talked to Arthur Ashe two weeks ago in Westhampton L.I. and he mentioned nothing about the possibilities of taking the helm of U.S. Davis Cup Team, so I was really surprised to hear Tony Trabert mention it on T.V. Sunday.

Just received a letter from Karen Stewart in Australia, the niece of Mal Anderson and Roy Emerson two ex U.S. Champs. She enjoyed working on her game so much last year at IRP that she is coming back again this Xmas for five weeks. She is also going to be on a very good U.T.Tennis team in Knoxville, Tenn. where I will be Sept. 29 defending Sr. Clay Court Doubles championships.

More and more DMSO is being used by sore tennis players, wish the FDA would hurry up and make it legal, or prove some side effects.

Predictions: Mark Duffy 10, and Alex Prentiee 7, will both be winning tennis tournaments in a few short years. Johan Kriek will be reckoned with in all the upcoming tournaments. No, the king is not dead, Borg will be back stronger than ever. The Queen, Chris Evert will be chased by a bevy of super talent, including Navratilova, Mandlikova, Austin, Jaeger and Momma Goolagong Cawley.

This week I am in Sarasota, attending the Nat'l USPTA Convention, with great seminars on all aspects of tennis, tell you about it later. Also the Nat'l Team Championships. I am the Fla. Captain, and have an excellent team. Then Tuesday, Sept. 28, I will attend the USPTA Tennis Industry Racket Testing seminar on mid-size rackets. Again, give you the facts later.

No more watching for awhile, go out and hit some yourself.

Dolphins bow to Bills, brace for Bengals

By Dick Lundin

[illegible] on whenever the [illegible] Miami Dolphins found that out the [illegible] way up here. Buffalo Bonnie [illegible] opened their 1980 NFL regular season on a losing note against the psyched up Bills, 17-7.

For the Bills, it was Armageddon. For the hapless Dolphins, it was the Little Bighorn.

Having lost all 20 games played against the Dolphins in the Seventies, the eager Bills went after this one before 79,598 wild-eyed, screaming Buffalo fans, like there was no tomorrow.

Strangely enough, for three quarters, in a wild battle of turnovers, the visiting Dolphins clung to a shaky 7-3 lead. Quarterback Joe Ferguson had been intercepted five times and the Bills had turned the ball over twice on fumbles. Miami's defense had been doggedly effective all afternoon.

THEN THE DAM BURST! Every thing went Buffalo's way as Lady Luck who had spent those 20 games watching over the fortunes of Coach Don Shula and the Dolphins, went over to the Buffalo side, and it was all over quickly.

With six minutes left to play, Ferguson hit on passes to Frank Lewis, Joe Cribbs and Jerry Butler to move from the Buffalo 22 to the Miami 11. Three plays he hit fullback Roosevelt Leaks for four yards and the go ahead touchdown that produced near pandemonium in Rich Stadium up there in Orchard Park, N.Y.

It never rains but what it pours. Coach Shula finally gave up on quarterback Bob Griese who had failed to move the Dolphins — pressured throughout by a Buffalo defense that overpowered Miami's green offensive line — and sent in Don Strock as the reliever with 3:42 on the clock.

THAT DID IT! Shula, with a new three-year contract tucked into his hip pocket, could do nothing right on this day when Joe Ferguson and rookie running back Joe Cribbs (Auburn) freed the slaves up in Buffalo. Putting in Strock was to drive the last nail in Miami's coffin.

On a first and 10 at the Miami 33, and in all time to get the winning touchdown, Strock tried to throw into heavy coverage at midfield only to have his errant toss intercepted by linebacker Isiah Robertson who galloped all the way to the Miami 5 before the desperate Dolphins were able to corral him.

There was no stopping the sky high Bills and Cribbs, who caught nine passes for 71 yards and carried the ball 16 times for 62 yards, dived over the middle of the line from two yards out to apply the coup de grace to the Dolphins who had to settle for second best on this day when Buffalo at long last conquered the Dolphin jinx.

WITH THE OPENER behind them, the Dolphins must now get ready for the invasion of Coach Forrest Gregg's Cincinnati Bengals, 17-12 losers to Tampa Bay last Sunday, and 0-1 like the Dolphins in the early stages of the 1980 season.

The game at the Orange Bowl will begin at 4 p.m. next Sunday.

While Miami is taking the Bengals, the 1-0 Bills will be entertaining the 0-1 New York Jets, the 1-0 New England Patriots will host the 0-1 Atlanta Falcons, and the 1-0 Baltimore Colts will be visited by the 1-0 Pittsburgh Steelers. That's the upcoming action in the Eastern Division of the AFC.

Other NFL results Sunday: Green Bay whipped Chicago, 12-6 in overtime; Minnesota edged Atlanta, 24-23, on a last minute field goal; Pittsburgh broke a 17-17 tie to turn back the Houston Oilers and their new quarterback, Sasha Stabler, 31-17; the New York Giants and quarterback Phil Simms stunned the St. Louis Cardinals, 41-35; San Francisco held off the New Orleans Saints, 38-23; Baltimore and Bert Jones defeated the tousled Jets, 17-14; Philadelphia had little trouble routing Denver and new quarterback Matt Robinson, 27-6; Detroit used the spectacular debut of fabled Billy Sims (153 yds rushing and 64 catching passes) to stun the favored Los Angeles Rams, 41-20, after trailing 20-10 early; Oakland and Dan Pastorini upset Kansas City, 27-14; San Diego got more great nonsense from Dan Fouts in humbling the Seattle Seahawks up in the Kingdome, 34-13.

If you like Thursday night Football and are a Tampa Bay fan to boot, plan to tune in Channel 10 or 12 this week at 9 p.m. to watch the Bucs take on the Rams who'll really be smarting from that lacking at the hands of Bills Spec and his Detroit associates.

Next Sunday, you'll be able to watch Dallas at Denver at 2 p.m. on Channels 4 and 34, and Pittsburgh at Baltimore at 2 p.m. on Channels 5 and 7. If that isn't enough, how about Houston at Cleveland at 9 p.m. on Channels 10 and 12 next Monday?

TURNOVERS were rife up in Buffalo last Sunday and Miami had its share of the 13 giveaways. The Dolphins had six, two fumbles, Griese and Bruce Hardy) and four intercep tions (two by Griese and two by Strock). The Dolphins thus came up with a plus one in having seven takeaways to six giveaways, but that's hardly winning football — and it wasn't.

To put Miami's offensive woes in proper perspective, these were the stats for Sunday: 13 first downs (only three by rushing) to 22 for the Bills (eight rushing); 90 yards rushing to 144 for Buffalo; 110 yards passing to 218 for the Bills; yards lost attempting to pass, 28, to none for Buffalo.

When Griese wasn't being sacked, he was being manhandled unmercifully by Buffalo's three-four defense. It seemed that Scott Hutchinson, Fred Smerlas and Ben Williams were in the Dolphin backfield most of the afternoon.

Miami's rebuilding offensive line was porous to say the least. Bob Kuechenberg, Ed Newman, Mark Dennard, Larry Little, Cleveland Green and Eric Laakso didn't get the job done Sunday, and it could be another long Sunday afternoon if they can't get their act together by the time the Bengals get here.

Tampa Bay's rugged defenders were able to cope with that Bengal offense but its offense led by strong armed, inaccurate Doug Williams had problems with Cincinnati's defense. The game next Sunday could well be another low scoring affair.

GLENN BLACKWOOD

LOOKING BACK, Miami could have taken Cribbs in the first round because he was still on the board when McNeal was taken, but McNeal had a great game against the Bills, as did second year player Glenn Blackwood, so it's iffy to say Miami would have been better off with Cribbs than McNeal. Off the Buffalo game, I'd have to opt for that Cribbs who was little short of sensational offensively — where Miami so urgently needs something more positive. (Miami's interceptions were by Bokamper, Gerald Small, McNeal and two by Blackwood.)

Incidentally, Miami's only score Sunday was a "gift" stemming from a bad center snap by Chris Keating that resulted in a partially blocked (Kip Bokamper) punt and set up Miami in the Buffalo 26 early in the third quarter. Fullback Steve Howell, who ran better (6-43) picked up 17 and Griese found Tony Nathan open in the end zone a little later for the touchdown that made it 7-3 and nullified an early 40-yard field goal by Mike Mike-Mayer.

IN RETROSPECT, considering everything, you have to wonder if the Dolphins wouldn't be better off to start rookie David Woodley at quarterback — at least he's exciting, something that can't be said for either the aging Griese or methodical Strock.

Sandpiper Pro-Am Friday

BY MIKE SANDY

The Uppers, Bret and his father Mack held the upper hand in Pro Am action at the Sandpiper Bay Saints course Friday as Bret led the 14 pros in the field with a two under par 70 which also paved the way for his team to come up with a 27 under par 117 in the Two Best Balls of a foursome. Included on the winning team was Mack Upper, a father of Bret who recently moved to the Sandpiper Bay area. The top quartet also included Ed McGavock of Stuart and Dave Nogay who travels with the Jai Alai teams in Florida.

Tom Cioffi, Heritage Ridge pro and Jay Pyle director of golf at Crane Creek deadlocked at 71 to share second place pro honors followed by pros Phil Campoli, David Graham and J. J. LaFlair. Cioffi was especially pleased with his round, one of his best since coming to Florida. Understand his round included seven birdies and a double bogey on the 17th.

Dan Gower of Martin County C.C. had his team in second place 22 under par and included amateurs Van Houghton, Harry the Horse Mingin and Walt Whangchile. Sandpiper pro Bruce Harrison paced his three amateurs to third place 21 under par. Simon purses included Tom Chapman, Jack Dalton and Vito Picciotta.

Cioffi's team tied with one led by Stuart's J. D. Murchison and included amateurs Paul Anna, Steve Gombas, Dave Larsen, Sam Zenaich, Larry Hensley and Bob Heflin.

CHINESE TORTURE—Putting in all the clips and rollers and papers is just like Chinese torture, but it feels so good when she stops. Sandy Fogt did the honors on the editor's new curls.

BY DICK CAMPBELL

Sally has been kidding me relentlessly ever since she got a permanent, with all the little curls wrapping around her head. She looks great, and younger.

Through all the kidding, there was a serious note. If she can look younger, why can't I? At least I'll get a story out of it, I thought.

The years have taken their toll. No longer do the young girls brighten and say "Hi there, Dick." Now they just respectfully nod, and say, "Hello, Mr. Campbell."

Gone is the bushy hair, and the little curl that would drop without warning when I was wind-tossed or in a heated match of tennis. Now, the hair strings out wildly, mats against my head, and there is a certain scarcity of hair in the center top of my head.

I had thought that maybe I would let my eyebrows grow long and comb them back over the balding "widow's peak" and my receding forehead.

One day I happened into Marg Paris' place to get a gift for the "Care package" we were putting together for my daughter's trip up north. Marg was kidding me about the perm as I walked out the door.

So, out of the blue, I walked into Sandy Fogt's place and saw she was alone.

"Do you want an appointment now?" she asked.

I ask myself weakening, as I blurted "How about right now."

Sandy smiled, and said, "Sit down!"

I have always felt like I was walking into a Ladies Rest Room whenever I had to go into a beauty parlor. Seeing those gals lined up across the room in chairs, with others sitting under the football helmets, makes me feel embarrassed.

I sat down.

Sandy put a thing around my neck, took me to the sink and shampooed my hair. She patted it, wrapped a towel around my head and took me back to the first chair.

The torture began.

She handed me a stack of cigarette papers, and I peeled them off one at a time as she rolled my locks into a curl and snapped the holder shut.

After a half hour of rolling and pulling, she finished. I have no idea how women do this every day.

A terrycloth robe was wrapped around the lower edge of the curlers, and the wetting process began. She inserted something like rods of magnesia all over the curlers.

That was when Dennis Doyle walked in with a camera, and began shooting me. Marg had sent him over.

When the splashing was done, my head was put into the oven.

I sat there, and the hot air whirred around me and into my ears. Sandy kept talking and I couldn't hear a thing. Marg came in laughing. Dennis was laughing. I was trying to be a brave soul.

Sandy came over three times, lifted the oven and tested several of the rollers. Each time she snapped them shut and put the oven back down on my head.

Finally, she nodded. The thing was done. My head was sandwich well done.

She took me back to the chair and unrolled it. Slowly, but surely, the curls peeked into place. She picked and fluffed and then said, "There you are."

I looked in the mirror. Different, yes.

"It will take you a few days to get used to it," Sandy told me. "If you don't like it you can always blow it out."

I ventured next door. Marg loved it.

I drove downtown and back to the office. It seemed that everyone was staring at me. They were.

When I walked in the office I got a happy whoop from Sally, a cold look from Jeannie, some remarks from Mary B. and Cathy, and a roar from Bob. Peg liked it, and John gave it a smile that was unsure.

I had to run downtown to pick up some legal forms at Norris' office, and when I walked in his wife just looked at my nose. Ransom walked by, and when I asked him what he thought of it, he said, "You always told me if I can't say anything nice, don't say anything" and walked away.

Norris thought I looked queer.

There were many comments, with a breakdown like this: Sixty percent of those over forty-five don't like it. Ninety percent of those under forty five love it.

Send comments in a plain brown envelope.

THE HOT BOX—After the editor had all the gook put on the curlers and rollers he was thrust under a Martian head-holder and his head was heated to 10,000 degrees for an eternity. Investigation proved that there really was no damage to the interior of the head.

DURING OUR HAWAIIAN SALE.

Publix' Hawaiian Food Festival is just a taste of what you could win -- a vacation for two to Hawaii, home of pineapples, volcanoes, the hula, Diamond Head and the sport of kings.

Our prizes include round trip airline tickets to Honolulu via Western Airlines for two couples, plus $500 in cash per couple. You can arrange for your own accommodations or, if you prefer, Western Airlines will assist you in choosing one of many Hawaiian tour packages available.

HERE'S HOW TO ENTER:

Just complete the entry blank below or fill one out at any Publix Market from Vero Beach to Homestead and drop it in the colorful entry box at Publix. There's no purchase required. Enter as many times as you wish, but you must be 18 to enter and all entries must be received by 9:00 P.M. Wednesday, September 24.

A representative of the Miami Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America will draw the lucky winners. Winners will be notified immediately. You need not be present to win.

Enter today and you may find yourself celebrating your own Hawaiian Food Festival with the natives.

WESTERN AIRLINES. THE ONLY WAY TO FLY.

Western offers the only thru-jet service to Honolulu with vacation packages to fit any budget. Just ask your travel agent.

German Club will meet on Sept. 12

Regular meetings and social activities of the German American Club of Stuart will resume with the regular membership meeting on Friday Sept. 12 at 7 p.m. in the First Federal Savings and Loan Building on Commercial St., Jensen Beach, it was announced by Joe Freitag, president.

Main topic of the meeting will be the finalization of plans for the seventh annual Oktoberfest which will take place on Sept. 27 at the Port St. Lucie Community Center, Prima Vista Rd.

Also to be discussed will be the plans for the newly formed Ladies Auxiliary with Elfrieda Stegemann as president, and the purchase of liability insurance which will be recommended by the members of the executive board.

Webb attends Atlanta seminar

Dr. Jack L. Webb of Webb Chiropratic Clinic and his staff recently returned from a weekend of intensive post-graduate training in Atlanta. The seminar, held at the Sheraton Downtown Hotel, featured presentations by internationally-known experts on nutrition and roentgenology.

The former Miss America, D. Kylene Brandon, also spoke to the group and gave an exercise demonstration for Chiropractic Assistants and the doctors' wives.

The Webb Clinic also announced two new additional services to the community. First is computerized bio-equilibrum testing which will identify body imbalances and deficiencies and adjust metabolism through proper nutrition and diet.

Second, Webb added a vascular analyzer which monitors and records blood flow changes for more accurate diagnosis. This information may give early recognition of a developing condition, oftentimes before clinical symptoms become obvious, such as varicose veins, arterioscleroses, heart related conditions, headaches, dizziness and visual disturbances.

Yoga class

A 10 week yoga class wil be offered for adults who are interested in improving their health and adding a new dimension to their lives.

The class will begin at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, September 24 at the Stuart Community Education Center which is located on the Stuart Middle School campus. Interested students may enroll at the first class meeting. The fee for this course is $5.00.

For more information please call Dick Sievinsen at 287-4111 between 6 - 9 p.m. Monday thru Thursday.

Review earnings for SS checks

With the year more than half over, now is a good time for people who get social security checks and who are working to review their earnings.

It may be that a person has earned more or less than he or she expected and that could affect annual security checks.

The general rule is that a person can receive all checks for the year if earnings do not exceed the annual exempt amount. In 1988, this amount is $5,000 for people 65 or older and $5,720 for people under 65.

If earnings exceed the annual exempt amount, then $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the limit.

There is a monthly test that can be used the first year a person has a month he or she does little work even though annual earnings exceed the limit. Under this test, a person can get a check for any month he or she earns less than the monthly limit or does little work in self-employment. The 1988 monthly limit is $417 for people 65 or over and $310 for people under 65.

LIFTING PASSENGERS up towards the afternoon sky, the 70 foot high balloon proved more fun for many than any ferris wheel ride. Both the balloon and the crowds were on hand to celebrate the opening of First Federal Savings and Loan of Martin County. (Photo by Cathie Farago)

First Federal of Martin opens E Ocean branch

It looked like the carnival had come to Stuart last Saturday.

East Ocean Boulevard was filled with policemen directing traffic and throngs of children hurridly dragging their parents to the scene of all the activity.

Causing all the commotion was the presence of a 70-foot high hot air balloon, located on the grounds of the new First Federal Savings and Loan of Martin County.

William T. Wallis, president, said, "We chose the balloon ride to emphasize the point that First Federal is on top of Stuart's financial needs."

To the children however, the important thing was that the balloon floated on top of the highest tree. And they wanted a ride. Both young and old alike waited their turn in line until it was time to step into the basket. Although the balloon was teathered to the ground, a few older faces expressed concern over a possible Wizard of Oz remake. But the youngsters, as always, stole the show. Wide eyed and grinning, they'd peer down over the side and wave at their friends and breathlessly remark that the ride was better than any ferris wheel.

Afterwards, they'd run inside the building for refreshments and a chance to win a free trip anywhere in the United States.

The opening of the branch office brings First Federal's total locations to seven. The East Ocean office, located across from the Ocean East Mall, is the second branch added this year.

Wallis feels that "First Federal will continue to offer new services and new locations as the needs of our customers increase."

Stuart Woman begin season

The Woman's Club of Stuart will start the 1980-81 season by holding a covered dish luncheon at noon and a business meeting at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, September 17 at the clubhouse on East Ocean Blvd.

The program will be a book review by the popular Frank A. Bostwick of Mangonia Park.

The Art Exhibit will be watercolors by Peggy Varga of Stuart. Ruth Wisner and her committee will serve as hostesses.

The International and Public Affairs department will meet on Friday, September 19, at 10 a.m. The topic will be, "The World in 1980." The discussion will be led by Elizabeth Wendelboe, and Edna Carter will be the hostess.

Oil, acrylic painting courses

Adult and community education, in cooperation with Stuart Recreation Department, will be starting two classes in Oil and Acrylic Painting on Tuesday, September 16. The classes will meet from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. The very beginner to the very advanced will be welcome. Nancy Iannone will be the instructor. This class will be held at the Stuart Recreation Center on Flagler Avenue.

Sandtrap

BY MIKE SANDY

Should any group or institution decide to present Master Degrees in Golf, the name of Sam Davis will surely be presented as a highly qualified candidate. Degrees in any field of endeavor are awarded for wisdom, knowledge and experience and Sam Davis has an abundance of all three, having spent the better part of more than 50 years around the game of golf.

Sam and his wife Geraldine recently purchased a home on Fairway Point just off the eighth tee of the Sinners Golf Course at the Sandpiper resort, where he serves as in independent teaching pro (by appointment only). Geraldine, known more familiarly as Jerry, helps "chuck" Johnson in the Sinner's pro shop.

Like countless number of young people, children of immigrant parents, who found it difficult to find "a way in life," Sam was fortunate that his parents made their living quarters near the Philadelphia Country Club where Sam at the age of 12 was introduced to the caddymaster by his older brother John.

It was Tom Grubber, caddymaster, who gave Sam his first assignment and it was Grubber who found it difficult to pronounce the last name of so many of the youngsters who were from immigrant parents and more often than not gave each kid a name he could easily call and remember. He told Sam and brother John he couldn't pronounce Ranisiski, so he called them the Davis boys.

While his memory for names didn't serve him well, Grubber could always remember Sam as the kid who did such a good job and was singled out by many of the members who took a liking to the kid who was forever trying to please.

Sam was later utilized as a ball "chagger" and then was brought into the golf shop by Head Pro Ed Dudley, who taught him the art of repairing and making golf clubs. Dudley also took a "shine" to the kid and took time to teach him the rudiments of the game.

He found Sam Davis a willing student. It was through this training that Sam Davis joined the legion of golfing greats who came on the scene after advancing through the stages as prescribed by Dudley. In fact, Sam Davis still uses a putter he made in 1938 while working under Dudley.

It was Dudley who brought young Sam Davis to the Augusta National Course where Dudley served as head pro during the winter season when that famed course was open for limited play, most for the northerners who spent their winter vacations in the South. It was at Augusta that Sam first met the immortal Bobby Jones with whom he played many times.

Sam joined Pro Ralph Hutchison as assistant pro at the Saucon Valley C.C. in Bethleham, Pa., in 1941 where he was teaching pro for four years, leaving to take a position at Philmont c.c. in Philadelphia under Matt Kowal. It was in that year that Sam Davis started to come into his own as a proficient student of the game, having won the Philadelphia section of the PGA.

He got his first head pro job in 1948 at the Woodcrest C.C. in Haddonfield, N.J. where he stayed 12 years. When Davis left Philmont he was replaced by another former caddy, Ted Kroll.

The year 1947 was one of the most eventful in his colorful life and career. While participating in the National PGA in St. Louis, Mo., Sam convinced Geraldine Chipser to become Mrs. Sam Davis.

They have gained many friends along the way. Wherever they have gone and wherever they go, you'll know that Sam and Jerry will be among the fine folks who want to be surrounded by just plain, honest and sincere people.

Power squad boating course starts soon

Men, women and teens who want to improve their nautical knowledge and boat-handling skills may wish to join the 2.5 million Americans who have already taken safe boating classes offered by members of United States Power Squadrons (USPS).

Registration for fall classes is now underway at most of the squadrons in District 8, which includes 17 squadrons between Key West and Vero Beach.

Among the subjects being taught over a 10-week period are piloting, charting and boat trailering. Students are asked to pay a nominal fee for classroom materials.

Boat ownership is not required. Those who successfully complete the course will receive a certificate.

USPS, the world's largest private boating fraternity, has been offering this boating course as a public service almost since its inception in 1914.

The next course starting in this area will be offered by the St. Lucie River Power Squadron beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 30 at Martin County High School, SR 76, Stuart.

"Why spend money on electricity when you could spend it on something else?"

Watt-Wise Living™ pays. Just ask Mr. and Mrs. Renaud of West Palm Beach. They've been saving on their electric bill ever since they moved into their new home. Their average monthly bills in their centrally air conditioned four-bedroom home have been around $80 in the summer months, $65 in winter.

What's Watt-Wise Living? It's a combination of features that meet FPL's energy-saving standards and can be easily included in the construction of a new home. Over a period of years they can save you substantially more than they cost.

Watt-Wise™ homes have cost-saving features like extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar or heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump. Power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up.

Today, there are many ways to save on electricity without giving up comfort. You'll find them in FPL's Watt-Wise Living Program. Today, it's one of the wisest investments you could make. Stop by your local FPL office and pick up a free brochure.

Opposition grows to plan for sending water into St. Lucie

Opposition is mounting to proposals by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to divert waters rich in nutrients from flowing into Lake Okeechobee by sending the water into canals that eventually flow into the St. Lucie River estuary.

As a means to lessen pollution of the lake, Corps officials have come up with six different proposals for diverting the nutrient enriched waters of Nubbin Slough and Taylor Creek from flowing into the north end of the lake. The proposals include one to build a reservoir between Indiantown and Okeechobee and to send the water into it. Then, the water would be sent down a new canal to hook up with the western end of canal C-23 in St. Lucie County. That canal eventually flows into the north fork of the St. Lucie River.

Other plans call for sending water down to the St. Lucie Canal in Martin County, then east to a point near the St. Lucie Locks. At that point, a new canal would carry water north to C-23. Some variations to the latter plan include storing the water in a reservoir before putting it into the St. Lucie Canal.

Already, the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council staff, the Stuart city commission, and General Development Corporation have expressed opposition to the proposals, and last week the Martin County Commission joined that opposition when they unanimously approved a resolution suggested by Commissioner Frank Wacha of Jensen Beach.

That resolution called for the Corps to redesign the plans to impound the nutrient-enriched waters in more reservoirs and to allow no outlets to any canals that would eventually end up in the St. Lucie River estuary.

In addition to those groups expressing opposition to the Corps proposals Port St. Lucie City Manager Mike Szunyog issued a letter this week which states opposition to the proposals. He notes that a goal of the city's comprehensive plan is to protect the North Fork, and adds that no water diversion plan should contribute to the degradation of the river.

In addition to keeping the Nubbin Slough and Taylor Creek water from the lake, Corps officials say the proposals would supply water for irrigation of agricultural lands in St. Lucie County.

Before any plan is adopted or rejected, a public hearing will be conducted.

Five priorities set for area bicycle paths

BY BOB FRYER

Work has begun on a bicycle path along SR 707 in an area where a Florida Institute of Technology student was killed last May when a car crashed into the student's bicycle.

Though the path now under construction is to be only three blocks long, from Waveland Avenue east to Hillcrest Lane, (opposite the 7-11 store) it runs over a hill, where bicyclists could be more vulnerable to cars than on flat stretches of the road.

The work now underway heads a list of five bike path sections that County Commissioner Frank Wacha included in a list of bike path priorities on Monday. He noted that there is $50,000 in special taxing district funds available for bike paths in the Jensen-Rio area during the coming fiscal year, and said the segments of bike paths will be built as time and weather permit.

The list of priorities, in the order Wacha gave them includes:

1. The work now underway along SR 707.

2. Construction of a path along Outrigger Resort land from Palmer Road southward down Indian River Drive to the north Sewall's Point town limit. Sewall's Point is in the process of completing a path from the north town limit to A1A. By connecting the Sewall's Point path to Palmer Road it means Sewall's Point residents can bicycle to Langford Park, as there is always a path along the side of Palmer Road from Indian River Drive to a point opposite Jensen Lanes.

3. Construction of a segment of bike path along Indian River Drive from a point near the Crossroads intersection to Riverside Village mobile home park.

4. Construction of a path along SR 707 from the southeast corner of Langford Park to Fisherman's Haven.

5. Construction of a path along Indian River Drive in front of Florida Institute of Technology.

With the possible exception of the last priority, Wacha indicated money is available for all of those priorities and that the necessary easements for all five priorities have been obtained.

When other easements become available and when there is money to build more paths, the ultimate goal is to have a path running the entire length of SR 707 from Stuart to Indian River Drive and to have a path from FIT to the Jensen Beach Causeway. However, it appears reaching that goal could be many years away.

Keeping up with the latest status on bike paths in this area is about as hard as keeping up with where existing bike path sections begin and end.

Early this year the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce set as its top priority the construction of a bike path from FIT to the causeway. Chamber officials obtained easements for the path in a number of places, but the process was slow and tedious.

In May, FIT student Cruz Marvel, 24, of Venezuela was killed when riding a bike along SR 707 near the Rick Carroll insurance office. He was the third bicyclist in a six month period to die in a traffic accident in the Jensen-Rio area and the accident brought a public outcry for more bike paths. As a result, Sewall's Point councilmen stepped up plans to build their path from A1A to the north town limit. That path is now nearly complete.

When Susan Sullivan of Jensen learned that a volunteer was needed to go door-to-door along Indian River Drive to ask for bike path easement, she took on the job. During the summer she got a number of property owners to grant easements and is hopeful that when some of the owners return this winter from northern states that they will also grant easements.

At one time, a referendum was planned for this fall for voters to decide if they wanted a bond issue to pay for more bike paths. That proposal changed from having a vote on a bond issue to having a vote on adding one mill of tax for bike paths, then was changed to having a straw vote on the idea, instead of a binding vote.

Eventually, the idea was discarded and last month the county commission approved a proposal by Wacha to set up a municipal service tax unit for the Jensen-Rio area that would allow imposing up to one mill of extra tax for a variety of services, including bike paths.

Wacha was asked the status of the municipal service tax unit Tuesday morning and said the mechanics of setting it up means it will not be operational until the 1981-82 tax year.

Since the municipal service taxing unit can not become operational until next year, Wacha has proposed that the District A (Jensen-Rio) special tax rate be raised from one to two mills for the upcoming fiscal year, with $50,000 of the money from the extra mill of tax to go toward bike paths and $50,000 to go for park acquisition. According to one county source, the extra mill would generate about $186,000 for Tax District A.

County budget hearings are set for next month and the Tax District A millage rate is to be decided at that time.

NEW BIKE PATH—County workers are installing a new bicycle path along a three-block section of SR 707 from Waveland Avenue to Hillcrest Lane. Earlier this year an FIT student died in a car-bicycle accident along this stretch of road. The new path is one of five segments included in a list of priorities by County Commissioner Frank Wacha. MAXINE BAILEY poses with the award she recently received from the Florida Association of Emergency Medical Technicians. The honor was given her for the many outstanding contributions she has done for the Jensen Area Samaritans. (Photo by Cathie Farago)

Samaritan receives award

Maxine Bailey was recently awarded a plaque for her outstanding services by the Florida Association of Emergency Medical Technicans.

She was presented that award last week, at the FAEMT meeting, held in Winter Park.

Maxine has been associated with the Jensen Area Samaritans since 1974, and has been a licensed Emergency Medical Technican since '75. During that time, she devoted her energies not only to saving lives, but to promoting the relations between the Samaritans and surrounding institutions.

Maxine has witnessed the continued expansion of communications between Indian River Community College, the Sheriff's department, and with hospitals.

"We're talking to each other," she says. And adds that although the ambulance service consists largely of volunteers, the EMT's are now being regarded as the professionals they are.

Although the Samaritans have progressed considerably since the days of its inception, Maxine says there still remain obstacles to overcome.

One continuing problem is the lack of volunteers available. "The need is there for help" she says. And adds that even if people don't want to spend the year necessary to become licensed, there are other jobs that could be filled. Some such jobs would be helping with clerical work, answering phones, or maintaining the buildings and ambulances.

Maxine feels that with current inflation, people who might normally volunteer their time are now being forced to work extra jobs just to make ends meet. She adds though, that once people take that ambulance ride to the hospital, they often return to express their appreciation Either by donations, or volunteer services.

Maxine's background included 15 years of police work in Ohio. After moving to Florida, both she and her husband have remained active in volunteering their services to various organizations.

Ailsa Dewing joins Mirror as editor

Ailsa Dewing, a veteran reporter and editor, was named news editor of The Mirror Newspapers this week by Richard E. Campbell, editor.

Dewing replaces Bob Fryer, who has taken a position of editor of the Jupiter (FL) Journal, a twice-weekly newspaper.

Dewing has been the lifestyle editor and general reporter for the Herald-Observer in Belle Glade, editor of the Lake Leader and lifestyle editor of the Clewiston News over the past two years in the Hammill Newspaper chain. Her lifestyle edition won an award last year from the Florida Press Association.

She was a reporter for the Miami Times, and was a typesetter and proofreader at the Miami Herald. Prior to that she was bureau chief of the Ottaway Newspapers in Endicott, N.Y.

She has attended State University of New York in Binghamton, Miami-Dade Community College, and seminars at the University of Florida.

Dewing will join the Mirror staff next Monday.

Hurricane preparedness is available

A special class is available through the Martin County Department of Disaster Preparedness on hurricane preparedness and on the lessons learned from Hurricane Eloise and Hurricane Frederick.

The class is free of charge and is available for presentation to any interested group.

Ballot recounting proves same tally

A recounting of ballots has proved that Hazel Watts will remain the candidate to face incumbent James Navitsky in the race for Superintendent of Schools.

The second primary, on Oct. 7, will determine who runs against Democrat Clifford Lynch in the general election.

Of the 683 absentee ballots for that race, not enough votes in favor of Wayne Bowling to bring his total count of 1,678 up to Watts' 1704.

Navitsky didn't receive enough votes to gain a majority, forcing him to run against Watts in the Oct. 7 second primary, which will determine the Republican candidate to face Democrat Lynch in the November 4 general election.

In the District One race for county commissioner, Alex Haynes won over James Rowe by 827 votes. Haynes will now face incumbent Frank Wacha in the general election.

Sherri King emerged the winner against Lavon "Bud" Bagwell in the GOP primary for the District Three commission seat. Counting the 426 absentee ballots, Bagwell and King's votes totaled 2,323 and 3,135 respectively.

A difference of 974 votes between Pamela Boswell and A. H. Pitchford gave Boswell the Republican primary for the District Five County commission seat. She will now face incumbent John Holt in the November 4 election.

In the non-partisan race, incumbent David Crandell received an overwhelming number of votes against opponent Ronald L. Drexler. Crandell received a total of 4,397 votes while Drexler captured only 2,709.

The names on the ballot sheets for the runoff primary will be few. Navitsky will be facing Watts for school superintendent.

In the statewide election for United States Senator, incumbent Dick Stone emerged winner with 1,126 votes from Martin County. He will oppose fellow Democrat Bill Gunter who received 1,109 votes, in the upcoming runoff election.

On the Republican ticket, Paula Hawkins captured 3,544 of this county's votes. She will vie with Lou Frey Jr. for the party nomination. Frey received 2,198 votes.

Total absentee votes for all candidates totaled 9,084.

According to Peggy Robbins, Supervisor of Elections, voter turnout for the primary election was 27 percent. This represents a lower figure than the previous 32 percent in 1978.

Robbins doesn't have any answer for the low voter response, saying, "I expected a much higher turnout than that."

If the primary race was not met with the expected voter interest, the second primary race in October should command even less of a performance.

"The candidates aren't going to draw people to the polls because there aren't enough of them," Robbins said. Instead, she is hoping the five questions on the referendum will prove interest enough for the needed turnout.

Rainbow Wheel meets Tuesday

The Rainbow Wheel of Martin County will meet at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 23 at the Holiday Inn Oceanside in Jensen Beach.

Following a cocktail hour, lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m.

Patricia Crow of the Visiting Nurses Association will be the guest speaker. For reservations, call 286-3307.

Ruth Bowman art on display

An art show, featuring the work of Ruth Bowman, will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20 at the Rayben-Close Artists' Registry, 2580 Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach.

Bowman has earned a solid reputation as an outstanding painter of florals and Florida landscapes.

The works of 18 artists are also on display. All artists registered with Rayben-Close will accept commissions to do work for individuals.

Chamber social

Members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce will say, "Thank goodness it's Friday" this week with a cocktail party. The social event will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Crow's Nest Restaurant in Rio.

Planned as the first in a series of social events, the party will feature hors d'oeuvres and conversation, according to Dennis Doyle, executive director of the Chamber.

"We know the season is coming, and the business people will have their hands full. So, we want to get together and have some fun," Doyle said.

Co-chairpersons of the party are Barbara Torow and Marg Paris.

Sewall's Point reviews taxation

BY CATHIE FARAGO

The issue of millage rates came under discussion at a recent Sewall's Point Town meeting.

Commissioners have voted to carry over last year's rate of 1.87 while increasing the new budget 17 percent. Allotments for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, include an 8 percent increase for the police department and $100,000 for the completion of River Road.

"It's an unholy mess," said Mayor Ed Glueckler, commenting about the net work of problems resulting from the Florida legislature.

Recently, a law was passed calling for the re-appraising of all property to 100 percent of its fair market value. Because of the short notice, the values cannot be established until early 1981.

This action has forced Sewall's Point as well as others, to set and adopt their budgets based upon an interim tax assessment.

The budget must be adopted by October 4. The referendum determining whether or not the homestead exemption will be increased will be voted on October 7.

Many believe the referendum will be passed. Martin County property appraiser Augie Malfregeot says that "Santa Claus only comes once and you don't expect him back." Although the outcome can be assumed, it still leaves a gap in determining the town's budget in time for the deadline.

After some discussion, it was voted to keep this year's millage rate of 1.87 the same. The public hearings will be Sept. 29 and Oct. 6.

Malfregeot says that the tax bills going out to residents in October will differ from those received later in that property values may be changed as well as the exemptions, depending on the homestead exemption vote.

He added that the increase may be negated by the referendum.

According to the Department of Revenue, Martin County's assessment level is assumed 80 percent, but Malfregeot adds that it's difficult to accurately determine that level. He adds that when the legislature talks about a 100 percent increase, it really isn't so.

The hypothetical cost of a sale is subtracted from the sale figure to deduct brokerage, title insurance, and other fees. The net result is that Martin County has 12 percent deducted from home sales and 15 percent on commercial and vacant property sales.

Malfregeot feels that the present situation is one where the government is pushing for all they can get from the people, who are pushing to get out of it.

Admitting that "mass appraisal is not a perfect science," Malfregeot feels that because of it, statistics cannot be placed on real estate. Rather than adopt a uniform figure of property increases for Martin County, he feels that "you have to relate to the area." Oceanfront property may increase 100 percent in one year, while another section may have only a 1 percent raise.

The paperwork, the short time frames, and a seemingly Catch 22 situation has Sewall's Point Commissioners shaking their heads.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-4946

Assisted by Peg Ray, Betty Leister

All of us had quite a scare, when a one engine airplane flew over us on the beach Saturday. We were all sure it wouldn't make it to the airport, and the next thing we saw it land on the beach, a short distance north of the public beach. No one was hurt although the ambulance was there almost as quickly as the plane went down.

Betty & Bob Leister are home from a vacation, also attending their son's wedding Sept. 6. Peter to Elaine Nee Miller at Norristown, Pa. Betty & Bob spent 3 days in Atlantic City, enjoying the casinos, (didn't mention their luck). Spent two days in Connecticut, visiting Bob's brother Ronald & family.

Now that you folks up north are packing to return to H.Out soon, be sure to bring your good discards for the bazaars and auction sales coming up.

Frank & Millie Pizz returned to H.Out Thursday, having a wonderful trip this summer. They left their new grandson in New Jersey, when he was seven days old. Off to California to visit their friends and relatives. On their way back they stopped in Dallas, Tex., and was in that terrible hot spell, also was too close to the hurricane!

While in Mississippi they toured the Vicksburg Memorial Park, where the Civil War was fought. New Orleans, La., had them fascinated for three days. But now they are busy weeding and dusting, and glad to be home at H.Out.

Helen Allison has left for Cleveland, Ohio, to visit an aunt who will be celebrating her 90th birthday Oct. 4. She also is a great aunt to Betty Nagy. How wonderful!

The Holiday Out team in a mixed league on Wednesday night at Jensen Lanes has started the new season. They have won seven out of eight points.

Cape Cod is lonesome now for the G. Machas as their children left for their homes. George & Marian do see few folks from H.Out that live nearby once in a while. It won't be long till they return, among friends.

Pat Sykora & Dell Stam have been enjoying camper trailing, with some interesting trips in Florida. They visited Miami Seaquarium which they really enjoyed. The Killer Whale was quite a performer. Then they drove to Sugar Loaf Key and boarded a plane to the Dry Tortugas, the plane flew low enough to enjoy the beautiful colors in the water and the many fish. The second trip went to Sanibel Island, to shells, and enjoyed three days at Busch Gardens.

Ethel & Bob Schilborns returned Tuesday from their vacation, very enthusiastic about their trip. After leaving the ranch in N. Carolina they drove to Tenn., Tennessee, then on to Opryland. After a few days of touring Nashville they went on to St. Louis, Mo. to visit a week with Cliff & Harriet Byers. It was real hot there!

We have learned that Carl Eury has been ill most of the summer. But hoping to return to H.Out soon.

Russ Wells also has been hospitalized this summer, but is improving now. We all here send our condolences to wife Pauline, whose mother passed away in August.

Four more owners have returned, they are the Bob Youngs, Frank Pizz, Ross Burgess's, and Geo. Poynter's.

Wedding Anniversaries, congratulations, Vergual & Harry Smith, Dorothea & Wes Parker, Cathy & Peter Van Wyngaarden, Irene & Willard Krause 9-20; Joyce & Pat O'teri, Ethel & Bob Schildhorn 9-21; Gertrude & James Simpson 9-23; Pinney & Zoe Bennett, Albina & Leo Collette 9-25; and Sue & Robert Allen 9-26.

Dot and Brownie Browne went to the Holiday Out summer reunion in Michigan last month and wrote that they enjoyed seeing many of their friends there.

They have really been on the go in their motor home all summer, Michigan, Maine, Ohio to visit Dot's cousin, and then made a sudden decision to visit the Maritime Provinces of Canada.

They struck it lucky in the Maritimes as the weather, which had been cold and rainy most of the summer, was glorious while they were there. Cape Breton and the Cabot Trail were particularly beautiful.

They re-entered the States at Houlton, Maine, and took the ferry to Freye Island in Sebago to visit another cousin of Dot's. It surely is nice to have cousins scattered around in picturesque spots!

Brownes will be in New Hampshire for the rest of their sojourn but are looking forward to getting back to Holiday Out probably sometime in October after the fall foliage extravaganza.

Jensen Kiwanis plans reorganization meeting

An emergency meeting of the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club heralds the beginning of a reorganization effort with the cooperation of the Stuart Kiwanis Club, it was announced this week by Hugh Carren, president.

The meeting will be held at the Jensen Beach-Chamber of Commerce office at 7:30 p.m. on Monday Sept 22.

Ed Norton, past-president of the Stuart Kiwanis Club will attend, assisting in the reorganization.

"We want to find out why the members have not turned out for meetings, why the membership has declined to 30, and what the Kiwanis Club can do to spark interest that once had the Jensen Beach club one of the top service clubs in the area," Carren said.

He urged all members to attend the meeting.

In the past, the Kiwanis Club has raised money for youth activities at Langford Park, for the Salvation Army, and was active in the July 4 celebration.

Mr. & Mrs. Carl Menninger

Menninger-Rydell exchange vows

Sandra Rae Rydell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence T. Rydell, of Jensen Beach, was married to Carl Underhill Menninger on Aug. 16 in the Redeemer Lutheran Church of Stuart. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John U. Menninger, of Stuart.

Pastor Thomas R. Zehnder officiated the services. Maid of honor was Miss Sharon Heggie and bridesmaids were Mary Johnson, Jeanne Johnson, and Missi Pearl.

Malcom Menninger, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Scott Rydell, Ronald Rydell and Michael Green Jr.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Mariner Cay Yacht Club in Stuart.

The bride is a graduate of Martin County High School, and attended Indian River Junior College.

The bridegroom is also a Martin County High School graduate and attended Indian River Junior College. He is the owner of the Sport Scene tennis boutique in Stuart.

The couple has taken residence at the River Club Condominium.

Jaycees aid M.D. telethon

The Stuart-Jensen Beach Jaycees became part of the largest single fund-raising effort in Florida Jaycee history recently when they contributed $1,500 to the Jerry Lewis Telethon benefitting Muscular Dystrophy.

According to local chapter president Randy Ackers his membership and co-chairman Dan Brown, Danny England and Ton Kammel raised the money through a recent chicken barbeque at the Tropical Farms Fire Department.

"We are grateful to our community for helping us contribute this money to help those less fortunate than we," Brown said. "One of the goals of the Jaycees is to help the community and we are dedicated to working with the Muscular Dystrophy cause because of its special place in our hearts."

Book Fair at JB Elementary

A paperback "Book Fair" will be conducted at Jensen Beach Elementary School from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 18 through Wednesday, Sept. 24.

The fair is designed to provide books of the students' own choosing for fun and informative reading so they can enlarge their home libraries, or for purchase as gifts.

The fair will be in the media center at the school, and will also be open for the PTA Open House meeting from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 18.

Academic Booster Club meets Monday

The first general membership meeting of the Academic Booster Club of Martin County High School will be held Monday, Sept. 22, in the MCHS cafeteria at 7:30 p.m.

Every member of the community is urged to attend and to participate in the planning of ways to encourage, to assist, to publicize and to reward the students as they work to achieve their goals.

Mrs. Regina Kelley, who helped organize a similar group at Gainesville High in Gainesville, Fl., will explain the purpose of the club and illustrate ways in which parents, teachers, businessmen, retirees and students can all be a part of giving a boost to every child at every grade level. "Academic" usually refers just to curriculum, but in this case it also means extra curricular clubs and other school related activities.

Could commercial financing from Southeast help insure the success of your 10-year business plan?
It's entirely possible. Southeast Bank's commercial financing makes use of such assets as accounts receivable, inventories and equipment as collateral for credit. Which can be especially helpful if yours is a company whose rapid growth rate is creating severe cash flow pressures.
A Southeast business specialist can show you how to marshal these key assets so you can expand capacity, achieve a dependable rate of cash flow, open up new markets, increase return on equity, and even acquire other businesses.
In fact, the Southeast approach to asset-based financing could provide you with a permanent source of credit requiring no compensating balances or periodic paydowns.
Commercial financing is only one way Southeast can help businesses of every size. In addition to a broad range of commercial loans, we can assist you with highly efficient cash management systems, international trade financing, and investment of excess corporation cash.
And while Southeast offers the largest resources of any banking group in Florida – over $5 billion in assets – all our services are available through just one person: your Southeast banker. To learn more about how he or she can help you during the growth years ahead, just contact your nearest Southeast Bank

IRCC Itinerary

The practical world of business and the pure, abstract area of academics are often seen as miles apart, both in purpose and procedure. Those who succeed in business generally pride themselves on their hard-nosed, realistic approach to life, while those in academics like to work with ideas and innovations. Both the practical and more idealistic views are useful and necessary in a society, but there must be cooperation between the two for either to be really beneficial. At Indian River Community College, this gap between academics and business is closed by the Public and Industry Services Division. Through this division, classes are offered to train existing or potential employees for industry, seminars are given to help employees make the most of their job skills and to learn new ones, and programs are especially designed to meet the educational needs of various businesses. This division provides ways for the business sector to get just what it needs from IRCC -- and for IRCC to make a very tangible contribution to our community.

A UNIQUE CAREER OPPORTUNITY

If you have ever thought that you might like to work in aircraft construction, IRCC and Grumman Aerospace Corporation have a unique career opportunity for you. Because of extensive, long-term contracts, Grumman in Stuart has an immediate need for trained employees, and IRCC has agreed to offer a free four-week training program at the IRCC Mueller Center in Vero Beach. This training may well lead to a job with Grumman -- one such class has already "graduated," and all of the "graduates" were hired. The next class will begin September 22, and will meet from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Bus transportation from the Fort Pierce campus to the Mueller Center can be arranged if necessary. Looking for a new career without a lot of expensive training? Don't miss out on this valuable opportunity. For more details, call the college, ext. 328.

WARD CLERK PROGRAM

The Ward Clerk Program at IRCC is another course that trains you for a specific job and does not take a long time for you to complete. To be offered in Room J-123 on the Main Campus and at the Lawnwood Medical Center, the non-credit class will meet from 8 a.m. to noon on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays beginning Oct. 6. Interviews and registration will be conducted on Friday, Oct. 3 from 10 a.m. to noon in Room J-128. Only 30 students will be accepted for the class; those who are interested should stop by the IMTS Health Department, Room J-206, sometime before Oct. 3 for preliminary information. Students who pass the 10-week course will be awarded IRCC Certificates for Successful Completion.

PRACTICAL NURSING DEADLINE

Sept. 26 is the date to remember if you're interested in applying for the January Practical Nursing Program at IRCC. This has been designed as a one-year program that qualifies students to take the state exam to become Licensed Practical Nurses. For more information, call the IRCC Guidance Division, ext. 223. Don't forget -- Friday, Sept. 26 is the last day that applications will be accepted for the Spring PN Program.

QUILTING IN OKEECHOBEE

Registration is now underway for the quilting class being offered at the Okeechobee County Library Conference Room beginning Oct. 2. Classes will meet Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon, and will include the history, types, and different uses for quilts, as well as "how-to" techniques for patchwork, applique, quick quilting, lap quilting, and cathedral window quilts. The cost of this non-credit class is $8, and enrollment will be limited to 15 students. For more information, call 763-5905.

NEW DIRECTIONS IN STUART

"New Directions", a class offered by the IRCC Women's Program to help you re-evaluate the direction that your life is taking and to make the changes that you feel are necessary, will be offered in the evenings in Stuart beginning Sept. 29. Topics such as values, decisions, interests, job search skills, goals, and group support will be discussed. The class will meet Monday through Thursday from 6 to 10:40 p.m. For more information, call the college, ext. 229.

CONSUMER KNOW-HOW

A seminar on "Consume Know-How" will be conducted in Stuart on Sept. 27 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. by author and consumer specialist Shirley Wagener. Participants will be informed of their rights as Florida consumers, and of ways to get the most for their money. The $4 fee will include lunch. Registration for this interesting and worthwhile seminar must be completed by Sept. 19. For more information, call the college, ext. 229.

HOW TO IMPROVE CASH FLOW

QUESTION: I own an 18-unit apartment building which I manage myself. I have the feeling that there is something I could be doing to improve my cash flow. Would you give me a few tips on how professional property managers increase cash flow?

ANSWER: There are many things that can be done to increase the cash flow on income property. The three major areas are: (1) increasing rental income, (2) descreasing operating expenses, and (3) restructuring financing.

Professional property managers keep close tabs on competitors to determine what they charge for apartments. If they determine that their properties are lagging behind the competition, they generally will raise rents to market level each time a new lease is renewed. In these times of rapidly escalating rents, it is important to monitor the market constantly, in order to achieve the maximum rental income.

There are several areas where operating expenses can be reduced -- often with a minimum of expenditure. For example, replacement shower heads can be installed. These reduce water usage from approximately eight gallons per minute to three gallons or less. This saves two ways: savings from reducing the usage of water and savings from reducing the energy used to heat the water.

Periodically, you should review your investment position with an eye to the possible restructuring of your financing. Often, an investor can reduce his overall debt service by placing a new loan requiring less amortization than a loan which has been in place for an extended period of time. This can be true even in times of increasing interest rates.

Professional property management (even of smaller income properties) will often pay for itself. This is because of the professional's expertise and the cost savings inherent to group purchases of goods and services.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

Driver robbed in Jensen

An afternoon robbery left William Beckman $643 poorer.

On Sunday, Sept. 14, at 4 p.m., Beckman, a meat delivery man, had reached Jensen Beach after finishing his route in Fort Pierce. As he stopped to deliver food to a local restaurant, two armed men forced him back into his truck.

At that point, he was driven around the block and forced to hand over all his money, Beckman had $643 in cash resulting from payments made on previous stops. The two men took the money, and left the five checks.

According to Martin County Detective Sgt. Charles Jones, Beckman, who drives for Lenard's Meat Company of Fort Pierce, was accosted by two black males. The only description given was that they were about 5'8" tall and of medium build. A basic description Jones says could fit almost anyone.

Beckman told Jones that some meat had been taken from the truck earlier that day, in Fort Pierce. Jones believes this incident "might be a repercussion" of that.

To date, no clues have yet been found to lead to any arrests. The manager of the Villa Capri Restaurant says that none of his employees saw the incident happen, for the restaurant was closed for business during that time.

Jensen is ready for expansion

Jensen Beach Elementary School is just about ready to make room for more students.

Within the near future, additional classrooms will be finished. This will allow for not only more children but programs as well.

Dale Clark, principal, states that although enrollment is down from last year's peak of 850 students, the current 750 children will undoubtedly be joined by additional ones before long.

In the wings waiting for the new rooms, are new programs waiting for their prospective students. According to Clark, kindergarten through third grade will soon participate in what is called the PREP program.

Issued under a state mandate, it is designed to "stratify the little ones into three categories," says Clark. The first group will consist of those with physical impairments. Special attention will be given in anticipating those concerns. Developmental strategy will be offered in the second program. This group will consist of children who have little problem with learning skills and who represent a large segment of the school children. The third classification will be what Clark calls enrichment. That goal is to furnish those who are ahead of the others, with the specific tools for accelerated education.

Clark adds that although all children from kindergarten through third grade will be put through an initial testing to determine appropriate levels, no one will be physically divided.

In addition to the PREP program, the expansion of several others will also come into play shortly. A reading room will allow children to work with a resource teacher. A music room is almost completed, and the media center will expand to allow for both more storage and work area. Additionally, the guidance department will soon hold conference rooms for parents and teachers. Clark says that this is "an area that has been sadly neglected for a long, long, time."

The new additions bring Jensen Beach Elementary's capacity up to 762 students, not including the present portable classrooms. The extra needed space "will give us a lot more elbow room," says Clark.

Sewall's studies ordinance

Residents from Sewall's Point attended the recent commission meeting to voice both their support and disfavor of the existing parking ordinance.

The ordinance, which calls for any non-conforming vehicle to be parked out of view, as been challenged by some dissatisfied residents.

A few months prior, a Sewall's Point resident, Richard Trevison, was issued a citation for illegally parking his 1978 Ranchero in his driveway. According to town rules, a Ranchero constitutes a non-conforming vehicle.

Mac Stuckey, Trevison's attorney, presented a petition of 202 signatures, representing those wanting a zoning revision, at the meeting.

Stuckey's argument stood against the "selective enforcement of the ordinance," he said. It was his opinion that the law was too ambigious in content thereby allowing "too much room to play with."

Stuckey felt that it should be revised to a more readable form that laymen could readily understand.

There were also those present who felt that any loosening of the existing ordinance would eventually erode the character Sewall's Point has tried to attain. In addition, some felt that any home buyer can be made fully aware of town restrictions before purchasing in that area.

The result of the meeting ended in the appointing of a committee to further study the problem. The committee will consist of commissioners Bill Barton, Dana DeWindt, Mayor Ed Gluckow, and Police Chief, Mat Matteszeuki. Together, with members from planning and zoning, a decision will be reached. It is not known at this time, when or how long that will take.

For the moment, Stuckey says he'll wait for "the committee to do its job first. What course of action he and Trevison will take should the decision be to hold the status quo, has not yet been determined.

Whatever decision, Stuckey maintains the ordinance "has severe problems with it."

Goodbye Bob

What's not to like about Bob Fryer? Nothing, as everyone will tell you who knows him.

Bob is one of the most accomplishing, obliging and generous creatures the Lord ever made. And we'll be very grateful to him some day for sending him to Tequesta. They're gaining a good citizen. Bob can be counted on to show up at a fund-raiser at the drop of a hat.

I first learned about Bob's talents while working with him at the Fort Pierce News-Tribune. Quiet though he may be, Bob loves a good sport. It's said that he even loves other people's good sports. And that's certainly true. Bob is a complete man. His idea of a pleasant evening is to spend it at home when he has one to spend. Usually, however, he is caught up in one of the innumerable missions at Port St. Lucie Hospital, the Junior Civic Club, and at his church, as his wife isn't just another in Bob's scrupulous fashion. Every time I've known him he's been in the middle of meeting folks, organizing committees or assisting local police brass.

Fryer civilized.

I think he just likes getting out among folks. He knows "I think I'll stop by Bob's office today. It's loaded up in the corner of the big bay which I'll unpack next week unless I move first."

Yes, we've going to miss old Bob. We'll miss his ready listening ear, his cheery hugs and his willingness to help with the mundane office work. We'll miss his occasional aberrational in spelling. But most of all, we'll miss his unfailing good humor and evidences of humor as easy to live with day by day. Don't let a stranger fool. It's a good trustworthy he is. You hardly have to see the twinkle to get that impression. "Bob" is spelled as unfashionably by Tequesta Campbell any given Tuesday night.

One reason we'll miss Bob is that he has left us so much to do. At Florida State Press Association, he left us the job of losing out his title to "Best Columnist of the Year." Failed as easy to come by. Come on, Bob, leave us at least a few hints as to your secret anyway. You can leave out the details as how to get thrown into the pool along with the boss.

Goodbye, my convertible

The engine's warming and music, and I realize it's time to go home. Bob Fryer is taking my convertible.

I bought her from John Zimmerman in 1969. She was red, then, a bright, sober car made her a conversation as I rode down Commercial Street, her humming at the wind.

I just knew I was getting the car, and for long before Fryer thought about giving up his beautiful Ford to The Mirror.

After about the fourth year the engine is disintegrated, and the rear [illegible] I was the envy of my office. I got a new leg on her.

[illegible] The motor was cool, and I was not overheat, and [illegible] frequency. She [illegible] I never did name her. Most people have names for cars, but I just loved the car convertible and I guess its name it.

In 1977, the paint was chipped and faded, and rust started breaking through the trunk and hood lid. I took her to a paint shop and had her painted a copper, and she looked new again. I would swear that she performed better with new paint.

Though I loved the four convertible, and she knew it, she also knew that I was a reporter at heart. She was always [illegible] stories of prospects, country gone, high pools and traditions. Her antenna was always stuffed with ugly cigarette butts.

In June 1977, I had her painted again, this time and got her another top. Again, she responded by running perfectly and giving me no trouble. I loved her, and she did her job.

It was in 1978 that I got the yellow car. It had a CB radio, and all the bells and whistles that came with it, but it was still a used that I am in worth and pay.

I couldn't part with the blue convertible, so I sold it to The Mirror [illegible] The motor was changed for the car, and she began serving it as her daily transport.

I think the blue convertible was different, even though Peggy really came to trust her with respect and tender care.

The [illegible] and then her transmission. In a fit of pique, the transmission went to hell in a hand basket, leaving the whirlpool mark for my father mission.

Peg continued to drive her until earlier this year, and I would occasionally [illegible] to have Peg, [illegible] a sweet convertible [illegible] a sweet convertible [illegible] much environmentally get well. However the air-conditioning wouldn't get cool.

Just as things seemed to become friendly between Peg and the convertible, I brought the red model to The Mirror [illegible] We decided to sell the blue convertible [illegible] and since Bob Fryer was a convertible nut, I let him have it. She was able to stay in the family that way.

The third owner was just too much for her. The week after Fryer took the car, he was driving to the Florida Press Convention across state and the [illegible] transmission expired in the middle of a monotone stretch of State Road 60, west of Clewiston.

She was really angry. An hour later, Bob tried the ignition, and I guess she figured that she had been her point and agreed to run. Since then, Bob and the [illegible] have gotten along fine.

When I recommended Bob for the job as editor of the Jupiter Journal, I didn't think he would take the blue convertible along. But, he will, and our new editor will have exited. My little blue girl should search for my first love and [illegible] to [illegible].

It is the custom in the south that, on death of a [illegible] that [illegible] dismembered [illegible] and [illegible] pressed the 100,000 mark years.

I just hope that Bob continues to treat her with respect, and brings her back occasionally to visit.

We will all miss her.

Ad-lang as there's a little room left, I ought as well mention the fact that Bob Fryer finally has his own newspaper to run. He is leaving.

No more Mr. Nice Guy, Bob. Now you'll be just like us, with the full responsibility of a staff to worry about, a budget to meet, a battle with the general manager every week over new money pages, and how to fill them. There will be the fights with those who want space, and those who don't want space.

Fryer, you're going to be the bottom line — where there ain't no place else to go. You are it.

And, you'll have heartaches, like me. You'll have a good man or woman who will become a key in your staff, and will suddenly walk up to you and say, "I've got a job as another newspaper." And you'll think, "after I have taught them, how could they."

And you'll wake up at night wondering how to tell that very nonsensical word that is left in your life.

But, there will be a sense of pride in that you trained that person for that better job, and made it possible for that person up in his chosen career of journalism.

just like I feel.

And, a Corps cop-out

The recent widening plan of the Corps of Engineers is a cop-out. It was the Corps assistance or self-raise search access strips to qualify for federal assistance that started the Jaws Jaw Inlaction campaign at the first place.

It must depend upon who is the District Engineer to know what the federal government is doing. The district engineer a few years ago told local officials that such search access strips would set Martin County qualify for federal erosion assistance all along the Hutchinson Island shoreline.

Now the present district engineer tells us [illegible]

The turnabout has a cause can be made if the big-fang of the Corps.

The Martin County Commissioners should ask both our congressman and senators in Washington to look into the matter to see if the Corps will keep its word.

The search access strips have since the pot they were created to the inside the entire length of Hutchinson Island available to the public. That should qualify the island for federal erosion funding, as it was meant to do.

Classes for boaters

All residents who love the water and water sports should take the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary classes in boating skills and seamanship that begin next Monday.

The tragic accidents in the St. Lucie Inlet prove that such training is needed. Even the passengers is a test need the training in the event that the boat captain is not qualified.

For information, call 334-8788 or 461-8257.

Register to vote

The primary election has proven one thing that people will turn out to vote when there are issues to be answered.

Unfortunately, not all are registered to vote, nor are all acquainted with the issues even if they are registered.

In Martin County, the voter registration office in the Martin County Courthouse will be open six days a week to register voters for the general election from now to October 4.

The first step, voter registration, must be taken by as many who are not registered as we can encourage to turn out. The right to vote is also the responsibility to vote. We hope the people will register.

Then, the people should learn as much as they can about the candidates and the issues. Only an informed electorate can elect good government.

EDUCATION
by
ALLEN F. BREWER

Oh, it's nice to be receiving
Of a gift or priceless worth,
EDUCATION, in this modern age of ours.
Abe Lincoln realized this gift
And studied law at night,
In that cabin in the woods by candle-light.

But always just remember you can't get those hours back,
Which are spent in trivial talk or thoughtless acts;
For the "game that laid the golden egg"
Is subtle in its meaning,
If we kill that goose no eggs will be forthcoming.

So remember what you're here for,
Don't throw tantrums just for sport,
Young ideals can dull with aging
When they loose their true import.

For the world won't stop revolving,
The it may seem somewhat tiring,
You'll be needed when you grow up
With the knowledge you're acquiring.

Diversion plan prospects bleak

When the Corps of Engineers channelized the Kissimmee River the plan was to get the water from the lakes near Orlando to Lake Okeechobee in a straight line and open tens of thousands of acres to agricultural development.

It did just that, except the Corps of Engineers didn't know that the meandering Kissimmee River was filtering itself by meandering. The straight line is the same transport as many a mile of nutrients as the slow, but nutrient ledger.

Now Lake Okeechobee is almost a toxic lake.

The proposal to dump Nubbin Slough and Taylor Creek into the north fork of the St. Lucie River, via a system of canals, is just about the same thing.

Anyone who has seen Taylor Creek or Nubbin Slough knows that both are loaded with the nutrients from dairy farms and citrus acreage. Add to that the nutrients from the agricultural lands already passing into the St. Lucie River and you have the potential for a dead North Fork of the St. Lucie River.

It is our hope that the Corps abandons its plans for diversion of waters. The North Fork is too beautiful to destroy.

I shall miss you

I'm leaving The Mirror.

In fact, by the time you read this I'll be gone.

I love The Mirror and its staff, and think the Jensen Beach, Port St. Lucie area is one of the most delightful places a person could live.

But I have a new job and it's an opportunity I simply can't pass up. I'm to be editor of the Jupiter-Tequesta Journal, a twice-weekly paper which seems to have a bright future ahead of it.

I look forward to the challenge of serving as the Journal editor, and look back on my four years at The Mirror with great fondness.

I'd been in the newspaper business for almost six years when I came to The Mirror, and felt I knew quite a bit about the variety of tasks involved in producing a paper. If you don't believe that, just ask Dick Campbell.

But I quickly learned I was a [illegible] newspaper. Although [illegible] The Mirror was the perfect place to learn.

That's not to say I still don't have much more to learn, but I know I wouldn't be taking on my new job if it weren't for the valuable experience I received here. And for that experience, I have the entire staff to thank, with special thanks for Dick Campbell.

My three years here have brought me in contact with some very special people, both on The Mirror staff and in the Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie communities. I will miss them as valued friends. In fact, as Jupiter is only about 35 miles south of here, I have every intention of maintaining the friendships I've made here.

My years at The Mirror have had their share of highs and lows. I can remember a couple of getting up at 4 a.m. to pick up the page negatives at the office and drive them 90 miles to the printer in Lake Placid (although [illegible] staying up late the night before to put the paper together. After the printers [illegible], it was back to Port St. Lucie, [illegible] delivering mail and flyers for a full day of delivering the papers to the racks and stores. It was a memorable experience, and I'm glad we are no longer printed in Lake Placid.

But The Mirror provided more exciting highs too, the best of which [illegible] when, when we were judged the best weekly paper in the state. It was a team accomplishment, and I am very proud to have been a part of it.

Though we provided no competition for others in the last two Great American Bath Race newspapers in Port St. Lucie, these, in retrospect, were good times at The Mirror. So too, were the times Dick took staff members on rides in his boat, the staff parties we had for most any excuse, the softball practices, and, yes, even the long Tuesday nights we spent putting The Mirror together.

I shall miss working with The Mirror staff, and the great friends we've had together. And, I shall miss the people of Jensen Beach and Port St. Lucie I've come to know as a result of my job here.

Both communities are booming, and I fear it won't be long before I'll come driving back through the town and find I literally know the two communities.

But I will take with me the knowledge that I was a part of the community that I covered the events that shaped the future of what Port St. Lucie and Jensen Beach will become.

There are many good, kind folks in Jensen and Port St. Lucie and they have made life and work here a rewarding experience. I just hope both communities don't grow so fast that when I return from time to time, I'll find I'm a stranger in the places that have felt so long been my home. I've lived in the Treasure Coast area for 10 years, and find it almost as easy as I've lived in any one place. It will be tough leaving all the memories behind, but I'm sure there are many more good things in store for Jensen and Port St. Lucie. I just hope the new life I find in Jupiter can begin to match the one the people of Jensen and Port St. Lucie have made me a part of here.

To the editor

Thank you and your "Mirror" for the lovely day at the Port St. Lucie Community Center. I thoroughly enjoyed the (Mirror Cooking Show) chefs' artistry in preparing the many fine foods.

It was a fun day and something to remember. Last year I was unable to attend due to knee surgery, so I was happy to be there this year.

Publix is my favorite store and they are to be complimented for their generosity. I won a prize, the cookbook and holder, and feel very fortunate. Oh, yes, and I had a front seat.

Thank you kindly

To the editor:

We read your hilarious description of "the perm" in today's paper. Also read the editorials about the cooking show ... more reasons why you deserve the "best weekly in Florida" award.

We are subscribers, but Miss Salli gave me a copy this a.m. as we are in town for a short visit this week from Md.

Congratulations on having all the election news so soon ... amazing.

The cooking show was excellent Friday. I noticed the hair-do then ... very becoming.

We love The Mirror and family, and will miss Bob's column.

Cheers, Shalom!

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By
Dr. Jack L. Webb

The 24 vertebras of the spine are separated by elastic discs that grow less elastic as one grows older. Thus, the vertebras tend to push closer together and slip out of place more frequently. When this happens, the vertebras may press upon vital spinal nerves which lead to all parts of the body and control various body functions.

Numerous tell-tale signs of impaired balance due to nerve pressure are interpretated as old age including interference of circulation, hardening of the arteries, numbness and stiffness of joints, headaches, fatigue and other health problems.

It is important for the senior citizen to remember that he does not have a necessity on pain and discomfort, for it happens to old and young alike. Nor should he accept it for in most cases, it is a symptom of an illness and not a sign of age.

Patients routinely enter our clinic having been told that they must live with their problem. They're old, have arthritis or had nerves. Soon they discover that when the internal spinal condition which caused their problems has been corrected they once again experience renewed health and vitality.

Power Squadron boating course starts Sept. 30

In its continuing effort to promote safety afloat and to reverse the trend of rising numbers of boating accidents and casualties, the St. Lucie River Power Squadron is offering a new boating course.

The course will be conducted at the Martin County High School starting Tuesday, Sept. 30 and running nine Tuesdays thereafter. Registration will be at 6:45 p.m., Sept. 30. Class hours are from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m.. All are invited to enroll — men, women and older age teeners, boat owners and non-owners.

There is no charge for instruction or the final examination. Thanks to a grant to the St. Lucie River Power Squadron from the Blessing of the Fleet Committee, even the necessary dividers and course plotters will be distributed gratis. The only expense is $5 for the course manual.

"The time and cost invested in this course is small and the dividend is big," said Squadron Commander Donald S. Till. "Those who join the class will acquire all the fundamental knowledge and skills for the safe operation of their boats.

Under the direction of Squadron Education Officer Walter M. Maron and Don W. Bowden, chairman of the Local Board for Piloting, a corps of instructors, each expert in a special field, has been assembled for the course. In addition, students will be organized in small groups with "table instructors" who will work individually with them.

The course covers all the basics, including handling under normal, adverse and emergency conditions, rules of the road, seamanship, use of charts and compasses, identifying aids to navigation, river piloting, boat trailering and equipment required under the Federal Safe Boating Act.

Airplane on island

Last Saturday, an airplane, on its way from Vero Beach to Stuart, was forced to make a landing on Hutchinson Island.

Pilot of the Piper Tomahawk, Eric Stein, 20, told police that he ran into engine trouble about 3:30 p.m. After flying over the beaches, he found a strip unoccupied by weekend bathers, and landed the plane safely about a quarter mile south of the St. Lucie County line.

Fortunately, for both the pilot and area bathers, Stein had time to glide over the beaches rather than force a landing. He landed 30 feet away from the surf's edge and cut the power.

Damage was done to the landing gear and wings, but fortunately, the Piper was not fully wrecked.

According to Martin County Sgt. Billy Chase, neither Stein or his passenger, John Fry, were injured.

Child care services

Beginning September 30, a variety of courses to prepare pre-school child care service aides, will begin at the Stuart Community Education Center. The first course, Early Childhood Development, will cover emotional, social, intellectual and physical development of the 2 to 6 year old.

This course serves as the foundation to subsequent course offerings entitled Art and Music in the pre school, pre-school math, language arts for the pre-schooler, pre-school physical education, and child care center management.

Interested students can pre register Monday thru Thursday between 6 and 9 p.m. at the Center located on the Stuart Middle School campus. Fee for this first offering will be $5.00.

FLORIDA NATIONAL IS PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Like Jack Williams and Charlie Harris

That's right. The bank names have changed (Stuart National and Port Salerno National are now Florida National Bank of Martin County). But the people haven't. Jack Williams and staff will continue to greet you by name in Stuart. And Charlie Harris' staff continues in Port Salerno. Charlie will assist Jack in all seven offices.

So it's the same people you've dealt with for years. Now we're a part of one of Florida's strongest, most prestigious banking institutions. For you it means even better service. Handle all or part of your banking needs at any one of our seven convenient offices in the Stuart area and Port Salerno.

For us it means even greater resources. More extensive and more sophisticated services. That adds up to even better service for our customers and friends. The people we know. The people who know us.

Sea turtles to be on television

Although many area residents were disappointed when film footage of sea turtles in Jensen Beach did not appear on the ABC television show "Those Amazing Animals" last Sunday, you should not have to wait too long to see it.

This summer's film crew came to Jensen and shot footage of state marine biologist Ross Witham as he explained the sea turtle research program he operates locally. There was footage of a giant sea turtle crawling ashore on a local beach, digging a nest and laying eggs. Also shot was footage of turtles hatching, turtles in tanks at the House of Refuge Museum, and footage of Witham and assistant Lou Fallon tagging and releasing young turtles.

Last week Witham said he received a call from persons working on the script for the show to ask a few questions. While answering the questions, Witham inquired as to when the sea turtle segment would be on the show and was told it would be Sunday, Sept. 14.

But many local residents watched the show hoping to see Jensen Beach get some national limelight and were disappointed to find the sea turtle footage was not included.

The Mirror placed a call to the show's headquarters in Los Angeles Monday and learned that the sea turtle segment is now planned for Sunday, Oct. 12. The spokeswoman who gave the date hung up too soon to say why the sea turtles were not on last Sunday, but some local viewers speculated that recently-shot footage of a great white shark may have bumped the sea turtles off the air until Oct. 12.

The show is from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. on channel 12.

SPLISH SPLASH—Last year The Mirror made its second entry into the Great American Raft Race, figuring it had to be uphill after a dismal finish in 1978. It was not to be, though, as the current of the river proved to be too much for the woefully sluggish raft. This year, unless someone can come up with a more streamlined design, we may sit it out and enjoy the festivities from the riverbank. It is much less exhausting that way. Shown above are, from the left, Mary Meissner, Bob Fryer, Donnie Wilkie, and Michelle Naspinski. (Photo by Fred Meissner)

Great American Raft Race to float again

Port St. Lucie's fourth annual Great American Raft Race — which, contrary to scandalous rumor, floats on water, not beer — will begin at noon, Saturday, Sept. 27.

The race will again be sponsored by the Port St. Lucie Exchange Club, with Budweiser beer and radio station WOVV-FM serving as co-sponsors. Proceeds will be donated to the United Way.

According to Charlie Bigge, Exchange Club vice president and chairman of the 1986 Raft Race, "the Great American Raft Race has become one of the big celebrations of the year in Port St. Lucie. We expect about 50 entries in the raft and unlimited raft groups — each with a crew of four to six — plus a lot more in the other races. Based on last year's event, there will be a couple thousand spectators on hand to cheer their favorites on."

Bigge noted that a number of the area's major business and civic organizations enter the race. "Some craft will be very impressive in both appearance and speed. Others may have more whimsical configurations. At any rate, spectators and racers will have a great afternoon."

Entries are divided into six categories, with several sub-classes: inner tubes — single and multiple; two-seat canoes for men, women, mixed pairs, over 55 and expert; surfboards (paddled by hand); rafts constructed of non-marine materials and propelled by paddles, oars or poles; unlimited rafts made of any kind of material and propelled by any human-power device except paddles, oars, or poles; and miscellaneous, or "anything not included in the other categories."

Complete rules appear on registration forms which are available from any member of the Exchange Club, and are in the lobbies of Port St. Lucie Bank, Citizens Federal Savings & Loan, and First Federal Savings and Loan. The registration fee is $5 per crew member; fees with forms should be returned by Saturday, Sept. 20. Competitors will be expected to sign in at 10 a.m. on the day of the race.

The races will begin at General Development Corporation's Northport Marina. The company will hold a Skippers' Meeting and Cocktail Party on Friday evening, Sept. 26.

Harvey to open new season at Barn Theatre

The Barn Theatre in Stuart will open its new season on Friday, Oct. 3, with a production of the Pulitzer-prize winning play, "Harvey".

Already, actors are memorizing lines, costumes are being designed and the set is under construction. The play, under the direction of Donald Winer, promises to be one of the funniest of the season.

The play will run for only nine performances, so early reservations are suggested. For reservations and information, call the Barn box office at 287-4884.

MUNICIPAL AUTO BROKERS

Sheffield Abood - Owner

Over the years automobile dealers considered "used cars" as a sideline to the business of selling new models.

Things have changed in recent years and one of the big reasons is the kind of business operated by Municipal Auto Brokers. They believe that the used car buyer is just as important as the new car buyer. They are determined to give each customer the finest quality and the best possible price. They have a large "family" of customers who return because they know that integrity, service and assurance of quality are standards here.

The safe way to buy a pre-owned car is at Municipal Auto Brokers, located at 2007 Okeechobee Rd. in Ft. Pierce, phone 465-4666, because all their cars have been checked by a mechanic and any problems corrected. They take a personal pride in every pre-owned car they sell. And they'll give you a good price for your trade-in.

As businessmen who appreciate an ethical and honest firm, we, the writers of this 1980 Community Profile, give our highest recommendation to this used car dealer.

THE ALL NEW STUART AMC — JEEP — RENAULT, Inc.

The 1981's Are On Display Now!

If you're in the market for a new car, you ought to consider a 1981 American Motors car or a Renault before you make another move. AMC is the company that developed and now builds the famous Jeep vehicles, known for their durability and performance capabilities.

The AMC Concord is elegantly designed and outfitted to give you family-car convenience with economy and sporty styling, as well as the solid reliability of a Jeep. The Sprit, a trim and comfortable compact with a choice of 4 or 6 cylinder engines offers the sports car lover complete command of the road in a bold, luxury-outfitted car. And be sure to see the Eagles, available in 2 or 4 doors, or station wagons. They are the economical, but powerful 6 cylinder, 4-wheel drives with epough muscle to even pull your boat or trailer!

Stop in today and see the fine selection of 1981 models now on display, including the all new Renault 18-i for '81. These economical cars with front-wheel drive have an EPA of 30 MPG in-town and an estimated 40 mpg on the highway!

The All New Stuart AMC-Jeep-Renault, Inc., located at 317 S. Federal Hwy. (U.S. 1) in Stuart, phone 287-2311, is your local full-service AMC and Renault dealer and we of the 1980 Community Profile suggest you stop in and test-drive a 1981 AMC or Renault before you buy.

RILEY ALUMINUM

Mike & Dan Riley - Owners

We all look forward to the warmer weather as a time when we can enjoy the outdoors, relax and lounge around the home. Don't let overexposure to the sun and the nuisance of insects, dirt and dust spoil your outdoor activities. Have an aluminum porch screen enclosure installed on your patio or around your pool and enjoy all the many advantages of outdoor living with none of the drawbacks.

Let Riley Aluminum, located on Jenkins Rd. in Ft. Pierce, phone 461-1513 or 461-7255, show you how inexpensive it is to properly install a sturdy, attractive enclosure. THE USUALLY QUIET BOB FRYER—was anything but speechless with his anecdotes on the evening of his farewell party. Complete with his new old-time editor's cap, he exchanges quips with Dick Campbell. Much to the laughter of the staff.

UNBELIEVABLE, BUT TRUE. Someone is actually laughing at one of Dick's jokes, Charlie said later, it really wasn't too bad. But the rest of the staff has their doubts. Also pictured is Charlie's wife, Mary, who was busy talking with someone else at the party held for Bob Fryer.

St. Michaels breaks ground

Tuesday, Sept. 16 was the day officials of St. Michael's School picked to break ground for their new building.

Present, were members of the Board of Trustees, including President Mrs. Nathaniel Reed, and Father Michael Smith.

The construction of the kindergarten building is the start of what is hoped to be a continuing expansion for St. Michaels. Future plans include more space for faculty as well as classrooms available to students with special education problems. Eventually, directers hope to build a high school in continuation of their elementary education program.

To date, 40 percent of the $250,000 drive has been reached to help finance the undertaking. Architect Ed Horn has designed the plans with Warner Bole Construction Company implementing them.

PARTICIPATING—in the ground breaking ceremony for St. Michaels School were Mrs. Nathaniel Reed, president of the board of trustees and Thomas M. Green, headmaster. Two young women assisted with the initial shovel. With the help of donations, the school will soon be under construction.

Fire department gets unusual fuel allotment from the sea

What you see is not always what you get.

At least that was the case when Jensen Beach Fire Chief Joe Luciano recently went to examine an abandoned barrel of Acetone.

The 55-gallon drum was found floating in the water off Hutchinson Island. The Acetone label on the front revealed to Luciano a potentially lethal substance. Its fumes can ignite easily under normal temperatures, or could mix with the water to form perhaps another equally dangerous chemical compound.

With this in mind, Luciano despatched a special truck equipped with a wooden bed to the scene and evacuated the area. Gingerly, they carried the barrel back to the fire station, away from danger.

Luciano says that he called the chemical company also listed on the label, who had no knowledge of the lost barrel.

At that point, Luciano called Cass Rio Marine, where Acetone is used as a lacquer thinner. The owner offered to barter it for something more useful to the fire department. They agreed, provided the chemical had not lost its potency.

To make sure it was still good, Luciano, with a few of his crew, broke the seal and opened up the barrel. To their amazement, 55 gallons of gasoline met their stares. The full protective gear, the cleared area, the special truck, was all for naught.

"You can't believe everything you read," says Luciano. This is one of the problems he feels faces the department in dealing with potential hazards. Labels cannot be relied upon and subsequently methods dictated by them prove ineffective.

Luciano is quick to point out the perils of anyone touching a barrel floating or otherwise. To him, they are potential time bombs, that can mix with water through a rusty seam, to create a lethal substance. His suggestion is to call either the fire or sheriff's department.

For the fire department though, all was not lost. They at least have 55 gallons of gasoline for their trucks.

DANGER - ACETONE—So reads the label on the 55 gallon barrel found by someone walking on the beach on Hutchinson Island. Jensen Beach Fire Chief, Joe Luciano says however, that the barrell contained not Acetone, but gasoline.

YMCA to begin first program at end of month

Efforts to get a YMCA organization operating in Martin County took a big step forward last week when a number of community leaders met in Stuart to discuss plans.

Though it may be three to five years from now before the YMCA has a building of its own here, more than $16,000 of a proposed $68,000 first-year budget has already been donated, with $5,000 of that coming from the Stuart Kiwanis Club. And, on Tuesday, Sept. 30, meetings are planned at Jensen Beach Elementary and Parker Elementary schools to get a YMCA Indian Guide program started.

The Indian Guide program is designed for fathers and children and is to instill behavior values in the children.

Richard Gesanger, active for years in the Broward County YMCA, has been named president of the Martin County YMCA, with his son, Richard Jr. named treasurer. Peter Watson is vice president and Steve Rogers is secretary.

Terry Keathley of Heritage Ridge has pledged some land for the YMCA and another pledge of land may be in the works. If the land donated is not suitable as a central location for the YMCA, the land can be sold for purchase of other land, Gesanger noted at an earlier YMCA meeting, pointing out that donations are tax deductible.

Crisis line classes start on Sept. 29

There are times when area residents experience a crisis and need help.

Filling that need is Crisis Line, a confidential telephone counseling and aid referral service.

If you would like to help fellow residents in their time of greatest need, you can learn how to be a Crisis Line volunteer. Classes start at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 29 at Stuart Middle School.

Tests for MCHS students Oct. 21

Mrs. Elmira R. Gainey, Director of Guidance Student Services at Martin County High School, has announced that students taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT-NMSQT) on Tuesday, Oct. 21, will benefit from additional services in 1980.

These services are designed to provide students with more information about the content and uses of the test.

Students who plan to take the 1980 PSAT-NMSQT will receive a complete sample test for practice, along with an answer key and scoring instructions. When scores are reported in December, each student will receive a Report of Student Answers, including the correct answers as well as the answers the student gave. To allow students to refer to the original questions, schools will return test booklets with scores. Students will continue to receive "About your PSAT-NMSQT scores", a booklet of general information on college planning.

The PSAT-NMSQT is cosponsored by the College Board and National Merit Scholarship Corporation. It is administered annually to more than one million students and measures verbal and mathematical abilities that are important in college work.

The PSAT-NMSQT gives students a chance to find out what the College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) is like, and helps them in planning for college; further, students who opt to participate in the College Board Student Search Service have an opportunity to hear from colleges that they might not otherwise learn about. The PSAT-NMSQT is also the qualifying test for students who wish to participate in the nationwide scholarship competitions administered by National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Registrations for the test are being done by student purchase of the registration booklets ($3.75) in the MCHS bookstore. Fee waivers may be requested for students from low-income families who cannot afford to pay the fee. The student must be a junior to qualify for the fee waiver. A total of 225 registration booklets have been ordered. Students register Sept. 17 - Oct. 17, on a "first come" basis. Early registration is encouraged.

Try for snook, whiting, blues, pompano in surf

THE BEST AREA FISHING right now seems to be in the surf from the Holiday Inn up to the power plant. There are scads of really big whiting, some small pompano (9½ inches please), a few snook and some small schools of snapper blues.

The whiting are plentiful in the Mud Hole just south of the Oceana condo, around the former Sheraton Inn and at the Park-N-Fish area below the Holiday Inn. The best bait is fresh shrimp.

Pompano are up and down the beach and your best bet for them is a wriggling sand flea dredged up from the water's edge. Pomps are usually feeding out about 100 feet while the whiting can be found around the little dropoffs in the wash just off the beach.

The snook aren't so abundant in the surf as they were a week ago but you still stand a chance of hooking one early in the morning on a spoon or perhaps a 77M18 mirrolure.

Those blues are a hit or miss proposition and seem to prefer a spoon like a Krocodile. Some of the best action has been around the Holiday Inn just below the Jensen Causeway.

Just about the only other hot spot in the area has been the Roosevelt Bridge over the St. Lucie River on U.S. 1 just above downtown Stuart. There, they have been catching lots of black drum to 20 lbs., croakers, mangrove snappers and sheepshead on live shrimp and clams. One good bet is to get some good fresh shrimp and fish on an outgoing tide from the south end of the Roosevelt near the old railroad bridge pilings. Bottom fishing there has been little short of super most of the time lately.

ON THE FRESHWATER SCENE, although largemouth bass fishing in the Jensen Savannas has been pretty good recently, mostly with live bait, probably the best action there has been on bluegills (bream) with flyrodded popping corks.

On that note, I fished the Savannas for the first time Monday going with Guide Earl Castner of County Line Road. We flyfished for bream with Earl's own poppers, trolled with beetle spins in Lake Eden, cast plastic worms for largemouth bass, and even used live bait in an attempt to lure a lunker bass into striking. We had three live bait strikes but that was all and the rains came at 10 a.m. and chased us back to Earl's place and the fine launching ramp he has here. You can launch your boat there for a two dollar fee and Earl will point you toward where the fish are supposed to be. Earl was really crestfallen (and soaking wet, too) when we slogged away from the launching ramp fishless, but if you've done much fishing at all you know there are days when nothing goes right. Monday was one of those days, and it was no fault of Earl's who has learned over three decades just where the fish are but not necessarily when they will feed.

FROM BIG BASS LODGE at Lakeport over on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee, about 20 miles west of Kissimmee River Bridge and off SR 78, Mary Tindell: "The water's cooling and the bass fishing's picking up, Dick. They're catching them on plastic worms and topwater plugs late in the afternoon around the Monkey Box and in Little and Big Moonshine Bays, around the pepper grass and in the boat trails. Speck fishing is picking up for boaters drifting live minnows out at the Twin Markers. Bluegills have slowed down but the next full moon should see the last of good bluegill fishing for the year. Get some crickets and plan to do some bluegill fishing here from Sept. 21-27, three days before and three after the full moon on the 24th."

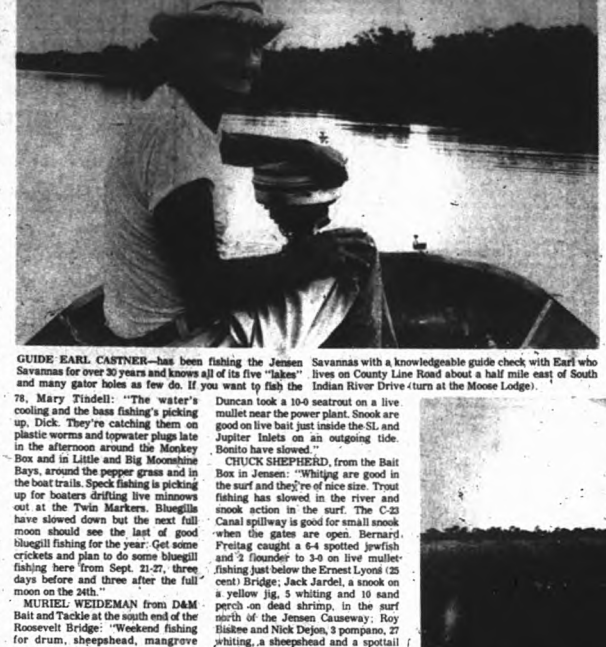
MURIEL WEIDEMAN from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge: "Weekend fishing for drum, sheepshead, mangrove snappers and croakers was excellent on the Roosevelt, even better than it was on the Labor Day weekend. An outgoing tide is best, like from 6-8 a.m. and 8-11 p.m. on Wednesday (Sept. 7). Horace Singleton had 3 trout to 4-0, fishing with live shrimp from the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge, and Mike Lebron, fishing with fresh dead shrimp from the old RR pilings at the south end of the bridge caught a 4-0 (4 lb.) flounder, 14 drum to 10-0 and some mangrove snappers and sheepshead."

FROM THE MANATEE BAIT AND TACKLE SHOP, back in business again (283-6552), Tom Moore: "Sailfish are good in 80-120 ft. of water off the St. Lucie Inlet. Carlos Sanchez caught 4 kings to 25-0, and released a sail and a wahoo, fishing just off the inlet. Tilefishing is good (to 30-0) way out in 430 ft. of water 120 degrees off the SL Inlet. Spanish mackerel are good off the beach but they're small. Trout fishing is fair in the river. David Duncan took a 10-0 seatrout on a live mullet near the power plant. Snook are good on live bait just inside the SL and Jupiter Inlets on an outgoing tide. Bonito have slowed."

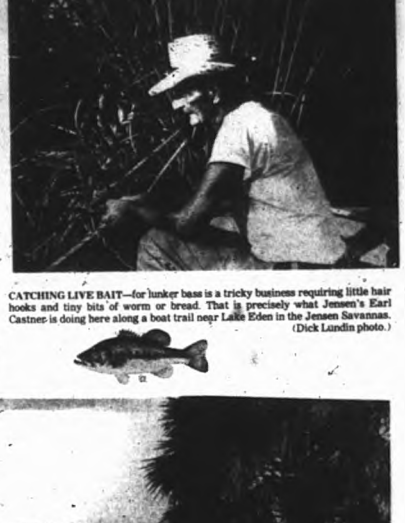
CHUCK SHEPHERD, from the Bait Box in Jensen: "Whiting are good in the surf and they're of nice size. Trout fishing has slowed in the river and snook action in the surf. The C-23 Canal spillway is good for small snook when the gates are open. Bernard Freitag caught a 6-4 spotted jewfish and 2 flounder to 3-0 on live mullet fishing just below the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge; Jack Jardel, a snook on a yellow jig, 5 whiting and 10 sand perch on dead shrimp, in the surf north of the Jensen Causeway; Roy Biskee and Nick Dejon, 3 pompano, 27 whiting, a sheepshead and a spottail pinfish, fresh shrimp, one mile north of Holiday Out on Hutchinson Island.

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK IN JENSEN, Tom Stewart: "We had a pretty good weekend. There are some snapper blues (1-3 lbs.) in the surf hitting Krocodile spoons, early in the morning, up and down the beaches from the Holiday Inn to Normandy Beach (Just south of the power plant). Snook are still hitting some in the surf. They are catching whiting and a few pompano in the surf too. Offshore, there are Spanish mackerel off the St. Lucie Inlet. There are seatrout and channel bass in the river but the really big channel bass seem to be up in the Fort Pierce Inlet."

The Nook's log: Thor Svedin, a 9-4 largemouth bass, live bait, the Jensen Savannas; Earl Castner and party, 42 bream and 3 bass on popping bugs, Jensen Savannas; Andy Jorgensen, 15 whiting and 6 pompano, cut shrimp, Normandy Beach; Ray Timm, 7 blues, Krocodile spoons, surf; Phil Johnson, 10 blues, Krocs, surf; Tony Battaglia, 12 blues, Krocs, Holiday Inn surf; Bernie Ludwig, 6 blues, cut mackerel, surf; Les Smitten, 2 snook to 10-0, 77M18 mirrolure, surf; Pete Peterson, 18 blues, Krocs and a Zara Spook, surf; Randy Richardson, a 9-0 snook, Jensen Causeway wooden pier, on live shrimp; Oscar Dishman, 2 snook to 7-8, Frank Wacha, live shrimp; Ray Garlicki, a 40 flounder, live shrimp, Herman's Bay; Scott Gallivan, released a 40-0 tarpon taken on live shrimp at the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway; Ed Wagner, Harold Egeland and Pete Baker, 9 trout to 6-0 and a channel bass, on trout touts, wading north of the power plant; Hoot Gibson, 25 Spanish mackerel and a 141 Tony Accetta spoon in 40 ft. of water just off the St. Lucie Inlet.



GUIDE EARL CASTNER—has been fishing the Jensen Savannas for over 30 years and knows all of its five "lakes" and many gator holes as few do. If you want to fish the Savannas with a knowledgeable guide check with Earl who lives on County Line Road about a half mile east of South Indian River Drive (turn at the Moose Lodge).



CATCHING LIVE BAIT—for lunker bass is a tricky business requiring little hair hooks and tiny bits of worm or bread. That is precisely what Jensen's Earl Castner is doing here along a boat trail near Lake Eden in the Jensen Savannas. (Dick Lundin photo.)

THIS VIEW OF THE SAVANNAS—taken from the launching ramp behind Earl Castner's house, depicts the wide-ranging area of water, lily pads and swamp vegetation between U.S. 1 and South Indian River Drive, one of Florida's last natural beauty spots, unchanged generally over the centuries. There could be a world record largemouth bass lurking somewhere out in those lily pads. (Dick Lundin photo.)

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

Sarasota, Fla. USPTA Convention, seminars and Nat'l. Team matches. Just like doctors malpractice insurance keeps increasing, all USPTA pros now carry $1,500,000 for bodily injury claims, and $250,000 against property damage. Who said tennis was a sissies sport? Somebody must be getting hurt.

Now the good news, the 1981 USPTA Convention will be held in Hawaii.

Now, just a matter of fact. When Roscoe Tanner got his hair done like Dick Campbell's, he lost over 10 MPH on his serve.

Scott Oughterson and Candy Johnson are across the State at Sawgrass, I hope winning in the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles tourney. If they win, Connie and I will accompany them to Monaco, all expenses paid, go team go.

About 30 of the IRP girls are battling for positions on the team. The Tri-County League starts next month. And we have to order the new team dresses as soon as a good line up is assured.

There were an awful lot of behind the scenes, or little known goings on at the US Open this year. A few of the things that caught my attention. First, let me point out that the main draw is 128. Then there are 16 qualifiers who have to play for two weeks before in pre-qualifying tournaments. Some 350 men battle for those 16 berths.

Then the draw is so tough, that some of the first round matches would be classics if played in the finals of any State or country in this world. Paul McNamee's first round match vs Blaine Willenborg went 7-5 in the fifth, with Blaine winning after a few protests. You may be wondering what happened to Vitas Gerylaitis, he won the first two sets 6-3, 6-2 over Hank Pfister, Hank won the next two sets and then they traded service breaks twice in the fifth set with Hank winning a superb 8-6 tiebreaker.

Another first round match pitted "boy wonder" Dick Stockton vs Terry Moor. This was one of the more interesting first round matches, and it ended at 2 a.m. with Moor winning a fifth set tie-breaker 9-7. Stockton then calmly walked over to the ice cooler and stuffed his racket to the bottom. Then way back on court No. 17, Harold Solomon was struggling with New Zealander Russell Simpson for over three hours.

Gene Mayer was seeded No. 6 and was leading Italian Gianni Ocleppo two sets to none, when Gianni clawed out the third set in a tie-breaker and was leading 4-2 in the fourth when Mayer had to retire with a pulled hamstring.

Other seeds who did not make the first week cut included Eddie Dibbs No. 8 of Fla., Peter Fleming, whose uncle has an apartment at IRP, was seeded No. 9. And No. 12 Jose Clerc. Dibbs went out to Vijay Amritraj in five sets, but then lost the next round to Brian Teacher.

Dibbs had defeated Bob Lutz in five sets the round before.

When Johan Kriek blew Peter Fleming off the court 6-4, 6-2, 6-0, after admitting to the press that he stinks; when asked what he was going to do now, he said, "I'm going to take a shower."

Another match that could be the finals in many big tournaments, was South African Bernie Mitton ousting Jose Clerc 7-6 in the fifth.

After Guillermo Vilas defeated Francisco Gonzales in a five set match, the No. 4 seed said, "My first match was on court 3, and my second match was on court 16. I thought maybe I play next in Manhattan. It would be great. I would not have to bother to ride all the way out here."

We can't forget Ilie Nastase. Ilie managed to pick up $1,250 in fines despite only winning one match. Trailing 5-1 in the final set of his match with Solomon, Nasty went into the runway of Slew's Bowl to change his shorts because he had to "get ready for the doubles." Nasty did a similar striptease last year, he needs a new act, now that his tennis is warming. Nastase's current ranking in the ATP is No. 93 and he has still made over $0 Grand, in prize money, and I would guess at least another $100,000 in exhibitions and endorsements. It pays to be bad!

State to apprehend doe poachers with sex test

DEER HUNTERS who kill does unlawfully have been able to get away with it in the past if they could dress their kill before it was inspected by a wildlife officer. Not so this year, according to Lt. Col. Brantly Goodson, director of the Division of Law Enforcement, Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

"The new procedure is a microscopic examination of deer tissue which will help wildlife officers determine whether a deer is a male or female when only a portion of meat is available as evidence," Brantly said.

"At times, persons who take deer illegally, such as a doe, may try to conceal the fact. With our new microscopic analysis procedure, we will be able to determine the sex of the deer and whether a violation has occurred," he pointed out.

The procedure was developed through the Department of Wildlife of the University of Florida in Gainesville.

"Wildlife inspectors and investigators will be equipped this fall with a kit to take tissue samples when a violation is suspected. They will be able to get an answer back from the U. of Florida within hours, if necessary, to determine if there is a violation," Goodson noted, adding: "This new test used in conjunction with a wide range of other scientific measures now available to our wildlife officers will make it very difficult for violators to go undetected."

ARCHERS ARE REMINDED that with the start of the archery season (Sept. 13) they must have proper certification to hunt, according to the GFWFC.

"Participants must have an archery permit and also a hunting license to hunt during the season. In addition, hunters need management area permits to hunt in wildlife management areas," Fred W. Stanberry, director of the division of wildlife for the Commission, said.

Archery permits may be purchased at the office of any county tax collector, along with the hunting license and wildlife management area permit.

"There are a variety of rules governing the archery season. In particular, hunters planning their outings on a wildlife management area should become acquainted with specific regulations applying to each management area. The archery season ends Oct. 12. Hunting bows used for taking big game must be capable of casting a one-ounce hunting arrow 150 yards. Crossbows, explosive or drug-injected arrows and firearms are prohibited, Stanberry pointed out.

THE FLORIDA LEAGUE OF ANGLERS has a new executive director. He is Tampa's Jim Lee, appointed recently by Robert C. Schwebke, FLA's president.

Outspoken on the over-utilization of Florida's fish stocks, Lee stated in a recent interview, according to the most recent issue of the FLA's Florida Angler:

"We must fish for tomorrow — not just for today. If the people of Florida are to have fish on their hooks and fish on their tables, recreational and commercial fishing interests must work together to ensure the perpetuation of our fish stocks. Our freshwater fishery is being choked by the aquatic weed problem, which must receive priority attention from governmental agencies if bass fishing is to have a future in Florida."

A "GUIDE TO HUNTING IN FLORIDA" is now being offered by the Florida Wildlife Federation. You can get one by sending $5 to the Florida Wildlife Federation, 4080 North Haverhill Rd., West Palm Beach, Florida 33407.

This 148-page booklet lists all state and federal wildlife areas and is complete with maps and regulations for each specific area.

The book also features informative articles on hunting such species as deer, turkey, wild hog, quail and dove. Prospects for hunting in the various areas of the state are also given.

All general hunting season regulations, special hunts, and dates are included in the information, along with data on migratory bird seasons.

To be aware of all of the hunting options you have in the state, this highly informative, convenient guide to hunting in Florida should be well worth the five dollars it'll cost you.

Not only that, but all profits from the sale of the book are scheduled to go back into the Federation's conservation work. It has been responsible for the acquisition of hundreds of thousands of acres of wildlife areas, most of which are open to hunting. Here is your chance to not only enjoy a better hunting season but also to benefit conservation in Florida.

GOVERNOR BOB GRAHAM has signed a proclamation recognizing Florida's participation on Sept. 27 in the observance of National Hunting Fishing Day.

"This observance gives all persons a special day to reflect on the vast hunting and fishing opportunities that Florida has to offer. America's sportsmen have been leaders in the effort to conserve our wilderness, wildlife and natural resources since the turn of the century. Whenever the environment has been threatened, they have traditionally been the first to speak out and act in its defense," Col. Robert M. Brantly, executive director of the GFWFC, said recently.

"Through the years, hunters and fishermen have formed the foundation of practical conservation work in this country. Their efforts, both as individuals and through their organizations, have resulted in the preservation of thousands of acres of woods and wetlands and the improvement of our lakes, streams and waterways.

"To finance the conservation cause, hunters and fishermen asked that license fees and special taxes on their equipment be levied. These funds have paid for land acquisitions, research and habitat management for fishing and wildlife. These programs benefit all wildlife and provide enjoyment for millions of citizens," Brantly stated.

Sept. 27 marks the ninth annual observance of NHF Day. Since the first observance in 1972, it has continued to grow in both size and impact. Millions of Americans participate each year in more than 2,500 separate NHF Day activities at sportsmen's clubs, schools, shopping centers and wildlife management areas across the country.

This year's Honorary Chairman for NHF Day is Terry Bradshaw, star Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback.

WILDLIFE ARTISTS should be getting ready for the 1981-82 Florida Waterfowl Stamp design contest to be held by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission from Nov. 3 until 5 p.m., Dec. 8. Only one entry may be submitted by each artist.

The design must be multi-colored in a medium of the artist's choice and be originated by the artist, not copied or duplicated from previously published art or photography. The design must also be 7 by 10 inches, horizontal and mounted with an 11 by 14 inch mat.

There is no direct compensation given to the artist creating the design, but it has been the experience of winners of similar contests that substantial returns develop from sales of prints of the winning art, according to the GFWFC.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

Dolphins escape Bengals, visit Falcons next

WITH THE ABYSS of playoff elimination yawning before them with 6:23 left to play in the Orange Bowl Sunday afternoon, and the determined Cincinnati Bengals complacent behind a comfortable 16-7 lead, Miami's Dolphins pulled off one of the most implausible rallies in their National Football history.

These Bengals are really snakebit. The previous Sunday saw them "gift" the Tampa Bay Bucs with a last minute 17-12 victory, and this week they did it again.

Never has a team played so hard and come so close only to be 0-2 at the start of the long 16 game NFL regular season.

It is a wonder they didn't find Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg's hat floating in the Miami River after the game. He admitted in the dressing room after the game that he thought the Bengals had things well in hand when linebacker Reggie Williams tackled Miami fullback Steve Howell in the end zone for a safety to make it 16-7 with only 6:21 left to play.

THE BIG THING THERE was that Miami had to kick away to Cincinnati from its 20-yard line, likely giving the Bengals the ball in excellent field position and at the very least setting up another coffin corner punt by Pat McInally, like the one that brought about the "coup de grace" safety. You could see why Coach Gregg started thinking ahead right then about playing the Steelers at Riverfront on Sept 21.

That's when Lady Luck returned to Miami's side of the field to set up a series of improbable events that sent the dismayed Bengals down to an unbelievable 17-16 loss.

Any time you think it's in the bag, that church is out. That it'll all even out the sheuting, you'd better take another look at your hole card or make sure all of the trump are out.

THESE WERE THE IMPROBABLES that produced the impossible.

The Dolphins lined up on their own 20 and the Bengals spread out to receive the punt from Miami's George Roberts. No one knew that Roberts and Coach Don Shula had agreed on the side line to attempt an onside kick with a free kick after the safety, something that may never have been done before in the NFL. The ball squibbed off to the right and a Bengal grabbed it only to have it squirt away from him. Special teams performer Jeff Allen pounced on it gleefully and Miami had an incredible first and 10 at its 35-yard line.

After quarterback Don Strock the replaced Bob Griese after Griese had proved unable to move the Dolphins to pay dirt on their first four first-half possessions, had used passes to running back Delvin Williams and Howell to get the Bengal 45. Lady Luck smiled again. This time Strock hit wide receiver Duriel Harris on a square-out over the middle and Harris streaked 33 yards down the left side behind three blockers. He was hit at the 12 yard line and fumbled the ball forward into the end zone where an opportunistic Nick Giaquinto fell on it for a Miami touchdown. That made it 16-14 with 5:02 left and Coach Gregg no longer pondering his opening lineup against Pittsburgh.

CINCINNATI received the kickoff but couldn't make the needed first down and on a fourth and 14 from its own 20 sent in McInally to punt out of danger. He did his part but his punt was blocked when Nebraska's Bill Barnett, reserve defensive end, stormed past center Blair Bush and dived over fullback Charles Alexander right into the football. That blocked punt gave Miami a first and 10 at the Cincinnati 38 with 3:42 on the clock and 38,323 Dol Fans screaming for the kill.

Strock used three running plays by Howell, Williams and Tony Nathan to move the ball to the Cincinnati 22. Coach Shula then sent in placekicker Uwe von Schamann who had missed earlier on a field goal try of 47-yards and had one of 38 yards blocked by Cincinnati's Bill Glass. Uwe nailed this one and it was a 17-16 ball game.

The Bengals still had time to pull it out but after getting to the Miami 47 in five plays, quarterback Jack Thompson was intercepted by cornerback Gerald Small at the Miami 35, and Coach Gregg could start thinking about Pittsburgh again.

THE DOLPHINS were very definitely lucky to win this one, as they did not play nearly so well as the Bengals but had luck on their side in coming out of it with a 1-1 record.

The quarterback situation continues to plague Miami. Griese's age seems to have really caught up with him. Strock is apparently not an inspiring, commanding field leader. The crowd kept chanting "we want Woodley" from time to time, and from this vantage point, that is what Coach Shula will have to come to before too many more quarters.

David Woodley, Miami's 8th round draft choice last April, appears to be its quarterback of the future.

Maybe he should be the quarterback in 1980! He's highly mobile, can throw accurately, and with Coach Shula sending in the plays from the sideline (aided by Strock and Griese), the LSU rookie just might be the answer to the quarterback problem.

Of course, Coach Shula may feel that there is no problem, and he's the coach.

The running game was a little better than in the Buffalo game, but Miami still came up with only 118 yards rushing and 131 yards passing. Compare that with San Diego's 445 overall yardage Sunday (Atlanta had 404, the 49ers 392, Philadelphia 529, Chicago 333 and Detroit 459) and you can see that Miami's offense — against a team not known for its defense — wasn't exactly impressive again. In two games, the Dolphins have posted a grand total of 208 yards rushing and 270 passing.

Although Howell showed flashes of good running form Sunday, and Williams ran well, it still looks like Miami needs a quality running back. Finding one is something else though.

IN THE AFC EAST next week, Baltimore takes on the Oilers at Houston, New England visits Seattle, Buffalo is at New Orleans, the 49ers play the Jets at Shea, and the Dolphins go to Atlanta to meet the Falcons who showed a lot of power in routing the Patriots up at Foxboro where Miami almost never wins. Atlanta is 1-1 in the NFC West.

Those Falcons, with quarterback Steve Bartowski apparently in fine form, passing to rookie tight end Junior Miller and other Atlanta receivers, and running back William Andrews packing up lots of yardage (126 yards against New England), figure to be all that Miami can say grace over next Sunday.

It's hard to pick a winner here. If the Falcons play like they did at Foxboro and Miami plays like it did against Cincinnati, you have to like the Falcons by at least six.

You can see this one on Channels 5-7 beginning at 1 p.m.

AROUND THE NFL LAST WEEK: Atlanta clipped New England, 37-31; Tampa Bay upset Los Angeles, 10-9; Buffalo whipped the Jets, 39-10; Philadelphia swamped Minnesota, 42-7; Detroit and Billy Sims pulsated Green Bay, 29-7; Chicago and Walter Payton throttled New Orleans, 23-3; Pittsburgh held off Baltimore, 20-17; Seattle edged Kansas City, 17-16; Miami overtook Cincinnati, 17-16; Denver buried Dallas, 41-20; San Diego and Dan Fouts outlasted Oakland in overtime, 30-24; and Washington rallied to beat the Giants, 23-21.

In a Monday night game, Houston beat Cleveland, 16-7.

Next Sunday, in addition to seeing Miami on Channels 5-7, you will be able to watch Minnesota at Chicago on Channel 4 at 1 p.m. and Tampa Bay at Dallas on the same channel at 4 p.m.

GETTING DOWN TO CASES on the Miami-Atlanta game. The Falcons are up one week, down the next, and Coach Shula is noted for ironing out kinks. Look for the Dolphins to bring down the Falcons next Sunday up in Atlanta, on the premise that Griese is backup and not the starter.

Murchison looks for second win

J. D. Murchison of Stuart, who recently turned pro, continues to be a threat in area 'circles and has his sights set on conquering the "tough" Mariner Sands golf course Friday.

J. D. believes he was a excellent chance of bringing together a pair of back-to-back victories on area 'Pro Am's staged in this area.

The young Martin County golf assistant comes off a sizzling round of four under par 68, which earned him the top pro money in the Pro Am event staged on the Sandpiper Saint's course last Friday. J.D.'s round was three shots better that second place Kelly Childs' 71. Deadlocked at even par 72 were Mariner Sands Chuck Knebels and Crane Creek's Jay Fyle. Bruce Harrison of Sandpiper won the fifth place slot in a snatch of cards over those three who finished at 73; Rob Crane, and Dave Graham of Sandpiper and Sandy Scherlis of Martin County.

The team headed by Fyle walked off with the top award of the Two Best Ball Pro Am four-man team event. The winners carded a 36 under par figure of 120 and included amateurs Doug Campora, Jerry Gould of Sandpiper and Bernie Maagold, Crane Creek.

Harrison led these amateurs to second place: Bill Meyers, Sandpiper, Bernie Madyda, Crane Creek and erstwhile one-handed putter Tommy Magno of Sandpiper.

Another two shots off the winner's pace was the team headed by pro Steve Cunningham and included Attorney Mickey Carmody and County Commissioner Frank Wacha of Jensen Beach and Jack Early of Sandpiper.

Teams headed by pros Bob Crane and the veteran Lon Thrift finished in a tie deadlock with amateur partners contributing to the win — George Garabedian, Ray Unsell, Dave Larsen, Sam Zinaich, Lou Merlano and Jim Furst.

Women's golfers play low putts

The Fort St. Lucie Women's Golf Association played last week for Low Putts at the Saints Course, Sandpiper Bay.

The winners are: A flight, Marge West, 36; first flight, Jean Fox, 31; second flight, Betty Pench, 34; third flight, Kay Prinkey, 33; and fourth flight, Marge Brown, 35.

GEORGE ROBERTS—Dolphin punter, was one of the stars last Sunday when Miami used a series of near miracles to pull out a last ditch victory over the visiting Cincinnati Bengals. His unusual on-side punt after a safety ignited Miami's winning rally.

Partner's best ball tourney is this Thursday

One of the summer season's largest fields will be competing the Partner's Best Ball competition in Sandpiper Men's Golf association activity Thursday, Sept. 18.

The 18-hole championship Saints course will be the site of the annual event in which many strong combinations are entered.

In last Thursday's action, labeled an individual test where golfers were allowed five sixth of their handicap and a choice of eliminating the three worst holes on the card, was won by Bob Morrisey who garnered 51 points.

Fractions of percentage points separated many of the leading positions as Dave Brancaccio finished second, only one sixth of a point off the winner's score. He was followed by Durant Denton and Jim Docos who deadlocked in the next slot just missing out Dick Lundin by a scant fraction.

Sandtrap

BY MIKE SANDY

He has a way with the kids.

I refer to Mike Skeffington, a native Chicagian now making his home on the Treasure Coast of Florida and doing what he likes best. He surrounds himself with young people who want to learn the game of golf at free classes he holds on Saturday mornings at the Sandpiper Saints' practice range and putting greens. His greatest pleasures and rewards come from following many whom he instructed and many who have earned "free" full golf scholarships at leading colleges.

Now in his 68th year, Mike does have "swelling" of the chest symptoms when he learns that many of his youngsters are making the grade on the links. Many of his pupils have participated in the Florida PGA as amateurs and professionals. He proudly talks of the Rinker kids with whom he worked, together with their father Laine Sr. Each of the four Rinkers, Laine Jr., Larry, Lee and Laurie have received or are continuing to receive their education through golf scholarships. Larry continues to show great promise as a tour golfer having amassed more than $20,000 during the year in Spacecoast and other mini tour events. Lauri is an All American Miss. Another of Skeffington's prize proteges is Richard Cromwell of Stuart, a member of the crack Texas A & M golf team.

Skeffinton has been around the game for years. He gives credit to his parish priest in Illinois, for whom Mike started to caddy at the age of seven. He did not have the advantages of many other youngsters who were being tutored by name pros. Mike learned the game by watching and practicing and it is no wonder that he decided to help youngsters, whenever possible. He is dedicated to the youngsters and gives of his time to start the kids off in the "right way" in the game he loves so much.

He can be found every Sunday morning at the Saint's course with a dozen or more boys ranging in age from 8 to 15. Mike's time is free. All the lads need to pay is $1 for a bucket of practice balls out of the pro shop. Many close observers of the game have noted that youngsters seen playing with their parents all have the "talented swing as prescribed by Skeffinton. They don't flounder around the course. They keep the ball in play and do not swing like they want to take the cover off the ball.

Mike's teachings are paying off for these kids who will certainly be able to enjoy the game which was designed for pleasure. Skeffinton has a couple under his wing now whom he believes will become notable golfers and most should be able to get college educations from golf scholarships. He works with the kids with that in mind.

Skeffinton didn't have it easy as a youth. He lived with an aunt in Chicago who gave him his allowance in packages of street car tokens which were worth about five cents each. In his spare time, when not handling chores for his aunt, he would meet with other young people at Lincoln Park Municipal golf course and bet a street car token against a nickel. He managed to amass a bucketful of Indian heads.

He later worked as a messenger for the Chicago Daily Journal and many of his duties were to escort staff photographers. He vividly recalls the scene he came upon with a photographer who was assigned to "click" the results of the now famed St. Valentine's Day massacre.

His amiability won him many friends and acquaintances both on and off the golf courses he played. Through such a contact he became associated with the Drury Brewery where he was elevated to sales manager in South Bend, Ind. After the war he was transferred to the Detroit, Mich. area and shortly thereafter returned to his first love when he took a job as assistant to the famous Horton Smith at the Detroit Country Club.

After serving as head pro and greenskeeper at Mt. Clemons, Skeffinton came to Port St. Lucie in 1959, serving as assistant to "Chick" Harbert and doubling in brass as public relations director for the Saint and Sinners Golf. He remained here in both capacities until 1964 when he accepted a position as teaching pro with Craig Wood at the newly-opened Lucaya Country Club in the Grand Bahamas.

When he received an "offer he couldn't refuse" Mike went north to the Metropolitan New York area to handle sales for the Victor Corp., manufactures of PGA golf equipment. Missing his active golf participation, Mike went back to teaching two years later when he took a job as teaching pro at Red Run C.C. in Detroit, where he got to know Dick Whiting and Frank Metzger, both active in Sandpiper golf events. His reputation as an outstanding teaching pro later brought him to the Old Westbury CC in Long Island with Beo Roman.

A lover of the sun and the Florida climate, Mike later accepted a position with Art Young, who had recently built the Holiday golf course here. After spending a year with Holiday, Mike Skeffinton came back to Sandpiper where he currently serves as a teaching pro (by appointment only).

He wants to continue with the kids because he wants to put something back into the game that has been so good to him.

62 combos play scramble event

Competing in a field of 62 two-man teams, Carl Alfrey teamed with Dale Doelling to take low gross honors and a combo of Dave Foreman and Bernie Tripp snared the low net award in the Second Annual Mariner Sands Invitational Two man Scramble last Saturday.

The Alfrey-Doelling pair of Stuart posted a gross score of 64, nosing out Jay Gaines and Cleve Webb of Mariner Sands with a card of 65. The winners received $150 in merchandise while the runnerups collected $100.

The Foreman-Tripp combo won the low net award of $150, outscoring the second place team by less than one percentage point. Runnersup in the net scoring included John Draper of Sandpiper Bay and Dave Larsen of Crane Creek.

Heritage Ridge County Club officials, Terry Keathely and Larry MacDonald found sole possession of third place in the net scoring department with a tally of 58 followed by Woody Smoak and Ed McGavock; Tom Harrell and Wayne Malniquist; Ray and Jay Knipe and Larry Lorentzen and Cam Harlan.

Graham wins in Northport play

Jim Larsonson flight B with a 60, and Howard Fatzinger had a 62. In flight C, Stan Vick had a 55, while Howard Baird had a 59. Frank Rhein won flight D with a 62. Red Rodgers followed with a 64.

Paul Adams was closest on the eighth hole. Stottlemeyer was closest on the 14th.

LET'S BE HONEST
If you weren't looking for a new position, you wouldn't be reading this ad. If we weren't looking for personnel, this ad wouldn't be here. We are interested in talking to ambitious men and women, who feel that they are presently earning less than their potential, and who are not afraid of a little bit of hard work for their financial independence and security. To these people, our expanding multi-million dollar international fraternal benefit society offers unlimited possibilities through our prompt advance commission system. This is a dignified sales career with an excellent chance for promotion and generous fringe benefits. For interview, please call:

Obituary

ELLA BERNHARDT

Ella Bernhardt, 91, of 1196 N.E. Charlotte, Jensen Beach, Florida died Wednesday in Westville, New Jersey.

Born in Norristown, Pennsylvania she had been a resident of Jensen Beach for twenty six years coming from Westfield, New Jersey.

Prior to retirement she was a restaurant hostess for Snellenbergs Department store in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Bernhardt was a member of All Saints Episcopal Church and All Saints Episcopal Church Guild.

Survivors include her sister Margaret Jackson of Stuart.

Graveside services were held Tuesday, September 16th at Fernhill Cemetery, Stuart, with the Reverend Jonathan B. Coffey officiating.

Arrangements were under the direction of the Aycock Funeral Home in Stuart.

Soccer to begin soon

Beginning October 4th, area children from ages 7 through 14 will get together on Langford field for a lot of running, kicking, and fun.

Mark Bocchino, Optimist's soccer commissioner, has already begun registering the anticipated 250 kids that will hopefully turn out to play. Any interested girl or boy can sign up at Langford Park field house on Sept. 26 and 27, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. For working parents, sign-up will be offered Sept. 24 and 25 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Dues are $15 per child or $30 for a family plan.

According to Bocchino, the teams are divided into lower, middle and upper divisions. The levels are determined after the children take part in evaluation day. It is then that kicking and running skills are tested. From there, names are placed on a huge board and the drafting of players begins. Players may be diverse in ability, but their coaches try and keep them in the same age groups.

Thanks to the Optimist Club, t-shirts, pants, socks, and insurance, all of which cover the children. The dues partially take care of the expense, while various fund-raising activities supply the rest.

Soccer is a fast game. One that involves quick reflexes and stamina. It does not, however, require the experience of any youngster wishing to play. Bocchino says that already, five girls have joined, and hopes to see many more on the teams. He says the boys treat them the same, for the girls can run just as fast.

Bocchino believes that soccer is a fun sport for both players as well as spectators. Everyone plays, and it's fun to watch the skills continuously improve.

In addition to soccer games, Langford Park is the scene of a wide number of sports activities. Currently underway, is the youth football season. On any number of nights, young boys can be seen and heard as they run their warm-up laps around the park, or do sit-ups to the tune of one-two, one-two.

Chandler wins tourney at Mid-Court

The Mid-Court Racquetball Center in Rio held its first annual in-house singles tournament last weekend, and the event proved to be highly competitive.

Of the 95 participants in the tourney, there were six divisions to enter.

The Men's A division was the most hotly contested one, with Danny Chandler winning 21-12, 21-16 over Steve Chapman.

In the Men's B division, Earl Carmacho posted a 21-16, 14-21, 21-16 win over Horace Wiggins.

Local players Thom Cowher and Pete Lee battled it out in the Men's Novice division with Lee pulling out a 21-19, 21-13 win.

Sue Donaldson overcame Rhonda Elias' powerful strokes to cop the Women's Intermediate title with a 21-8, 21-7 victory. The Women's Novice trophy was taken by Barbara Graunke, who beat Loretta Vaughn by 21-9 and 21-11 scores.

A round-robin tourney was played in the Boys Junior division with each boy getting to play at least four games. Michael Lindberg won the tourney with Kent Hughes a close second.

Antique cars will display, boost show

More than fifteen members of an antique auto group will show their vintage cars this weekend at East Ocean Mall. Also, some of the cars will be used to provide theme to the opening of a new disco band, the Spyder's Legacy at the Foxfire Inn on Monday, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The group features music from the 1950s.

Both showings of the old-time automobiles will be free to the public.

The display in the East Ocean Mall will be inside the air conditioned mall. A special booth will offer information on the formation of a Treasure Coast old car club.

On Saturday, September 20, a special matinee for kids will be held at the Foxfire Inn to allow the kids to see the new show and become acquainted with the music of that period. The show is free.

Wacha-Haynes debate set for CofC forum

A debate on issues facing voters in the county commission district one race will be held for members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce at the monthly forum at 8 a.m., October 7, at the Admiral's Table Restaurant on Indian River Drive.

The debate will feature incumbent Democratic County Commissioner Frank Wacha and challenger Alex Haynes, a Republican.

According to Dennis Doyle, executive director of the Chamber, the commissioners will make statements and then will be questioned by a panel of representatives of local media.

The debate will last for one hour.

Being held on the second primary election day, the debate will kick off the general election campaign in Jensee Beach.

The program will be preceded by a coffee for the members of the Chamber.

Voters to decide 5 amendments

Decisions on five proposed amendments to the state constitution face voters in the Oct. 7 primary run-off.

The five amendments basically cover tax exemptions for solar energy installations in homes and businesses, revenue bonds to finance residential mortgages for low to middle income level families, local real and tangible tax exemptions to encourage new and expanding businesses, an increase in Homestead Exemption from $5,000 to $25,000 by 1982, and repeal of the inventory tax.

Amendment One would provide a ten-year ad valorem property tax exemption at a rate to be determined by the legislature for homes or businesses installing such energy efficient equipment as collectors, heat pumps, heat exchange devices or geothermal hot water systems.

Amendment Two would create a Florida Housing Figance Agency with the authority to issue revenue bonds to finance or refinance residential housing for low, moderate and middle-income level residents. The bonds would be paid off through returned mortgage monies.

Amendment Three would allow local governments to grant non-school real and tangible personal property tax exemptions to attract new businesses and for community redevelopment. Exemptions would be limited to a ten-year period. Local referendums would be required to approve the authority.

Amendment Four provides for three annual increments in the present $5,000 regular exemption and $10,000 exemption in homesteaders over 65. These exemptions would be increased to $15,000 in 1988, $20,000 in 1981 and level off at $25,000 in 1983 for those who have been Florida residents for at least five consecutive years.

The increased Homestead Exemption is designed to offset increases in property taxes resulting from re-appraising at full market value now mandated by state law.

Amendment Five would authorize the state legislature to do away with the inventory tax assessed on business inventories of raw materials and finished goods.

Each of the proposed amendments has passed the Florida Senate and House by more than a three-fourths favorable vote.

All registered voters are eligible to vote on the proposed amendments.

No cause for alarm

Jensen Beach residents accustomed to ignoring the Saturday morning fire alarm test should refrain themselves to ignoring a Tuesday morning siren test.

According to Fire Chief Joe Luciano, the test alarm will now be sounded at 10:30 a.m. Tuesdays instead of Saturdays. Try to ignore it.

SUNRISE—The residents along the Indian River for the past few weeks have been delighted by the fantastic, colorful sunrises as the season approached fall. and morning storms gathered over the Atlantic. This scene, taken in front of the Environmental Center of Indian River Drive, is not a typical of the beauty of the morning.

Athlete of the week is in Mirror

Sue Werner, Martin County High School varsity volleyball star, spiked, served and defensed her way into selection as Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai Athlete of the Week for her effort Sunday in the MCHS victory over Ft. Pierce. The honor is the first in the new school year.

Ms Ft. Pierce, Westwood High School running back Victor Sirmons won the honors for St. Lucie County.

The competition honors the best high school senior in sports each week. There are then monthly winners who are awarded trophies, and at the end of the school year an athlete of the year award is made, which includes a $500 scholarship from Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai.

The four county area is in the competition, with one winner each week from Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Okeechobee Counties.

The awards are made by The Mirror, Ft. Pierce News-Tribune, Vero Beach Press-Journal and Okeechobee News.

Freeholders seek rezoning

Efforts to keep Indian River Drive north of Walton Road an area of single-family residences and "maintain the beautiful meandering road as one to be driven slowly and enjoyed" have been renewed by the IRD Freeholders Association.

Attorney Gerald S. James of the Fort Pierce firm of James and Lasniak, attorneys for the IRD 180-member group, appeared before the Port St. Lucie commissioners meeting in workshop session Monday night.

He was there to request a rezoning of the 180-acre tract owned by developer Nat Harrison that would prevent construction of multi-family dwellings by holding the population density to a maximum of four residences per acre.

James told commissioners that multi-family usage would not be in the best interests of the "community, the county or the area." The narrowness of the road would make it impossible to handle the added influx of traffic created by the possible 2,860 new residents the Harrison development could bring in, he said.

Commissioners were generally agreed that since Harrison purchases the tract under existing zoning which permits multi-family dwellings, it would not be feasible to attempt to rezone the property now.

Councilman Gerald Girard pointed out that to "go in and change the zoning after it was bought to use as zoned would certainly be challenged in a court."

Asked if he had contacted Harrison, James said he had, but that the owner had not seemed agreeable to capping the density or even to give any details on the proposed land use.

In presenting his arguments, James asserted that Planned Unit Development (PUD) land usage restrictions are not clear and he asked commissioners to consider setting up sub-categories that would state the number of units per acre allowed.

Mayor William Mc Chesney assured James that commissioners would continue to work on the problem of rezoning revisions.

Because council was meeting as a workshop session, no action was taken.

County defers action on beach concession stands

Action on proposals from four entrepreneurs who hope to operate concession stands on Hutchinson Island public beaches was delayed Tuesday by Martin County Commissioners who referred the plans to County Administrator Ed Strube.

The proposals range from a $305,000 two-story pavilion planned by Irvin Deggeller of Jensen Beach to refreshment stands of the hamburger and soda pop variety.

Commissioners had invited concessionaires to submit plans for stands along with the estimated fees they would offer the county in exchange for use of the land.

The plan submitted by Deggeller, would provide space for a restaurant, penny arcade, beach supply sales and rentals, all housed in a pavilion with a circus motif.

After viewing Deggeller's plans some commissioners expressed the opinion that they sought something less elaborate.

Deggeller and Robert Coy are partners in a construction firm and in addition, Deggeller is president of the Deggeller Amusement Co., a Stuart firm which operates fair and carnival midway concessions.

Deggeller has said he will pay the county 18 percent of the gross receipts from the beach concession in exchange for a ten year lease with at least two options to renew.

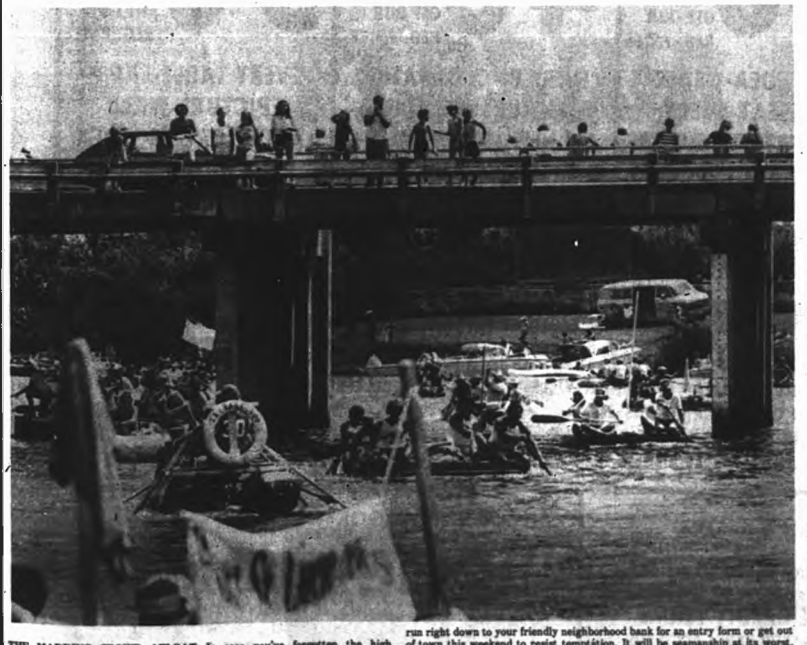
A proposal submitted by Eldred G. Miller calls for a basic refreshment stand with $6,800 annual rental fee to be paid the county.

Sean LaVelle, a Jensen Beach resident, submitted plans for two concession stands, one to be located at Stuart Beach and the other on Jensee Beach, but did not estimate the amount to be paid the county from the receipts.

The fourth proposal was made by Joseph Romano and John Farnas for a 150-square foot stand and was not accompanied by any estimated revenue.

Commissioners will consider the proposals at a future date after deciding on the type of concession most needed.

Proceeds from the concessions will be used for beach maintenance.



THE MADDING CROWD AFLOAT—In case you've forgotten the high adventure, the thrills, the skills and the utter chaos of the Great American Raft Race, a scene from last year should jog your memory and either inspire you to run right down to your friendly neighborhood bank for an entry form or get out of town this weekend to resist temptation. It will be seamanship at its worst, with untroubled captains and undismayed crews afloat on the foam. Sold foam to be supplied by Budweiser. (Photo by Fred Meissner)

Nuclear plant gets antitrust approval

The U.S. Justice Department has approved an essential step in the process needed for Florida Power & Light Company's fourth nuclear power plant, the company announced today.

The agreement applies to the St. Lucie Number Two power plant being constructed on Hutchinson Island in coastal St. Lucie County between Fort Pierce and Stuart. The plant is scheduled to begin operation in 1983, producing 802 megawatts for the FPL grid that serves 35 Florida counties.

A list within the document signed Friday in Washington rates the shares each municipality is eligible to purchase. Percentage shares range from six percent for Orlando to .03 percent for Lake Helen. Other municipalities listed, with percentages, are: Gainesville two percent, Vero Beach one percent, Fort Pierce one percent, Lake Worth .89 percent, Florida Keys Cooperative .78 percent, Key West .74 percent, Jacksonville Beach .64 percent, Fernandina Beach Division of Florida Public Utilities Company .45 percent, Homestead .44 percent, New Smyrna Beach .4 percent, Clewiston .19 percent, Green Cove Springs .13 percent, Starke .11 percent and Moore Haven .03 percent.

FIT opens

Approximately 275 freshman students are expected to fill the classes that are scheduled to begin Monday, Sept. 29.

Orientation for new FIT students will be held throughout the day, beginning with a breakfast for the parents at 9:30 a.m., to be served in the cafeteria.

A few changes have taken place since last year. Various rooms as well as buildings have been upgraded. The physics lab is one of these. It has undergone renovation and will be able to provide more wide services to students.

In addition to structural changes, FIT, like other institutions has undergone a yearly change in personnel. The dive department, under the direction of Charlie Vallance, is planning to generate additional interest in scuba classes. One way they hope to achieve this is by offering an instructor certification course later this year.

Other programs at FIT include the environmental and aqua-culture departments. They are headed up by Joseph Gillo and Dr. Mike Hartman respectively.

According to Gillo, many projects are slated for the next year. Currently, other staff members, along with full time students are planting mangroves in the Sailfish Point development on Hutchinson Island. To date, 7,000 mangroves have been planted in the lagoon to make it "a richer and natural environment," says Gillo.

The various departments at FIT all have plans for the new fall semester. Instructors have been busy preparing for their respective students while the freshmen are busy walking the campus, and making their dormitory room just a little bit different.

Orientation will come and go, leaving students and their professors to wrestle with new projects and ideas. One thing is certain, whatever these students bring with them to class, it is bound to be interesting.

Tests offered to aid career choices ahead

The 1980-81 school year is just beginning but juniors and seniors at Martin County High and other high schools across the country are already facing some big decisions.

One of those is what to do after graduation--whether to go on to school, get a job, or try to do both.

Playing an important role in the students' postsecondary education and career planning will be guidance counselors, parents, friends, and a national service called the ACT Assessment Program. Designed to provide guidance information for education and career planning, the widely used program is recommended for use by student applicants at more than 2,700 colleges and universities.

Martin County High students will have five opportunities during the 1980-81 school year to make use of the national program, which consists of four tests and a two-part questionnaire. Students complete the questionnaire at home as part of the registration process, and then take the battery of tests at area test centers on any of five weekend national test dates, explained Mrs. Elmira R. Gainey, Director of Guidance-Student Services.

The five 1980-81 national test dates and the corresponding registration deadlines are available from Gainey at MCHS.

The basic student fee for using the ACT Assessment is $6.50.

It takes students about three hours to complete the ACT Assessment's four exams, which cover four subject areas: English, math, social studies, and natural sciences. On any of the test dates, most local students will take the tests at Martin County High.

Gainey said the test scores provide an assessment of general educational development, while the questionnaire information focuses on academic and nonacademic accomplishments and interests, as well as career and educational plans.

In addition to being used by students and their high school counselors, information provided by the ACT Assessment is also used by colleges for academic advising, admissions counseling, course sectioning and placement, student services, and institutional research. Students' ACT [illegible] are sent to only those [illegible] by the respective students.

Adult and community education classes begin

Residents have a choice of ten more community education programs to be offered in Jensen Beach starting in October. They offer instruction in everything from fishing to investments, from making Christmas presents to buying a used car. All are offered through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center. Several are being offered for the first time locally.

"How to Buy a Used Car" is another first time offering. As the price of cars and repairs continues to skyrocket, it becomes increasingly important for the prospective buyer to recognize by sight and sound those conditions that will require repair.

Instructor John Campbell is a graduate mechanical engineer with over 12 years experience in automotive design and repair. He will discuss both in general terms and specific references what to look for when examining and test driving a used car. The class, for which there is a $5 registration fee, will be held at the Environmental Center on Thursday Oct. 2 and 9th from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Included in the registration fee is an 88-page booklet entitled "How to Buy a Used Car" published by Consumer's Union.

"Better health through exercise" will again be offered for 10 weeks at Jensen Beach Elementary School starting Tuesday, Oct. 7 at 7 p.m. Laura Cassella will again lead the class which meets for 90 minutes on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Mrs. Cassella, who has taught both gymnastics and physical education in public schools, includes a "dancercise" warm-up, calisthenics and Yoga exercises for muscle stretching and relaxation. This class consistently draws a large enrollment.

Three crafts classes for senior citizens are also scheduled to start in October. Newest offering is "Christmas Crafts" a 10-week course in simple macrame, shellcraft, bead work, stitchery and bread dough art. It will be taught by Kathy Kernan, an experienced crafts teacher, at the Environmental Studies Center on Monday nights at 7 p.m. starting Oct. 6. Emphasis will be on creating inexpensive gifts for Christmas and year-round giving.

"Students in the "Stained Glass Art" class will create valuable works of art, window panels or other items under the direction of artist John Mellac starting 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8 at the Environmental Studies Center. Beginning students will first learn the rudiments of the art by making a simple panel and then will move on to create an item of their own design.

Also scheduled are two "repeats" of extremely popular programs held in the spring -- the fishing seminar series (starting Oct. 15) and the Investment Survival in the 80's (starting Oct. 16). In addition, two new presentations will be offered for the first time: "Help Yourself to Better Health" (starting Oct. 14) and "Buying and Selling Real Estate" (a free panel discussion on Oct. 29). More about these programs in our next column.

Further information about any of these programs as well as pre-registration for any can be obtained by calling Jay Jarrett at 334-1383. Most classes carry a $8 registration fee.

Another in the popular series of Fabric Painting classes will be offered senior citizens through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center. The class will meet in the new Community Room of Jensen Lenses starting at 1 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 2.

Using textile paints to decorate clothing or other material does not require artistic talent, according to instructor Stella Chagnon. "If you can write, you can do fabric painting," she declared. There is a $5 registration fee. Paints can be purchased as needed.

Homeowners can save money by learning to make minor repairs themselves and the Jensen Beach Community Education Center is offering a course in just that. "Be Your Own Handyman" will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1 to 5 starting Oct. 7 at the Environmental Studies Center.

The course will cover any and all aspects of home maintenance, from choosing the right tools to rewiring a fl or lamp or patching a plaster wall. Instructor Harold Whelan will cover the skills required by each student to solve his or her specific maintenance problems. Thus the students' needs will structure the course.

Saturday is Great American Raft Race!

The frenzied flotilla of inner tubes, oil drums and other possible floatables will lurch into the water sometime after 10 o'clock Saturday morning and attempt to stay afloat long enough to cross the North Port Marina and return with all hands still on deck or at least clinging to the sides.

Once again the spitome of marine mayhem will be sponsored by the Port St. Lucie Exchange Club, WOVV radio station and Budweiser.

Possibly in the hope of getting everyday sane landlubbers to think crazy ahead of time, a "Captain's Cocktail Party" will be hosted by General Development Corp. Friday night for preregistered crews and captains.

The cost of registering is $5 and entry blanks are available at most local banks to be turned in at the Marina. Official registration will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday.

A bikini contest (open only to those wearing them) is another innovation this year. The contest will be sponsored by Budweiser, which also provides prizes for all race divisions.

And the air will be filled with music provided by a Rock 'n Disco Show sponsored by Taylor Rentals.

Eight classes of vessels will be racing Saturday during the daylong event.

Divisions and starting times are: Expert Canoe Division, noon; Surfboards, 12:15 p.m.; Amateur Canoes, 12:30 p.m.; Miscellaneous, 12:45 p.m.; Unlimited Raft, 1:15 p.m.; Innertube Sprint, 1:20 p.m.; Innertube Division II, 1:30 p.m.; and Handpaddled or poled Raft, 1:45.

In event of rain, spectators can take refuge in tent areas scattered around the marina banks.

And once again, all proceeds from the Great American Raft Race will be donated to The United Way.

The Jr. Woman's Club of Stuart is sponsoring the 20th Annual Martin County Christmas Parade to be held on Saturday, Dec. 13 at 2 p.m. Letters and entry forms have been mailed to all who entered last year. Stuart Jr.'s are anxious to have all groups and organizations represented to make this the biggest and best parade ever.

Entry forms must be submitted before the deadline on Dec. 1, 1980.

The Grand Theme for the parade this year will be "Christmas Memories". A first and second place trophy will be awarded for the best entry in this category. Participants are encouraged to include music in their entries. A trophy will also be awarded for the following: two best non-playing marching or drill units, best marching band playing, best entry depicting "Keeping Christ in Christmas", best constructed float using music, most versatile float, best animal entry, and best business or civic entry. All entries are eligible for the Grand Theme.

The parade chairmen for the 1980 parade are Laura Preston and Jan Townsend. If there are any questions regarding entry in the parade or lineup contact Lineup Chairmen Helga Saure 286-6823 after 3 p.m. or Sandy Kesler 334-0878 after 5 p.m. For information or a list of current rules and regulations contact lineup co-chairmen and they will be dispatched to you. Entries might include, but are not limited to: floats, cars, wagons, boats, bikes, animals, marching drill units, performing bands, clowns or other performers, mechanical units and the like. Entries are not limited to Martin County and other area bands and organizations are invited to participate.

Soccer registration

The Jensen Beach Optimist Club will hold Soccer Registration on Wednesday, Sept. 24 and Thursday, Sept. 25 from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Optimist Building at Langford Park. It will also be on Saturday, Sept. 27 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Langford Park Fieldhouse.

Boys and girls ages 7 to 16 are eligible. For further information call Mike Bocchino at 334-4122.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE MORTGAGE BALLOONS.

QUESTION: About five years ago, I purchases an apartment building. In connection with that purchase, the previous owner took back a purchase-money second mortgage. That mortgage will be coming due in about six months. My original intention was to refinance the first mortgage to raise sufficient capital to pay off the former owner's mortgage. However, with mortgage interest rates so high, I think I would be better off if I could handle that loan without touching my existing mortgage. Do you have any ideas?

ANSWER: Perhaps the first person you should talk to is the holder of that loan. And the first question you should ask the mortgage holder is "What are you going to do with the money?" If the money is simply going to be reinvested, you may be able to renegotiate the loan. Try to negotiate a three-to-five-year extension on the loan in return for a higher interest rate. The advantages of this arrangement certainly make it worth a try.

If the mortgagee insists that you pay off the loan, you could talk to a commercial lender. It may make sense to place a new second mortgage, even at a relatively high rate. Such a second mortgage may be preferable to long-term refinancing of the existing first mortgage at a high rate, particularly if rates drop in the next six to 12 months.

There are many other possible strategies to cope with the balloon mortgage. I would be happy to sit down and discuss your situation if you so desire.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by

Frey backers bid to lose senate seat

A serious breach of common sense occurred last week when the chairman, and the corresponding secretary and the vice chairman of the Martin County Republican Executive Committee endorsed the candidacy of Lou Frey.

The ploy that they did it as "individuals" and not as officers of the party indicates how foolish a manuever it is. Foolish and devisive.

We believe that those officers should immediately resign and go to work for their candidate.

It is the job of the county executive committee to encourage good candidates to run, and help them to be elected. It is not the job of executive committee members to divide their own party.

It might just be that this is the first time that the Republicans in Martin County had a real-life multi-candidate primary, in both local and state elections. Perhaps the executive committee members forgot that this is the runoff, and not the general election.

How is it possible for the chairman of the committee, and other officers, to pull the party together whomever wins in October? It is impossible.

It is this kind of political suicide that gave Florida two Democratic senators in the past. It looks like it is beginning to happen again.

PSL Council table motion was needed

The concern of the Port St. Lucie City Council over a resolution that might have forced reporters to wait two weeks to obtain a city document was properly expressed in the vote to table the resolution to a future date.

The resolution should be tabled for good.

It is not a good resolution, and we wonder if the city really needs one on public documents.

City manager Mike Szunyog told the council members that the resolution was just putting into writing what has been city policy for some time. Unfortunately, the resolution would do much more, on both sides of the issue.

It could delay the receipt of necessary materials by the press for reporting the news. It could also open the door for the buying of favors from city personnel to get information more quickly.

Good common sense would take care of the problem. We do not feel that Szunyog had the muzzling of the press in mind when he had the resolution written. He was just trying to get something in writing to hand to someone who might make a demand for something that would take hours of research and time of city employees, and put a price on it.

We see the possibility of a clerk with a yen for power using such a resolution to prevent someone from getting something out of spite.

Port St. Lucie has had a long record of being one of the most accessible to people and the media in the state of Florida. The city was one of the first in Florida to pass its own "Government in the Sunshine" law.

The city manager and other officials have made information readily available whenever needed, and has been on time with full information on what is to be discussed at meetings, to the benefit of the press and the public.

We don't want to see that change.

Szunyog has done an excellent job thus far in the handling of many variables related to city documents. Those variables dictate that no written policy be set, and that each situation be handled with good common sense.

After all, why change a winner?

Bike path progress

Residents who want bike paths throughout the north county area will have to wait for them for a few years.

There is only so much that can be done, and only so much money with which to do it.

The district funds available this year will be $50,000. that will take care of some of the bike path. It will pave a stretch of path along SR 707 from the 7-11 store to Hillcrest Lane, over the dangerous hill near the bowling alley. It will also tie together the stretch from the end of the newly completed Sewall's Point bike path to Palmer Road, in front of Frances Langford's Outrigger Resort.

A third piece will be from the Crossroads to Riverside Village, and a fourth from Langford Park to Fisherman's Haven on SR 707. The last piece, along the length of Florida Institute of Technology on Indian River Drive, will be iffy, hoping the funding lasts.

A little at a time. That is what it takes to get the job done. In a few years, the bike paths will be completed. If that is what it takes to get bike paths throughout the community, then that is what we must do.

While the above is being completed, the county will have the time to get the necessary easements signed and ready for the next step to complete the entire route from the Outrigger to the Jensen Beach Causeway.

A fine party

Jensen Beach proved one thing the other night . . it knows how to throw a good party.

The affair was a Chamber of Commerce social hour, TGIF, the celebration of the end of the week, or something like that, and it turned out to be a great success story, thanks to those who planned it. Top honors go to Marg Paris of the Paris Inn Shoppe, and Barbara Tarver of Action Realty, who served as hostesses and planners.

It is impossible to name all those 140 business people who showed up for the shindig, beginning with Chamber President Dick Campbell on down. Dick, with his newly-curley hair was the hit of the show. Among those seen enjoying the fun were hairdresser Randy Fegt and Chamber treasurer Gene Greenwood.

And, of course, Chan and Fran Pollack, owners of the charming Crow's Nest Restaurant, are much to be commended for doing a bang-up job supplying the goodies and the service.

Also lending a hand were many members of The Mirror staff, including Peg Meissner, Mary B. Meissner, Jeannie Morgan, Cathy Farago, and surprise of surprises, Ona Laamanen just in from Korea to visit. She is the former business manager of the Mirror.

Peg Meissner looked lovely in a gown that matched the beauty of the other ladies on board.

Others there included Lucky and Mrs. Shawver, Don and Sandy St. Onge, builder Bob Coy, Bob Garmer of biking fame, Fred and Dot Nabutovsky of the arts foundation, and Jensen Bank president Ron Mitchell.

The purpose of the party was to get the business people together and let them know what kinds of nice guys and gals are in business in our communities and who they may be dealing with in the coming year to promote Jensen Beach.

There to spy on what we are doing was Stuart Chamber executive Ray Navitsky and his charming wife, Barbara. He had to be impressed with what the guys and gals next door are doing.

While the revelers paid for their beverages, the beautiful table 'd fest was sponsored by such as First National of Stuart, with ad exec Sara Esposito there with Jensen branch manager Dick Grant, Sheridan and Associates, with ever vibrant Dora Sheridan on hand, Casa Rio Boat and Motor Sales, represented by the Fred Stems and the Richard Zarichs. Other sponsors included First Federal of Martin, Florida National Bank, Southern Bell and the Gene Van Curens representing Florida Power and Light. They paid the tab for the goodies.

I hope they have more such parties. They are fun, and show the potential of growth and value of working and growing together.

My generator my knee

Lifting newspapers puts my back out of whack, and I go to see Nick Masi to replace whatever it is that comes out of kilter, or to Dr. Bartlam to hear things track and pop into place.

When I go home in pain and anguish, Salli gives me little sympathy, saying, "You shouldn't have lifted those things."

I do have the garbage lifting down pat, though. Last Sunday, I was dumping the garbage from the office when Peg drove up with her family. She immediately ordered her husband and son to take out the remaining barrel, telling me not to injure myself as I had a bad knee.

The bad knee is another matter. Two Saturdays ago I played to my usual all-day tennis match. We meet out there at 8 a.m. and play three sets. Then we have breakfast and play three more sets. That takes until noon.

We'll sit down and have a beer, then play another three set match. Then it's another pitcher of beer and a hot dog, and we start in again with another three setter. At about four, we end up the day with a three set match and go home about six. That is ten hours of tennis.

Usually, I'm completely exhausted, but feel great with the day of exercise. But, that Sunday I hurt my knee.

It was a little twist, but the next day I hobbled around. I put ice on it for the next few days, and it seemed well enough for last Saturday.

I did it again. Played all morning, rejoined the knee, and then entered Tom Falkenburg's doubles tournament. He put me with Bill Gunns, who has a sprained ankle. We must have looked a sight, hobbling around the tennis court.

Our opponents had little sympathy, drop-shotting us at every opportunity. After five-previous close sets, we ended up in a playoff, tied for the lead, and last, 4-3. That was when my back went, too.

Sunday was spent hobbling around the office giving our new news editor a rundown on the operation, driving her all over the place for orientation, and at six I went home to see the last of the Tampa Bay game.

Everything stiffened up and I got no sympathy. So, I put the knee up and watched the Reagen-Anderson debate.

When it was over, I crawled into bed and spent a restless night.

I know that Monday is a day of confusion, and I'll wait until almost evening to get to Nick's place. In the meantime, I sit with ice on the knee, shifting it to the back as needed.

Then, suddenly, I realize that Bob Fryer is gone, and I am the only able-bodied man left on the staff full-time (I wonder if the woman's lib thing covers garbage cans.)

When I was driving to work, the red light with "generator" on it came on. The warning signal sent me into a panic, so I drove straight to David's garage to have it checked out.

After much testing and poking with a needle thing and machines that have dials that look like a Boeing 474 cockpit, I was informed that the fuse that controls my radio antenna was the problem.

Does that make sense? David just shook his head. He told me that it made no sense that the generator light would give a warning if the fuse that controls the antenna is blown.

I took it as a sign. I will go to Nick first, keep off the knee and try to get well. I think my generator is giving me a warning.

I see by the paper

Well, I see by the paper I'm the news editor. I can hardly wait to see what next week's news is.

I guess by that time I'm supposed to know what the news is before I see it in the paper. Let's all hope for the best.

In order to fulfill that obligation, I'll have to take to the streets and start asking questions. I presume you know that's what newspapering is all about. Every week you think up questions to ask everybody in sight and as soon as you think you've got enough answers to fill a paper, you print those up, throw the paper away and think up some more questions to ask for next week.

For some reason that escapes me at the moment, that's what makes newspapering so exciting.

Every so often (and it happened to me the first day on the job here) somebody says, "What made you go into that line of work?"

I think the question was put to me by the president of the Martin-St. Lucie chapter of Save Our Fallen Women, but putting the best face on the inquiry I'll try to apologize my way out of it.

The basic equipment and qualifications for newspapering are so minimal that it's an easy occupation to fall into.

First off, all you have to know is how to read and write. You can thank your way through the public school's curriculum of chemistry, mathematics, foreign languages, gym, and home economics, rendered you unfit for arts, crafts and sciences, but if you can at least read and write, you can become a reporter.

Then you find somebody who owns a pencil and paper (that's the role of the publisher) who's willing to lend them to you and you're in business.

After that it's all cookies. Join any crowd and start asking questions. Usually the publisher will also loan you a typewriter because nobody can read your handwriting and that makes your answers look real professional.

There are a couple of hazards in the business, of course. Sometimes people claim the answer you wrote down isn't what they said. And sometimes letters fall off the pages and what gets printed isn't quite like how it started off.

Which reminds me of something else I read about myself in the paper. A few letters fell off in that story and we're still looking around for them. We know they're here someplace.

The letters that fall off spell "Beach." And they used to be inserted into a space describing a part of my former life where I worked for the Miami . . . Times.

The Miami Times is a worthy newspaper. It serves the black community in that city very creditably. Howsomever, I've never been on their staff and I wouldn't want them to think I had fudged on my resume.

So as soon as we find those letters B-e-a-c-h that didn't quite stick to the paper, we'll insert them to make it read "Miami Beach Times" and that will make an honest woman of me once again.

As honest as circumstances permit anybody who takes up with newspapering, anyhow.

And then there's that question which hangs on everybody's lips the moment they meet me. (You meet anybody with something dangling from their lips you know I just passed by.)

Actually, one question becomes three: What was your name again? How do you spell that? What kind of a name is that, anyway?

Ailsa. As in Ale-sa.

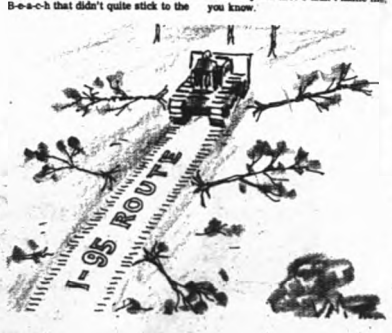
It's the Scots' version of Lisa, Elsa, Elsie, and so forth. Maybe it's proof that a canny Scotsman doesn't let go of a good vowel when he's got his mouth wrapped around it.

But why ask me? I didn't name me, you know.



Sewall's Point gets amended tax notices

BY AILSA DEWING

Some 900 Sewall's Point property owners were among 7500 to receive second tax notices this week because of a computer's lapse of memory.

The amended notices, also directed to 6600 Stuart owners, were ordered by Fort Pierce Circuit Judge Philip Nourse last week after it was learned the original notices did not include dates and times of public hearings to be held on the proposed tax rates.

In compliance with the judge's order, Martin County Tax Assessor Augie Malfregeot says the entire second mailing went out Friday afternoon.

According to Malfregeot, the error occurred during the data processing which is handled by a Fort Pierce firm.

"Some gizmo on the machine wiped out the public hearing information on the Stuart and Sewall's Point notices but left the Ocean Breeze and Jupiter Island notices intact," he explained.

As a result, the two municipalities have had to delay hearings previously scheduled. Sewall's Point tax rate hearings have been moved from Sept 26 and Oct. 6 to Oct. 6 and 13. Both hearings will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

According to Sewall's Point Town Clerk Jean Beckley, the proposed 1981 budget of $325,087 will be adopted on Oct. 13 instead of Oct. 6 under a rollback millage rate of 1.8318 as compared with this year's 1.87.

The public hearings are required this year under the state's recently-adopted Truth in Millage (TRIM) bill which calls for tax rates to be based on county assessment at full market value of properties.

Malfregeot explained that the original data processing program had to be rushed because of an earlier judicial order that notices had to go out in time for hearings. Consequently, he says, nobody noticed that the hearing dates were missing on some of the 80,000 notices mailed.

The remailing added about $1,000 to the county's costs, according to Malfregeot, but can be absorbed within the budgeted amount, he said.

Meanwhile, those receiving the amended notices may wonder about another apparent discrepancy on the revised tax notices.

The notices point out that property owners who disagree with the value assessed by the county can file a petition with the property appraiser's office. For the procedure to follow, taxpayers are referred to "the enclosure." But there is no enclosure with the amended notices.

Beckley says she checked with Malfregeot's office and learned that enclosure was sent out with the first notices only.

Apparently nobody told the computer to erase that line on the second notices.

Second sight studio reopens

The Martin County Taping Studio for the Visually & Physically Handicapped, Inc., known as Second Sight, is in operation again after a month's holiday for the volunteer workers.

We feel there are many persons in the area who are eligible for services offered by The Talking Book Library, a division of The Library of Congress. WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

A person who has visual problems, i.e. legally blind 2/200 vision or a visual field defect—a person who has a physical handicap which makes it difficult to hold a book.

The Library of Congress furnishes, at no cost, record players, cassette players, tapes and records. They are mailed free of charge to the clients.

An application blank for these services can be obtained from the Taping Studio. There is detailed information on these forms. If anyone is unable to pick up an application at the Studio, please call us at 334-7686 and one will be mailed to you.

A new service called NEWS DIGEST has been very successful. Items not covered by radio or TV are taken from the newspapers and are recorded on cassettes. They are mailed to our clients approximately once a week. Postage is free.

Second Sight is looking for more volunteers. Books, magazines and other printed material are recorded on tapes and cassettes. People are needed to narrate, monitor and review this material. Interested persons please call the Taping Studio, 334-7686 for more information.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

Did you ever notice how often you measure time or circumstances from some event in your life? Ever since I was so high. Ever since I graduated from high school ever since I got out of the Army; or took this job, or began to gain weight.

'Even since' is certainly a handy peg to hang things on.

In speaking about health you often use this phrase. I've been feeling bad ever since I fell down the stairs, or was in an automobile wreck. I've had this pain ever since the baby was born, or ever since I moved the piano, or painted the ceiling.

Most diseases can be traced to some strain or injury to the spine — a fall, an accident, some mishap that seemed insignificant when it happened. Every since then you haven't felt right. THINK IT OVER. Ever since the baby fell out of bed, or down the steps and bumped his head, he has been cross or fretful. Ever since the mishap, there has been a loss of appetite, or listlessness, or perhaps he hasn't done so well in school.

What relation is there between long forgotten falls and your health today? All body functions are directed and controlled through the nervous system. The spine encases the spinal cord and all nerve trunks stem therefrom, exiting through small openings between the vertebrae.

A sudden strain on the spine may slip a vertebrae out of normal position and thus pinch vital nerves. This disturbs function, lowers resistance, and results in some form of ill health or disease.

Local bankers get awards

The Indian River Chapter of the American Institute of Banking recognized academic achievement among its members at the Annual A.I.B. Awards Banquet held recently at the Sheraton Regency in Vero Beach.

Charles "Buddy" Arrants of the Okeechobee County Bank, president of the A.I.B., and Dr. Raymond Isenberg, director of public and industry services at Indian River Community College and educational director of the A.I.B., presented certificates to bank employees who have successfully completed various banking classes offered through IRCC.

Recipients of General Certificates were Paula S. Alker, Patricia L. Glennon, Raymond C. Thorensnsep, II, and Jonandra Lando, all of Sun Bank of St. Lucie County.

Awarded Basic Certificates were Karen Artman, Shelly L. Gade, Sharn L. Goyens, Elizabeth McNamara, and Patricia Hoeffner, all of Sun Bank of St. Lucie County. Twila Vogel, Diana Lustig, and Sally Andrew, all of Jensen Beach Bank.

Those awarded Standard Certificates included Sandy Lando, Sun Bank of St. Lucie County and Marsha Thompson of Jensen Beach Bank.

Awarded an Advanced Certificate was Raymond C. Thorensnsen, II, of Sun Bank of St. Lucie County.

OPENING NIGHT is at hand for the 600-seat auditorium of the McAlpin Fine Arts Center on Indian River Community College's main campus. The opening program of the Performing Arts Series on Oct. 21 will be the curtain-raising event.

THE STAGE is now quiet, but in the near future the Indian River Community College auditorium will be filled with entertainers of every kind. One of the performers for this season will be Count Basie and his band. In addition to the theatre, the building has facilities for IRCC's radio station, along with music and drama rooms. (Meissner photo)

Performing Arts series to open

Jean-Michel Cousteau will lead off eight top-name artists booked for the premier Performing Arts Series at Indian River Community College.

Finishing touches are now being added to the new McAlpin Fine Arts Theater on the main campus in readiness for the opening of the series Oct. 21.

In addition to Cousteau, the season series will feature "The Fantasticks," former Boston Celtic Bill Russell, the American Dance Machine, the Tony Award-winning musical, "Ain't Misbehavin'", Charles Kuralt, creator of the CBS TV feature "On the Road", Count Basie and his orchestra, and the master of illusion, Harry Blackstone, Jr.

Season tickets to attend all eight performances in the series are now on sale at the box office at a cost of $40.

The $3.5 million McAlpin Fine Arts Center has been under construction for the past year. Named for Ira McAlpin, IRCC board chairman, the building was designed by Dansel, Mann, Johnson, and Mendenhall.

Along with providing facilities for star performers, however, the center will house the college's drama and music classes and be available to such performing groups as the Treasure Coast Opera Society, the St. Lucie Community Theatre and other local performers.

Focal point of the center is the 600-seat auditorium with a stage measuring 67 feet wide and 34 feet deep, framed by an 18-foot high proscenium arch.

Backstage is the traditional "green room" for performers waiting to go on stage, dressing rooms, and a workshop.

Also included in the building are classrooms and rehearsal rooms. The second floor will house the IRCC radio station scheduled to go on the air next January.

The Performing Arts Series will mark the grand opening of the center. Cousteau, son of famed oceanographer Jacques Cousteau, will present a multi-media program as the series opener, a photographic trip to the exotic Wuvulu Islands in the South Pacific, entitled, "Project Ocean Search."

Residents fly with First Fed

When Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Carr of Stuart take off on their flight to Mexico City, they'll climb much higher than a balloon, but the ride will still be provided by First Federal of Martin.

The pair of Eastern Airlines tickets good for 10 days of unlimited travel, was the top prize awarded by Martin County's largest financial institution as its "On Top of Stuart" celebration.

Free rides with world champion balloonist Chuck Rihn marked the grand opening of First Federal of Martin's newest branch at [illegible] S.E. Ocean Blvd. Six Stuart and two Jensen Beach residents were the lucky winners of "hourly gifts" awarded during the celebration.

Carl Behringer and Bertha Martin each won a pair of tickets to Miami Dolphin football games.

An array of small appliances was awarded as Anne Hofer was presented with a G.E. hand mixer. W. H. Norman a G.E. electric can opener and Eleanor T. Andrews a G.E. hairdryer. Lana Lustig, the final winner from Stuart, took home a Corning Ware casserole dish. Peter Haritakis and Frances Geertsema, both of Jensen Beach, won Pyrex baking dishes.

After congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Carr on winning the grand prize, William T. Wells, president of Martin County's oldest Savings and Loan Association, state, "We're delighted to have an office here on East Ocean. Our goal has always been to make saving as convenient as possible for all our customers, and this branch is one more step toward that end."

Annual meeting set by Chamber

A Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce membership drive will precede the annual meeting of the Chamber this year, it was decided Monday at the board of director's meeting of the Jensen C of C.

Directors meeting at the Chamber building decided to hold a steak-or-beans campaign to gain members of the organization and renew memberships during the month of November.

The annual meeting will be held following a week-long membership campaign, from November 17 to November 21. The annual meeting for election of officers will be held on Friday, November 21, when the winners of the membership campaign will be honored.

The membership, at that time, will vote on new officers for the 1981 year.

Marg Paris is chairman of the annual meeting.

Sheriff's report

St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department is investigating a number of burglaries involving Martin County and south St. Lucie County residents.

Paul Parella of Stuart reported to deputies that a tape deck and two speakers were removed from his auto while it was parked in an area south of Oceana Condos on Hutchinson Island Saturday afternoon.

A 1972 vehicle owned by Merritt Milane, Jensen Beach, was also reported stolen Saturday from where it was parked in front of a motorcycle shop on south US 1.

Thieves reportedly struck three homes last week on Watson Court in Port St. Lucie owned by General Development Corp. A GDC spokesman said two vanity cabinets and a kitchen cabinet were removed from one house, a set of window frames from another, and the utility box was disconnected and removed from the third.

Izaak Walton League to hold installation

The Izaak Walton League of America will hold its installation of officers on October 1, at 6:30 p.m.

The dinner will be staged at LePavilion Restaurant in Stuart. For further information, please call Norm Leary at 283-6946.

Woman's Club to hold card party

The Woman's Club of Stuart will continue the "First Wednesday" of the month card games at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 1, at the clubhouse on East Ocean Boulevard.

The public is invited. Door and table prizes will be given and dessert and beverage will be served. For reservations call, Pauline McKey, 283-3314, or Geneva Nemecek, 283-2498.

Card party to be held by Auxiliary

The Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans of World War I will hold a card party on Thursday, Sept. 25.

The party will begin at 13:30 p.m. at the Hoag Hall in the All Saints Church in Jensen Beach.

The event is open to the public. For further information, call Julia Callahan at 334-5890 or Eleanor Diffendal at 334-0486.

Consumer seminar panel to be held

On Saturday, Sept. 27, a consumer know how seminar will be held at the Roschman site of Indian River Community College.

The one day seminar, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. will be open to men and women.

Guest speakers will be Lynn Traube of the Food and Drug Administration of the Orlando regional office and Sue Marshbank of the First Citrus Bank.

According to Shirley Wagener, moderator for the seminar, "A broad area of consumer information will be provided."

Pre-registration is required. For further information call: 283-6500.

Board of Realtors urges voter turn-out

Local realtors are joining the more than 80,000 members of the Florida Association of Realtors in a month-ON campaign to get as many qualified persons registered as possible, and then to work toward achieving the "largest voter turnout in the history of our state," says president Barbara Turow.

In announcing the board's participation in a state-wide effort to register voters and get out the vote this fall, Turow said, "the right to vote is a sacred responsibility that can be guaranteed only if a majority of our citizens exercise this right."

Turow urged all qualified citizens to be certain they are registered to vote this fall, and to "join with members of the Stuart Board in turning out at the polls Nov. 4 in record numbers."

GREAT AMERICAN BOOK FAIR came to Jensen Beach Elementary School this week with books, games, and puzzles to sell and lure young readers away from the television sets. Business was brisk, according to Carol Krahl, school media specialist.

FIT to offer real estate class

Plans to offer a real estate sales licensing course at the Jensen Beach campus of Florida Institute of Technology are announced by Col. Woodbury Johnson, director of graduate studies.

The ten-week course, a regular three-credit under-graduate offering in management science, is based on the approved Florida Board of Real Estate Course 1, Principles and Practices of Real Estate and Real Estate Law.

The course is available on a non-credit basis for a $75 fee plus the cost of textbooks.

Classes will meet from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays in Room 13 of the main building beginning Oct. 7. Final exam is scheduled for Dec. 16.

Applications are available in the graduate office.

Area birth

Born to Susan and Evan Raslow on Sept. 15, was a seven pound son, Adam Michael.

He is the grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Richardson of Vero Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Raslow of Port St. Lucie.

David Rathgeber at Cherry Point

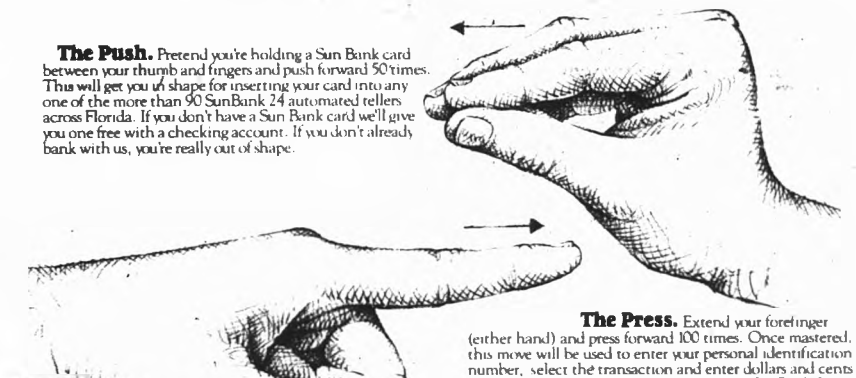
Marine 1st Lt. David G. Rathgeber, son of Eugene R. and Mary L. Rathgeber of 1883 NE Lake Place, Jensen Beach, has reported for duty at Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

A 1973 graduate of Martin County High School, Stuart, Fla., and a 1977 graduate of Florida State University, Tallahassee, Fla., with a bachelor of mechanical engineering degree, he joined the Marine Corps in December 1975.

The SunBank 24 Exercise Manual.

A Guide On Getting In Shape To Use Our 24-Hour Tellers.

The Push. Pretend you're holding a Sun Bank card between your thumb and fingers and push forward 50 times. This will get you in shape for inserting your card into any one of the more than 90 SunBank 24 automated tellers across Florida. If you don't have a Sun Bank card we'll give you one free with a checking account. If you don't already bank with us, you're really out of shape.



The Press. Extend your forefinger (either hand) and press forward 100 times. Once mastered, this move will be used to enter your personal identification number, select the transaction and enter dollars and cents amount. If this looks simple, it is. And our SunBank 24 tellers will tell you what to do every step of the way.

The Pull. Since this is simply The Push in reverse, you need practice only 10 times. This move is used primarily to withdraw cash from the teller drawer. It is also used for withdrawing receipts for deposits and transfers and removing your Sun Bank card. With a little practice, you'll have completed this maneuver in about 30 seconds.

Thumbs Up. This is the gesture used by people who have discovered how quick and easy SunBank 24 automated tellers are to use. Practice it diligently. Because we're Florida's leader in 24-hour banking and convenience, you'll be seeing a lot of it.

EARN INTEREST ON THE MONEY THAT PAYS YOUR BILLS!

There is no need to tie up your money in a non-interest bearing checking account. Keep it in savings by opening a PRE-NOW ACCOUNT℠ at First National.

A PRE-NOW ACCOUNT is the next best thing to an interest bearing checking account (NOW ACCOUNT) which cannot be legally offered in Florida until the first of the year.

If you can maintain $3,000 in savings, we'll show you how our PRE-NOW ACCOUNT makes it possible for you to earn additional interest income from the money you have been keeping in your checking account.

THE BOARD—Some of the board members of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce gathered near the end of the first Chamber social hour last Friday at the Crow's Nest Restaurant. Left to right are Marg Paris and Fred Meeker, directors; Gene Greenwood, treasurer; Barbara Torow, director; Dick Campbell, president; Art Hansen, Jayne Petersen and Bill Keele, directors.

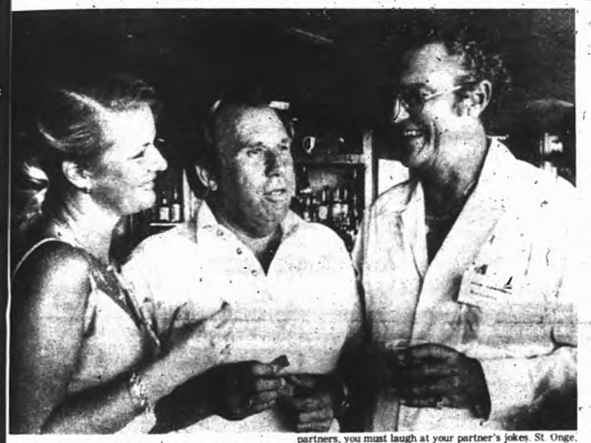
NOW ABOUT THAT?—Sharing a joke at the Jensen Beach Chamber's social hour Friday at the Crow's Nest Restaurant was Chamber Director Fred Meeker and his wife, Kit.

GUESTS—Gail Carr, president of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce, and her husband Paul were guests at the Jensen Chamber social hour Friday at the Crow's Nest Restaurant.

CO-HOSTS—Sharing the sponsorship of the Jensen Chamber's social hour party Friday at the Crow's Nest were Doris Sheridan, of Sheridan and Associates, and Gene Van Curen, Florida Power and Light district manager.

Jensen Chamber members enjoyed Friday night social hour festivities



JOKING—When Donald St. Onge tells a joke, Dick Campbell immediately begins laughing. After all, when you are tennis partners, you must laugh at your partner's jokes. St. Onge, and his wife, Sandy, were among the guests at the Jensen Chamber's cocktail party Friday at the Crow's Nest.

Samaritans Calling

BY NELLIE D. COOK

First messages from the President, George Krauss.

The two new ambulances should be ready for pick up about Oct. 1. Our men will be going to the factory to make the pick-up rather than accepting them by delivery.

There will not be a directors meeting for this month The regular monthly meeting will be Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. This meeting will be preceded by a workshop from 7:30 to 8 p.m. All members who work on the rigs please attend the workshop It is the policy of the Samaritan Squad that we all must attend eight workshop sessions per year.

Any interested persons are welcome to attend, see our equipment and find out how it is used. You may decide you would like to join us.

A reminder to all members The nominating committee will be appointed at the October meeting.

JENSEN AREA SAMARITANS AUXILIARY MEETS

The newly organized Samaritans Auxiliary met in the squad room on Sept. 16 with 22 present.

The meeting was conducted by President Dot Michna

After words of welcome to all, the president introduced the speaker for the evening, Samaritans Vice President Barbara Jowens. Her topic was "The History of the Samaritans."

Starting with the organizing meeting, Dec 8, 1967, when five local men got together in Pop Tilton's office on Commercial Street and decided there was a need for ambulance service in Jensen These men were Dr Penuela, Ransom Tilton, Gene Hoke, Martin Wahl, and Herb Gardner The three first mentioned are still associated with us 23 years later

Barbara told how the first ambulance, a V W station wagon, served the population of approximately 5,000 at that time, and brought us up to date when our population is 20,000 and we have three fully manned rigs running 24 hours a day

Barbara's talk was very interesting and certainly enlightening to all

Pres Dot brought up some projects which will be worked out at the next meeting, such as a Tupperware party to be held in the Recreation Room at Pinelake Village This will be by courtesy of Sharon Tilton

Other suggestions were, bake sale, women to-join-the-men cleaning interior of vehicles, picnic, Christmas party, and card party

Next week I will continue with the committees and their chairmen The next meeting will be Tuesday, Oct 28 at 7:30 p.m See you next week, Nellie

A Salute to Edith Hesch

From the people of Jensen Beach for her untiring efforts as a 'PINK LADY' Volunteer at Martin Memorial Hospital

THE DINING ROOM—doubles as Sharon's office space. Set above overlooking the living room, it provides a perfect dining area for she and her husband. Through the living room windows, a spectacular view is offered.

SHARON MACARI—is pictured here in the heart of her home. Not only is it an attractive room, but remains completely functional. Centered, is her electric work table, and surrounding her is the latest in modern kitchen equipment.

Sugar Hill - a sweet way of life

Sharon and Joseph Macari are growers. They raise cabbages for sale in markets all over the United States.

Now they have expanded their field. They are growing houses. The Macaris are the progressive young couple who have taken on the development of Jensen Beach's newest and most exclusive housing project, Sugar Hill, that beautiful hilly and wooded expanse along the savannahs and 707 north of the Winn Dixie.

The houses adapt themselves with especial charm to the terrain. Large, roomy cedar exteriors blend with their rough, scraggly surroundings as if they had grown there.

The house we visited, the Macaris, is a charming hilltop affair with views in all directions.

It is a home to be lived in, the vertical windows looking out into the woodsy exterior on all sides. The view from son Michael's room is especially spectacular. It looks down into a particularly picturesque bit of the Savannahs.

"Sometimes we can see the reflected eyes of alligators," Sharon Macari said.

Gators aren't the only form of wild life providing atmosphere for Sugar Hill residents. Little foxes can also be spotted outside the windows at night, checking up on this new form of life introduced by their neighbors.

Sugar Hill isn't the first housing project for the young couple, but it is their biggest.

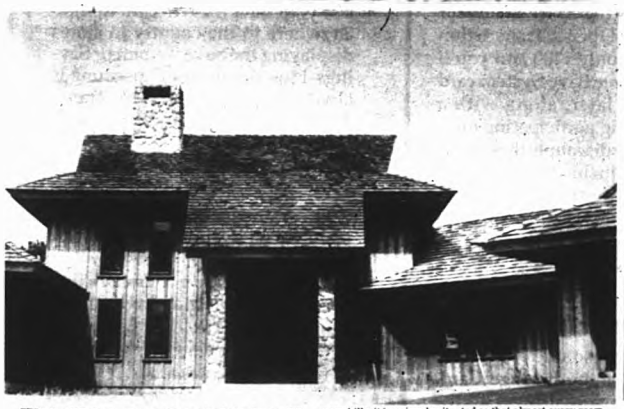
"The family had been in the growing business for three generations, Sharon said. "We ship cabbages and broccoli all over the country."

The Macari house is a study in cedar. You enter through decorative cedar doors and everything has a feeling of openness. It has a step down living room, and a portion of the foyer floor is raised.

The kitchen is a homemakers dream, with appliances grouped around a work island in the center. And the dinette is a separate room by itself, giving Mrs. Macari a combination work space and dining area.

Sugar Hill is bound to have an immense impact on the growth of Jensen Beach. More than half of the 97 lots have been sold, and more inquiries keep coming in daily.

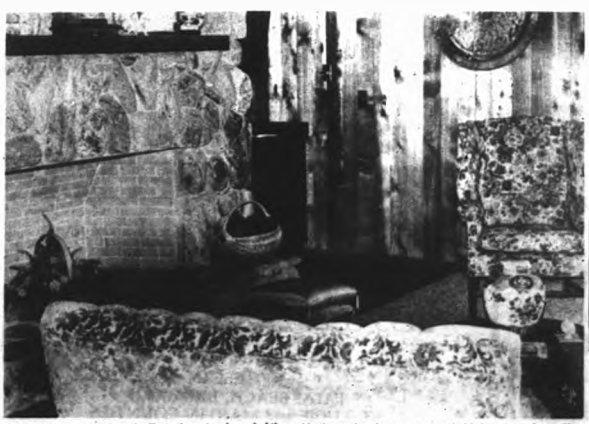
"We have buyers from Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Daytona, but most important from right here in Jensen Beach," the developer said.



CEDAR, SHINGLE, AND STONE—blend the Sugar Hill home into the rustic landscape. Located atop one of the many hills, it is uniquely situated so that almost every room affords a peaceful view.

A UNIQUE VIEW—is seen from the back porch of the Macari home. The setting of the Savannas in front and the woods in back make one feel as though their part of a wilderness.

VIEW FROM THE STAIRS—This is the view seen from the stairway leading from the upstairs bedroom. The stairway wall is an artistic display of stone. The ceilings are high, again, contributing to a feeling of spaciousness.



A BEAUTIFUL—stone hearth offsets the natural wood of the living room. The Macari home represents a graceful blend of both wood and stone, new and old. Large windows offer beautiful views from every corner, and lend an added dimension of spaciousness to the rooms.

WILDERNESS VIEW—A solid vista of the Savanna landscape stretches out from the yard of the Macari home. The alligators' eyes can be seen by night.

DAVE FORRESTER (L) and Gilbert LaDuce look pretty happy about this fine offshore catch of a 6 ft. 3 inch 48 lb sailfish, two dolphin to 30 lbs and some kings and bonito they caught while fishing in 150 to 300 ft. of water off the St. Lucie Inlet on J. D. Sachs "Hummin Cummin."

Area fishing's exceptional and surf's the best

BY DICK LUNDIN

THERE'S NOTHING BUT GOOD NEWS on the area fishing front this week. There are blues, snook, whiting and pompano in the surf, seatrout, mangrove snappers and snook in the Indian River, and, black drum and sheepshead around many of the bridges.

According to reports, nearly every angler is catching fish, and it's been a long time since we could say that. How sweet it is!

BOB STARKEY from Manatee Resort Bait and Tackle: "Fishing's been real good with sailfish ranging all over off the St. Lucie Inlet, from 150 to 300 ft. of water, many of them close inwhere it's just 150 ft. There are scattered dolphin to 30 lbs. with them and now and then a fast moving school of kings in the 10 lb. class. There are a few cobia around, too. There are some pompano in the surf and scattered blues. There aren't any really big spook around but lots of finsits (4) of small ones in the 3-4 lb range are being taken 300 yards both ways from the inlet and in the mouth, taking mostly live bunker (menhaden)."

FROM JENSEN BAIT AND TACKLE, Joe Varino: "Blues are hitting well in the surf. Whiting are plentiful in the surf and are hitting both cut bait and shrimp. They're getting a few snook and seatrout on live shrimp from the bridges. There are some blues and quite a few mangrove snappers in the river. Some catches: Joe and Jeff Ianeri, 28 blues, cut ribbon fish and ladyfish, surf; Bruce Bemis, an 11-4 (11 lb. 4 oz.) snook on sand fleas, and Sally Thomas, a 9-6 snook on sand fleas, both at Jensen Beach; Bill Reinholt, 5 blues, live mullet, surf; Dave Dunkin and Jim Schwall, a 25-6 snook on live mullet near the Anchorage Marina in the St. Lucie River."

MURIEL WEIDEMAN, from D&M Bait and Tackle at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 just north of Stuart: "The fishing was very good last Saturday when they caught all kinds of nice black drum and sheepshead on an early outgoing tide, but since then it's dropped off quite a bit. They're catching quite a few snook at night, but possibly more over at the Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge. Marcel Smith of Palm Bay came down here and caught 33 drum on chains."

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "Dick, the word is blues, blues, blues! I've never seen the blues in here so thick this early in the season. Everyone is catching them on cut bait and Krocodile spoons from the Martin County Park-N-Fish area below the Jensen Causeway clear up to Normandy Beach just south of the power plant. That's not all either. There are just scads of whiting in the surf taking cut bait and fresh shrimp, and lots of small whiting, most of them just under the limit of 9-½ inches. Those pompano like sand fleas. There are still some small snook in the surf and some sharks too. We haven't had sharks in the surf for a long time and it shows just how good the fishing is when they appear on the scene again. This is the time to fish the surf. Try your favorite spot and if they're not hitting there at the moment keep moving until you find where the action is. In the Indian River, there is good seatrout fishing for boaters and waders using live shrimp from Herman's Bay to Little Mud Creek, mostly on the grass flats. Mirrolures and trout teats will catch some trout, but the live shrimp are better right now. Snook fishing is good at most of the bridges and especially at the Frank Wacha and the little Mosquito Bridge on the Jensen Causeway just to the east. There are lots of ladyfish in the river. They're a lot of fun even if you can't eat them."

The Nook's log: Walter Neff, a snook on a 77M18 mirrolure, surf; Ken McCumber, 12 blues, cut mackerel, surf: Bill Sealy and John Smith, 40 blues, Krocs, surf; Harold Abbott, 8 blues, cut ladyfish, surf; Tony Battaglia, 9 blues, cut mackerel, Holiday Inn surf; Bob Hemberger, a 6-0 snook and a blue, Krocs, Stuart Beach; Ed and Trudy Hughes, 10 blues, 5 whiting and a shark, cut mackerel, Normandy Beach surf; Tiny Carneal, 26 whiting, 5 pompano and 3 ladyfish, cut shrimp, surf; Andy and Kathy Jorgensen, 30 whiting and a pompano, Normandy Beach, cut shrimp; Lou Smitten and Joe Celli, a snook, a flounder, a blue and a bunch of jack crevalles, 77M11 mirrolures, surf; Sherry Wood, 6 whiting, cut shrimp, surf; Tom Riley, 10 mangrove snappers in the 3-4 lb. range on live shrimp and small live bait, boating near the St. Lucie Inlet mouth; Scott Gallivan, a 10-0 snook and a 20-0 drum, live shrimp, Frank Wacha Bridge, Jensen Causeway; Charlie Russell, 2 drum to 8-0, live shrimp, Frank Wacha; Ray Ditzel and Bob Haines,, fishing in 3 ft. of water under the power lines north of Herman's Bay, 8 sheepshead, 8 mangrove snappers, 2 seatrout, a snook, 2 flounder and a croaker, live shrimp.

Fishing tourney for kids

Every young person under fifteen years of age will win a prize if they catch a fish in the seventh annual Isaac Walton League youth fishing tournament, planned for Saturday at the Jensen Beach Causeway.

Fishing will start at 9 a.m. and will end at noon.

Contestants must bring their own tackle and bait. Handlines are not permitted, nor are spears or nets.

Children under ten must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The fishing will be restricted between the Frank Wacha Bridge and the west shore of the river, including the west bridge and the fishing pier.

Each contestant catching a fish will win a prize.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis, Indian River Plantation

As promised, here is all the scoop from the USPTA National Convention. First I would like to mention that this was the best ever, period. The most constructive, most comprehensive well thought out and put together affair. The agenda theme, "Professionalism in the Eighties". By the way, for you that are not familiar with USPTA, that's The United States Professional Tennis Association. Arriving Thursday evening, Sept. 11, Hospitality, Registration, Executive Committee Meeting, and 12:00 to 4:00 making the draw for the National Team Matches.

Friday the 12th, 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. tournament team matches on 20 courts. Seminars: "Successful Management in the '80's — McElheny; "How do you measure your worth as a Professional?" — Ferrando; "Supplementary Income" — Tyn; "Preparing for Competition" — Xanthos; "Conflict Management" — McElheny; "Biomechanics of Stroke Technique" — Groppel; "New Research in Tennis" — Braden. Seven to 11 p.m. Awards Banquet. (This is awards for members good work, past twelve months.)

Saturday the 13th: Team matches 8-12 a.m. and 4-7 p.m., 9-10 a.m., Tennis Elbow — Cause and Prevention" — Priest, "Treatment of Tennis Elbow" — Nirschl; "Teaching Aids" — Xanthos; "A Winning Combination — Excerpts" — Bollettieri (from his book); "Tennis Host At Resort Hotel" — Moros. "Post-Tennis" — Tym and "Income Statements" — Ferrando.

Sunday the 14th 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. tournament and team matches. "Tennis Shoulder — Cause and Prevention" — Priest, "Treatment of Tennis Shoulder" — Nirschl; Manufacturers Forum; "Time Management" — Ferrando, "Improving Instruction Through Biomechanics" — Groppel, "Mass Teaching" — Bollettieri, and "Members Seminars."

Monday the 15th: Tournament Finals.

Tuesday the 16th: Racquet Research Laboratory (9 a.m. to 3 p.m.), check out and home.

About the speakers: Nick Bollettieri is founder of the Nick Bollettieri Tennis Academy, a junior development program which hosts students from throughout the world. Nick also has clinics around the world and has been on ABC's "20-20" program and featured in Sports Illustrated Magazine. Consultant for Prince, Pro-Keds, and Fila. It would take another column to cover what Nick did. He touched on all phases of court teaching, coaching, relationship of parents, drills, etc., etc.

Vic Braden is president of the Vic Braden Tennis College at Coto de Caza, Calif., and the National Foundation for Tennis Research. He has been featured on national television shows including the Mike Douglas Show, CBS morning news, and the Today Show. Co-author of "Tennis for the Future", he has written, produced, directed and narrated a series of "Tennis Tips" used nationallyon PBS tennis broadcasts.

Vic is also a licensed psychologist and keeps his audience laughing with all sorts of animated gestures of claying tennis, and/or teaching tennis. His topic, "New Research In Tennis — Overview of 1979 and 1980 Findings".

James A. Ferrando is founder of Professional Tennis Management, a 70 hour off-court course in tennis management for managers and owners. He is author of Professional Tennis Management Instruction Manual. He has his own accounting company and is a certified teacher and tester for Professional Tennis Registry.

Dr. Jack Groppel is head tennis coach and assistant professor of physical education at the U. of Illinois. Author of "Principles of Tennis Techniques, Drills, and Strategies", editor of "Proceedings of the National Symposium on Racquet Sports", and has written numerous articles for various publications, including a monthly instructional series on "Science in Tennis". (Jack discussed facts and fallacies regarding the effectiveness of various movement patterns in tennis. Discussed the new 500 frames-per-second-films they studied and came to the conclusion that Ken Rosewall does not slice his backhand.)

Dr. Thomas J. McElheny is nationally recognized management and professional development consultant. Last year he lectured at more than 25 major American universities. Currently executive director of the Florida Productivity Center.

Julio Moros is a USPTA member and manager of tennis activities at the Colony Beach and Tennis Resort on Longboat Key. Julio talked about scheduling partners, the recent tennis explosion in clubs and resorts and evolution of the tennis host. Functions: tennis as a social activity, arranging partners, individual skill levels, lessons, use of National Tennis Rating Program, psychology and summarizing all the points to remember. (Coincidentally, there is a special tennis outing scheduled every month at the Plantation. Members be sure and check your newsletter.)

Robert Nirschl, M.D. Robert is an orthopedic surgeon in Arlington, Va. He is chairman of the Committee on Medical Aspects of Sports of the Virginia Medical Society and chief of orthopedic surgery at Northern Virginia Doctors Hospital. Dr. Nirschl's articles have appeared in such publications as Tennis, World Tennis, Today's Health, American Journal of Sports Medicine, and The Physician and Sports Medicine.

James Priest, M.D. Jim is also an orthopedic surgeon with Orthopedic Consultants, P.A. in Minneapolis, Minn. He is associate director of the Institute for Athletic Medicine, Minneapolis, and team physician for the Minnesota Kicks Soccer Team. Jim also serves as an orthopedic consultant to the Department of Women's Intercollegiate Athletics at the U. of Minnesota, and tournament physician for the U.S. Women's Intercollegiate Athletics, U. of M.

Bill Tym has been involved in tennis for 25 years as a player, coach, and administrator. He is currently owner and head professional of Tym's Huntsville Athletic Club. He is first vice president of USPTA's Southern Division, as well as that division's "Coach of the Year". Member, USTA Clinicians' Staff, advisory staff of BLT, Inc., and Penn Athletic Products. (Bill was good on "Package" your programs, adults and juniors.)

Paul J. Xanthos is professor of health and physical education and author of tennis — A Pictorial Guide for Teachers, and Handbook for the Conduct and Organization of Tennis Clinics and Teacher Training workshops, as well as numerous articles for professional magazines. Co-author of "Tennis", used in over 500 colleges, his film "Tennis — Sport of a Lifetime — Tennis Class - Organization" is considered a classic in group instruction.

I felt it very necessary and worthwhile to give a little run down on the qualifications of the speakers. I attended all the seminars and took many notes.

Next week I'll touch on some of the more interesting comments, in my opinion.

Also, next week I will be Knoxville for the National Clay Court Senior Championship. I saw Tommy Nonar, the resident pro, in Sarasota and he said it will be the biggest draw ever.

Falkenburg team wins in Sarasota

Fresh from his victory in the National Grass Court 55 & Over Doubles Tournament, Indian River Plantation tennis pro Tom Falkenburg lead the Florida Senior contingent to victory in the National Team Championships in Sarasota on September 16. With Senior teams from New York, the Mid-Atlantic, and the Southern region all tied with Florida going into the final round, Falkenburg teamed with John Fiegenbaum of Jacksonville to defeat the challengers and capture the Senior Team Title.

On September 28, Falkenburg and Buch Archer will defend their National Clay Court 55 & Over Doubles crown in Knoxville, Tn. This team won the National Grass Court title this year, and Falkenburg's victory in the Knoxville tournament last year made him the only man to ever win titles in every age division, from National Interscholastic to National 55 & Over. Falkenburg, the current Florida Professional Singles and Doubles Champion in his age group, has been competing since his teens.

Sandpiper hosts golf tournament

The two day event was played on the Saints golf course. The lowest score for each hole was captured by partners Rex Vroman and Dorie Beckman. The two led the field of ninety players with a net 58 score. This was the third year in a row they had won.

Phil Healy and partner Joan Oliver came in second place with a net 61.

Beckman started off her Sunday match with a hole-in-one shot placed on the 10th hole. She used her six-iron for the ace shot.

In the daily tournament of low gross and net, Vroman was again to tops in the first flight with an 86 gross score, closely followed by Jan Werges at 87 and Ann Merz, 91. Kay Scott took low net with a 72, Ginny Hickman was next with 74, and Ange Lolbrutto and Audrey Docos both scored 78.

In the second flight, Beckman was again winner with a gross 95. Fannie Brodie shot 97 and Alberta Crofoot and Anne Thatcher both had 98. Jane Farnsworth won low net honors with 74, Pearl Graeser had 75, and Mary Sears, 76.

Jane Hoffman led the third flight with her gross 100. Edna Fickinger shot 102, while Mary Maney and Ruth Neighbours both carded 105. Sally Lesher won the net event with 71, Dot Giesey was next with 79, and Eleanor Slater shot 80.

Jerry Bowrosen walked away with gross honors in the fourth flight with a 96. Dip McConnell shot 105 and Bee Miller, 107. Phil Healy won net honors with a 73, M. J. Gates scored 78, and Marguerite Hayde, 79.

The fifth flight was led by Helen Porteous' 111, Marge Thomas and Kay LaFlair tied at 118. Myrtle Fleming's 84 was best net, followed by Lee Reeb at 85 and M. J. Bath, 86.

Dolphins stun Falcons, host Saints Sunday

by Dick Lundin

THOSE ATLANTA FALCONS sure know how the Cincinnati Bengals felt when the Miami Dolphins snatched victory from the jaws of defeat two weeks ago in the Orange Bowl.

Then, Miami roared back from a late 16-7 deficit to overhand the befuddled Bengals and win, 17-16, on a Uwe von Schamann field goal in the last two minutes.

This time, following a similar script, and again relying on great performances from their special teams, the Dolphins came back from a 17-0 Atlanta lead early in the fourth quarter to stun the new 1-2 Falcons, 20-17 — once more on a clutch field goal by von Schamann, this one with but 9:28 left on the clock and Atlanta with no timeouts.

Even then, Miami gave its supporters some last-second jitters by allowing quarterback Zeke Bartowski to hit on a final long pass that gave Atlanta a first and ten at the Miami 36 and place kicker Tim Mazzetti a chance at a game-tying 47-yard field goal, only time ran out before the frustrated Falcons could snap the ball.

That incredible win upped Miami's record to 2-1 and they and the New England Patriots are tied for second in the AFC East behind the resurgent Buffalo Bills who, also with an unblemished 3-0 record after nailing New Orleans last Sunday, 35-26.

THAT SAME NEW ORLEANS TEAM, 0-3 for the season, will provide the opposition for the Dolphins this week. Kickoff time is 1 p.m. in the Orange Bowl Sunday. Because it's highly unlikely that the game will be sold out, it won't be televised in South Florida. Channel 34 in Fort Pierce will undoubtedly try to air this one, as it did the Cincinnati game two weeks ago. Keep tabs on the legal ramifications to see if Channel 34 has better luck with the National Football League this time.

While we're on the subject of television, there will be these tube attractions next Sunday: Channel 4 will show Los Angeles at the New York Giants at 1 p.m. and Chalmers 5-7 will show NFL games at 1 and 4 p.m.

THOSE SAINTS could be real spoilers. They were picked by many to move up in the NFC West this season but now trail the upstart 3-0 San Francisco 49ers, Atlanta and Los Angeles, both 1-2. If New Orleans is to have any playoff prospects whatsoever it has to beat Miami to avoid an even more dismal 0-4 record.

They led Buffalo 10-14 at the half Sunday but then gave up 21 unanswered points to the Bills before scoring a consolation touchdown in the closing minutes. Buffalo really shut down Ike Neal Orleans running game, holding the Saints to a paltry 38 yards on the ground. Archie Manning was 26 for 36 for 276 yards and two touchdown passes to Ike Harris, but it wasn't nearly enough to offset stellar performances by quarterback Joe Ferguson and rejoining back Joe Cribbs.

With Miami's running game just about nil and New Orleans' seemingly no better, off the Buffalo game, Sunday's encounter should either be an aerial battle or a low-scoring affair decided by field goals.

"BALL CONTROL" is an essential part of that game plan, the defense gets needed periods of rest while the offense is grinding it out on the ground and using up the clock. You have to have a blocking offensive line, however, and that's something Miami hasn't had in its first three games.

It was notable to watch Delvin Williams, one of the best running backs in the business, trying to pick up yardage without any blocking. Time after time, on sweeps designed to spring Williams wide, the running back would find himself out there with only a single blocker, or none at all. The fact that he was able to gain only 46 yards in 20 carries, shows how far Miami's rushing game fortunes have fallen. Fullback Steve Howell fared even worse, averaging one, picking up 12 yards in nine attempts.

ALTHOUGH THE VETERAN BOB GRIESE came off the bench to do a good job in relief of starter Don Strock who was wild high all during the first half, it took some inspired fourth quarter play by the special teams to put last Sunday's game in the win column, down 17-3.

Georgia Tech's Don Bessillieu ignited the winning rally by returning Atlanta's kickoff 47 yards from the end zone to the Atlanta 18. Resuming the one-yard line on a penalty and a pass to tight end Bruce Hardy, Grise tried one running play for no gain before discarding the rushing technique and passing to Hardy who made a great leaping fingertip catch for the touchdown. That made it 17-10 with 12:46 left to play, and memories of the great Cincinnati game comeback began to surface among Dol Fans.

The defense was magnificent in stopping the Falcons cold on their next possession, and there the Dolphins were at their own 36 and plenty of time for the tying touchdown.

That's just what the offense got for them. It was a rather mixed-up 66-yard drive, however. In it, Grise was sacked for a 16-yard loss, but a later pass interference call got a first down anyway. Wide receiver Nat Moore took a lateral from Grise and overthrew a wide open Hardy downfield. Williams seemingly had won it at the Falcon 27 but a quick whistle saved Miami. In between times, Grise hit Harris for 15 and all-purpose back Nick Giaquinto for 13 and 25 yard passes to eventually set up a four-yard touchdown pass to a wide open tight end Ronnie Lee. That tied it at 17-17 with 4:54 left.

THOSE SPECIAL TEAMS WERE AT IT AGAIN on Atlanta's next possession. Bartowski led a drive to the Miami 22 to set up a 50-yard field goal try by Mazzetti. It was blocked by nose tackle Bob Baumhower and there were the Dolphins with a first and ten at the Miami 46 and 2:00 left in the game.

Those old passing compatriots, Grise and Moore, just about settled the issue then and there. Grise hit Moore as he broke clear over the middle and the fleet wide receiver streaked down to the Falcon 24 where rookie cornerback Kenny Johnson roughed him enough to incur a penalty down to the Atlanta 16. With the Falcons taking their final two timeouts, Miami marched the ball forward until there were but 35 seconds left to play. Von Schamann kicked the clutch 27-yarder that put Miami ahead, 20-17.

Time was on Miami's side the rest of the way.

AFC EAST GAMES coming up Sunday, will have Oakland at Buffalo, the Colts at Baltimore and the Jets at Miami. The New England Patriots will meet Denver at Foxboro Monday night.

The remainder of the NFL schedule for Sunday: Chicago at Pittsburgh; Cleveland at Tampa Bay as the Bucs try to rebound from their disappointing 28-17 loss to Dallas; Dallas at Green Bay, Houston at Cincinnati; Los Angeles at the N.Y. Giants, Minnesota at Detroit, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Atlanta at San Francisco, San Diego at Kansas City and Seattle at Washington.

Last Sunday's NFL results: the 49ers bombed the Jets, 37-27; Detroit and Billy Sims drubbed St. Louis, 20-7; Cincinnati shocked Pittsburgh, 30-28; Minnesota surprised Chicago, 34-14 as Walter Payton was shackled; Cleveland beat Kansas City, 20-13; Houston outlasted Baltimore, 21-16; Los Angeles routed Bart Starr's hapless Green Bay Packers, New England held off Seattle, 37-21; San Diego romped over Denver, 30-13; and Oakland edged Washington, 24-21. Philadelphia downed the Giants Monday night, 35 to 3.

IF THE AGE OF MIRACLES isn't past, look for Miami to come out on top against New Orleans next Sunday afternoon. Playing in their home park, the Dolphins should rate six-point favorites.

If, however, they play dead again for the first three quarters, they just might find it impossible to pull off the impossible for a third straight time. It's impossible anyway to figure out these 1980 Dolphins. If they ever get their offense even half-way into gear, they'll be hard to beat. Maybe it'll happen Sunday. Let's hope so!

Golfers play for charity

Three golfers tied for the Men's Low Gross prize. Herb Seal, with the lowest handicap of the three coupled with his 18-hole score of 66, took the top prize.

Also firing a 66 was Ray Hartley who captured second place. Finishing third was Andy Shave, who had the same score but the highest handicap.

The Men's Low Net prize was taken by Bernie Matthews, with Dick Wilkin coming in second and John Henderson capturing third prize.

J. White took the Ladies Low Net top honors, with D. Sparks coming in second and Patty Zglinick coming in a close third.

The Longest Drive Prize for the men was won by Mark Schlimmer, while Mary Miller took the women's title.

Rowe-McDougall win at doubles

Jim Rowe and Mark McDougall defeated Dick Campbell and Bill Jenkins 4-3 in a seven game pro-set to win the first Tom Falkenburg Handicap Doubles match at Indian River Plantation Sunday.

The various doubles teams played five rounds of eight game pro-sets before it was learned that the two teams were tied for the finals.

The winners received $25 prize money and the runners-up won $13 in prize money.

DON BESSILLIEU, backup cornerback and special teams performer for the Miami Dolphins could be smiling about his clutch 87-yard kickoff return against the Atlanta Falcons last Sunday. The former Georgia Tech star's return set up Miami's first touchdown and ignited a 17-point fourth quarter rally that gave the Dolphins a stirring come-from-behind victory, 20-17.

Woodley may play

There was good news for David Woodley fans Monday night when Miami Dolphins' Coach Don Shula on the Don Shula Show said that he would have the former LSU quarterback working with the first team in practice this week. Shula admitted that with his offensive line having trouble blocking it might be better to have a quarterback of Woodley's mobility handling the quarterback chores rather than the relatively immobile veteran Bob Griese or not so nimble Don Strock.

Coach Shula didn't commit himself one way or another, but left the door open for conjecturing. It could be therefore that if the New Orleans Saints are able to penetrate Miami's blockers next Sunday, you'll see the agile Woodley trotting in to take over the signal calling. He showed exceptional scrambling ability and the capability of throwing accurately on the run during his preseason performances, and is obviously the Miami quarterback of the future, viz. the trade of Guy Benjamin to New Orleans before the season started.

'Be careful to hunt within the law'

By Dick Lundin

WITH THE 1980-81 hunting season underway, Col. Robert M. Brantly, executive director of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, said:

"We trust that all persons who participate in the season will be considerate of hunters and non-hunters alike. It is very important that hunters taking to the waterways, woods, forests and fields this season be careful to hunt within the law."

"You can get complete hunting information including shooting hours, days, special areas for hunts, types of wildlife to be taken and bag limits that vary statewide from Commission offices, such as the one in West Palm Beach (305-683-0748).

Florida hunting dates through Dec. 31 are:

Oct. 4 — first phase of dove season begins statewide (shooting hours from noon to sunset), except portions of Franklin County.

Oct. 12 — archery season closes. (Opened Sept. 13.)

Oct. 24 — muzzleloading gun season (muzzleloading gun permits required) in Northeast, Central, South and Everglades Regions.

Oct. 26 — muzzleloading gun season ends in Northeast, Central, South and Everglades Regions.

Nov. 2 — first phase of dove season ends statewide.

Nov. 8 — second phase of dove season begins statewide (shooting hours from noon to sunset); deer season opens in all regions (no open season in Florida Keys); turkey season (gobblers only) opens in Leon, Gadsden, Wakulla and Jefferson counties in the Northwest Region and either sex in Northeast, Central, South and Everglades Regions (gobblers only in Alachua County); crow season opens statewide; quail and squirrel season opens in Northwest, Northeast, Central, South and Everglades Regions (no open season on fox squirrel in Lee, Hendry, Palm Beach, Monroe, Collier, Dade and Monroe Counties); wild hog season opens in Palm Beach and Alachua counties and portions of Collier, Dade and Monroe counties; bear season open in Baker and Columbia counties (bear taken must be checked and tagged at the Commission's Lake City Regional Office); snipe season opens statewide.

Nov. 9 — rail and gallinule season closes statewide (opened Sept. 1).

Nov. 23 — second phase of dove season ends statewide.

Nov. 26 — first phase of duck and coot season begins statewide.

Dec. 6 — woodcock season opens statewide.

Dec. 7 — first phase of statewide duck and coot season ends.

Dec. 13 — second phase of statewide duck and coot season begins; third phase of dove season begins statewide (shooting hours from noon until sunset).

THE SOUTH ATLANTIC FISHERY MANAGEMENT COUNCIL has elected Peggy Stamey of Raleigh, N.C. as its chairman. She had served a term as vice-chairman of the Council and is reportedly the first woman ever elected to chair a Regional Fisher Management Council since Congress created the eight regional councils under the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976.

The new vice-chairman of the Council is O. B. Lee of the Florida Department of Natural Resources in Tallahassee. Lee was chairman of the committee that formulated the Mackerel Plan, developed jointly between the Gulf and South Atlantic Councils, including management measures for king and Spanish mackerel as well as cobia. This plan is now under final review by the Secretary of Commerce prior to implementation within the 200-mile limit from Norfolk to Brownsville.

The SAFMC manages the fisheries of the Region in order to produce the maximum benefit to the nation. Its geographic scope includes the waters within the 200 mile limit of the Atlantic Ocean off the states of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

BASS TOURNAMENTS have become such a popular thing with so many girl and men bassers that it's hard to keep right on passing them up as they pop up every now and then.

The top 28 Bass'n Gals, chosen after a series of tournaments terminating with the Toledo Bend affair attended by 152 gals from 18 states, are now poised for the gal Super Bowl of bass fishing, the Bass'n Gal Classic to be fished on the Ouachita River in Monroe-West Monroe, Louisiana on Oct. 23-24.

Having received an invitation to cover this tournament and to fish in it with one of the 28 contestants, it seemed high time to take a first hand look at just what gives with bass tournaments.

Accordingly, I'll be at Monroe on Oct. 22-25 to cover the tournament and will fish both days with one of the contestants, drawn at random during the press conference on the afternoon of the 22nd.

The Ouachita River is listed as one of the 10 most scenic waterways in the country, and photography is rated outstanding on Black Bayou, Bayou DeSiard and on the river itself. I've signed up to catch "red ear" bream (shellcrackers?) on fly fishing gear and to take in the photography tours, so look for some good if not great shots in the Mirror soon.

Of course, there is an added inducement to all this, albeit a little far-fetched. The press angler weighing in the largest bass during the tournament will receive a JRB two-man boat, equipped with trailer and a Cruise-N-Cary gasoline engine. The second prize is an all-expense paid trip to Lake ZaZa, Cuba. Who knows? That big bass just might take to my offering.

Incidentally, there will be two girl bassers from Florida in this year's Classic. They are Linda Moore of Palatka who finished in a tie for 10th in the 1980 Bass'n Gal rankings, and Corky Becker of Welaka who wound up in a tie for 19th. It took 174 points to make the tournament. Linda had 200 and Corky 192.

LAND RECLAMATION IN FLORIDA is to get a higher priority with the naming of Jack Woodard to be a full-time coordinator for the program. He was appointed by Dr. Elton J. Gissendanner, Executive Director for the Department of Natural Resources.

In his new capacity, Woodward is charged with the responsibility for planning policy development, rule implementation and staffing prior to the 1981 legislative session. The DNR administers the Non-Mandatory Reclamation Trust Fund, financed by 20 per cent of the severance tax on minerals. The fund has approximately $16 million in it, according to Woodard.

DEER HUNTERS, with that Nov. 9 date drawing nearer and nearer, might want to send away for "The Whitetail Deer: From Field to Table," as published by the National Meat Institute, Inc., 10216 Lajeunesse, Montreal, Canada H3L 2E2. The well-illustrated 64 page soft cover book covers everything from A to Z, except how to stalk and shoot your deer.

The copy they sent me doesn't have any price indicated but it seems unlikely it's without cost.

DON'T FORGET that Sept. 27 marks the ninth annual observance of National Hunting and Fishing Day, proclaimed in recognition of contributions the nation's sportsmen have made to conservation. Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw is this year's honorary chairman of NHF Day.

REMEMBER THAT FULL MOON tonight. It may be a Harvest Moon but it's also a great period for flycasting after bream!

How work activity affects disability

BY BRUCE FERGUSON
SSA Field Representative

Social Security offices receive numerous inquiries each year from disability beneficiaries concerning how work affects their disability benefits. Many beneficiaries incorrectly believe that if they attempt to work their disability checks will be immediately stopped. This is not the case. Disability beneficiaries who have not recovered from their disabling condition are generally entitled to a nine-month trial work period. The purpose of the trial work period is to give the disabled beneficiary a chance to test his ability to again engage in substantial work without penalizing him by stopping his Social Security checks. Effective January, 1979, a trial work month is any month in which a disability beneficiary earns over $75 per month in wages or self-employment income. These months do not have to be consecutive. They can be broken up.

During these nine months of trial work and the three months after, the beneficiary is entitled to receive his full Social Security checks. At the end of the nine-month trial work period, the beneficiary's earnings or self employment income, the type of work he is doing and other work related factors are evaluated by the Social Security Administration.

If it is determined that the disabled individual has been engaging in substantial work activity, during his trial months and is expected to be able to continue in such work, his disability checks would be stopped. If the work activity during the trial months is determined not to be substantial and he has not recovered from his disability, the individual's monthly Social Security checks would continue.

Of course, it is necessary for a disabled beneficiary to report to his nearest Social Security office anytime he begins or stops working.

If you have any questions please phone 283-5700 or 464-5700.

IRCC offers nurse course

Indian River Community College offers a course, entitled "New Directions for Women."

It will be given at the Ranchman Site, 4100 S.E. Federal Highway, Stuart. Registered Nurses and Licensed Practial Nurses can acquire 30 hours of continuing educational units upon completion of the course. Indian River Community College's Certificate of Attendance provider number is C 000 330. The program is directed by Lou Yant and covers group support, values clarification, decision making, goal setting, interest testing and assertive communication; and is open to anyone who may be seeking a new direction in life.

Courses are scheduled for:

September 22 - October 3, Mon. - Fri., 9 am to 12:15 pm, 10 sessions;
October 20 - 31, Mon. - Fri., 9 am to 12:15 pm, 10 sessions; and Nov. 10 - 21, Mon. - Fri., 9 am to 12:15 pm, 10 sessions.

Night Class: September 29 - October 30, Monday & Thursday nights from 8 pm to 10:40 pm, 10 sessions.

For information and registration call 283-6550.

IRCC courses added

Registration is underway for three courses to be offered next month by Indian River Community College.

CONVERSATIONAL SPANISH OFFERED

The Port St. Lucie Community Center is the site of a Conversational Spanish class to begin Thursday, Oct. 2. Offered by the Continuing Education Division at IRCC, and taught by Gertrude Aviles, the non-credit course will concentrate on teaching students to speak and understand Spanish.

Classes will meet twice a week at 1 p.m., and registration can be completed at the first class session or at the Port St. Lucie Community Center. Cost of the class is $5. For more information, call the Guidance Office at IRCC, ext. 323.

NOT FOR WOMEN ONLY

Both men and women will gain valuable information on how to become more successful in many phases of their lives through a new class to begin on the Main Campus Oct. 7. Meeting each Tuesday from 8 to 10:30 p.m., the course will stress self awareness, positive job behavior, the importance of setting goals, and the ways to define values and skills.

The non-credit class costs only $5, and is definitely not for couples only. For more information, call IRCC, ext. 229.

NURSES — REGISTER NOW!

Registration ends Oct. 3 for a class, "The Nursing Process," being offered on the IRCC Main Campus for registered nurses and Associate Degree Nursing students.

Set to begin Oct. 7, the one credit class will meet Tuesdays from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. through Nov. 4 in Room J 223 and will cover the objectives, role criteria, needs, and problems involved in nursing.

The course costs $14. Those who successfully complete it will be awarded an IRCC Certificate of Attendance Continuing Education. To register, contact the IRCC Guidance Office, ext. 323.

Obituaries

I. HAMBELTON WADE

I. Hambelton (Ham) Wade, 77, of 410 N.E. Jude Circle, Pine Lake Village, Jensen Beach, died Tuesday.

A native of Robinson Station, Md., he had been a resident of the Jensen Beach area for the past 14 years, coming from Anne Arundel County, Md. Prior to retirement in 1966, he had been president of the Henry H. Meyer Company for 40 years. He actively attended the Jensen Beach Community Church and the Trinity United Methodist Church, Jensen Beach. He was a member of the Kiwanis Club of Jensen Beach of which he held the office of president-elect. Mr. Wade also had achieved 33 years of perfect attendance with the Kiwanis Club.

Survivors include his wife, Sally of Jensen Beach; a son, Leonard H. (Buddy) Wade of Princess Anne, Md.; a daughter, Sarah Tiemann of Fremont, Calif.; a brother, E. Hilton Wade of Md.; a sister, Nelsa B. Evans of Md.; and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Friday at Holy Faith Episcopal Church, Port St. Lucie with the Reverend Charles E. Waust, officiating.

Interment was in All Saints Cemetery, Jensen Beach.

Contributions may be made to the Holy Faith Episcopal Church Memorial Fund.

Friends called Thursday at the Aycock Funeral Home in Jensen Beach, who was in charge.

ALICE LIGHTY

Alice Lighty, 68, of 30 Spanish Way, Port St. Lucie, died Tuesday at Martin Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Lighty was born in Attica, Ind. Prior to retirement she was former Director of Admissions for Newton Memorial Hospital in Newton, N.J.

Mrs. Lighty was a member of Holy Faith Episcopal Church in Port St. Lucie and the Martin Memorial Hospital Ladies Auxiliary.

Survivors include her husband Russell of Port St. Lucie, a son, Elvin (Bud) B. Noland of Clarks Summit, N.J., a daughter, Constance Yong of Wheeling, Ill., two sisters, Mary Petro of Hicksville, Long Island, N.Y. and Lorraine Rickey of Palo Alto, Calif., and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday at Holy Faith Episcopal Church, Port St. Lucie with the Reverend Charles E. Waust, officiating.

Interment will be in All Saints Cemetery, Jensen Beach.

Contributions may be made to the Holy Faith Episcopal Church Memorial Fund.

Friends may call Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Aycock Funeral Home in Jensen Beach.

WENDELL A. MORRIS

Wendell A. Morris, 77, of 8 Palm Circle Park, Rio-Jensen Beach, died suddenly on Sept. 15.

He was born in St. Johnsbury, Vermont, graduated from St. Johnsbury Academy and Pratt Institute.

IN RE: ESTATE OF JOSEPH GREGORY
Deceased

NOTICE OF ADMINISTRATION
TO ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS OR DEMANDS AGAINST THE ABOVE ESTATE AND ALL OTHER PERSONS INTERESTED IN THE ESTATE:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that the administration of the estate of Joseph Gregory, deceased, File Number 80-373 CP, is pending in The Circuit Court for Martin County, Florida, Probate Division, the address of which is Post Office Box 626, Stuart, Florida. The personal representatives of the estate are Laurel Vasli and Vera Traversa, whose addresses are Vasli: 13015 Whisper Bay Pl. Tampa, Fl. 33624, Traversa: 585 Sands Way, Stuart, Fl. 33494. The name and address of the personal representative's attorney are set forth below.

All persons having claims or demands against the estate are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file with the clerk of the above court a written statement of any claim or demand they may have. Each claim must be in writing and must indicate the basis for the claim, the name and address of the creditor or his agent or attorney, and the amount claimed. If the claim is not yet due, the date when it will become due shall be stated. If the claim is contingent or unliquidated, the nature of the uncertainty shall be stated. If the claim is secured, the security shall be described. The claimant shall deliver sufficient copies of the claim to the clerk to enable the clerk to mail one copy to each personal representative.

All persons interested in the estate to whom a copy of this Notice of Administration has been mailed are required, WITHIN THREE MONTHS FROM THE DATE OF THE FIRST PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, to file any objections they may have that challenge the validity of the decedent's will, the qualifications of the personal representative, or the venue or jurisdiction of the court.

ALL CLAIMS, DEMANDS, AND OBJECTIONS NOT SO FILED WILL BE FOREVER BARRED.

Date of the first publication of this notice of Administration: Sept. 24, 1980.

LUCY EVANS AND LETTA WILLIAMS take time out from their busy schedules to pose for a photograph. Both women are actively involved in re-enrolling the R.S.V.P. program for Martin County
(Photo by Carlye MacAuley)

RSVP program needs volunteers

Martin County residents 60 or older who want to help their community needs with RSVP.

RSVP stands for Retired Senior Volunteer Program. It is designed to offer services to non-profit and governmental agencies, including specially selected volunteers.

Martin County has a number of organizations that receive much of their funding through donations and volunteer support. Now, through the efforts of the RSVP program, more of these organizations will also be staffed with volunteers.

According to Lucy Evans, RSVP Director for Martin and St. Lucie Counties, St. Lucie County has used RSVP successfully for six years. This success combined with an increasing demand in Martin County for constructively utilizing retired persons in this area with the help of Lela Williams, executive director of M.C. Council on Aging, Inc., program is now being re-instituted.

RSVP sees the placement of people who are retired business people such as accountants, librarians, clerks, secretaries, salesmen in Martin County.

Non-profit groups such as the Elliott Museum, for example, need volunteers to help answer visitor questions, and give them directions. In addition, host of other retired business people will be needed to fill the many requests from other local organizations, says Evans.

Although transportation to the different sites or to lunch cannot be supplied, those who offer their time will be reimbursed for part of their traveling expenses, says Evans. Volunteers who donate a full working week will partially be reimbursed for lunch.

According to Lela Williams, volunteering can change a retiree's whole outlook on life. She says the program not only provides help for organizations that often lack the funds to hire people, but it offers something more than just needed services to organizations.

"It's important we regain some of the talents and skills of people like Williams who believe that present day society lends towards a lack of commitment. She and Evans hope that RSVP can establish services to the seniors whereby senior citizens can offer some old-fashioned guidance by acting as surrogate grandparents to youngsters not fortunate enough to have their own. Williams says Williams believes that many volunteer programs for fear of the time involved.

"Volunteering is not an up-tight sort of thing," she says. Evans adds that the time contributed is determined wholly by the persons offering their services.

Evans relates the experience of one woman who started her volunteer service slowly by helping the Meals on Wheels program and is now devoting her time between that, the time contributed is determined by cancer. She is 84 years old.

The Lucy Evans and Lela Williams team is the biggest obstacle in recruiting elderly volunteers is to convince people they are needed and that it feels good to feel needed.

Disaster Preparedness looking for volunteers

Disaster Preparedness officials are looking for volunteer to be the eyes and ears of their office during a local disaster.

Ham radio and citizens band operators are needed to man the field operations during hurricanes and other disasters where persons may be relocated from their homes. The county has about 40 shelters that will be available and operators are needed.

CB-ers and ham play a major role in communications during various storms, such as Hurricane David last year. These radio keep the Emergency Operations Center in contact with the shelters and other services throughout the county.

One suggestion is for hamradio operators to work the radio operations. They will be at the shelters together and will be able to provide a service to the public.

Anyone volunteering for the program is asked to provide his or her own equipment at the time it is needed. Practice drills at the shelters will be conducted and radio operators will be contacted by calling Jay Jarrell, program coordinator, at 287-1652.

Anyone interested in the ham radio operators and Richard Fischer at 283-3618 will handle the CB operators. Further information can be obtained from the Civil Defense office by calling Keith Holman, communications coordinator, at 287-1652.

Beginning class Spanish offered

A knowledge of conversational Spanish is another requirement for Florida becomes more and more a bilingual state. A beginning class for adults is being offered by the Jensen Beach Elementary School.

Teaching the class will be Steve Stearns. There are no books to be purchased. The bulk of the class time will be spent practicing the language verbally rather than studying grammar.

Enrollment is limited. Pre-registration will assure a seat in the class. This may be accomplished or further information obtained by calling Jay Jarrell, program coordinator, at 334-1363.

ERIKSON LIVES AGAIN Sunday afternoon when the Vikings arrive at Beach Causeway, skirmish with the Indians, and claim "Vinland" for The eight-oared "otterng" owned by Gulfstream Lodge of the Sons of Norway will be the landing boat as Norwegian descendants recreate the scene as it might have been nearly 1,000 years ago. See inside for a special eight page tabloid section issued in honor of the Tenth Annual Leif Erikson Day.

Leif Erikson Day is Sunday

North America will be rediscovered this weekend at the Tenth Annual Leif Erikson Day celebration marking the arrival of the Norwegian explorer on the shores of "Vinland" almost 1,000 years ago.

Members of the 11 Sons of Norway lodges around the state and their families will begin arriving Friday in time for a welcoming champagne party and dinner-dance at night at the Holiday Inn Oceanside convention site.

Chairman of this year's festivities is Dick Hummel of Stuart, member of the host Gulfstream Lodge, who estimates more than 200 Norwegian descendants will be taking part in the three-day celebration.

Saturday will be devoted to lodge business, Hummel says, with a showing of films on the Decorah, Iowa, Norwegian festival scheduled at 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m.

A 7 p.m. dinner for lodge members will be followed by folk music and dancing performed by the De Glede Norske Chuck Nergard of Port St. Lucie will serve as master of ceremonies.

Dancing to the Pink Pookies will begin at 9 p.m.

Voting on the candidates for Miss Florida Viking 1980 will take place during an intermission with the crowning of the queen to take place Sunday.

On Sunday the Norwegian-Americans will share their heritage with the community during an afternoon of races, speeches, folk music, dancing, foods and crafts.

The opening event will be foot races open to runners 16 years old and over who will sprint from Jensen Beach to the Causeway in competition for a trophy.

Also at noon the big parade will step off from in front of the Jensen Beach post office, wind its way down Commercial Street to Indian River Drive and finish up on the Causeway for the afternoon's festivities.

There'll be five engines, Shriners, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Lions Club members joining Norwegians wearing their native "bunad," according to Hummel.

And it's just possible that the Ft. Lauderdale and Orlando lodges will bring in their 100-year-old boats, six-oared "otterings" to be displayed as floats in the "parade," Hummel says.

The antique boats are no longer seaworthy but Gulfstream's "otterng," and eight-oar vessel, will be moored offshore to play its part in the pageant, the landing of the Norsemen.

This year's pageant is under the direction of Phil Lee with Gulfstream and Palm Coast Lodge members taking the role of the Vikings and Goldcoast Lodge members from Clearwater portraying the Indians.

The pageant is but one of the activities slated during the afternoon on the Causeway. Following the singing of the national anthems, led by Ray Fyrhie, there will be welcoming speeches and awarding of trophies.

Miss Florida Viking will be crowned, followed by a performance by the De Glade Norske singers and dancers. The saga will be related by Arnold Helseth, after which the pageant will be presented.

Sunfish sailboats will hold elimination races and on shore, booths will feature Norwegian crafts and cooking for sale.

And the grand finale will be the giveaway of a weeklong Caribbean cruise for two aboard the SS Norway, 482 former SS France acquired and refurbished by Norwegian Caribbean Lines.

Of special interest to the voters on Tuesday should be the five proposed constitutional amendments on the ballot. The package of five amendments are supported by Governor Bob Graham under a banner of "Five for Florida."

The first amendment would authorize tax exemptions for renewable energy source devices and on property with such devices.

The second amendment would authorize the state to issue revenue bonds to finance or refinance housing and related facilities in Florida, with the bonds secured by pledged revenues at least equal to the bond payments.

The third amendment would allow counties and municipalities, after a referendum, to grant tax exemptions to new business and expansion of existing business, for certain improvements to real property and for certain tangible personal property.

The fourth amendment would provide a homestead tax exemption increase to $15,000 in 1980, $20,000 in 1981 and $25,000 in 1982 and thereafter. The increase would be tied to 100 percent assessment rolls of the counties or municipalities.

The fifth amendment would allow business inventories and livestock to be classified for tax purposes or exempted from taxation.

Polls will open in Martin County at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

JB man killed on motorbike

A 23-year-old Jensen Beach man was killed Saturday afternoon when his 73 Honda collided broadside with an auto on Route A1A, Hutchinson Island.

Dead at the scene was Mark John Ballis, 1889 Commercial St. Driver of the auto was Cynthia E. Woods, 55, of Beach Club Colony, who suffered minor injuries.

The accident occurred at 3:15 p.m. when Woods, northbound on A1A, attempted to make a left turn into the Cumberland Farms Store near Aqua Ray Drive, and was struck broadside by the southbound Ballis, according to a Florida Highway Patrol report.

Ballis is listed as the 33rd traffic fatality this year in St. Lucie County.

Woods, who was treated at the scene and released, has been charged with an improper left turn. Her auto, a 1975 two-door Buick, sustained some $3,000 damage, investigating troops estimated.

Wacha-Haynes debate at C of C Oct. 7 forum

The general election campaign for the District One county commission seat will move into the fast lane Tuesday morning, Oct. 7, when Frank Wacha, the incumbent Democratic candidate, and Republican challenger Alex Haynes, debate the issues at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce monthly forum.

Meeting at 8 a.m. at the Admiral's Table restaurant on Indian River Drive, the forum debate marks the start of the second primary election day.

The two candidates will exchange views and then face questions from a local media panel which will include Dick Campbell, editor and publisher of The Mirror; and reporters Joe Crankshaw, Miami Herald; Jim Reeder, Palm Beach Post; Valerie Jones-Long, Stuart News; and Lee Bowen of radio station WSTU.

The Wacha-Haynes debate Tuesday comes as a rematch, the two having met in combat last Thursday at a luncheon meeting of the Stuart Sertoma Club.

Although the main topic to emerge was Martin County's comprehensive master land use plan and what it lacks in setting forth future needs, no disagreement surfaced between the two candidates.

Instead, both men led off by defending themselves against one another's prior attacks.

Citing his previous record of civic, governmental, and political service, Wacha said, "I had accomplished a lot before I ever ran for office," and added, "A candidate who doesn't have anything to talk about talks about his opponent."

Wacha, a certified public accountant, has been accused by Haynes of having a conflict of interest because he holds a real estate license while hearing planning and zoning issues to come before the county commission.

Maintaining that he abides by the "CPA's code of ethics, Wacha said he could only be guilty of a conflict of interest if a client of his was to appear before the commission.

"Don't innuendo me to death during the campaign where there are more important things to talk about," Wacha said.

Haynes opening remarks were made in answer to Wacha's introduction as "my Democrat opponent" referring to the fact that Haynes only registered as a Republican in February after having been a Democrat and before that, a registered independent.

"I am really an independent," said Haynes, explaining that in Michigan, where he came from, it was considered alright to switch parties in the primaries.

A retired professional engineer, Haynes asserted his ability to make management decisions on total systems.

"The distinctive quality of life here is rapidly deteriorating," said Haynes, citing traffic, river pollution, sewage, and schools as "demanding awesome payment for topsy-turvy growth."

Predicting that Martin County "is becoming an urban community whether we like it or not," Haynes compared the 1970 census figures for the unincorporated areas at 21,000 with the 1980 figure of 55,000 plus 13,000 within the corporate areas. Every additional 10,000 people, he said, means 2,000 school children, 950 juvenile delinquents, a 1.5 million gallon per day demand for water and 8.5 miles of road.

"The bottom line is extra taxes because of poor planning," Haynes said.

According to comments made by Wacha, the comprehensive land use plan was made "a ballot box issue this November" through a court challenge initiated by the Coalition to Save Palm City, a citizen's group.

Five banks join forces

Jensen Beach Bank will become a branch bank of the Southeast Bank in a merger of five South Florida banks, into one institution.

The merger was effected by Southeast Banking Corp., the largest bank holding firm in Florida, as the first cross-county bank merger to be approved in Florida.

Jensen Beach Bank was joined with Southeast Banking Corp. last January, according to Ron Mitchell, president of the local bank since 1973.

The other four banking firms united by the Southeast merger are the Citizens Bank of Palm Beach County with five offices; First National Bank of Palm Beach Gardens with two offices; Southeast Bank of Broward with ten offices; and the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Riviera Beach, now readying its first office for opening. The Jensen Beach Bank has one branch office, located at the Winn-Dixie Shopping Plaza, in addition to the main office at 1939 NE Commercial St.

The cross-county merger, Mitchell explains, means that Jensen Beach Bank customers will be able to avail themselves of banking services out of town, such as getting checks cashed at any Southeast Bank in the state.

Approval for the charter of Southeast Bank was given last week by Comptroller Gerald Lewis acting under a 1979 state law to permit banks to consolidate into firms extending across county lines, subject to state and federal approval.

Kiwanis changes to Monday in effort to rebuild club

An intensive membership drive, organized programs and a change to Monday luncheon meetings sparked Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club efforts to rebuild the declining service club in the community this week.

Meeting at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Monday night, club officers and members tried to find the reason that the club has declined in membership and attendance. They were helped by a group of Stuart Kiwanians, the club that sponsored Jensen.

Hugh Curren, president of the Jensen Kiwanis, chaired the meeting, which was led by Ed Norton, incoming Lt. Governor of the district. Assisting Curren was Past Governor of Florida Bill Oughterson, a well-known Stuart Kiwanian.

Eight Jensen members attended out of the eighteen members of the club.

"We want to find out what is going on, and what we can do to improve the club," Curren said. He added that the problems of the club should be fully aired by members, and solutions sought to those problems.

Norton said that there had already been one meeting on the revival of the club, that meeting led by proposed incoming president Ham Wade, who died the afternoon following the Stuart meeting.

"Ham was Mr Kiwanis in this area. He was dedicated to the club, and died as he was setting up the revitalization of Jensen Beach Kiwanis," Norton said.

Norton pointed out that the many changes of meeting places by Jensen in past years had led to uncertainty of members and visitors. There would be some good attendance and some poor. He said the programs had been good, but the quality had deteriorated over the years.

Curren pointed out that it was embarrassing to invite good speakers only to find a half-dozen members there to hear the speaker. He added that "When we moved to Thursdays (from Monday) I would forget the meeting date."

Curren's comment was echoed by other members there.

Oughterson said that the club should find out why some do not attend, learn what brings in new members, and get good programs.

"Stuart will help. Your older members should be asked to return," Oughterson said.

Past President Dick Campbell and Dr. Richard Penick teamed in a motion that the meetings be returned to Monday noon at the Villa Capri Restaurant, that good speakers be acquired to add interest, that members be called each Monday morning to insure their attendance, and that the Stuart Kiwanis encourage at least fourteen members of their club to attend the Jensen meetings for the next month.

In addition, Curren asked each Kiwanian to bring one prospective member to the Monday meeting.

On Oct. 27, the Stuart Kiwanis Club plans an initiation of the new Jensen members in an educational session of the club, with Oughterson and Dale Hipson to install the new members.

The new officers of the club for the next year will include Charlie Trumbell, president; Dennis Doyle, vice president; Art Hansen, secretary, and Adon Jefferies, treasurer.

The first Monday meeting of the club will be on Oct 6, with members being informed of the decisions this Thursday.

Fire Prevention Week Oct. 5-11

Annual Fire Prevention Week begins Sunday and Jensen Beach firemen will be sending the message in many ways during the week of Oct. 5 to 11.

On Sunday, the fire engines will take part in the Leif-Erikson Day parade, according to Chief Joe Luciano.

Although fire safety inspections of public buildings and business are a year-round project, residents are urged to have their houses and mobile homes checked for fire hazards during the week by calling the fire station, 334-2220, and requesting an inspection.

During the week, firemen will make their traditional visit to the Jensen Beach Elementary School when primary grade pupils get a close-up look at the fire engine, a chance to blow the siren, and hold the fire hose.

Don Wilke, who is chairman of Fire Prevention Week activities locally, will talk with youngsters about the dangers of playing with matches and what to do and what not to do if their clothes catch fire.

The children will also participate in a fire drill.

Firemen will mark the end of the week with the traditional spaghetti dinner from noon to 7 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10, at the fire station.

Vito Gianiani, chairman of the affair, says there is a $3 donation for tickets which may be obtained from any fireman or at the station.

The menu will include spaghetti, salad, garlic bread and a choice of soda pop or coffee. Take-out orders will be available.

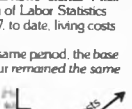
A REPORT TO OUR CUSTOMERS BY FLORIDA POWER & LIGHT

ANY RELIEF AT ALL FROM INFLATION?

You recall the "good news, bad news" stories? Most of the news is bad. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that since January 1977, to date, living costs have inflated 44.2 percent!

But there is a surprise! In the same period, the base rate of a residential kilowatt hour remained the same. The residential rate was set by the Florida Public Service Commission in 1977. It was based on FPL costs in 1976. Three-and-a-half years of inflation, totaling 44.2 per cent, have hit FPL since our last rate increase.



How did we do it? We've increased efficiency. Remained lean. Cut back every way we know how. There may be a limit to how long we can absorb inflated costs. But we're doing our best.

MORE GOOD NEWS!!! High energy efficiency residential appliances are exempt from the Florida sales tax! House Bill 1506, passed by the 1980 Florida Legislature, lists certain central air conditioning systems (EER and SEER exceeding 10.0), heat pumps (exceeding 8.2) and other devices, systems and components as qualifying for the exemption. Your appliance dealer should have additional details.

VOTE. Aristotle, writing in Politics, Book II, noted: "If liberty and equality, as is thought by some, are chiefly to be found in democracy, they will be best attained when all persons alike share in the government to the utmost."

FLORIDIANS SUPPORT NUCLEAR POWER.

Ninety percent of those surveyed by Florida Representative Marilyn Evans were opposed to closing nuclear power plants and 76 percent were in favor of continuing to expand nuclear power. The "anti" vote ranged from eight percent to 10 percent – a clear indication that nuclear is recognized as one of the ways to help America out of the energy crisis.

AND, THANK YOU for reading, hearing and viewing our conservation communications efforts! A whopping 74 percent of our customers have indicated they have paid attention to our messages, and nearly 50 percent have followed some of the suggestions about conserving electricity. Keep watching! More suggestions will be coming your way to help you save.

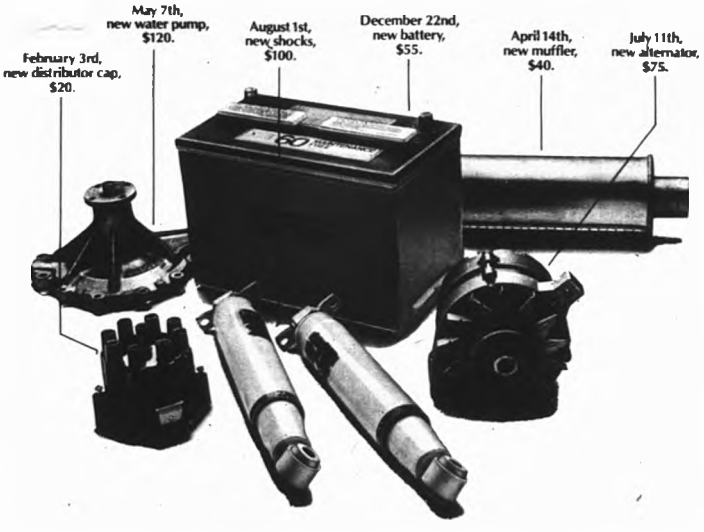
You can buy a new car piece by piece. Or you can get it all at once through Southeast.



February 3rd, new distributor cap, $20.
May 7th, new water pump, $120.
August 1st, new shocks, $100.
December 22nd, new battery, $55.
April 14th, new muffler, $40.
July 11th, new alternator, $75.

If you're willing to spend the money, you can probably keep your old buggy running forever.

But no matter how many parts you replace, you've still got an old car on your hands. And it's going to take more and more money to keep it going.

Maybe it's time you thought seriously about buying a new car.

Southeast can make it a lot easier than you think. By giving you a new car loan on terms that make sense for your budget.

Right now, the new models are beginning to roll in. And you can be sure that a lot of them will be more cost- and fuel-efficient than your present car.

So why not come in and talk to us soon.

Instead of buying all new parts, you can buy an all new car.

The adult learning center at the Martin County Public Schools is offering a course on "How to find and keep a job."

The course, which will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. at the Adult Learning Center, is designed to help adults adjust to the pressures of starting an unfamiliar career.

Included in the course will be the use of library materials, information about Florida state employment service, civil service exams, and JTPA programs.

Throughout the course, students will find information about vacancies, working conditions, educational requirements, and a host of other information.

Adult students 21 or older may enroll by calling 283-4044 between 7:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Enrollment is limited to 25 students.

Voters to decide 5 amendments

Decisions on five proposed amendments to the state constitution face voters in the Oct 7 primary run-off. The five amendments basically cover tax exemptions for solar energy installations in homes and businesses.

revenue bonds to finance residential mortgages for low to middle income families, real and tangible tax exemptions to encourage new and expanding businesses, an increase in Homestead Exemption from $5,000 to $25,000 by 1982, and repeal of the inventory tax.

Amendment One would provide a ten-year ad valorem property tax exemption at a rate to be determined by the legislature for homes or businesses installing such energy efficient equipment as collectors, heat pumps, heat exchange devices or geothermal hot water systems.

Amendment Two would create a Florida Housing Finance Agency with the authority to issue revenue bonds to finance or refinance residential housing for low, moderate and middle-income level residents. The bonds would be paid off through returned mortgage monies.

Amendment Three would allow local governments to grant non-school real and tangible personal property tax exemptions to attract new businesses and for community redevelopment. Exemptions would be limited to a ten-year period. Local referendums would be required to approve the authority.

Amendment Four provides for three annual increments in the present.

The increased Homestead Exemption is designed to offset increases in property taxes resulting from re-appraising at full market value now mandated by state law.

Amendment Five would authorize the state legislature to do away with the inventory tax assessed on business inventories of raw materials and finished goods.

Each of the proposed amendments has passed the Florida Senate and House by more than a three-fourths favorable vote.

All registered voters are eligible to vote on the proposed amendments.

UNDERSTANDING MORTGAGE CONSTANTS

QUESTION: From time to time I hear the expression "mortgage constant." I also have heard the term "debt service." Are either of these expressions anything like the principal and interest payments on a real estate mortgage loan?

ANSWER: A constant is a percentage which, if applied to the original amount of a mortgage loan, results in the total debt service (principal and interest payments) that is required in any one year on that loan.

Mortgage constants are derived mathematically from the interest rate and the term of the loan and are published in books of mortgage tables.

In a direct reduction loan, the same monthly payments are made each year for the term of the loan. These payments cover not only the interest but sufficient principal to pay that loan down to zero at the expiration date. Let's say the loan is for $100,000 at 12 percent interest and is written for a 25 year term. In this case, the amount constant is 12.64 percent.

You can determine the total of the 12 monthly payments by applying the constant of .1264 to the original $100,000 loan amount. By doing this, you can see that $12,640 is the total debt service on that loan in each year of the loan's existence.

Naturally, as the years progress, the amount of interest within that $12,640 declines and a larger portion of the payment goes toward the reduction of principal. In fact, in the last year of the loan's existence, almost all of the $12,640 payment will go toward principal reduction.

65 enrolled at Theatre Studio

Since opening its doors for operation in mid-September, the Theatre Studio has enrolled some 65 students ranging in age from six to 65 in a variety of six classes.

Described as a learning center for people of all ages interested in acting, communication and stage presence, the Theatre Studio is directed by Kim Ranz.

For children six to eleven there are two divisions of Children's Games, designed to strengthen awareness of their environment and build receptiveness to the world around them.

The Teen Classes are being offered to junior high and high school students, and will expose them to different aspects of stage life, including Theatre Games, scene study and improvisation.

For adult beginners there is Theatre Games I, a course emphasizing stage presence, group interaction and performance technique.

The Professional Class is an intense course stressing a fresh approach to the basic principles of the theatre. Audition skills, ensemble work, improvisation and scene study will be the focus of this class.

Anyone who wishes to join the studio, or would like more information should call Kim at 334-4773.

Midelis rolls recipe is here

Following The Mirror Cooking Show, many readers asked that the recipe for Nick Midelis' famous rolls be repeated.

Midelis, who was made famous by Gourmet Magazine when it reprinted his recipe (not to mention how famous for his culinary art), operates the Hilltop Restaurant, now under reconstruction following its destruction in Hurricane David last year. He plans to reopen in the latter part of October.

Here is the famous recipe, broken down to household size from the one he uses at the Hilltop Restaurant, north U.S. 1, Ft. Pierce.

Midelis Rolls

Dissolve two ounces dry yeast in one cup of lukewarm water.
Add one cup of milk.
Add one cup of flour.
Add one teaspoon of salt.
Add two teaspoons of sugar.
Knead thoroughly, adding more flour until an elastic ball is formed.
Let rise until double in size.
Portion out to one ounce strips. Tie into knots.
Proof (let rise) and bake in 375 degree oven for six to eight minutes.
Then, enjoy.

Mirror recommends

Next Tuesday has been judged a "low turnout" day for the second primary election. It is unfortunate that most of the non-voters will be missing several very important things.

The first is the runoff for U.S. Senate for both Republicans and Democrats. Voters must choose between Lou Frey and Paula Hawkins on the Republican side, and Bill Gunter and Dick Stone on the Democrat side. It would be a shame to cancel a previous vote by not backing either candidate for the general election.

The same is true in the St. Lucie County runoff between Democrats Jack Long and John Yanaros for district three county commission.

And, in Martin County, the runoff for Republican supervisor of education between incumbent Jim Navitsky and Hazel Watts should draw voters to the polls.

If the above is not enough to draw the voters out, there are five important constitutional amendments on the ballot that could change the lifestyle of Florida residents. Each should be considered on its individual merits, and not as a popularity vote for Governor Bob Graham.

We encourage the voters to study the candidates and the amendments and make their own decisions.

In those issues, The Mirror recommends the following:

For U.S. Senator
Democrat
Bill Gunter
For U.S. Senator
Republican
Lou Frey
For District Three
St. Lucie County
Commission
Democrat
Jack Long
For Martin County
Supervisor of Education
Republican
Jim Navitsky

Constitutional Amendments

No. 1: Tax exemption for renewable energy source installations. We do not feel this is an adequate measure to conserve.
AGAINST

No. 2: Government financing of housing through issuing bonds. The government does not belong in competition with private financing agencies.
AGAINST

No. 3: Allowing counties and municipalities to grant ad valorum tax exemptions to business. This would make Florida more competitive with other states in attracting new industry and improving present industry.
FOR

No. 4: To allow homestead ad valorum tax exemptions to rise from $15,000 to $25,000 over three years consistant with proper assessment rolls. The homestead exemption has long outlived its reason for being in the state. It should be abolished, and taxes reduced accordingly, not increased.
AGAINST

No. 5: To allow business inventories and livestock to be classified for tax purposes or exempted from taxes. This would correct a wrong that has been in the constitution for many years.
FOR

All registered voters are allowed to vote on the constitutional amendments. Only Republicans can vote in the Republican primary and only Democrats can vote in the Democratic primary.

We cannot impress upon all voters the need to be informed on the amendments, as they are very important to the future of life in Florida. We urge all to vote their conscience in all issues on the ballot next Tuesday.

Shades of Ra

When I was a little girl, I lived in a beautiful closed city called Ra. In Ra, you got all the hand-me-downs first. You had the elation of the prettiest dolls, instead of the hand-me-down Mrs. Gee made over for you every year. In Ra, you had secret hiding places — cubby holes where your sisters couldn't ferret out your secret stones or bits and pieces of ribbon. Ra, in short, is the beautiful land of privacy.

After all these many years, I believe I've discovered Ra again.

First, my daughter Valerie moves in with me, a happenstance I hadn't felt possible with any degree of comfort. And now we have found Ra together. Nobody gets in the other's way, nobody snoops into the other's boxes of gewgaws. There are no secrets unless one seems forthcoming.

In Ra, you could go swimming or get as wet as you wanted, whenever you wanted to. Or nibble milk and graham crackers. Here in this particular Ra the same thing holds. Who can ask for a more pleasant Ra companion?

Speaking of Ra, another little piece of it came true over the weekend with the arrival of Sister Jeanne and her colonel friend from St. Petersburg.

The colonel, who has a fantastic storm to tell about his war experience, is a learned horticulturist, and she overseas nonny roamed — with information on the local flora and fauna. Especially on the proper way in which the Indian River waterfront should be landscaped. He did admit to the matchless, ageless beauty, though. No detractor could question that.

My week in Ra was completed Sunday by being abducted for dinner on the food of Peter Paris.

You haven't eaten lasagna until you've eaten Pete's Italian food. Pete must have taught the Olympians how to prepare their cuisine. Needless to say, I ate my weight in Paris Cotsoni. Marg and Pete are threatening to open a pasterria in the little shop on the island, and it wouldn't be a bad idea.

With all that and heaven too, Ra would surely have arrived.

POETIC INJUSTICE

After shopping my ditties
To magazine scatties
Who favored me twice a few,
I was highly elated
To find that I rated
This helpful encouraging cue:
"I recommend
That this you send
"To a magazine editor who Edits a different type
"Of trype —
"His policy's radically new."
So my manuscript
I eagerly slipped
In an envelope roomy and blue
With a note it came back
Like a jumping jack —
"I like to reject 'em, too."

It began as a picnic

I was sitting in my office in 1970 contemplating what we could do to bring some summertime excitement to Jensen Beach when the phone rang. It was Ralph Evinrude, and he had a problem.

"Have you ever heard of the Sons of Norway?" he asked. "Yes," I said. "If you have the backing of the Sons of Norway in Alaska or Minnesota you can get elected to just about any office. They're a great group of people."

Evinrude explained that he had received a letter from the Ft. Lauderdale chapter asking if it would be possible to hold a picnic for the three Florida chapters in Jensen Beach, basing the event from the Outrigger Resort.

"Could you take care of this for me?" he asked.

And, that is how it began.

I called Bjarne Eskevik, and he explained that the three lodges wanted to have a picnic in a place central to Lauderdale, Miami and Orlando. Jensen Beach was it, and the Jensen Causeway was perfect for it.

Then he said something that perked my ears up.

"We plan to have a little pageant to indoctrinate our youngsters into the history of Norwegian-American contributions to this country. The pageant will reenact the landing of Leif Erikson in America," he said.

Eskevik added that he had acquired a 100-year-old boat found in a barn in Norway, and it was being shipped to the United States to use in the pageant.

"Do you mind if the people of Jensen Beach come to see your pageant?" I asked, my mind whirling with the possibilities of a Norwegian pageant as a special community activity.

He got excited about it, too. Then we set about planning the first Leif Erikson Day.

We met in Jensen, and talked an entire afternoon about the possibilities. Bud Bjorgen, a Ft. Lauderdale member, was writing the pageant. Other members set about selecting the foods, open face sandwiches, and pastries.

The men and women would wear the beautiful "Bunads", a costume of colorful materials with braid and hand-stitching that represented the certain area that they or their forefathers came from in Scandinavia.

There was to be a Norwegian band to play to schottishes and hambos, and the varnavian Aft Lauderdale group, called the Leikerring Dancers were to perform.

It took many meetings that summer, but the Sons of Norway are meticulous in their planning.

The one 100-year-old boat had grown to three: two "searings" (rowed by six men), and one "ottering" (Rowed by eight men.) All three were donated to the Sons of Norway by the people of Norway.

We had the governor proclaim the week "Leif Erikson Week." The county commission did the same.

It was a great party.

The three lodges met on Saturday, partied all day, had a smorgasbord that night with all the ladies bringing their covered dishes of Norwegian specialties, and then the pageant and dancing the following day attracted about 3,000 people to the causeway.

What impressed me, most was that following the pageant, the Sons of Norway members set out up and down the causeway to clean up every scrap of paper, and left the park cleaner than it had been in years.

They have done it ever since, and the pageant has grown each year. We have had the U.S. Navy Band, the U.S. Coast Guard Band, and countless other special events to add to the party.

It has, over the past ten years turned into one of the highlights of the year to local residents.

A few years ago they added the parade, from downtown Jensen to the Causeway. It has been a success, drawing hundreds along the route.

In a few years, the Sons of Norway had chapters here, and all over the state. There are eighteen chapters now. They outgrew the Outrigger, and moved to the Holiday Inn Oceanside where this week the group will take over the entire hotel. Over 500 S-N members will be on hand.

Ike Eskevik, who has become a good friend and now owns a condo on Hutchinson Island, is still one of the leaders of the Leif Erikson Day. Every once in awhile, he'll look at me and say, "you know, all I wanted was a picnic."

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Thank you for your outstanding editorial in the Sept. 24 issue of the Mirror. You have astutely observed the local political scene and accurately commented upon it.

Florida Statutes clearly say that state and county committeemen and committeewomen hold their offices to help their parties' candidates. The Statutes do not say "selected" candidates. As individuals, of course, these committee people should vote for their own choices.

The present Republican county chairman and state committeeman differ with some of us old timers, their position being that they, as individuals, are working for Lou Frey. This convoluted thinking smacks of the divine right of kings (local") instead of the philosophy of a republic (Republican").

Although I cannot understand this political schizogenesis, I shall be grateful for clones of the committee people to fulfill their official duties and courtesies to candidates.

Jan Littman
(An old ex-state committeewoman)

To the Editor:

At the Sept. 15 board meeting of the St. Lucie Country Club Homeowners Association a contribution for $150 was approved for support of the Port St. Lucie Concert Band.

All board members present were unanimous in their concern for the continuation of this fine volunteer group of talented senior citizens.

The Homeowners Board feels that the Port St. Lucie Band merits community support for through its program of free concerts it adds to the enjoyment and musical appreciation of area citizens.

It is hoped that the Homeowners Association action will encourage other groups and citizens to join in this much needed financial aid.

C. Gordon Ferjance

To the Editor:

We have looked all over the state of Florida and have decided that your beautiful little town is the place for us.

We hope to be residents there one day. In the meantime we would like to order the Mirror and have it sent here.

We don't know how much it is yearly and we are only up there on weekends so could you please bill us.

Thanking you in advance

When do we hit the lows?

Sorry to say that after a week on the job here I am still not prepared to discuss the labyrinthine imbroglio that constitutes the political, governmental, socio-economic, and land use planning of our two-county area.

The word labyrinthine occurred to me during the two days I was last driving around the northerly stretches of Port St. Lucie after making a right turn that only led to tomorrow. Never again will I venture out there without a native guide and a CB radio. Is there such an animal as a GDC homesteader with squatter's rights?

I got back in time to attend a session going on at the PSL city commission workshop where otherwise seemingly sane and civic-minded citizens discussed the impossibility of budgeting enough funds this year to recede from the county. Maybe next year, was the implication.

I was brought up to believe "secession" was heavy. Cannons mounted on the ramparts. Bombs bursting in air. A scene of tattered flags and head wounds.

But on a budgetary item between Parks & Recreation and the Public Safety Department? Needless to say, it has shattered all my illusions about Charleston firing on Fort Sumpter in an emotion-packed take-to-the-streets movement. It must have all been done in committee after all.

And should the proposed secession one day succeed, has anyone thought about which county will get the name "St. Lucie"? Or what name "the other county" would go by? Maybe for that they'll hold a contest?

By Thursday the editorial life should have started settling down into the routine of weddings, sundry items, and obits. Instead, I got my first lesson in speaking Norwegian.

It seems that is the time of year Dick Campbell dons his Icelandic goat sarong and swoops down upon his demesne, brandishing his halberd or sau[illegible] broadsword, demands that everyone learn a few words of old Norse in time for Leif Erikson Day. (Enough to fill 252 column inches, anyway.)

So I made a note of that on my calendar under "things to do Saturday."

"Saturday?" thundered Thor Campbell. "You're expected on Saturday — as the newest member of the staff — to have designed a raft guaranteed to win the Great American Raft Race! Have at it!"

It was only by dint of convincing him that half of his staff could be lying waterlogged at the bottom of the St. Lucie River if they dust trust their well-being on any craft I created that he relented.

Instead, Dick treated all comers to a leisurely cruise aboard the Sails to the scene of the raft race. A cruise enjoyed by all but me. I stewed away beneath a tarnished curtain sure he would break out six or eight oars somewhere out on the inlet and make us all row upstream singing in Norwegian.

Instead, I was hauled out of my hiding place and put on alligator watch in the hope of getting a really good shot at a gator. On film, of course. Shades of Olson Johnson. Another good Scandinavian, I'm sure.

The less said about the shots I got and didn't get at the raft races, the better. How can you possibly explain to a guy who expects you to learn Norwegian and build a raft during your week on the job that you've fouled up two rolls of spare film because you have mismatched thumbs and ten fingers that aren't connected to central dispatching?

At the least I expected a keel-hauling. At best, to be made to swim home. I got pity. And that really hurts.

Or maybe he was hoping we'd spot an alligator on the return voyage and I could get some really close shots of it, to have a delayed replay of Jonah and the whale in a full page series of 35mm shots taken by the late news editor with a camera attached to a casting reel (to the camera only, of course).

Instead, I got assigned to take pictures and write biographies of all the lightning bugs in Florida. By Tuesday, I think it is. Good. That gives me two days to find the fire stations — unless, of course, they are somewhere up north in PSL.

There you have the highlights of my first week at The Mirror. What the highlights are next week, I'm afraid to ask — either in English or Norwegian. Or better yet: Do we ever get a week with any lowlights around here?

Palmer-Nelson team for Disney World

The team of Arnold Palmer and Larry Nelson is the latest entry in the Sixth Walt Disney World National Team championship to be held at the Disney Golf Resort, Oct 16-19.

With the addition of the Palmer-Nelson team there are now 62 teams committed to the tournament, including defending champions Bee Crenshaw and George Burns.

Last year Andy Bean and Jerry Pate, a team considered by many as the team to beat, failed to make the cut at the end of the second round. Bean pointed out that the duo's problem last year was a lack of practice and too casual an attitude.

This year we plan to practice a couple of weeks before the tournament," says Bean. "Last year we took a week off and ended up fishing and partying. You know, you just can't play golf and do that too. We're going to take it a lot more seriously this year and I think we'll do a lot better."

This years event will be different from the preceding championships. The field will consist of 120 teams of two who will rotate the first three days paying each of the three Disney courses with different amateur partners each day. It will also be the first time that the Lake Buena Vista course will be used for the classic.

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

It is no exaggeration to state that headache is one of today's most common health problems. Headache varies from the mild variety caused by overtaxing the system to the very severe migraine headache.

Headache caused by fatigue, etc. is easily corrected. Often a good nights sleep will do the job. When we talk of 'migraine headache' this is entirely a different matter. It is character used by severe pain, usually to one side of the head.

- distorted vision
- nausea
- complete disability during an attack
- an inability to withstand light or even the slightest noise

Possibly the above symptoms are an altogether too common occurrence in your life. If so, read on. This article may lead to the correction of your problem.

The immediate pain of a migraine headache is caused by a spasm of certain blood vessels of the brain. This spasm causes a congestion of blood within the blood vessels and then the typical throbbing migraine pain.

Chiropractic research and experience in handling many cases of headache have revealed that interference to the nerves supplying the blood vessels is the cause of the blood vessel spasm.

The nerve interference in turn, is caused by spinal distortion, that is the vertebrae (bones of the spine) being out of line.

The Chiropractic Physician is a specialist in locating and correcting spinal distortion. By gentle scientific means the offending vertebrae are restored to their correct position.

Seniors helping seniors is Nixon spirit of life

BY ERNIE CURWEN

This type of conversation is often overheard "Can you help us a little while next Tuesday?" "Gee, I sure would like to but I just sprained my big toe We all know only too well, there's always an excuse handy But not so with Jim and Ellen Nixon of Cer 1 St., Jensen Beach, as they never learned to say "no", therefore they have become involved in all kinds of service and church activities

Jim was born in the eastern part of New Mexico in 1897, but grew up in the northwest corner on a small cattle ranch, even made 65-mile cattle drives to Albuquerque. Jim ran away from home when 16 and joined the army in 1918 and at once was sent to Siberia Then his regiment, for not being right on the ball, was sent to Hawaii for punishment Jim could only stand 3½ years of this tropical paradise

"Curly", as he was then called, got into the show business at this time with a part in "Olsen & Johnson" act Then, in between times he had a reality venture in Salt Lake City, making old houses as good as new for a profit Also, in chicago he was a machine setter in a plastic hose making business But, soon he became associated with Coleman Bros Circus where he met and married Ellen in 1965

Ellen came from Jonesport, Maine where Yankee thrift and work were learned at an early age, and Jim, with his New Mexico cattle drives knew what work was all about so they enjoyed the Carnival life of being on the "go" 18 hours a day 6 or 7 days a week But, when they retired from that in the 70's, there was a big vacuum to be filled First they volunteered for AARP tasks, such as preparing the bulletin for mailing

Soon they found that they could be more useful at the "Thrift Shop" and when they became the managers, had their hands full Almost from dawn to dusk, Jim is going somewhere in the red pick-up truck, to collect cartons of clothing, refrigerators, divans, beds etc , that folks have donated

The "Thrift Shop" on Commercial street has grown in leaps and bounds until it's now a 5 figure business with 3 or 4 sorters and taggers, and 20-25 clerks These volunteers love the work of helping others and meeting most of the seniors of the area at one time or another

Perhaps the Meals-on-Wheels is their most rewarding volunteer task Jim has been a delivery driver since the start in 1976, when he was the one to get the meals from the hospital Now, he generally assists in the distribution of the meals to the 5 route teams by giving out the deserts, salads and the milk, while Maurice Arlack handles the main meal, now prepared by Palm City Cooking College, by a chef trained by Mrs Keer

The Jensen Beach routes are handled at times by the following Jim Nixon, Freda Peterkin, John and Jane Hughes, Jill Morris, Charles Pringle, June Behrens, Al Mems, George Dean, Irene Williams and others It is a truely worthwile volunteer project, as it makes sure the frail elderly, the partially blind, the crippled, the loners, who wouldn't otherwise get a balanced nutritious meal and those weak from recent hospitalization get at least one good meal a day

The route teams find it uplifting to bring the meals to these folks who greet them with a beaming smile and a hope they'll linger and chat a while MCCA can be justly proud of the project and the workers as it is an all volunteer, all donation program

Of course, it can't be all work and no play, so at least once a week it's don their square dance togs and traipse up to Pine Lake Village and kick up their heels to the calling of Bill Brundage However, come Sundays, they take it easy Jim, who is a member of the Board of the Jensen Beach Community Church, ushers the members to their favorite seats while Ellen takes care of the nursery or prepares the coffee Then, to entertain a bit, they'll put on "skits" for the couples club And, Jim can always seem to find time to take folks to West Palm for the price of the gas and a little more

So, it's hats off the the Nixons who make it their business to help others whenever they can and enjoy every minute of it

DELIVERY - Ready to deliver meals on wheels is Jim Nixon, one of the many volunteers who love their work in helping others.

In FIT's Rathskeller

The Florida state law raising the minimum legal drinking age to 19 went into effect today (Oct. 7.

To find out what impact this would have on the Florida Institute of Technology students in Jensen Beach, The Mirror visited their on-campus bastro; the Rathskeller, last Monday night.

There were probably 100 students there but we could only find one who admitted to being eighteen The students in the lounge were either playing pool, talking to friends, or listening to the jukebox What they all did in common was drink

Starting today, the drinking of alcoholic beverages will only be done by students 19 or older According to Jan King, FIT's director of admissions, the Rathskeller management will begin checking ID's at the door and then turn away underage students Additionally, she said "We've also banned beer from all university functions."

How do the students feel about this?

"I don't think it's going to make a difference," said 19 year old student Scott Obuch He thinks the only thing hurt by the law will be the school functions There probably won't be as many students who welcome if they can't drink."

Chris Anderson, 21, thinks it's a good idea "People that are 18 now, act differently," she said Chris does believe however, that if people are old enough to go to college, they should be allowed to come into the college bar

They'll still have keg parties in the dorms, she adds

Jim Totton, 19, also believes that a lot of school functions will be hurt by the new law

"That's why a lot of people come for the beer," he said

Pati Santoro, 23, doesn't want the age to be lowered "I wasn't ready to drink when I was 18 It hurt my grades, and I just couldn't handle it"

Patti doesn't believe though that the law will have that much impact on the 18 year old students "Everybody has fake IDs"

Betty Boup, the only 18 year old in the Rathskeller Monday night, thinks the drinking should be left up to the individual She said that she rarely got carded before she was 18 and doesn't expect any problems now

They'll just get it through someone else, implying that older students will purchase drinks for their underage friends.

Mike Distan, now turned 19, sat back in his chair and smiled "It really doesn't matter to me anymore," he smiled

FIT STUDENTS enjoy an evening at the Rathskeller, located on campus. As of this Wednesday, those under nineteen will no longer be permitted inside, where drinking is allowed. Those four students however, will not be affected, for they are nineteen and older. Pictured from left to right are: Lee Rapetti, Neal Campbell, Jim Totton, and Mike Distan.

Continuing education

The Martin County Adult and Community Education department is continuing to schedule upcoming fall programs.

Courses offered involve everything from investments to water color painting.

How to Help Yourself to Better Health.

The holistic approach to health and the individual's responsibility to maintain his own health through natural practices is the theme of a three-week series of lectures entitled "Help Yourself to Better Health." The series is scheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 14 through 28 at the Jensen Beach Elementary School. It is co-sponsored by the Jensen Beach Community Education Center and the Health Awareness Center of Stuart.

The holistic approach considers the structural, chemical-nutritional and mental-emotional aspects of the individual and their interrelationships. Patients are encouraged to examine their lifestyles as well as their diets and to make necessary adjustments to achieve total health. The stresses and strains of modern day life can better be handled, when all aspects of the body are in natural balance and not dependent on powerful drugs to screen symptoms.

The lectures will be presented by Drs Kevin McKay and Jason Schwartz, chiropractic physicians, and William Lane, executive director of the Center.

Popular Investments Course Will Be Offered Again.

One of last year's most popular classes "Investment Survival in the 80's" is being offered for six weeks, starting 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 16 at the Environmental Studies Center.

With the unsettled conditions in the oil-rich nations having a profound effect on the stock market, and every other investment, many small investors are hard pressed to know which way to turn. This series is designed to clarify the issues and brung to light the many and varied avenues of investment to counter the effects of double digit inflation.

Topics to be considered are investment analysis, equity ownership, debt instruments, commodities, options, insurance, money market investments, taxes, tax advantaged investments, financial planning and estate planning techniques.

Conducting the classes again will be Dan Todzia, vice president and branch manager of the local Dean Witter, Reynolds office, and H. Ray Eller, account executive with the same office. Guest speakers will be brought in to discuss some of the topics.

Pre-registration is suggested as both previous sessions were "sell-outs." For further information call Jay Jarrett, 334-1383 after 2 p.m.

Watercolor Painting Classes

Adult and Community Education is offering a class in watercolor painting which is specially designed for seniors. Dorothy Hill Rabowski will be teaching the class. The first session will be devoted to discussion of materials and approaches to painting in watercolor. A notebook is required for the first session. Various methods of working in watercolor will be taught, with ways of working with photographs and sketches. Color control and brush techniques will be covered and class critiques will be held. Individual instruction will be stressed.

The class will meet at the Stuart Recreation Center, starting Tuesday, Oct. 7, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Registration will be at the first class meeting.

Tissel Painting

A class in Tissel Painting, a very old craft sometimes known as "crystal" painting, will be offered at the Stuart Recreational Center, beginning Oct. 7.

The class, taught by Arla Ruoff, will meet Tuesday mornings from 9 a.m. to 12 noon for ten weeks. No former painting knowledge is needed as designs are traced on the glass before painting.

Interested students may register at the first class meeting. For further information, call Colleen Watts, 287-6400.

Oil Painting Class

A new oil painting class is soon to start at the Robe Round Civic Center by Adult and Community Education of Martin County Schools. The instructor will be Helen Smith, a well known artist and illustrator formerly from the Palm Beaches. Mrs. Smith teaches in the traditional realistic style, discovering color relations, design and harmony, as found in nature.

Classes will begin Oct. 6 and will be meeting from 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Mondays for 10 weeks. Interested students may register at the first class meeting. For further information, call 287-6400.

Stained Glass Class Postponed

The special stained glass class for seniors, previously announced for Oct. 6, has been postponed until Oct. 23 at the request of the instructor. The class, sponsored by the Jensen Beach Community Education Center and held at the Environmental Studies Center, is open to beginners or whose with some experience in the art.

Instruction on an individual basis will be provided in copper foil and leaded glass technique by local artist John Mellac. The 10-week basic session may be followed by shorter classes in more advanced techniques if interest warrants them.

The basic class will be held on Wednesday nights from 7 to 10 p.m. Registration may be accomplished on the first night of class or in advance by calling Jay Jarrett at 334-1383 after 2 p.m. weekdays.

Exercise for Health Class at Jensen Beach

Better health through supervised exercise is offered in a 10-week class to be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 until 8:30 at Jensen Beach Elementary School. First session is scheduled for Oct. 7.

Laura Cassella, a physical education teacher and gymnastics coach, will again conduct the class which consists of a "dancercise" warm-up and calisthenics and yoga exercises for muscle stretching and relaxation. The class is open to both men and women.

Enrollees should wear suitable exercise attire and may wish to bring a mat. Enrollment may be accomplished on the first night of class or by calling Jay Jarrett at 334-1383 weekdays after 2 p.m.

Macrame Class

How often do you walk through the stores and see more macrame items than you could ever justify buying at today's prices? That doesn't mean you can't have them. You can learn the ancient art of knotting. Come join the new Macrame Class starting Oct. 8 on Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Classes will be held at the Stuart Recreation Center.

Registration will be at the first class meeting. For further information, call 287-6400, ext. 121.

Recorded Concert Series Resumes

Stereo Concert Hall, a twice-monthly series of recorded classical music presentations, resumes for the season on Sunday, Oct. 12 at the Environmental Studies Center at 4:30 p.m. The 90-minute concerts will be presented on the 2nd and 4th Sundays throughout the fall, winter and early spring months.

The opening concert will include Brahms' "Academic Festival" Overture, Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" and the 7th Symphony of Antonin Dvorak. Host for the series is Jay Jarrett, coordinator of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center.

Registration is not required and no fee is charged. Attendees will be invited to help plan future concerts.

Signs of times

The signs of the times are being posted by political candidates and Martin County Commissioners have set three preconditions for sign placement.

No signs will be allowed on rights of way, or on any property without the owner's permission and all signs must be removed 30 days after the election, commissioners decided at Tuesday's session.

JUST ONE VOTE:

—Approved President Polk's request to declare war on Mexico in 1846, resulting in the acquisition of Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Utah, California and part of Colorado.

SHELL COLLAGE
Beginning Thursday, October 16, 1980, Florida Institute of Technology will offer a special 6 week non-credit course in Shell Collage.
This technique using natural material and acrylic resin was developed by Ed Lawrence and used extensively in construction and decor of Frances Langford's Outrigger.
Classes will meet at 6:00 — 9:00 P.M. on Thursdays starting October 16, on the second floor of the Dorothy Brown McCall Marine Building. Registration will take place during the first class.
Course fee is $35.00 plus materials.

Idea home planned at Sailfish Point

Herrlin-Deinard Construction Company of Stuart will begin construction on a $900,000 single-family residence at Sailfish Point, Mobil Land Development (Florida) Corporation's luxurious yacht and country club community at the southern tip of Hutchinson Island.

Encompassing 3,880 square feet of interior living space, the Utsha-pan, Bermuda style "idea" home will open onto the sixth fairway of the golf course designed by Jack Nicklaus. The area inside the courtyard holds a large, L-shaped swimming pool, as well as 3,000 feet of decking and gardens.

Energy efficient installations in the three-bedroom, three-and-a-half bath home will include a solar hot water heating system, tinted glass windows throughout, roll down shutters, and Bermuda blinds.

In addition to single-family residences, Sailfish Point will consist of townhouses and condominiums. Condominium residences are priced from $325,000, and townhouses priced over $375,000. Residential home sites start at $115,000, with oceanfront home sites costing over $350,000.

Junior Women fashion show

The Junior Women's Club of Stuart will present a fashion show and champagne lunch at the Foxfire Inn on Saturday, Oct. 18, at noon, featuring fashions from Bay Harbor shops and several other local boutiques.

Co-ordinator and moderator of the show will be Janet Kyle, director of Turnabout Modeling School. Proceeds will benefit the Ronald McDonald House in Miami.

Tickets are available from any club member. For tickets or information call Kathy Myers at 287-2560 - days. Tickets will also be available at several Bay Harbor shops.

Five courses to be offered for adults

Five more Community Education classes get underway this week under the sponsorship of the Jensen Beach Community Education Center. Three of the classes have not previously been offered in this area.

How to Buy a Used Car is designed to assist the buyer in avoiding a purchase that will require expensive repairs. Instructor John Campbell will b. e with him a background which includes a degree in mechanical engineering, six years in automotive design and another six as owner manager of the Auto Clinic in Rio. The class will be held at the Environmental Studies Center from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 2 and 9. The $1 registration fee includes a 28-page booklet published by Consumers Union on buying used cars.

Also meeting for the first time Oct. 2 will be Stella Chagnon's popular Fabric Painting Course. The class is open to senior citizens, 55 and older, and will meet at the Jensen Lanes Community Room for 10 weeks on Thursdays from 1 to 4 p.m. Chagnon emphasizes that artistic talent is not necessary to enjoy this activity. There is a $5 registration fee and paints may be purchased as needed.

Another new class for senior citizens is "Christmas Crafts" which begins on Monday, Oct. 6, at 7 p.m. at the Environmental Studies Center. Kathy Kernan, an experienced crafts teacher, will instruct the class in making welcome, yet inexpensive gifts with macrame, shellcraft, bead work, stitchery and bread dough art. A $5 registration fee is required for this class also.

Another money-saver that will be of special interest to those on a fixed income is "How to Be Your Own Handyman." This class will also meet at the Environmental Studies Center Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 5 p.m. every other week. The first session will be held Tuesday, Oct. 7.

Harold Whelan will instruct students in all aspects of minor home maintenance, from choosing the proper tools to rewiring a lamp or patching a plaster wall. The class will be tailored to the needs of the students. A $5 registration fee will be charged.

Better Health Through Exercise is offered in a 10-week class to be held from 7 to 8:30 Tuesday and Thursday nights starting Oct. 7 at Jensen Beach Elementary School. Laura Casella will again lead the popular class which includes "dance-cise", warm-up, calisthenics and yoga exercises for muscle stretching and relaxation.

Enrollees should wear suitable exercise attire and may wish to bring a mat with them. A $5 registration fee is required.

For more information or to preregister for any of these classes, call Jay Jarrett at 334-1363 weekdays after 2 p.m. Next week this column will carry details of four more activities: the Stereo Concert Hall (starts Oct. 12), Help Yourself to Better Health (starts Oct. 14), a repeat of the Fishing Seminar (starts Oct. 15), and another "Investment Survival in the 80's" series (starts Oct. 18).

Cast call

Auditions will be held at the Barn Theatre on East Ocean Blvd., Stuart, for the next production, Neas Hart's sophisticated comedy "Light Up the Sky."

The play will be directed by Marianne Johnston. Auditions are Oct. 6, 7, 8 at 7:30 p.m. Scripts are available at the Martin County Library to be read prior to tryouts. This show will need men and women of various ages.

Barn Theatre is community theatre and auditions are open to all.

Comedy films to be presented

"Fifty Years of American Comedy Films" is the title of a subscription series of films to be presented by the Jensen Beach Community Education Center over a five-month period starting Friday, Nov. 14. The films encompass the period from 1914 to 1963. Each will run from 80 to 90 minutes.

All will be shown at the Environmental Studies Center on the second Friday of the month at 8 p.m. through March 13. Cost for all five films is $5. At least 50 subscriptions must be sold prior to Oct. 27 for the series to be presented.

Scheduled are: Nov. 14 W.C. Fields Festival including "The Barbershop," "The Pharmacist," "The Dentist and "The Fatal Glass of Beer."

Dec. 12 Charlie Chaplin's first feature length film, "Tillie's Punctured Romance" costarring Marie Dressler and the Keystone Cops.

Jan. 9 "Saps at Sea," starring Laurel and Hardy.

Feb. 13 "Comedy of Terrors," starring Vincent Price, Boris Karloff, Basil Rathbone and Peter Lorre.

Mar. 13 Marx Brothers Festival with excerpts from five of their films plus a Buster Keaton short, "Love Nest on Wheels."

Tickets may be obtained by call Jay Jarrett, 334-1363 weekdays after 2 p.m. PSL has changing of the guard.

Community Church unites with UCC Sunday

The Jensen Beach Community Church on Skyline Drive will be officially welcomed and dually aligned with the United Church of Christ at the worship service Sunday, Oct. 5 at 10 a.m.

Participating in the service will be Dr. John DiGangi, minister of the Community Church; the Reverend Norman G. Kehnle, associate minister; Dr. Charles L. Burns, Florida Conference minister of the United Church of Christ; and his associate, Dr. Erston Butterfield.

Dr. Burns will present the sermon "Personal Faith and Social Responsibility" based on Ephesians, Chapter 4.

Dr. Burns received his master of divinity degree from the Chicago Theological Seminary and his doctor of divinity degree from Tillotson College in Huston. He studied counseling at the University of Chicago and business administration at the University of Pittsburgh.

He is currently a member of the executive council of the United Church of Christ, a member of the executive committee of the Florida Council of Churches, and a member of the planning committee including the consultation on Mission Priorities.

Music will include the Jensen Beach Community Church Youth Choir under the direction of Barbara Pond.

Members of the church and the community are invited to participate.

ABWA wins national award

Members of the Stuart Chapter of American Business Women's Association will receive a banner for meeting a ABWA national standard of achievement.

Grayce P. Ausburn, president of the Sailfish Charter Chapter of Stuart, and other members will be in Phoenix from Oct. 29 to Nov. 2 where they will receive the national award during the ABWA annual convention.

ABWA meets the first Tuesday of each month and women interested in joining may contact Ausburn at 286-0850.

RE coordinator appointed

Gail M. Payne has been appointed as RELO Coordinator for Welcome Center Real Estate, Inc.

Gail is married and a resident of Port St. Lucie.

RELO is a non-profit organization, comprised of over 1,300 Realtors throughout the world. Gail's function is to coordinate the relocation of transferees coming into and leaving St. Lucie County. RELO is the largest relocation association in the world and they are the largest for only one reason: RELO members provide the best in sales and service.

Oil painting to be taught

A ten-week course in oil painting will start Monday, Oct. 6, at the Langford Park field house, sponsored by the Martin County Education Department.

The teacher is Helen Shea Wells, local artist.

Sessions will be held from 9 a.m. until noon on successive Mondays. Fee for the course is $5.

Time now to get ready for the 1981 GARR

The fourth annual Great American Raft Race is over and it's back to the drawing board for those who think they have a better idea for next year.

Last Saturday's ragtag regatta at Port St. Lucie North Port Marina was the biggest and best ever as thousands turned out to cheer the racers on and sop up sun and suds, while 81 entries in the eight divisions contributed about $1500 (at $5 a head) for the United Way.

Just about anything that floats, including an aluminum stepladder, dozens of bright-hued beachballs clustered inside plastic frames, PVC pole lengths, oil drums, and styrofoam blocks, were paddled, peddled and prayed over the finish line — sooner or later.

The names of the crazy craft were as imaginative as the rafts themselves. The Chickenship the Dinghy Dames, the Bored Realtors, the Hardly Able, and the Divorce Court Special, among them.

A mock cannon mounted on the prow of a speedboat boomed the start of races while Cleopatra's barge drifted among the rafts, adding another zany note. And there was a floating flat bottom pressbox skippered by Ed Burke, who volunteered both his boat and services for the day.

On the saner side, there were 21 entries in the canoe events. Winners in the men's division were: first place, Jack Crumbo and Terry Howard; second, Gary Burkey and Terry Wix; third, Graham Rese and B. R. Gaggi. In the ladies' division: Teresa Brannock and Lee Ann willford; Marie Smith and Linda Clemeny; Peg Reed and Betty Lane. Mixed: Pat and Diane Faherty; Jim and Lajana Hancock; Rod and Donita Grabhorn.

The $5 and Over canoe race was won by Jim and Jean Gran of PSL, skimming the waves in their "Double O."

One-two-three winners in the Surfboard category were Chris Clark, Charles Evans and Karen Panker.

Miscellaneous craft drew nine entries with Patrick Traynor and Paul Tornich of Jensen Beach coming in first; the Ft. Pierce Keyettes, second; and the PSL police department team of Alan Wallis, J. Jiminez, H. Devlin, Chief Ed Werder, and Dennis Nickel, third.

In the Unlimited division, Tree-Sweet's "Liquid Lightning" flashed into first place, followed by Port St. Lucie Bank's Big Wheel III, and General Development Corp.'s "Bonze and Cruise," coming in third.

Multiple Innertube event was won by Bebee's Barge, with Stuart's Rick Boyce captaining the placing team, and the Sunshine Carpet Cleaners, coming in third.

Two heats had to be scheduled in the raft race when there proved to be more raft entries (31 of them) than river width.

Winners in the first heat were Ft. Pierce Tire & Muffler, Ark III floated by the Knights of Columbus, and Flanigan's Cabaret.

In the second heat, it was Port St. Lucie News, Miller-Huber Distributors and Citizens Federal, with a special prize going to Stuart Sports Car Club.

Along with the races there were bikini and chug-a-lug contests to wind up the day long activities co-sponsored by the Port St. Lucie Exchange Club, WOVV-FM and Budweiser.

Jensen Beach looked good as we topped the Commercial St. hill to view 'Ye Olde Town', the sparkling Indian River and green Hutchinson Island in the background. In other words we were glad to be back. So, now I will tell you what the North Carolina seniors were yakking about, and what's bothering our local seniors.

The election didn't seem to concern the Hendersonville seniors very much. They were too busy watching their apples fill-out for harvesting and talking prices. The crop was good and so were the prices and as long as it continued that way, why get in a 'tizzy' over who gets the White House job, as there wasn't much choice. But, our local seniors had other views and as usual were quite articulate, it went like this.

Edith, as soon as she was seated in the 'meal' bus, turned to Salty Capt. Joe, and asked, "Did you get much out of the big debate the other night, I'd hoped for a wee bit of fireworks?"

"Well, I didn't expect much, so wasn't disappointed," Capt. Joe replied with his eye crinkling smile, "but both made their points, Anderson now has 'big shot' status, Reagan got in his digs about President Carter not being able to defend his administration and I guess TV made their usual 'bundle'."

"I think we're all too complacent," butted-in Phil who keeps records of about everything. "lots of folks are saying 'why bother,' they're all the same, none will be of much help to us seniors. But, if you look at the record, you'll find that when we don't bother, neither do the politicians."

"You can bet I'm going to bother," piped-up Lady Alice who has to make it on $250 per month, "I'm going to vote for the one that might lick inflation and make my few dollars last the month, that's what I'm going to do."

"Great, that's the stuff," Phil replied, "We should have been on our toes back in '65. I just looked at some charts, they showed that inflation got its foothold then, when we felt unbeatable as a nation and thought that 'butter & bullets' program could be handled by deficit financing, or mortgaging our grandchildren's futures. That stupid decision has come back to haunt us sooner than expected, as it seems now, no matter, what, things get worse for the seniors."

"That's what I say," retorts Grumpy Pete, as he untangles his cane to thump it on the floor to emphasize his anger, "and now it looks as though all the candidates want to try it again, damn it. But, if one of them shows some sense, he gets my vote regardless."

"There now, Pete; don't blow your stack," exclaimed Mildred, who always sees the bright side, "remember, they're politicians and darn good ones at that, to make it right to the top. So, being politicians, they say only those things they think will get them elected. But, if you'll look at the records and behind the clouds of rhetoric, you'll find someone who remembers the 25 million elderly."

"I guess I started something," Edith finally got a chance to reply. "As I see it, vote we must, so the politicians will know we're still out here and watchin'," then as an aside to the bus driver, "are you going to take us to vote?" (Driver didn't know but would check.)

John Vance, acting president while Charles 'Chuck' McIntyre teaches swimming in Colorado, reports that the chapter activities were in hiatus all summer, they did do some ground work in getting two bylaw changes ready for presentation to the members. One — to take the two year restriction off the secretary and treasurer positions, and the other to increase dues to $2.

There was a sad event. Wendy Morris, a very active member, died mid-September, leaving his wife Jill. Wendy will be sorely missed as he just couldn't say 'no' when asked to help out. He had been a vice president and chairman of numerous committees and perhaps is best remembered for heading up the booth at the fair, and Jill was the chapter's first secretary.

Bill must be itemized

BY BRUCE FERGUSON
98A Field Representative

Many people in this area wait longer than necessary to receive payment from their Medicare medical insurance because they failed to submit itemized bills with their request for payment form.

Medical insurance is the part of Medicare that helps pay for doctor bills, outpatient hospital bills, and other items and services not covered by hospital insurance.

To receive payment under medical insurance, a person generally submits a request for payment form and the doctor or other supplier completes part of the form or provides an itemized bill to send with the form.

The trouble is that often the bill does not provide a detailed description of the services provided and therefore, a decision cannot be made as to whether they are covered. As a result, the patient must be contacted for more information and payment is delayed.

To prevent this delay, the person should be sure that each bill shows:

— A description of each service provided;

— The date the service was provided;

— The charge for each service provided;

— The doctor or supplier who provided each service, and;

— The person's name and health insurance claims number, exactly as they appear on the Medicare card.

It is helpful if the diagnosis is also shown.

For more information, ask for a free copy of the leaflet, "Payment under Medicare medical insurance." Copies may be obtained by phoning 283-5700 or 464-5700.

Pink Ladies meet Oct. 6

There are sails, dolphin; whiting and pompano in surf

BY DICK LUNDIN

FISHING CONTINUES to be relatively good at most places in the area, and it's a little hard to pinpoint any one "hot spot." Some of the best action seems to be for sails and dolphin in 60 to 120 ft. of water southeast of the St. Lucie Inlet and in 200 to 250 ft. due east of the inlet. There are some weedlines off the inlet now and if you can find one or some other type of floating object, you stand to hook a big dolphin on trolled ballyhoo, or a subtly deboned mullet. The sails are running quite large, like 7 to 8 ft.

The surf action on bluefish has died down and now only a few are being taken, mostly on cut mullet. There are lots of whiting, croakers and small pompano in the surf and one of the best spots is down around the Martin County Park-N-Fish recreation area below the Jensen Causeway, up to Jensen beach. The whiting can be caught on cut bait or fresh or frozen shrimp, the croakers the same but add live shrimp. The pompano prefer sand fleas. Oddly enough, some big snook have been caught on these little sand fleas during the past few weeks but now most of the snook appear to have left the surf. There are plenty of ladyfish and jack crevalles there.

We need some cool weather to stir up the seatrout fishing but you can find some along the grass flats taking live shrimp, mirrolures and trout touts, from Herman's Bay just south of the power plant up to Little Mud Creek, about three miles above the plant. Flounder are showing up in the river again, up to six pounds. They'll hit live shrimp, jugs bounced along the bottom, and even plugs.

Bridge fishing is pretty good for various species of bottom fish like mangrove snappers, sheepshead, black drum and croakers. Possibly the best place is the Roosevelt Bridge in Stuart, but good catches are being reported from the other bridges in Stuart and at the Frank Wacha Bridge on the Jensen Causeway.

TOM STEWART, from the Snook Nook in Jensen: "Very few blues are left in the surf now, just a few scattered ones here and there. Whiting, croakers and small pompano are still plentiful, though. The snook are gone from the surf, but there are lots of ladyfish and jacks in it. River fishing for seatrout is fair to good, mostly in Herman's Bay and north to Little Mud Creek. The southern flounder are back in the river. Boaters drifting near the No. 19 buoy (just south of the Evans Crary Bridge) have been catching nice strings of weakfish and croakers using nylure jugs tipped with shrimp. Bridge fishing is a little slow, just a variety of bottom fish. Offshore, there are big dolphin to 25-0, mostly in 60 to 120 ft. of water, hitting only trolled ballyhoo. There are some big sails with them."

The Nook's log: Bill Yurillo and Jerry Gatewood, an 8 ft. sail, ballyhoo, 120 ft., S.E. of SL Inlet; Dennis Proctor and Ken McDonald, 4 dolphin to 25-0 (25 lbs.), ballyhoo, 60 ft., S.E. of inlet; Dick Bornemann, a 6-0 flounder, live shrimp, Herman's Bay; Bill Sails, a 40-0 tarpon release, 3 trout and a flounder, cut and live mullet, Evans Crary (10 cent) Bridge; John Mastos, 5 trout and a flounder, spinanna lure, grass flats near the Jensen Causeway (west shore); Chuck Russell and Doug Grant, 3 trout and 2 flounder to 4-8, live shrimp, Herman's Bay; Andy Papovich, 3 trout, T-30 rig and touts, Herman's Bay; Jack Myers, 3 snook to 5-0, 4 mangrove snappers, a drum and a grouper, live shrimp, wading in Little Mud Creek; Gary Wider and Bob Beecken, 10 trout, live shrimp, power plant; Roy Greenwald and Jack Prell, 13 trout, 7M18 mirrolures, west shore, Walton Road area; Joe Terito, a 4-0 snook, mirrolure, near the power plant; John and Myra Heyburn, 15 croakers to 2-0, 5 weakfish and a whiting, nylure jig tipped with shrimp, St. Lucie River; Andy Jorgensen, 25 whiting, cut shrimp, Normandy Beach; Tony Battaglia, a 3-0 Spanish mackerel, cut mackerel, surf; Jack McConnell, 28 squirrel fish and 2 Spanish mackerel, cut shrimp, 15-20 ft. of water, on the reefs just north of the SL Inlet.

Pompano fishermen will be interested to know that Tom Stewart of the Snook Nook is offering a "golden" sand flea rake to the angler weighing in the largest pompano at the Nook before April 1.

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "Fishing's still good. Tim Calahan caught a 5-15 largemouth bass on a purple plastic worm in the Savannas; Jean Cannady, an 8-0 drum, dead shrimp, east catwalk, Frank Wacha Bridge; Gene Oren, 4 pompano, 14 whiting, dead shrimp, Holiday Inn surf; Steve Schanbach, a 5-0 flounder, live shrimp, the Nettles Island bridge; Bill and Louise Hakler, 7 blues to 3-0, cut mackerel, near the "Sheraton" condo; Robert Boland, 2 seatrout to 9-0 and 2 grouper to 4-0, touts and mirrolures, power plant; Ron Kohler and Chuck Hunsinger, 9 whiting, live shrimp, Jensen beach; Charlie and Jack Jardel, Bob Grant and Clarence Magnum, 50 blues and 3 Spanish mackerel, 2 days, cut mackerel, Jensen surf; Howard Lockhart, a 27-8 snook, gator spoon, Hobe Sound surf; Conrad white, a 30-0 cobia, rigged ballyhoo, 80 ft., N.E. SL Inlet. Fishing's been real good, Dick for blues, whiting and pompano in the surf, and for dolphin offshore."

MURIEL-WEIDEMEN, D&M Bait and Tackle, at the south end of the Roosevelt Bridge: "Donel White of Belle Glade had a good day on the bridge Saturday. He caught 6 drum to 12-0, several croakers and 2 channel bass, all on whole fresh shrimp on an outgoing tide. Fishing wasn't too swift over the weekend but they're still catching quite a few snook here at night. Mangrove snapper fishing is holding up. The fishing is average but good compared to what it has been."

FROM MANATEE RESORT BAIT AND TACKLE, Bob Starkey: "Fishing's been pretty good lately. There are some big dolphin; to 30 lbs., not too many though. Russell Ballard got a 30-pounder Monday out in 200 ft. on ballyhoo. Sails are plentiful in deep water. Jim Wheelus got 2 sails Sunday in 400 ft. King mackerel are real scarce now. There are some scattered Spanish mackerel just off the SL Inlet. The dolphin are out around the weed lines, in 200 to 250 ft. of water. Find a floating object or a weed line and you'll likely find some big dolphin there."

DAVE LAMB, from Jensen Bait and Tackle: "Fishing is on the upswing. We need about a nice three-day cold snap to start some real good seatrout fishing in the Indian River.

Lamb's log: The Dave Farmer's, 15 blues on cut mullet, Park-N-Fish; Norman Ohm, a 20-8 snook, sand fleas, same place; Bruce Bemis, 14 pompano and 2 snook to 16-4, sand fleas, same place; Phil Weber, a 7-4 trout, live finger mullet, FIT dock; Joe Ianeri, 12 blues, cut mullet, north of power plant; Jay Shank 3 blues to 5-0, cut mullet, Park-N-Fish; just north of the power plant; Jim Miner, 4 trout to 4-0 and a 5-0 snook, live shrimp, just south of the Evans Crary; Angelo Durante, Dr. Lowell Clark and Dr. Barrada, 5 dolphin to 30-0 and a 50 lb. white marlin release (tagged), about 12 miles off the SL Inlet on deboned mullet; Dave Smid, 11 whiting to 2-0 and 4 blues, cut mullet, just north of the Jensen beach; Dave Lamb, and 8-0 channel bass, live shrimp, dock behind Jensen Bait and Tackle.

No one can see the tennis ball at impact

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG

Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

As promised, here are what I consider some of the more interesting comments made at the USPTA National Convention by some outstanding speakers.

Russia has 12 PhD's studying tennis and biomechanics. Some of the terminology heard in this class, angle of incidence, moment of inertia, law of physics, low and high pressure area, top of ball on topspin and bottom of ball on chop. I am going to use a new phrase in my teaching, instead of "watch the ball hit the racket" it will now be "watch the blur."

No one can see a ball at impact, it takes four thousandths of a second. Also when they talk about feeling the ball when you hit it, not so. At impact, the ball is only on the racket a millisecond, what can you feel in that much time?

The body takes an awful lot of punishment while playing tennis. Over 5 G's on one's knee when you hit a ball. New research going on now with little air bags in the tennis shoe, really!

There is a need to standardize rackets, as of right now a player could have a racket 10 feet long with a little motor whipping the head around.

With a new camera shooting 500 frames per second, many many new revelations. Not one pro out of 134 tested, hits the ball the way he say he does. Rosewall does not slice his backhand, the racket is flat at impact and 90 degrees just before and after. Power serves show no wrist motion, wrist moves after impact. The follow through makes no difference, but you should still practice the follow through for balance and control plus direction. Just don't be late in your swing, early is OK.

Vic Braden alluded to Borg's new book, "good strategy, normally I hit cross court, sometimes deep down the middle" he really is not too sure what he does, but he also goes to the bank regularly. Borg also said, "you don't have to bend your knees."

Study has proved the circular swing is 11 mph and better than straight back and straight forward.

Everyone learns differently, ask questions when taking a lesson. In one study, new students to the game were asked after lesson what they learned. Some of the answers went like this, "the pro is a good player, she won the AA Championship in college, he said my dress was nice," and so on, but it was amazing how many didn't hear anything about strokes, trip and footwork.

Jimmy Conners serve is ½ the speed of Roscoe Tanners, but after making over 850,000 dollars he is not going to change it. Ken Rosewall, a natural lefthander, would have been the greatest player of all time if he had just learned to serve left handed. He almost was with the other hand.

Coaches should teach independent thinking. Don't hack the ball, go for it. Vince Lombardi quote, "Winning is not the most important thing, it's the only thing." Vic Braden asked 1500 players why they played tennis, received 103 different reasons. My favorite, "I just love rushing to the net so I can get clobbered." Sounds like Bill Robson — I was awakened before dawn by the splat, bang, twong of tennis balls being hit outside my window every morning.

In an elbow study, here are a few random facts: 94 men and only 30 women got tennis elbow. Proves men are more susceptible to T.E. Duration averaged one year in women and 3½ years in men. Both had 15 years of recurrent pain. Three bones with names like Lateral Epicondus, are the culprits.

The backhand is more likely to cause tennis elbow. The outer bone in elbow is the classical area for a real good tennis elbow, what's good about a T.E.? Here is a figure that will make some of you sufferers feel better, thirty of the top pros in the world have had or have tennis elbow! It was fun looking at the pictures made by the examing doctors with a black square on each player's face. The doctor was amazed that most of the USPTA pros could identify each player.

Pronation, the turning of your forearm causes a lot of T.E., yet almost every player does pronate. Elbow rotates 100 degrees on serves and overheads plus some pronate 180 degrees. X-Ray findings show bone in players arm one-third larger on dominate side. Ten percent increase in size of muscles. A person's bones tend to get smaller with no exercise, hence more fractures in older people.

Therapy. Alteration of stroke, rest and then careful exercise. Heat, cold, ultrasound, massage, manipulation, and finally cortisone. I would leave out all the medication, and let your doctor prescribe what you should have.

This was a five-year study, and very enlightening. 2630 guinea pigs, ages 9 to 69. What causes tennis elbow? Some factors are weight, frequency of play (a big factor), stroke, and equipment.

The more advanced players have a much better chance of getting T.E. A hacker that plays with awful strokes once or twice a month will probably never know what tennis elbow is. Dr. Robert Nirschl said rest is irrelevant to therapy after inflammation has occurred; first, get the swelling down by aspirin or cortizone. (Cortizone must be put in the proper or exact spot, not just randomly.) He was very skeptical about DMSO, but admitted in 20 percent of users, excellent results. When one gets a tennis elbow or tendinitis, ICE is best, NO heat. 30 minutes on, 30 minutes off. Direct electrical shock is good. (Don't stick your elbow in a light socket, go see a doctor.)

Being a tennis player himself, he recommended seeing a good orthopedic doctor with a good record on athletes. After re-swelling has done down, flexibility exercise, isometrics, and light weights, squeezing a soft ball, pronation and suponation all very good. He also recommends the Nautilas machine.

Pushups and chinups, very harmful to a tennis player, weights are better. You should eliminate force overload.

When on the road to recovery and ready to play tennis again, think about equipment change, bracing, technique change, and decrease duration.

Anglers club will show boating film

The Port St. Lucie Anglers Club will meet on Tuesday, October 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the North Port St. Lucie Marina on Prima Vista Blvd.

There will be the usual short business meeting and local fishing reports. Those present will then view a national boating test movie, in which Ed Herlihy guides the viewer through a series of 20 boating safety situations, presenting various alternative solutions. The viewer has to decide the right thing to do and then grade himself on his results. If you love boating this test should interest you. Those who were unable to take the Sept. 18th Linkport visit, may sign up at this meeting for the last visit to Linkport.

The trip is scheduled for Thrusday Oct. 16th at 8 a.m.

The public is invited to our meetings and refreshments will be served following the program.

The Anglers Club cook-out will be held on October 26th, from 4 to 6 p.m. Be sure to obtain tickets from members. Hambergers, hot dogs, and the usual potatoes, beans, etc. will be served. Bring you own plate and silver.

Fresh water resources are endangered; state will seek coordination

BY DICK LUNDIN

THE FLORIDA GAME AND FRESH WATER FISH COMMISSION has endorsed in concept the creation of a Florida Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act, according to Col. Robert M. Brantly, executive director of the Commission.

With over 50 per cent of the state's fresh waters having been negatively altered or degraded, it is past time that action be taken to correct the retrograde trend, Brantly said.

"What we are facing is loss of freshwater resources which are directly tied to the spinoff from Florida's population growth," Brantly added.

He pointed out that: "At the state level there is no formal requirement to consider values of fish, wildlife and their habitat in the majority of permitting processes or state-powered construction," explaining that the creation of a law to establish such a requirement will be taken to the 1981 legislative session.

"Pollution continues at an alarming rate. Land reclamation by ditching, diking and flood control activities involving channelization and flood plain destruction has stabilized and lowered water levels throughout Florida. As a result, hundreds of thousands of acres of productive marshlands, adjacent to lakes and previously free-flowing river systems have been destroyed. These wetlands historically provided water retention areas, purified water as it flowed through the system, and provided habitat absolutely essential to the welfare of fish and wildlife species," Brantly emphasized.

He stressed also that: "Water pollution is a primary concern. High level nutrient discharge from sewage treatment plants and runoff from developed uplands contributes to excessive growth of dangerous algae blooms, rapid sediment buildup and production of undesirable types of vegetation."

Brantly urged Floridians to observe Saturday (Sept. 27) as National Hunting and Fishing Day, "while remembering that it is mankind alone that can destroy or preserve the natural habitat on which our fish and wildlife resources depend."

AREA SPORTSMEN will be interested to know that the Commission has decided to issue an additional 100 permits for the two-day Everglades vehicle hunt, Nov. 8-9, resulting in a quota increase of 25 tracked vehicles and 75 airboats, with a limit of one deer per vehicle. Participants in the hunt will be selected from those applicants who applied, but were not selected in the initial drawing.

NINE DOVE FIELDS have been approved for 1981-82 by the Commission: T.G. Lee public dove field in Orange County; Point Washington Wildlife Management Area field in Walton and Bay Counties; Gaskin Wildlife Management area field in Bay, Calhoun and Gulf Counties; Blackwater Wildlife Management Area field in Santa Rosa and Okaloosa Counties; Apalachee Wildlife Management Area field in Jackson County; Apalachicola Wildlife Management Area field (new) in Liberty County; Apalachicola Airport dove field in Franklin County (new); Tri-city dove field in Lake County and the Buchalla dove field (new) in Marion County.

BOWHUNTING AND BLACK POWDER BUFFS should take heed that archery and muzzleloader quota hunt permits are still available for this hunting season on selected wildlife management areas, according to the GFWFC in Tallahassee.

After Sept. 21, a hunter may apply for an additional permit. Instructions for submitting a second application are contained on the special hunt application available from the Commission office in West Palm Beach (305-683-0748).

The management areas for which the special permits are available are Avon Park (muzzleloader), Oct. 18-19; Avon Park (muzzleloader), Oct. 25-26; Camp Blanding (archery), Oct. 18-19; Guana river (muzzleloader), Jan. 16-18; G.U. Parker (muzzleloader), Jan. 19-25; Joe Budd (muzzleloader), Jan. 2-4, Jan. 16-18, and Jan. 23-25; Joe Budd (archery), Feb. 14-15, Feb. 21-22 and Feb 28 and Mar.

Because so few quota hunt permits have been issued for the Three Lakes Wildlife Management Area archery hunts, the Commission will not require the quota permit for archery hunts there (off U.S. 441 just north of Kenansville) this year. A quota has been set at the Three Lakes check station on a first-come, first-served basis. The remaining archery hunts are scheduled for Sept. 27-28, Oct. 4-5, Oct. 11-12.

WITH THE 1980-81 Florida hunting season already under way, safe gun handling rules should be observed by the outdoorsman, emphasizes, Capt. Edwin W. Tyler, Sr., State Hunter Education Coordinator with the GFWFC. "The majority of all firearm accidents can be avoided if the simple principles of safe gun handling are observed. Persons wishing to learn more about safe hunting procedures and wildlife conservation are asked to get in touch with their nearest Commission office (West Palm Beach) for details on safe hunter certification offered through the Hunter Education Course. The course is free and open to all persons 10 and older," Tyler pointed out.

IF SAILFISH TOURNAMENTS ARE YOU BAG, there's a new one, or at least one that's been reborn. It's the annual Duck Key Sailfish Tournament at the Duck Key, Indies Resort and Marina complex.

Herbert Cameron, owner and manager of the marina announced recently that the 1980 tournament dates will be Nov. 25-30. He said that Charles Anderson, director of the 23-year-old Key Colony Beach Tournament and the Del Guerico-Tripod Tournament, will also be running the Duck Key event.

The tournament offers 24 trophies for anglers, including the Duck Key Challenge trophy, as well as individual, team and fun fish awards.

Information, rules and entry forms for this and other Keys tournaments may be obtained from Tournaments, P.O. Box 3238, Marathon Shores, Fla. 33052.

Other Florida Keys November sailfish tournament date are Ocean Reef Club, Oct. 29-Nov. 2, Del Guerico-Tripod, Marathon Shores, Nov. 11-15; Bill Kind One Day Tournament, Marathon, Nov. 16-17; City of Key Colony Beach Tournament, Nov. 18-23; Islamorada Sailfish Tournament, Dec. 2-6.

THE FLORIDA MARINE PATROL will begin enforcing the new fish trap law (passed by the 1980 legislature) on Oct. 1, the day it goes into effect, according to Col. Joe Brown, Director of the Department of Natural Resources' Division of Law Enforcement.

Brown reminds everyone that the law makes it illegal to possess or use traps for saltwater fishing in Florida waters, except in the case of certain specified pinfish, black sea bass, crab, crawfish or shrimp traps specifically permitted under Florida law. If you've any question, pose it to the nearest Marine Patrol Officer.

The law, Brown added, also increases the penalty for wilfully molesting any blue crab or stone crab trap, line or buoy, to a felony of the third degree, punishable by a possible fine of $5,000 and or a possible imprisonment of five years.

BIRDS ON THE WING to warmer climates will add interest to fall canoeing expeditions offered again at Waccasassa Bay State Preserve, located on the Gulf Coast between Cedar Key and Yankeetown. Five overnight trips are scheduled for October and November by park personnel of the Florida Department of Natural Resources. Dates for exploring the inlets and waterways of the huge preserve are Oct. 4-5, 11-12, 18-19, 25-26 and Nov. 1-2, according to Lt. Don Younker, District 3 interpretive naturalist for the Division of Recreation and Parks.

In addition to migrating birds, native waterfowl, wading birds, bald eagles and osprey are usually sighted, Younker said.

Call the District 3 office in Gainesville (904-373-3665) for more information.

WIN OR LOSE, it was still a good game. And both teams line up on the field to shake hands. The Port St. Lucie football team played Jensen Beach last Saturday night in an exciting game. (Photo by Cathie Macaulay)

THE JENSEN BEACH CHEERLEADERS take a moment out from their game rallying to pose for a group photo. They were on hand to cheer for the Jensen Beach football team, who played against Port St. Lucie in last Saturday's game.

PRACTICING line formation on the field, the Port St. Lucie football players get ready for a weekend game against Jensen Beach. Not only are the games enjoyed by the players, but the spectators in the stands took no time at all in getting into the spirit.

GO, FIGHT, WIN, is chanted by the Port St. Lucie Cheerleaders at the recent game held at Sportsman's Park. The bleachers were filled with the team members' parents and friends. Saturday night's game was the third in a series of seven games to be played. (Photo by Cathie Macaulay)

PSL splits with Jensen teams

The Martin County Football League is well into its fall season of playing.

According to Port St. Lucie assistant coach Freeman Keller, the league is comprised of youngsters ranging in age from 6 through 14, and includes the areas of Jensen Beach, Port St. Lucie, Palm City, Stuart, Port Salerno, and Indiantown.

Each area has its own team and weekly practices. On week-ends, however, all teams come together to play football.

Last Saturday night, at Sportsman's Park, Jensen Beach faced Port St. Lucie. The PSL junior league lost to their opponents by a score of 6 to 0.

Last week-end marked the third game played, with four more yet to come. A lot of practice has gone into those games, and time and hard work is required of the young players.

Five senior division players of the Port St. Lucie team took some time out before their game to discuss why they play football.

Tim Stimsalyer, William Patrowic, Rodney Hull, Adma Brown, and Greg Berish all love football, and are willing to do almost anything to play it. According to them, what they have to do is put in a lot of after-school hours to be in the game.

The boys said practice started in mid-August, and consists of running laps around the field, and the usual routine of exercise. Then, it's on to team scrimmages.

Adam says there are 56 plays or more to be learned, but fortunately, they don't have to memorize them all. That's up to the quarterback. What's up to them is to play their best in not only the week-end games, but also each practice.

The after-school sessions last about two hours. Rodney says "sometimes we go through pep talks and what we have to do to win." One thing is certain. All the boys admit they're in much better shape now than when they first started.

"The laps were tough," says Greg "but now, they're not so bad."

So what does a winning team do after the hours of practice have earned them a victory. They go grab a pizza. Defeat is not nearly as much fun. A lecture by the coach usually replaces any party, and extra practice laps are in store for any player making a game penalty.

Last Saturday, was a party night for the PSL seniors.

Port St. Lucie Golf Scores

Clyde Stottlemeyer and Earl Graham emerged winners in flight A at Northport Men's Golf association play Tuesday. Stottlemeyer had a 61; Graham a 62.

Joe Lesorsavage won flight B with a 55. Howard Fatanger had a 56. In flight C Al McIntyre had a 58. Jim Hensel had a 62. A net of 58 won flight D for Ed Beswick. Howard Mathews had a 62.

Hal Nowicki was closest on the third hole. Roy Black was closest on the 14th.

Brad Larson is athlete of week

Brad Larson, who had never played quarterback before, rushed for 65 yards and completed two of eight passes in the 37-7 loss of the Martin County High Tigers to lake Worth.

"He did a super job for not having played that position before," said Coach Gary Jones.

Larsen was named Martin County "Athlete of the Week" by Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai in the weekly competition. The award is made each week in the school year by the Ft. Pierce Fronton, in cooperation with The Mirror and newspapers in the four-county area.

There are monthly winners from the weekly awards, each monthly winner receiving a trophy, and at the end of the year an "athlete of the year" is judged to receive a $500 scholarship from Ft. Pierced Jai-Alai.

Brenda Fulton is parachutist

Second Lieutenant Brenda S. Fulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin D. Fulton Jr., 1305 N.E. Flora Place, Jensen Beach, recently received a Parachutist Badge upon completion of the three-week airborne course at the U.S. Army Infantry School.

During the first week of training, students undergo a rigorous physical training program and receive instruction in the theory of parachuting. The second week they receive practical training by jumping from 34-foot and 250-foot towers. The final week includes five static-line parachute jumps.

Bryant-Neeson engagement

The engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Patricia Lynn, to Michael Denman Neeson of Jensen Beach, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bryant of Orlando.

The bride-to-be resides at 1823 NE 24th St., Jensen Beach. Neeson, who resides at 1823 NE 24th St., is the son of Mrs. Rose Norris, 2258 NE 15th Court, and the late Richard S. Neeson.

Miss Bryant attended the Winter Park High School and the prospective groom attended Martin County High School.

The couple will be married Nov. 15 in Ft. Pierce with the Rev. Bob May officiating.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-4916

Assisted by Peg Ray, Betty Leister

Edna and Bob Young gave a brief resume on their interesting summer. They had a wonderful trip to Greece. Their son and family are staying there for three years. The Youngs climaxed their return trip by staying with Sonny & Marie Gramatroff and enjoyed that week as much as anything. Of course Bob is on a diet now that they are such good cooks.

Lil and George Bares reveals they enjoyed taking care of their grandchildren for two weeks, while the children's parents had a wonderful trip to France and Spain.

Al and Peg Ray had a nice weekend visit with their son and his wife.

Jack McConnell outdid Richard Burton in his act of getting Al Ray to the Recreation Hall Thursday, Sept. 25th. Al walked in the darkened room to be greeted with 29 melodious voices singing Happy Birthday. Al was really surprised. Peg planned it all but Mille and Frank Pisz and Cally and Lester Ullmann did all the work. With Lee Price from Venture Harbor Three as the iceman, Harriet Price played the organ. Then Al and Casey Verger was quite a duet. Al on the organ, Casey rattled his bones in perfect rythmn. Guests who helped Al to celebrate were Wes and Ruth Arbo, Mac and Vicki McKeever, Bill and Doris Bond, Bruce and Billie Magers, Charlie and Carrie Ullmann, Bob and Ethel Schilhorn, Calyn and Al Wright, Frank and Annie Gilbert, Bob and Edna Young, Sam and Nina Wooten, and Casey's wife, Dorothy. Al thanks every one for making his day a perfect one.

Art classes start Tuesday, October 1 at Venture Three's Rec Hall. Kassey Taylor from Indian River College will conduct the class which she has done so well the past 4 years. It's a joint class with Holiday Out also.

The Holiday Out mixed bowling team, on Wednesday night won 3 out of 4 points. They certainly have gotten off to a good start. Keep it up team.

We welcomed three more families home last week: Ralph and Jean Taylor, Brownie and Dot Browne, Cliff and Harriet Byers.

Anniversary Congratulations to Delores and Morris Brink, Lorraine and Ed Stork, 10-10. Virginia and Jerry Belmore 10-12.

Happy Birthday Wishes for Bill Cameron 10-10, Perry Berry 10-12, Paul Pinkiewicz, Daniel Schmidt, John Morgan, Phil Sweeney 10-7, Carrie Lang, Bee Leonard 10-8, Ronald Levine, Helen Barnard 10-9.

QUILTED BLANKETS, stuffed animals, and an array of other equally interesting items fill the table in the Jensen Beach Community Church. The hand-crafted works of art will be sold at the Nov. 8 fair. Proceeds will aid not only the church, but other worthy organizations. Pictured from left to right are: Clara Turbyne, Ruth Wade.

The returning OBPers and there was a bunch of them say it's oh so good to be back with their friends and neighbors but this happiness is mixed with some sadness as they learn some of their dearest friends have been seriously ill or passed away. However they realize these things are bound to happen in a retirement community, and it's later than you think, so be nice to others today, tomorrow may be too late.

John Ross, our "whistle while you work" mailman, has a beaming smile and a chiding query, "how'd you like your hot weather up north?" for each and every returnee and here's this week's list.

Ralph and Inez Bailets, Frances Runyan, Ella Lee Henry and Ruth Blair, Charles and Irma Fair, John and Rose Leyback, Lura Mayer, Pearl and Melva Atchison, Agnes Raleigh, Flossie Ellinger, Bob and Ruth Retz, Henry Edris, Don and Helena Hand, Bob and Mary Strohm, Wm. and Dorothy Waldron, Dessie Reese, Herman and Lillian Renner, Ursula Tognire and Unice King.

Ada Baum, George and Winne Henle, Al and Alice Sharp, Mildred Epler, Helen Broberg, Zylpha Salyards, Lee and Julia Gabler, Jim and Frances Gum, Margret Weeks, Ed Sheleski, Ernie and Marion Curwen, Earl and Lila Ehrmann, Jack and Edith Dodge and Minnie Brammer.

It's election time. Remember the elderly have the best voter turnout record of all age groups, so let's keep it that way and get out and vote for County Commissioners, etc. on Tuesday, Oct. 7. Be sure to remember the commissioner who has done the most for this area.

Here are the results of the Sept. 3, primary for the Town of Ocean Breeze, precinct 14. Total was 78. Democratic Congressional: John Coffee, 2; Bill Gunther, 8; Buddy McKay, 4; James Miller, 0; Richard Pittgires, 3; Dick Stone, 8. Republican, Congressional: Ander Crenshaw, 5; Lewis Dirkin, 3; Lou Frey, Jr., 14; Paula Hawkin, 19; Ellis Rubin, 0; John Ware, 0. County Commissioners: District 1; Alex Haynes, 14; James H. Rowe, 12. District 3; Bud Bagwell, 25; Sheri Kink, 10. District 5; Pamela Boswell, 25; A.H. Pitchford, 5. Superintendent of Schools: Wayne Bowling, 0; James Navitsky, 22; Hazel Watts, 17. Non-partisan, County School Board: David Crandall, 25; Rosemary Dressler, 11.

Hospital offers health programs

Sessions will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the hospital's educational services classroom on the dates scheduled.

The "Smoking Cessation" program for those interested in breaking the habit will be held Oct. 12 through 16. The program is co-sponsored by the Rev. Gary Tolbert with the assistance of Drs. Robert Blews, Howard Robbins, and Michael Sweet.

"Health Awareness and Assessment" will offer information about lifestyles which are conducive to well ness. Thursday, Nov. 13. Instructors will include Marilyn Hudson, R.N., and Janice Terhune, hospital staff members.

Thursday, Nov. 20, Jeanne A. Sloan, D.P.A. will lecture on "Dealing with Stress." She will define the common forms of stress and indentify effective methods for dealing with today's stress.

"What to do in an Emergency – until Trained Help Arrives" is scheduled Thursday, Dec. 11, will be presented by Kathy Corderman, R.N., emergency services coordinator at the hospital. And Thursday, Dec. 18, a session will deal with "Nutrition Awareness and Health Maintenance."

Early registration is encouraged. Contact Martin Memorial Hospital, Dept. of Educational Services, 287-5200.

Rose Rhymes to speak at Aglow luncheon

Stuart Women's Aglow Fellowship will meet Saturday, Oct. 4, at 11:30 a.m. at the Woman's Club of Stuart, East Ocean Boulevard.

The guest speaker will be Rose Rhymes, who will tell of her delivery from the pain, fear, and anxiety of cancer.

Rose is the president of the Pensacola Women's Aglow Fellowship. She and her husband own the Gospel Lighthouse Bible Book Centers.

The public is invited to attend. Reservations should be made by Oct. 2 by calling Jo Marie Paradise, 334-2027, or the Christian Bookstore, 283-4535. This will be a covered dish salad luncheon. Guests will bring own table service. Refreshments will be provided.

PARK EVENTS

Game night with its number calling will be resumed, Monday, 7 p.m. Oct. 6 in the clubhouse and, continue throughout the season, every Monday and Wednesday nights.

All the other park activities will be getting under way, as usual about November 1, watch the bulletin boards, listen to the PA system and a little later get your copy of the 1980-81 Entertainment Schedule, at the office.

SHUFFLERS are busy getting their pre-season training according to the club president Elston Lehning. There will be a club meeting, Mon. Nov. 3, to firm up plans for the coming season, but in the meantime, get your name on team lists, posted at the courts.

The early morning summer tourn ament is still going strong. When we left in June, Elston Lehning, Claude Burks, Ruel Mertz and Bill Jones were talking each other out of intricate shots and four months later, no change. But, they are a good example of Seniors have more fun than anybody shuffling.

Ambulance, Hospital & Obituary

A donation to the Samaritan Ambulance Fund has been made in memory of J. Emmett Maher by their Ocean Breeze Park friends and neighbors.

Edna Beagle, 3rd & Broad is in the Stuart Convalescent Center. She came with her husband Jerry ot OBP in 1946. Barney Chase has been back in the hospital for an examination is due home Sunday, Sept. 28. George Hunter of 27 SW Fifth Ave. is back in the hospital.

John Martin, 3 Coca St. is home with neighbors helping his recovery. Bob McCall, of 10 Key Lime Dr. went north for surgery Friday, Sept. 25. Bill McDowell, 8 Cypress is home from the hospital recovering with VNA therapy. Eva Papa, 9 NE 6th St. is in the hospital for tests and her daughter Barbara came down for Plymouth, N.H. Val Wells, 7 NE 6th St. is home recouperating.

Walter O. Cumminger, ExOBPer of 6th St. died recently in the Martin Memorial Hospital. Flora Lord, ExOBPer of SW 5th Ave. died Sept. 14, in Laconia, N.H.

WRITER—She takes a challenge, and writes a letter to her public officials. Above is Elinor Martin. (Photo by Ernie Curwen)

No apathy here

By Ernie Curwen

Many seniors often say it's about time "They" did something about one of their pet gripes. But, that's not the case with Elinor Martin, for when she gets riled up, she "Takes pen in hand" so as to speak and tells one of her elected officials, just what is bothering her.

Elinor Martin came to number three Oak street right after Christmas in 1980, when her sister-in-law, Gladys Baier, followed her sister Mrs. Mausell to Ocean Breeze Park, and purchased a place on Banyan. She came from Beverly, Mass., where she was born and brought up and in now the only surviving member of a 3 sister 1 brother family.

The Great Depression and 2 World Wars were taken in stride to make Elinor quite independant, although her husband, and Electrical Engineer did have employment at the great United Shoe Machinery Co. Also, her employment with the New England Tel. Co. during the days of "plug in" switchboard operators was good training for clearly expressing her thoughts and ideas.

During the early 70's, Elinor found employment as a companion and as she looked around, she found many things going on that she felt someone should do something about. So, when the companion work ended, Elinor was all ready and willing to start her letter writing, and letter after letter she did write to different elected officials.

First, it was the Panama Canal "give-away." She wrote to her Congressman and Senators and got many courteous but vague replies. Anyway, soon Elinor obtained the voting record on the Canal vote and found at least one of the officials she wrote to voted her way. So with that small encouragement, she continued to write letters on other subjects that bothered her.

Soon she found that she belonged (for a fee) to the Conservative Caucus. Then, she really stated to get letters and replies from all over, and all of them pleading for a contribution. However, this didn't slow her up one bit as she wrote hundreds of letters on such things as "Gun Control" that is anti American, subsidies for sugar, milk, tobacco, etc. which prevent government from reducing expenditures and licking inflation.

However, Elinor says that right now she is waiting to see what happens in November, before she wastes time and stamps, adds up you know! on those who won't get re-elected, as all candidates are promising the world right now.

Instead, she is going to concentrate on getting out the vote, as there are too many saying they are "for" "None of the above". But, Elinor says, unless there's a big voter turnout letting them know there are a lot of us out here watching, they'll feel we don't give a hoot what they do, so they'll do nothing but sneak through another raise for themselves.

Also, says Elinor, they do watch the polls and the voting records, and if they see there's a big elderly voter turnout, they will keep an eye on bills of concern to the seniors, and local politicians will know they better keep an eye on services for Ocean Breeze and Jensen Beach.

So, here's a senior who has stopped talking about what "They" should do about it and is doing something about it herself. Elinor urges others to "Take pen-in-hand" and write, write, write. It is fun after one gets going and the replies are always at least interesting. Then, as a final thought, Elinor said: "We should all find some one person who isn't going to bother about voting, and talk them into it, even escorting them to the polls. How about it?"

KEN IRONS decided to try his luck fishing off one of the jetties. He wore his "I'd rather be fishing" T-Shirt, and ended up catching a channel bass to enter in the fishing tournament. (Photo by Cathie Macaulay)

WHEN BAIT WON'T WORK, these youngsters try calling the fish by name to see if he'll come. The two children were some of the many contestants who entered the Izaak Walton League fishing tournament held near the Jensen Beach Causeway. (Photo by Cathie Macaulay)

THE BIG MOMENT was at hand for all the youngsters who entered the Izaak Walton League youth fishing tournament last Saturday. Wishfully looking at all the fishing rods, the kids anxiously awaited the calling of their names.

IT WAS ONLY A puffer but Mike Vincent, 8, seems mighty pleased about it as he walks off the wooden pier at the Jensen Causeway to enter his catch in the Izaak Walton League Youth Fishing Tournament Saturday. (Dick Lundin photo)

Izaak Walton Youth Fishing

The winners of the Izaak Walton Youth Fishing Tournament held Saturday on the Jensen Causeway, with 90 per cent of the contestants under 10 years of age, were:

Most fish, Robert Mohatler, biggest sheepshead, Judy, Roma, largest mangrove snapper, Robert Light, most unusual catch, Erick Eletrix, biggest jack crevalle, Jose Taylor, ladyfish, J Hammond, flounder, Jeff Ianeri, bluefish, Scott Hankins, 2nd largest jack crevalle, Kenneth Theeni, youngest angler (8 mos.), C Dippo, 2nd largest mangrove snapper, Shawn Reynolds, 2nd biggest flounder, J Shelton, door prize winners, Kris Trax, Melony Leggett, Darrin Smith, Manda Mosier.

The largest fish taken were the 5 lb 4 oz flounder landed by Jeff Ianeri and 5 lb 4 oz. jack by Jose Taylor.

KIDS* KIDS* KIDS* all ages, were all over the wooden pier at the Jensen Causeway last Saturday, each hoping to catch something that would win them a prize in the Izaak Walton Youth Fishing Tournament. It was hot and sultry and the fish weren't biting, but the young folks kept at their appointed tasks grimly, some of them hopelessly as the hours dragged by without a nibble. The needlefish provided most of the action. (Dick Lundin photo)

Commercial Street renews an old face

BY SALLY LATHAM

ONE OF THE OLDER remaining buildings on Commercial Street in Jensen Beach, the wood frame house has been converted into a dentist's office. David Girlinghouse has taken great pains to restore the character and charm to the converted building.

Paradoxically, the newest kid on the street, on Commercial anyway, is the oldest kid on the block.

The residence, now a dental office, is the renovation of a building constructed for Charles Munch, one of the area's earliest developers.

Munch was among the handful of men who foresaw the Jensen area as a potential for development along the Flagler line.

The history of the Munch home is in fact, the history of Jensen Beach. It has existed since the charter was organized May 24, 1905. It takes in all of Broward County and that part of the south, and east of Sebastian township.

The land was first deeded by John Crawford to John L. Jensen.

It became part of the Ricou family when Jensen transferred the 125 feet north and south along the river.

The tract was transferred to include a large house and two small servants' cottages. Refinished, it is a thing of beauty. Built of durable pine, it is enhanced by a simple but stately porch.

Dr. David Girlinghouse, a lover of well preserved beauty, has refinished the handsome pine boards, and revamped the stately fireplace.

To make it workable for office space, he has installed two dental chairs, and coverted another room into a lab.

Yet another suite has been reserved for his "antique suite," where he has combined an old office chair with a priceless marble-topped dentist's cabinet. The antique equipment surely makes one appreciative of the advancements of science, however fortunately, with the two modern dentist facilities just down the hall, one can more finely appreciate the visit back in time, the room offers.

The old kitchen has been removed to make space for future workrooms. The area upstairs is reserved for a private apartment.

Sr. Dr. Girlinghouse chose Jensen Beach because he considers this part of the country home.

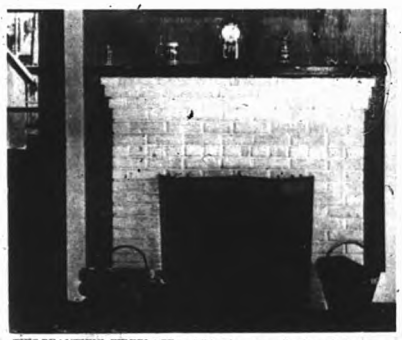
"Our families were brought up in the Palm Beach area, and we love it here," he told the Mirror.

Old families for old houses make an interesting combination. Carpeting gives way to wooden floors and wide windows and high ceilings bring one back to a time when life took a more casual pace.

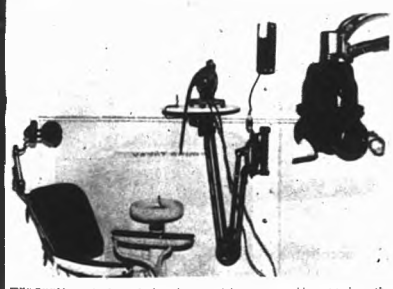
But this is 1980 and the area is ever-growing. Fortunately, there remain those who wish to preserve the more simple things.

LYNN HILL, the receptionist at Dr. Girlinghouse's office, is there each day handling a variety of duties. The charm of the old house is evident everywhere, as is the charm of the people who work there.

AN ANTIQUE CABINET was picked up by Dr. Girlinghouse on one of his northern travels. Each drawer is individually hand-crafted and a marble counter holds antique dental nick nacks.



THIS BEAUTIFUL FIREPLACE is visible when one walks through the doors of the old building. It, like so many other things in the house, has been restored to its original use. David Girlinghouse says he is looking forward to some cool winter days so he can have a chance to use it.



THIS ROOM may be fun to look at, but certainly no one would want to be in the chair. Filled with dental antiques, it brings one back to a time when the word dentistry was said with hushed tones.

DAVID GIRLINGHOUSE, sits behind the front desk that awaits patients and visitors. The large living room has been converted into a waiting area, but still retains the warm atmosphere that wood floors and high ceilings cannot help but convey.

LARGE WINDOWS, wood floors, and a fireplace all make up part of the old character of this unusual office. One of the older buildings on Commercial Street, Dr. David Girling house fortunately decided to restore it to its earlier condition, and charm.

ALTHOUGH the old restored building is filled with many antiques, this room has nothing but the most modern equipment to fill it. A reclining chair awaits patients and the old drills have been thankfully replaced with less painful, more efficient tools.

DR. DAVID GIRLINGHOUSE and his nurse work together in an attempt to solve this patient's problem. Although David has been in his office for just under a year, he has done extensive work to the building, and plans to remain here for many years to come.

Four under wins Heritage Pro-Am

BY MIKE SANDY

With a maximum of 21 foursomes competing in the First Annual Heritage Ridge Summer Invitational golf tournament on the Hobe Sound executive layout, Bob Komarimetz, hand pro at Eastpoint C.C. in Juno Beach carded a new competitive course record of four under par 63 with rounds of 29-33 to waltz off with the top share of the purse of $600. He finished just one stroke ahead of the veteran Joe Lopez of North Palm Beach who had nine's of 31-32 which earned him the runner-up money of $300.

Ironically both Komarimetz and Lopez had never played the new Hobe Sound layout before. Bruce Harrison, Sandpiper Bay pro carded 64 for $100 and his colleague Greg Cerulli came through taking fourth place $80 with an even par 68.

The par 68 course proved more difficult than the top 23 pros expected as only three managed to break par. Four pay-for-play golfers deadlocked at one over 67 earning them $32.50 each, included Peter Fazio, Jupiter Hills; Charley Grant Life Member PGA; Kelly Childs, Mid Rivers and Bret Upper, unattached of Sandpiper Bay.

The Rest' share of the Pro Am four man segment of the event was taken by Peter Fazio's team which included Charles Pursley and Maury Miller of Jupiter Hills and Bill Randtke, the first life member at Heritage Fazio's team scored a 28 under 188 good for a team prize of $450.

Second place at 28 under was handed by Crane Creek pro Phil Campoli and included Attorney Paul Gaskins of Stuart, Hasse Kress and Dan Brown of Crane CReek, each sharing in a $375 prize award.

Lou Sabo, an unattached Life member of the PGA, playing out of Crane Crek had his team to a $225 share of the purse with a two best ball score of 130 and included amateurs Terry Keathly, co-developer of Heritage Ridge, and a pair of bankers, Jim Brown of American Bank, Stuart and Peter Pierce, Hobe Sound.

A quartet of Stuart swingers headed by Dan Gower, assistant pro at Martin C C shared a purse of $125 in the next slot with amateurs Dan McGrady, John Leighton and Steve Gombas, J.D. Murchison, Stuart, Kelly Childs and Bret Upper had their respective foursome to int he money positions with 134 cards of 139 and included amateurs Willie Wasly, Neal Hardwick, Mike Douglas, Bud Bolling, Tom Stocker, Bob Lord, Bret Upper, Ed McGavock and Dave Nagay.

One of the highlites of the tourney was the entry of an all-female foursome headed by Miles Grant teaching pro Jackie Freistas who had as partners Jackie Williams, Lynn Stellmon and Florence Hart. The team finished at 128, six-under par and strangely enough the ladies foursome entered the event with the lowest combined handicap of all entries.

Each of the contestants had two shots at winning a new Mazda which was up for grabs to the first player scoring a hole-in-one on the Par 3 seventh hole.

Host pro Tom Cioffi indicated that a similar event will be staged in early Spring as all contestants displayed extreme pleasure in participating. A cook-out complete with refreshments followed the play.

Harrison 68 wins Pro-Am at Saint

Bruce Harrison, assistant pro at Sandpiper Bay, got his game together Friday to take the lion's share of the pro-purse in the weekly Pro Am event which has been alternating each Friday between the Sandpiper course and Mariner Sands course in Stuart. Harrison just nosed out up and coming J.D. Murchison of Stuart by one shot at the Sandpiper pro posted a four under par 68 on the Saints championship layout.

With 15 of the top area pros competing, J.D. Murchison, vieing for his third straight position in the winner's circle carded a 69 while Scott Perry of Bent Pines in Vero Beach finished with a one under 71, nosing out Bret Upper, of Port St. Lucie and Paul Wyrybyktowski of Vero Beach who were deadlocked at an even par 72.

Sharing the spotlight in the tourney was amateur Ron Kutchinski of Vero Beach who turned in a four under 68 while a team headed by Sandpiper pro Rob Cruso led his foursome to the top run in Pro Am test a two Best of Four Ball action, coming through with a 21 under tally of 122. Contributing to the quartet's win were Lou Merlano, Wayne Malmquest and Tom Magee.

Finishing in the second place team slot was Bruce Harrison's team of Lou Papadero, Roy Ruthford and Mac Upper. Scott Perry led Kutchinski, Malcom Smith and Jim Perry to third place with 125 to tie with Crane Creek Phi Campoli's foursome of John Burmeister, Bernie Madycda and Wally Witt. Also tied in that spot was the team of Sandpiper Pro J.J. LaHue and amateurs Tom Chapman, Ozzie Kirkby and Seymour Fleming.

The next event will be held at Mariner Sands, Oct. 3rd followed by a test at Sandpiper Bay, Oct. 10.

Murchison is tied by Knebels

A couple of young lions continue to dominate play in the area Pro Am action played here with J.D. Murchison, recently turned pro, vieing for his second straight victory, was forced to share the top rung with Mariner Sands head pro Chuck Knebels, each carding even par scores of 72. The event which attracted 17 foursomes including a like number of pros was staged at the Mariner Sands facility as a team headed by pro Dan Gower of Martin County led his three amateur partner to a 21 under Two Best Balls of a Foursome score of 123.

Members of the top outfit included Ed McGavock, Mike Perry and Barrie Allison. A pair of combos ended in a deadlock at 18 under par 126 with Murchison heading one of the combos and Dave Gaham of Sandpiper Bay the other. Members of the tied-up teams included Sal Terese, Vic Georgeff, Kepsima Hosaka, Ed Eateseth, John White and John Hennessey.

Other pros who shard in the money purse were Phil Campoli, Crane Creek and Bruce Harrison, Sandpiper with 74's and Jay Pyle, Greg Cerulli, Graham and Rod Carter wach with 75's.

The next Pro Am will be played at the Saints course at Sandpiper Bay Friday, Sept. 26 followed by another such event at Mariner Sands on Oct. 17.

Sandpiper Bay Women's golf

Eighty-two members of the Sandpiper Bay Women's Golf Association participated in an "Age" tournament Tuesday on the Saints golf course, competing for low gross and net in their respective age groups.

Winners were as follows: Under 50: Angie LaBruito, low gross 98 and Lou Zinter, low net 88.

Ages 51-65: Low gross winners were Wilma Leary, 96; Emily Griffin, 100; and Kitty Morris, 103. Low net winners were Lola Jelnick with 73; Linda Mood at 77; and Doris Rickman, 78.

Ages 66-80: Low gross winners were Alberta Crofoot with 94, Jane Hoffman, 98, and Addie Hannum with 99. Rose Pedersen shot net 72; Mary Kuhn, 73; and Dip McConnell, 78.

Ages 81-up: Kay Scott led with gross 98; Elinor Evans shot 99 as did Anne Thatcher; Helen Monty shot a net 76; Kay LaFlair, 77; and Mary Maney and Ann Zimmerman were tied at 78.

Ages 66-70: Doris Beckman led this group with a gross 94 followed by Mary Sears at 103 and Charlotte Deeds and Barbie Ferguson each shot 104. Edna Fichinger was net winner with 75, Bee Miller was next with 76 and Sylva Barnwell shot 78.

Ages 71 plus: Marge Thomas shot 103 for gross honors and Helen Osborne was the low net winner with 84.

USGA lowers age

The USGA has lowered the minimum age for eligibility for the U.S. Senior Open from 55 to 50 years.

The change in on line with the PGA, which sets 50 as the senior age line for professionals. It also adds some magic to the 1981 Senior Open in that Arnold Palmer will be eligible.

In making the announcement, Will F. Nicholson, Jr., President of the USGA said that age eligibility for the Senior Amateur would remain at 55. It is 50 for the Women's Senior Amateur.

The executive committee believes, Nicholson noted, that there was too broad an age gap between the time a man is not likely to be a serious contender in the Open Championship. This move will narrow that gap, and will help make a more competitive championship, he said.

The 1980 Senior Open Championship was won by Roberto De Vicenzo, of Argentia; the 1981 Senior Open will be held July 9-12 at Oakland Hills CC, Birmingham, Michigan.

On another subject, Nicholson and the executive committee supports the concept of an amateur championship for an "intermediate age" group, subject to findings of a feasibility study.

Among the factors which are being researched are the eligibility age, handicap minimum, time of the year when the championship will be played and the format of the championship. Nicholson added, "Even the name for the championship had to be decided."

Popp wins

Adolph Popp of Melbourne never looked back in winning the first North Florida PGA Section championship at Amelia Island Plantation, a nationally known resort 40 miles Northeast of Jacksonville.

Popp, head pro at Harbor City Municipal toured Amelia Island's extreemely narrow and unique Oyster bay and Oakmarsh nines in one-over par 72 the final day and closed with a 54-hole total of even par 213.

There wasn't any pressure on me from behind and that made it a lot easier," said Popp, who collected $1,200 of the $12,000 purse generated by the smallish 60 man field.

Former PGA Tour player Gary Wintz of Daytona Beach fussihed with a 70 and collected the $800 second prize with a 217 total. Veteran Bob Erickson of Casselberry, ERic Meyers of Ormond Beach and Larry Mowry of Orlando all closed with 73s and tied for third place at 219 winning $716.16.

Evans of Spring Hill, a development course near Brooksville, fired the lowest round of the tournament when he opened with a two-under par 69. Like many, though, he couldn't sustain his game on the tricky 6,372-yard course and stixed to 76 the last two days and finished sixth at 221 earning $280.

Popp said he "Enjoyed playing the course," which hosted the first North Florida title since the Florida Section was split in half last year. However, his sentiments weren't shared by the majority of the field who banged balls off trees, into marshes, and in deep bunkers on the Pete Dye designed layout.

Overhanging tree, bizarre bunkering and small greens took their toll on the field.

Said Jacksonville's John Upton, "I've never seen so many eights in a tournament in my life."

Jacksonville's Bobby Duval, one of the pre-tournament favorites had a closing 77 the contents of which were typical. "I had everything from a two through an eight on my card," he said.

IR league will expand

The Indian River Golf League, which closed its 1980 summer season of competition Sunday at the Indian Hills Country Club in Fort Pierce is now making plans for its 18th year when it is expected the inter-club wheel will be expanded to five or six affiliate clubs, according to President E.B. Bob Wilson of Sandpiper Bay.

The seventeenth season of the league came to a close Sunday with the annual Wing Ding affair when more than $1,750 in merchandise and prizes was distributed to winning combinations led by a team comprised of Bob Herrman and Al Burge of Indian Hills together with Ed Love of Martin County and Tom Ryan of Sandpiper Bay. The top combo was awarded $300 in prizes with second and third place deadlocked in that position with Bach of the following walking off with $47.50 each. Randy Lockey, Joe Snyder, Glenn Brandt and Ken Schwesee of Indian Hills. Dr. Al Hoffmeister and Mike Reeb of Sandpiper Bay with Joe Marr of Martin County.

The Indian Hiller completely dominated the winners circle as another quartet finished the 4th and 5th place tie and included Sheriff Lanie Norvell, brother Jack Norvell, Boyd Brannock and Mac McGraw sharing that spot with Wes LaCour and Tom Bonze of Sandpiper Bay.

In addition to the merchandise awards made, the league presented each of the 112 contestants with a Three ball "Sleeve" of top grade golf balls as the Fort Pierce contingent proved the strongest entry in the four club field putting 54 players in competition.

Preliminary meeting with officials of four area clubs which might become members of the league next season including Martin Downs, Crane Creek, Heritage Ridge and Tequesta Country Club.

Rallying Dolphins bury Saints

BY DICK LUNDIN

LADY LUCK continues to bestride the bench of the Miami Dolphins. If she wasn't still there, the New Orleans Saints would have been the winners of a last-second decision over the Miami Dolphins in the Orange Bowl Sunday afternoon.

That contest, that left the Dolphins 3-1 and the Saints a disappointing 0-4, wound down to the final six seconds with the issue in doubt and the Saints hammering at Miami's six-yard line.

Q. Ferbach Archie Manning aimed a pass at his favorite receiver, Ike Harris, in the southwest corner of the end zone. There was a lot of jostling there as Harris fought to make the catch and Dolphin cornerback Don McNeal tried just as hard to keep him from it. Harris caught it and there went Miami's great comeback from being 16 points down at the end of the third quarter, or so it seemed for a second or so until a yellow flag hit the turf.

THE TOUCHDOWN was nullified by the offensive interference called on Harris and the game was over with Miami the winner of a third straight come-from-behind cliff hanger.

It was a judgment call there in the end zone and could have gone either way. Harris reportedly said later that McNeal won the call because it was in front of his home crowd, and two New Orleans coaches bitterly outspoken, reiterated that feeling in the elevator descending from the press box after the game.

Whatever the films will show, if they are decisive, a judgement call is a judgment call and the game goes into the records as a 21-18 Miami victory.

ALTHOUGH THAT END ZONE CALL was lucky for the Dolphins, it should never have been necessary. Miami had the ball at the New Orleans 45, fourth and one, with 16 seconds left to play, and the Saints with no more timeouts. It seemed only logical to rush for the first down and gamble that Manning couldn't score in one play from 55 yards out even if the rushing play didn't make the first down.

Miami, inexplicably, elected to punt and saw George Roberts' kick blocked by Rich Mauti. The ball bounced crazily off Mauti's helmet clear down to the Miami 6 where the Saints took over with time for that final parting shot.

Shula explained in the dressing room after the game, still shaken by the wild finish, trying to drink coca cola from a paper cup while surrounded by excited reporters. "We felt we could get the ball off and it was my decision to punt. We went in our very best blocking team but Mauti got through anyway."

THE GAME STARTED OUT DISMALLY for Miami as rookie David Woodley couldn't put any points on the board in the first half, and reliever Bob Griese was no more successful in the third quarter.

Woodley just wasn't able to mix his runs and passes so as to take advantage of the defenses being offered by the Saints, and Miami could come up with but 48 yards rushing and 61 yards passing in the first half. He was intercepted three times trying to go deep and Dexi Bennilieu fumbled a kick-off return, making the first half a difficult one for Miami's redoubtable defense. Still and all, Manning couldn't get into the end zone and the half ended 0-0 (New Orleans) on three Benny Richards field goals (36, 28, 20).

Based on his great clutch performance in the fourth quarter when the Dolphins scored three touchdowns on drives of 91, 83 and 48 yards, Griese has won back the starting job at quarterback and will lead the Dolphins against the invading Baltimore Colts (2-2) at 1 p.m. in the Orange Bowl next Sunday.

Coach Shula had this to say about Woodley (15-6-61 and 3 interceptions) and Griese (23-16-241 and no interceptions) after the game. "We gave Woodley the chance to see what he could do. He had absolutely no running offense. With him in there, we just didn't seem to have any cohesiveness. Woodley has poise and lots of ability. He has a lot of potential for the future. Griese did a great job and got the game ball. We're done playing musical chairs. Griese will start from now on."

RUNNING BACK DELVIN WILLIAMS wouldn't finger anyone for the lack of a running game in the first half but did say afterwards that with Griese in there and so adroitly mixing his plays to adapt to changing Saints' defensive looks, there were more holes opening up. All he said when queried about why Miami was so lackadaisical in the first three quarters was "It beats me."

The big play of the winning rally was a leaping catch by Duriel Harris of a 56-yard pass from Griese that set up the second score at the New Orleans five-yard line — unless you prefer that flag at the end.

Let's not overlook Uwe von Schamann's booming kickoff after the second touchdown. It sailed four yards into the end zone and held New Orleans to a 1st and 10 at its own 20, leading 16-14 and six minutes left to play. Miami's defense was never better and after three plays, New Orleans had to punt to Tony Nathan at the Miami 44 and he returned it to the Saints 49.

SHADES OF THE OAKLAND game in 1974 when Benny Malone ran 23 yards with 2:08 left to play and gave Ken Stabler enough time to march down for that never-to-be-forgotten wobbly 6-yard pass to Clarence Davis for a stunning 28-26 playoff victory. The Dolphins did it again. They covered the 49 yards in five plays, the big gainers being an 11-yard run by Williams (19-79), a 26 yard pass to Tony Nathan (7 for 118) and Williams' 6-yard dash through the New Orleans middle for the winning touchdown. New Orleans still had 2:36 on the clock but it looked like church was out when Manning was quickly intercepted by linebacker Ernie Rhone. That, with only 1:13 left to play, set the stage for the game's closing seconds of wild excitement for the modest but wildly screaming crowd of 40,946, staying to the finish.

BALTIMORE AND BERT JONES, long a Dolphin nemesis, come to town next. The Colts creamed the disappointing Jets in Baltimore Sunday, 35-21, as Jones threw three touchdown passes. Sunday's game will pit two old rivals and should be a beauty. Miami should win this one by a field goal or so, but don't go to the game unless you're prepared for some more last minute heroics!

In other games Sunday, the Rams clipped the Giants, 20-7; the Steelers romped over the Bears, 38-3; the Oilers slogged by tough Cincinnati, 13-10; the Lions and Billy Sims routed the Vikings, 27-7; the potent Colts stampeded the Raiders, 34-7; the Browns stunned the Bucs, 34-27; Dallas thrashed Green Bay's hapless Packers; the Cardinals upset the unbeaten Eagles, 24-14; the 49ers were tamed by Atlanta, 28-17; the Chargers walloped Kansas City, 24-7; the Seahawks shut out Washington, 14-0. Monday night, it was New England 23, Denver 14.

NEXT WEEK on Sunday, it's Baltimore at Miami, Cincinnati at Green Bay, Denver at Cleveland, Detroit at Atlanta, New England at the Jets, Pittsburgh at Minnesota, St. Louis at New Orleans, Seattle at Houston, Washington at Philadelphia, Buffalo at San Diego (what a match-up!), Kansas City at Oakland, the Giants at Dallas, San Francisco at Los Angeles Monday night, Tampa Bay meets the Bears in Chicago.

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted November 10, 1980 at 9:00 A.M., City Hall, City Hall Plaza (corner of Airoso and Port St. Lucie Boulevards) Port St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 80-44

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIANCE TO MR. AND MRS. MURRAY, OF 2398 S.E. BORDEAUX COURT, PORT ST. LUCIE, FLORIDA, FROM THE REQUIREMENT OF A 25 FOOT FRONT SETBACK TO ALLOW A 20½ FOOT FRONT SETBACK, PURSUANT TO ORDINANCE 76.1; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE HEREBY ORDAINS:

WHEREAS, the City of Port St. Lucie, Florida, was requested by CUSTOM HOUSING SYSTEMS, INC., in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Murray, the sole owners of the land located at 2398 S.E. Bordeaux Court, more particularly described as Lot 35, Block 76, Unit 5, South Port St. Lucie, to grant a variance from the current zoning classification R-2 (Residential), to allow a 20½ foot front setback; and

WHEREAS, the City Council having determined that the granting of this variance will be in harmony with the general purpose and intent of Ordinance 76.1; and

WHEREAS, the City Council having made a finding that the granting of this variance is for the minimum variance that will make possible the reasonable use of this land; and

WHEREAS, the variance will not be detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to the neighborhood, and the City Council having held a public hearing on the _____ day of _____, 1980, and having considered the same,

IT IS THEREFORE ORDAINED THAT:

The property described as Lot 35, Block 76, Unit 5, South Port St. Lucie, is hereby presently zoned R-2 (Residential), and the City Council grants unto Mr. and Mrs. Murray a variance under the terms of Ordinance 76.1 for the purpose of allowing a 20½ foot front setback on the property described above.

2. This Ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after its final adoption.

Norwegian immigrants arrived years ago

More than one hundred and fifty years have passed since the first organized party of Norwegians sailed from the town of Stavanger on board the sloop "Restauration" bound for New York.

The century and a half following their voyage has witnessed the dramatic emergence, on both sides of the Atlantic, of the modern industrialized world. Of the many nations which contributed to the building of the United States, Norway stands out because it sent more of its people in preparation to its population than any other country. And only one country, Ireland, sent a larger number of immigrants to the U.S.

The fifty-two Norwegian men, women and children who boarded the sloop the "Restauration" in Stavanger, Norway, on July 4th 1825 were hardly aware that this would be regarded by posterity as the beginning of the Norwegian emigration to America.

Actually, there had been other emigrants before them, many of them taking greater risks and enduring more hardship. We know of some 20 Norwegians living and working in the early Dutch dominated New Amsterdam. In fact, when the colonists were assured and the Peace Treaty signed by the Indian Chiefs and the leading citizens of New Amsterdam in 1645, one of the two interpreters co-signing the Treaty was a certain Claes de Norman. From his native Bande in Norway, he came to Holland as a sailor and joined the West Indies Company as a mercenary. That brought him to the New World where he made a living as a trapper, and thus got to know the Indian tribes and their languages.

A contemporary of Norman's in New Amsterdam was a ship's carpenter by the name of Hans Hansen Bergen who had made his way from Bergen, Norway, to America by way of Holland. The records indicate that he was a respected citizen, a claim which is supported by the fact that the place where he settled in New Jersey still bears his name. Dutch-Norwegian contacts were very lively in those days and the natural route from Norway to New Amsterdam seemed to go via Old Amsterdam, Holland.

During the century leading up to 1825, some hundreds of Norwegians may have made their way to America individually and by various routes. However, when the "Restauration" put out to sea, this represented the first organized party of Norwegian emigrants. Not simply, the "Restauration" has been referred to as the Norwegian "Mayflower".

The Norwegian National Gazette of July 6 of that year reports that "the ship purchased for the purpose, The [illegible] left this port (Stavanger) for America where they intend to settle and expect to find a Canaan's land. They are said to belong to a religious society which has gained a number of members in this district in recent years." The religious society in question was the Quakers, to whom at least the leader of the departing group belonged.

With its 45 tons the "Restauration" was not much of a ship for 52 passengers and a crew of seven on a trans-atlantic voyage. On October 9, after nearly 100 days, they reached New York by way of the island of Madeira. Unwittingly, they had already violated American laws which ruled that no more than two persons per five tons were allowed to disembark. As this made the "Restauration" 22 people "overweight," the entire party was promptly arrested and only released after President John Quincy Adams personally intervened on their behalf.

A more friendly reception was prepared for them by their compatriot and organizer, Cleng Peerson, the "pathfinder" of Norwegian emigration," who had made his way to America in 1821. With the help of American Quakers he arranged for them to buy land in Kendall a small community near Rochester, New York. Later, the majority of them moved further west in search of better soil and in 1836 founded the first Norwegian settlement in the Midwest, in Fox River near LaSalle Illinois.

Reports from these early settlers to relatives and friends back home about the fertile prairie soil created quite an "America fever." Particularly the news that good, arable land was to be had for $1.25 per acre and after the Homestead Act of 1862 for nothing, brought about waves of emigration in such numbers that Norwegian officials feared the country would be depopulated. In the 1840's nearly one thousand Norwegians emigrated each year, with the number increasing to more than 4,000 a year in the 1850's. In 1882 more than 28,000 Norwegians left their homes for the New World, and in one 13-month peak period the number reached 35,000.

By the time the National Origins Act was enacted in 1924, which established limits for immigration, the greatest rush was over. In the course of these 100 years some 800,000 Norwegians had moved to the United States. Today, their descendants are estimated to total at least three million American citizens. To grasp the relative size of the Norwegian emigration, it should be kept in mind that the total population of Norway in 1975 is still only about 4 million.

In 1835 the Norwegian census showed a population of 1,044,173.

Europe, with a distance from north to south equal to that from Vancouver to San Diego. However, about one half of Norway is located north of the Arctic Circle and arable land constitutes only three percent of the surface, with no readily accessible natural resources the odds were against the ordinary man and woman attaining more than a subsistence level standard of living.

The lure of fertile soil was therefore one of the main reasons for the Norwegian emigration. But the emigrants had other reasons as well. We know that some of the Sloopers of 1825 were Quakers who sought freedom from the persecution of the Lutheran State Church and there was undoubtedly other Norwegians who left for religious reasons. But perhaps equally important was an underlying element of longing for political and personal realization. After 400 years of Danish domination, Norway had as recently as 1814 acquired its own constitution. However, as a result of the settlement, after the Napoleonic Wars, Norway was forced into a union with Sweden. For the major part of the population, this still felt like a continuation of the past foreign domination. The premise of freedom and equality in the New World therefore kindled many spirits in Norway.

It has been said that the vitality of the United States is built on the frustration of the European ghettos. It is a fact that many of the most dynamic people, those most ready to take a risk and least prone to submission to authority and poverty made their way across the Atlantic during the century following the exploits of Cleng Pearson and his friends.

...of time and ships

BY AILSA DEWING

During the early years of the annual Leif Erikson Day celebration, a feature attraction were three 100-year old boats brought from Norway by the Sons of Norway.

Two of the boats were "seksernings," and the third an "ottering." The boat names indicate the number of oarsmen who row and sail the boats — seksering for six and ottering for eight.

But time and dry rot have made the refurbished vessels unworthy for any kind of sailing and two of them, at least, now "sail" only in the parade mounted atop boat trailers.

One of the small ships, however, the ottering owned by the Gulfstream lodge, will still play its role in the pageant depicting the arrival of the Norsemen on the shores of North America. Anchored offshore near the Jensen Beach Causeway, the ottering will ceremonly "arrive" and provide the touch of realism for the landing and subsequent skirmish between the Vikings and the Indians.

It was in such boats as these that Leif Erikson and his men sailed from Greenland to Vinland (North America) about 1,000 years ago according to legend.

The boats were the main source of transportation in the fjord country of eastern Norway, where the farmers and the fishermen used oar and sail to travel the narrow waterways.

It was while traveling through the farming country near Bergen that Bjarne Eikevik of Ft. Lauderdale, saw one of the ancient vessels in a farmer's barn and thought it appropriate to bring one to the United States for the first Leif Erikson Day pacent, then being planned. He arranged to have the boat shipped over aboard the Nordic Prince.

Hand-hewn oars were carefully brought over by Scandinavian Airlines and the boat was a beautiful sight in that first Leif Erikson pageant.

Later, two more boats were found in Bergen area barns, brought over by the Orlando and Ft. Lauderdale lodges, and outfitted for service.

Thereafter they formed a fleet, a breathtaking sight as the sunlight caught their brightly-striped sails moving gracefully through the waters of the Indian River.

A highlight of the annual celebration was a race with the three boats vying for the Leif Erikson trophy.

But the days of the Viking ships may yet not be over. Dick Hummel, president of Gulfstream Lodge, reports that a reproduction of an ottering is now in production, although it won't be ready in time to sail in this year's celebration.

The new craft is being built of fiberglass making it immune from dry rot, he says.

Then once again the Sons of Norway will take to the waterways to keep alive a tradition almost a thousand years old.

Dying Viking waiting for Valkyrie to escort him to Valhalla.

Skuespill

(The Pageant)

On that day on the shores of the New World, an Indian maiden sights a strange craft driving down-wind with swirling sails, shields on gunnels, and crowded with a crew of lion-hearted men dressed in barbaric splendor — the whole a mass of color, but yet a frightening, strange sight.

The sighting of this strange, unknown vessel creates great excitement among the small tribe of Indians. They hurriedly retreat from the beach and watch with awe the maneuvering of the strange craft.

Leif lands his ship, and takes some of his men ashore in search of water. Suddenly an arrow whistles through the air and lands quivering in the sand, only steps away from Leif and his men. Leif raises his sword and shield and steps forward, away from his men, and lays down his arms, as he wants to try to be friendly first. Down the beach come the Indian warriors, led by their Chief. The Indians stop, but the Chief keeps walking toward Leif. As the Chief stops in front of Leif, Leif takes the necklace off over his head and presents it to the Chief. A temporary easing of tension is achieved as the Chief accepts the necklace and in return has one of his warriors bring the peace-pipe. The Indians show an increasing interest in the Vikings' swords, and a show of strength develops by two of Leif's men. Indian tribal dances follow.

Navitsky over Watts

In an overwhelming vote of 3448 to [illegible] Martin County Republicans elected incumbent schools superintendent V Jarosn Navitsky as the Nov candidate in the Primary Day contest with Hazel Watts

Navitsky will challenge Democrat Clifford Lynch for the post in the general election

In the run-off race for Democratic candidate for U.S Senator, incumbent Richard (Dick) Stone lost Martin County voters to lose the nomination to challenger Bill Gunter Early unofficial returns in the county gave Gunter 2,392 to 1,781 for Stone

In the Republican run-off, Paula Hawkins garnered 3,618 in the contest with Lou Frey, whom Martin voters gave only 2,854 votes

Voting was extremely light in yesterday's primary election as had been predicted The county elections supervisor office tallied 11,132 votes or about 30 percent of the registered voters

Five amendments to the state constitution also faced voters, and while statewide results were not in at press time Martin voters approved all five

Amendment One, authorizing tax exemptions for renewable energy source devices won by a vote of 6,517 yeses to 3,114 noes in the county

Amendment Two, to finance or refinance housing through bonds to be paid off by pledged revenues was passed 5,089 to 4,370 by county voters

Amendment Three, that would permit local referendums by counties and municipalities to grant tax exemptions to new business or expansion of existing was approved 5,629 to 3,879 in the county

Amendment Four, a proposal to increase Homestead Exemptions to $15,000 in 1980, $20,000 in 1981 and $25,000 in 1982 and thereafter received strongest county support with 7,956 saying yes and 2,104, no

Amendment Five, allowing business inventories and livestock to be classified for tax purposes or exempted from taxation was also approved 6,497 to 3,054 by Martin County voters

Total returns from the 29 precincts in the county gave candidates the following tallies: Gunter 2,281; Frey 1884; Stone 1783, Hawkins 3634; Navitsky 3448, and Watts 2831

Some 170 absentee votes remain to be counted today before returns are canvassed and reported to Tallahassee

A breakdown of Jensen, Rio, Hutchinson Island and Sewall's Point area precinct voting shows the way votes were cast

Wacha-Haynes air Jensen problems at Chamber meet

BY AILSA DEWING

Problems relating to Jensen Beach and Hutchinson Island got an airing at the Chamber of Commerce forum Tuesday morning when Frank Wacha and Alex Haynes fielded questions from a panel of news reporters

Wacha, the Democratic incumbent, and Haynes, Republican contender for the District One county commission seat, each spoke briefly at the 8 a.m. forum held at the Admiral's Table restaurant before answering questions posed by Dick Campbell, editor publisher of The Mirror and reporters Joe Griffinshaw of the Miami Herald, Jim Reeder of the Palm Beach Post, Valerie Jones Long of the Stuart News and Lee Bowen of radio station WSTU.

Campbell led off the question and answer portion of the program by asking both candidates for their solutions to the traffic congestion on the Jensen Beach Causeway and on Commercial St.

Wacha, attributing "probably 60 percent" of the bottleneck at the intersection of Indian River Drive and Jensen Beach Causeway to traffic turning onto or off the causeway, recommended acquiring land south of the drive to provide turning lanes He outlined a traffic pattern of continuous right hand turns for northbound traffic and left turns for traffic exiting from the causeway with stop signs controlling through traffic on Indian River Drive

He offered three possible improvements for handling traffic on Commercial St including eliminating left turns off Indian River Drive north into Commercial, eliminating parking on Commercial, or acquiring land at the intersection in order to widen it

Haynes described the traffic problems as the result of poor planning, saying they should have been looked at five years ago Saying he hasn't had a chance to study the problem he would, however, agree with Wacha's solutions

In reply to a question from Bowen regarding the type of concessions preferred at city beaches, Haynes said he would be against "selling beer and hard liquor on the beach," or any "gaudy" ideas referring to the recent Degetler proposal for a bad to the county for the franchise

Wacha described his choice of concessions as "mom and pa operations" that would provide "simple necessities and not take away from the rural atmosphere," with franchise fees going toward maintaining the improving beaches

An inquiry from Reeder concerned the building of five-story hotels on Hutchinson Island when the county has a four-story limit, elected an explanation from Wacha that beach front developers were allowed to use ground levels for parking facilities to allow more greenery around buildings and to protect the dunes

Haynes charged that the reason was "not enough specifications in the ordinance Perhaps," he added, "the developers got more units than they were entitled to"

Sources of campaign financing were asked by Crankshaw Wacha claimed 450 contributors including $500 from E C Wareheim, five contributions ranging from $200 to $250 and the majority of donations $25 each from individuals

Haynes maintaining that his support was "grass root" and not big real estate people "They're not for me" said he does have support from Jupiter Island residents His top contribution was $500, he said

Other issues raised by the press included conflict-of-interest voting with Haynes saying he wouldn't vote under those circumstances and Wacha contending that only by having "commissioners from Jacksonville coming to Martin County and from Dade for Tampa" could conflict of interest be avoided

Wacha said when his son, Frank, came before the commission on a zoning matter, "I abstained from voting and left the room" Buthe predicted that Haynes, a Hutchinson island resident would not be able to walk out when the problem of Southern Gulf Utilities ceasing to provide potable water for the island comes up in the future.

Some 100 Chamber members and guests attended the forum.

Chamber officials said it was the largest turnout to a morning meeting this year

Evinrude boosts log cabin

The log cabin at Langford Park might be completed due to a gift of $15,000 from the Ralph Evinrude Foundation, it was announced Tuesday by County Commissioner Frank Wacha

"It will go a long way toward completing the log cabin," Wacha said That makes $60,000 that the Evinrude Foundation has given us for the park," he added

Wacha said that the grandstands have been covered with a roof as part of the use of the foundation's first gift and two Cushman carts for grounds keeping have been bought, as well as having enough funds to expand the field house for library, chess, checkers, art and other programs

There was no warning no solicitation," Wacha said "I just opened the mail on Monday, and there the check was"

The log cabin has two more rows of logs to be added, and trusses are now on order from W&W Lumber in Indiantown to roof the facility

Merchant concern turns to planning

Concern over the possibility of one-waying Commercial Street brought the merchants of downtown Jensen Beach together Monday evening, and ended in an effort to boost the downtown by bringing together the merchants in a united effort

The merchants were invited by Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce President Dick Campbell to discuss the alternatives to present traffic, and to receive the background of the one-way controversy that has been a problem to the business community for the past twenty years.

Chamber Executive Director Dennis Doyle prepared a packet of materials on the history of the one-way controversy. Included was an in-depth report prepared by a Chamber Traffic Committee, headed by Don Wilkie, in 1972.

There have been many solutions to traffic problems, Campbell told the merchants, but none have been acceptable to downtown merchants. He added, "It is time to be positive, to learn the background, and discuss a possible solution to traffic problems if there are any."

Campbell added that the Chamber did not favor any particular plan, and would support no plan that the merchants were not in agreement on. He said the county commission would pass no plan that was not agreeable to the merchants, and added that the Florida Department of Transportation wouldn't touch the matter unless there was some agreement on what should be done.

The one-way plan would make Commercial Street one way east, Ricou Blvd. one-way west, and Palmetto one way south, with Indian River Drive being a two-way street with traffic being diverted westbound into Ricou Blvd.

County Commissioner Frank Wacha, who could not attend the meeting due to other commitments, asked Campbell to report the alternatives available.

He mentioned that they could:

ELIMINATE the left turn on Commercial from Indian River Drive;

ELIMINATE parking on Commercial Street;

ATTEMPT to upgrade the signalization of both Commercial Street and Ricou Blvd. at Indian River Drive to separate each intersection with lighting in each lane;

ONE WAY traffic on Ricou, Commercial and Palmetto.

Wacha said that because Indian River Drive is a state road, the DOT is involved. One month ago the DOT engineer was in Jensen Beach walking the intersections to see what could be done. He added that there is danger at the intersection.

Presently, school buses eastbound on Commercial Street must circle left on Palmetto, east on Ricou, and south on Indian River Drive because they cannot make the right turn on Commercial to Indian River Drive.

Wacha was quoted as saying, "Some solution must come out of the studies."

Virgil Wilson, who said he was against one-way traffic until a completed plan offered traffic a way off the Jensen Causeway other than Indian River Drive (the extension of Palmetto to the Causeway) complained that he thought there really was no problem with traffic "except for three months of the year."

Many of the merchants present expressed their concern over traffic passing them by in the one-way plan, and some expressed the opinion that downtown Jensen was losing business to the shopping centers to the west.

Campbell explained the history of merchant promotion in the downtown area, saying that if the merchants made the area more attractive to customers they might increase their business.

At that time, merchants began proposing possible promotion efforts, cleanup of their parking and storefront areas, and the possibility of decorating for Christmas, and actively joining in a proposed Chamber Christmas promotion.

Out of the meeting came the possibility that the downtown merchants will organize to decorate and promote together.

JACK BAKER, owner of the Lobster Shanty restaurants, has purchased the Crows Nest restaurant and marina on Route 707 and will open it in mid-November as the fourth Lobster Shanty in the chain.

Lobster Shanty takes over Crows Nest

Well-known restaurateur, Jack Baker, owner and operator of three Lobster Shanty restaurants in Florida, has acquired the Crows Nest Restaurant and Marina on Route 707 in Jensen Beach which he plans to open as a Lobster Shanty at the end of November.

The new restaurant with its nautical atmosphere will feature a wide selection of seafood similar to his other Lobster Shanty restaurants located in Vero Beach, Port Salerno and Lake Park.

Give a pint, get a burger, for the drive

Blood bank donors will be rewarded with hamburgers Nov. 7 when the Palm Beach Bloodmobile visits Hardee's on Commercial Avenue.

Plans were completed Monday for a blood bank drive to be co-sponsored by Hardee's and the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce and conducted by the Martin Branch of the Palm Beach Blood Bank. Serving as co-chairmen are Rick Buttner, manager of the Hardee fast-food franchise, and Dr. Richard Penick, representing the Chamber.

The mobile unit will be parked at Hardee's from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Nov. 7 and donors will receive a free hamburger or cheeseburger for their contribution, donated by Hardee's.

The blood drive is being coordinated by Sara Timon, head nurse for the Martin Branch, who said sign-up cards will be available in advance at Hardee's, the Chamber office, and local business places. Prospective donors can use the cards to set up an appointment for the hour most convenient for them to stop at the bloodmobile. The cards will be picked up at the business places beforehand, Mrs. Timon said.

The blook bank hopes to collect 100 pints from local residents next month and to set up monthly visits to Jensen Beach after that.

The blood bank serves 15 hospitals and six dialysis centers in a four-county area which last year used 36,000 units of blood. The need for blood is constantly increasing, according to Herb Johnson, donor recruiter for the PB blood bank, because the size of the population is growing so rapidly.

Anyone 17 years and older may give blood. There is no maximum age limit, Mrs. Timon said. Donors who are taking medication, however, are asked to write down the name of any medicines they are taking.

Oct. 14 the mobile unit will also visit the FIT campus.

Bike path is nearly complete

According to Sewall's Point Town Engineer, Richard Hellstrom, the bike path along North Sewall's Point Road is about 90 percent complete.

He adds that there remains a good deal of clean-up work yet to be done, however, he expects completion within the next two weeks.

According to state law, bicylists must use a bike path if there is one off the road they are traveling. That law, will be strictly enforced by Sewall's Point police officers, says Town Clerk, Joan Beckley.

To prevent the sidewalk from becoming "A great chicken path," as one resident puts it, Sewall's Point Road Commissioner, Bill Barton is studying the matter of placing signs on the path, to designate bicyclist's right-of-way. Whether north or southbound travelers will yield to a passer has yet to be determined.

Hellstrom commended the residents along Sewall's Point Road, who he said fully co-operated with the inconveniences during construction of the path. He added that although there were a number of driveways that had to be blocked off for a number of days, few complaints from residents were received.

Sewall's Point budget is $319,597

BY CATHIE MACAULAY

A preliminary budget hearing was held last Monday night, resulting in a tenative Sewall's Point Town budget of $319,597.

The figure represents a $42,626 difference over last year's appropriations, with the milage rate being rolled back from 1.87 mills to 1.8313.

According to Mayor Ed Gluckler, real estate tax receipts look to be increased by $7,000 over last year, bringing the total to $96,000.

Capital outlay on the South River Road project had to be dropped by $5,500 due to Martin County's decreased road funding, Gluckler said that the $6,000 Sewall's Point received last year for maintenance of county roads, has been brought down to $500. He added the county commission cut off the normal allowance only after the City of Stuart took issue with double taxation. The current budget for the South River Road now stands at $94,500.

Although Commissioners believe Congress will renew its federal revenue sharing program, a final decision will not be reached until after it re-convenes on Nov. 12. Commissioners are expecting a $15,000 allocation from federal revenue sharing.

The Sewall's Point Police Department has been given an eight percent increase in salaries, with a further allotment for another patrolman. Chief of Police Mat Matuszewski is currently in the process of recruiting another officer for the existing four-officer force.

Police commissioner Bill Barton says that with the additional patrolman, Sewall's Point will be afforded 24-hour protection, seven days a week.

Also provided for in the tentative budget, is a $8,500 allocation for a new patrol car. Bids for the car are expected to be received soon.

The budget also shows an increase of $2,900 for attorney's fees and a $3,000 increase for engineering services. Funding for all professional services is $39,160.

The town clerk was given a raise in salary and the building inspector's travel expenses have been increased as well.

The next scheduled budget hearing will be held Monday, Oct. 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Sewall's Point Town Hall.

Fire! 911

You're using some gasoline to clean up a spot on the floor. Maybe you're in the kitchen. Suddenly something ignites the gasoline fumes — it could be a spark from the refrigerator motor as it turns on — and you have an instant bonfire. You dash to the phone and dial 911. Ever wonder what happens then?

The voice that answers your call is someone at the Civil Defense Center in Ft. Pierce. As soon as you've announced there's a fire, what's on fire and where it's located, things begin to happen.

At the CD center, someone activates the plectron at the fire station nearest you which begins whooping it up and so do the plectrons assigned to every member of your volunteer fire department.

At the same time, the siren atop the fire station begins sounding the alarm — also activated by CD personnel in Ft. Pierce.

Then a voice begins giving the necessary information over the plectron: directing the firemen to your house which is on fire.

In Jensen Beach, the first fireman to arrive at your house will be the chief. From the scene he can advise the men at the station what kind of fire it is and how large so they'll arrive with the proper equipment to do the job.

In two to five minutes — the average response times for Rio and Jensen Beach firemen — a firetruck will be on its way to your house.

Good thing, too! After a house has been burning ten minutes, firemen say there's very little chance of saving it.

TWINS WERE DELIVERED for the Jensen Beach Samaritans last week, weighing in at four tons each. The new arrivals are 1980 ambulances, named 610 and 612, that will replace two older models. Serving as the storks were George Krauss, EMT; and drivers Bud Nydam and George Craig, in charge of the delivery from Orlando. (Photo by Ailsa Dewing)

Ruth Penning to university group

Mrs. Ruth M. Penning, executive secretary, Evinrude Motors, and resident of Jensen Beach, attended the Valparaiso University President's Advisory Council meeting held recently on the university's campus.

The purpose of the council, whose membership comes from all parts of the country, is to help promote the university programs.

Samaritans Calling

BY NELLIE D. COOK

The Jensen Area Samaritans are proud to announce the arrival of Identical Twins, Monday evening September 29, at 8:30 p.m. at our Squad Building, 1250 Samaritan Street.

The beautiful babies, each weighing four (4) tons were delived by two of our well trained Samaritans, president E.M.T. George Krauss, and director, driver, Bob Nydam.

Overseeing the delivery was a long time member, Samaritan driver George Craig. George it appears has been well trained in the Skillful art of mid-wifery.

All of the Samaritans have been eagerly looking forward to this delivery for the past few weeks, with bated breath.

Enough said. I'm sure by now all you readers have guessed our secret. We have two identical brand new 1980 Ford Ambulance vehicles.

For those who have been predicting the death of the Samaritans, please take another look.

We appear to be making a new start. Oh, by the way our babies names are 610 and 612 which are replacements for two old rigs which have served their time in the service of the Jensen Area.

General News of the Samaritans

As everyone knows the Samaritans have been putting on a drive for new members. Those being accepted at the Oct. 1st meeting were: Rose Spencer, who incidently is in the current E.M.T. class; John Endruschat, Peggy Quattlbaum and Gregory Yahne. Welcome, so glad to have you.

Bil Hogervorst, an E.M.T. with our squad donated a T.V. set for the west squad room. Thanks Bill. A folding ping pong table has been loaned to us from two of our squad E.M.T.'s, Chris and Gary Gabriel. Nice to have more recreations.

George Krauss, Bob Nydam and George Craig drove to Orlando on Monday, Sept. 29. The three made the trip up in Old 612. Later they returned with the new vehicles while George Craig arrived earlier with the old vehicle.

George Krauss announces a refresher class in standard first aid will be given at the ambulance building October 14 & 16, from 7 to 10 p.m. Completion of this course will give you a card good for three years. Anyone needing a refresher, here is your chance.

Samaritans Auxiliary

In the absence of the president, Irene Stephenson, vice pres. tells us there are 17 new members that have received their membership cards. Membership to the Auxiliary is one dollar per person, and is good for life.

Officers of the Auxiliary are Dot Michna, president; Irene Stephensen, vice president; Kathy Krauss, recording secretary; Lill Newham, corresponding secretary; Walter Redit, treasurer; Glenda Tungate, telephone committee chairman; Sis Siegenthaler, assistant; Ambulance Maintainance, Ray Whitney; loan closet, Ray LaFrey and Evelyn Sandford; publicity, Nellie Cook.

Our slogan is TO SUPPORT AND ASSIST. The next meeting will be at the Ambulance Building Oct. 28 (Tuesday) at 7:30 p.m. Applications will be available at that time. Come on our Ladies and Gentlemen, BIG THINGS ARE IN OUR PLANS.

Senior services are provided by Martin Council on Aging

BY DICK CAMPBELL

After six years of growth and service to the senior citizens of Martin County, the responsibilities of the Martin County Council on Aging have multiplied, according to Russ Conser, director of the non-profit group.

Conser spoke to the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club Monday at their regular meeting at the Villa Capri Restaurant at noon. His was the first in a a series of speakers planned as a part of the rejuvenation of the service club, with the first move back to Monday luncheon meetings.

Conser said that there is no charge for the many services offered by the council, but donations are made by those able to pay for the various services.

One of the important services is the bus service for the seniors. In 1976, one bus was donated to the group, and it had 86,000 miles on it. Later, two buses were donated, and the Stuart Kiwanis Club donated a wheel chair lift. Today, the Council on Aging has four buses, three equipped with wheeel chair lifts to take the seniors to shop, the doctor, lawyer, or other appointments.

The only thing the senior has to do is call the day before to be picked up. The buses are taken to the home of the senior. There is one bus opprating in Jensen Beach, making two trips a day to Stuart.

On weekends, the buses are used to take the seniors on trips to attractions in Miami or Orlando, or other areas on tours.

Conser said that another important part of the program is the "Meals on Wheels" section. Shut-ins and people who cannot take care of preparing food themselves, are delivered hot meals to their homes by volunteers.

"The volunteers are not paid, they even use their own gas to deliver the "meals on wheels," Conser said.

He described some cases as the elderly who cannot cook for themselves, or persons such as a man who has lost his wife and has no knowledge of nutrition.

"We are now serving 75 meals a day in Jensen Beach," he said, with winter servings going to 100 per day.

Another program is the volunteers who clean persons homes or repair things in homes of people who cannot do the job themselves. Volunteers also will bathe persons who are infirm and take care of them. They also keep a watch over those persons.

"Seventy percent of the persons in nursing homes do not belong there," Conser said. "If we, by our service, can keep seniors in their homes, everyone is happier."

Conser also said that the "congregate meals" program of the council serves 250 meals a day. Those who can pay, pay what they can, he added.

Funding for the Council on Aging comes from the "older Americans act" and the "Social Security Act" to the tune of $104,000 a year, and by the donations of the persons served by the council.

Conser pointed out that 40 percent of the population of Martin County, 22,731 persons, is over the age of 60, adding that the $104,000 comes to about one-half cents a day.

But, he said, the seniors bring in $6.5 million a month in Martin County in Social Security checks.

"It is the largest industry in Martin County, with the largest payroll," Conser said.

The director pointed to the construction of the new log cabin in Langford Park, to be used as a senior center, as one sign of the growth of his programs. He said he hoped that a "geriatric clinic" would be established there to offer preventative medical knowledge to the seniors, and that social programs would offer more things for the seniors to do.

Jensen Beach Community Education

Four programs in Community Education will start during the next week. Three are of the "how to" variety while the fourth offers enjoyment for the serious music lover.

In chronological order, the programs are "Stereo Concert Hall" starting Sunday, Oct. 12; "Help Yourself to Better Health" starting Tuesday, Oct. 14; "Local Fish, Catch 'n' Cook" starting Wednesday, Oct. 15; and "Investment Survival in the 80's" which starts Thursday, Oct. 16.

All are offered through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center.

The concert hall offers 90 minutes of recorded classical music from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on the second and fourth Sunday of each month. The program is presented in the auditorium of the Environmental Studies Center and is free of charge. The inaugural program consists of Brahms' "Academic Festival" Overture, Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" for violin and orchestra and Dvorak's Seventh Symphony.

"Help Yourself to Better Health" is a series of three lectures by Drs. Jason Schwartz and Kevin McKay, chiropractic physicians of Stuart. They will emphasize the interrelatedness of mental, physical and emotional health and how the patient can take an active part in restoring and maintaining his health utilizing natural methods rather than depending on prescription drugs. This series will be presented at Jensen Beach Elementary School from 8 to 9:30 p.m. on successive Tuesdays, Oct. 14-28. A $2 registration fee is charged.

"Local Fish, Catch 'n' Cook," is a rerun of a seminar series run last spring in cooperation with the Martin County Angler's Club. Five club members will each discuss one method of successful fishing.

"Investment Survival in the 80's" is the timely title of a six-week series of talks on a wide variety of investment procedures under the direction of Dan Todzia, vice-president of the Stuart office of a national brokerage firm. The series will be presented at 7:30 Thursday nights in the Environmental Center auditorium commencing Oct. 16.

Stocks, bonds, commodities, tax-free municipals, insurance, futures, and many other methods of combatting inflationary trends will be covered. Registration for this series is also $5 with advance registration suggested.

For further information on any of these programs or to register, call Jay Jarrett, 334-1263 weekday afternoons.

Correction

An article in the Sept. 30 edition of The Mirror on the merger of the Jensen Beach Bank as a branch bank of Southeast Bank, pending state and federal approval, stated that Jensen Beach Bank customers would benefit by being able to cash checks at any Southeast Bank in the state. Ron Mitchell, president of the Jensen Beach Bank, advises that banking services will be extended to local customers only in Southeast Bank branches located in Martin, Broward, and Palm Beach counties.

Demos plan old-time rally

Martin County Democratic executive committee will sponsor an old-fashioned political rally Sunday, Nov. 2, at noon at Langford Park.

The rally will feature local Democratic candidates, music, refreshments, and special events.

Plans for the rally will be completed at a meeting Monday, Oct. 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Oceanside.

Sun, breeze brighten Leif Erikson day

ROLLING ALONG under full sail was a trailered longboat that rode in the parade before being launched for the afternoon pageant.

A hot Florida sun shone down Sunday at the causeway, as Leif Erikson and his men again recreated the first battle against the Indians.

The occasion was the 10th annual observance of Leif Erikson Day, established a decade ago by Richard Campbell and Ralph Evinrude as an occasion to mark the landing of the adventurer on these shores.

It is always a colorful event, with the festivity brightened by the richly ornamented "bunads" (colorful costumes).

The event brought to the area some 2,000 people from all over the country. The fun included boat races, won by Bjarne Eikevik of Fort Lauderdale with winner of the mini-marathon John Brenstal.

The coveted prize, a trip for two aboard the S.S. Norway went to Leif Warne of Stuart.

The strong center of attention was the Norwegian longboat which is the property of the local lodge. Cameras were everywhere in sight as the multi-colored flag propelled the craft out to sea.

An antique craft, it was one of several acquired in Norway and brought to this country by the Evinrudes.

The afternoon included a mock battle between the Norsemen and the Indians, lending color and no little glamour to the occasion. Small appetites were kept happy by the barrage of sweets and "lefsa," home made pastries offered for sale by members of all the lodges attending.

A guest of honor at the Leif Erikson banquet was Emma Marie Doughty Haugland social director of all lodges from Florida to Main. She was singled out for special honor at the Friday banquet at the Holiday Inn.

Plans for next year call for acquisition of other offering to make the celebration bigger.

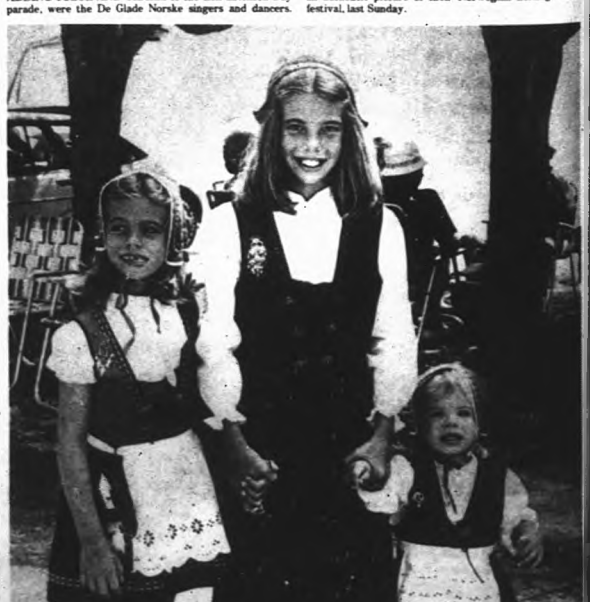
BRIGHT RED fire trucks led the way for the remainder of the parade. Hundreds of people turned out on the Jensen Beach Causeway for the Leif Erickson Day festivities last Sunday. Banners and flags were seen everywhere, and so were the people, who lined the streets to see the spectacle.

FLORIDA REPRESENTATIVE CHUCK NERGARD was on hand to celebrate the Leif Erickson Day and act as master of ceremonies for the pageant that was held on the Jensen Beach Causeway. With him are Phil Lee and Randi Hummel. During the day, there were welcoming speeches, dances and a host of other activities.

IVAN VESGRAM holds out his battle shield during the Leif Erickson Day parade. Ivan was responsible for making the costumes the Viking warriors wore throughout the day. His efforts were well appreciated by those who attended Sunday's celebration.

ONE LITTLE INDIAN amid a group of Vikings. Fortunately, this is 1980, and the scene was done in jest. The Vikings' costumes are replicas of those worn 1,000 years ago when the men sailed the tall ships through the fiords. Last Sunday, however, the boats were on the Jensen Beach Causeway, and after the parade, the Vikings settled into an afternoon of games and fun.

ADDING COLOR AND CHARM to the Leif Erickson Day parade, were the De Glade Norske singers and dancers. Dressed in colorful native costumes, the women presented an authentic picture of their Norwegian heritage at the festival, last Sunday.



THE SPETZ SISTERS were dekred in native Norwegian costumes for the Leif Erickson Day celebration. Although the event was held on the Jensen Beach Causeway, Katie, 7 yrs.; Kim, 10 yrs.; and Kelly, 1½ yrs. looked fresh enough to have stepped off a Scandinavian mountainside.

Firemens welfare is concern

"Whenever that Plectron goes off my hair stands on end." That's how Fire Chief Joe Luciano describes his reaction to a fire alarm. "I'm sure it's going to be the worst fire that's ever happened."

Apathy has no place in public welfare and the chief is never apathetic about the welfare of his volunteer firefighters either.

He is ever alert to the possibility that some of his men may be injured or killed in the line of volunteer duty.

"The men get paid $2 an hour while on duty but some of them leave $10-an-hour jobs and don't get paid while they're off the job," says Luciano. "And $2 an hour doesn't pay for their gas, in some cases."

Firemen have medical insurance but they must be off work for five days to receive benefits. If an injury leaves a man unable to work for one or two days — anything up to five days — it can cost him part of his paycheck.

Throughout the year, the department sponsors fundraisers — such as next Sunday's spaghetti dinner — to support its welfare fund.

Fire prevention is a way of life

With winter approaching, it is time to look at fire prevention week as something more serious than saluting the well-deserving volunteer firemen.

Every year, it seems, overloaded electric lines in older homes and mobile homes cause quick fires that endanger lives when a cold snap hits our area. The fires generally are effective in the older dwellings, and consume much of the home before the firemen can even answer the call.

Also: there are those who use the oil heaters, not taking care to ventilate properly, or to protect the surrounding area from spilled oil.

There are many potential fire hazards throughout the communities we serve.

We urge all who would like to feel safer to call their fire department to learn how they can get a checkup for fire safety. The time is now, and action could prevent a disaster.

Kiwanis gets moving

The Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club got a leg up on organization this week as club members sought to breath new life into the club.

Over the past few years the club has declined in both interest and membership. Leadership must be recognized as either lacking dedication or just not that interested.

The old Kiwanis Club in Jensen had the spirit, and was active in the community. The die-hards of the recent club tried their best to keep the club afloat, and had several activities last year to raise funds for youth activities.

The Jensen group was founded by the Stuart Kiwanis Club, and its members have had a part in trying to get the ball rolling again for the Kiwanians they helped. They are to be congratulated for helping their friends.

Last Monday was the start. The meeting day was moved back to Monday. The luncheon served at the Villa Capri was good. The speaker was good, offering an insight into the Council on Aging that few had heard before.

Programs in the future will be good, and the attendance at Monday's meeting bodes well for future growth.

We sincerely wish the Jensen Kiwanis Club well, and urge all businessmen in the area to join and take part in a club that is not only fun again, but also offers a chance for businessmen to take part in the community.

One on one debates are the best test

The people of Jensen Beach who attended the debate between Frank Wacha and Alex Haynes had an excellent opportunity to weigh the values of the two men.

Wacha, the Democratic incumbent county commissioner from District One, and Haynes, the Republican challenger, were placed in a position that enabled each to give his views on seven very important questions, asked by professional newspeople.

The answers each gave offered more than an explanation of a position. They offered an insight into the man, and the substance of which he is made.

We have seen the many political rallies, given by well-meaning organizations, that troop the candidates up on the stage one by one, with each giving a set speech to cover a multitude of very important matters that should be covered in detail.

One on one is better, and the candidates being isolated with each other gives the voters a real opportunity to hear and see how they handle themselves.

We hope that more organizations give thought to such a format as the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce used in its forum on Monday. It is better for the candidates and for their audiences.

To the editor

To the Editor:

Last week, I called the Jensen Beach Mirror for information (don't we always call the newspaper?) regarding a Diner's card at a local restaurant that had changed hands. Today, I received a very gracious call from Ms. Meissner at the Mirror, asking if my problem had been resolved. I had received a satisfactory rebate from the restaurant immediately.

This call from the Jensen Beach Mirror office was above and beyond the 'call of duty' — and I wish to express my thanks to the Mirror and their very kind employees who took care of this matter for me, a rarity in this day and age!

Thank you,
Mrs. Marie Whiteley

To the Editor:

Fire Prevention Week just isn't in there when it comes to brass band receptions and star-spangled celebrations. Nobody ever wishes anybody a very merry FPW.

Nobody even takes a fireman to lunch. And there aren't any bumper stickers to ask if you've hugged your firemen today.

But that's true of police, nurses, EMT's and trash collectors, too. We take them all for granted without ever a pat on the back and a few kind words: "Hey, thanks for being there."

So let me be among the first to extend the glad hand of gratitude to all those who stand guard over our lives and property and those who take on some of the unglamorized tasks imaginable, on our behalf.

All those except our EMT and our policemen. May you live forever and may we never need again. Once was enough.

I won't mention any names but in case you've forgotten I'll refresh your memory.

To a certain EMT attached to a fire department in a South Florida city.

You took me on a tour of the second floor dormitory of the fire station. At one point you charged through a door with me close on your heels into a windfish room in the center of the building.

"This is where we slide down the pole. It used to be right out in the open but now the law says it has to be in an enclosed room," you said.

At that very instant the air was filled with manic, raucous honks and clanging bells. Three bodies burst through the door and hurtled themselves three feet out into space, grabbed the pole and slid out of sight. And I took your picture as you dropped out of my life.

Then I turned toward the door and saw what I had not seen before: no doorknob. No handle. A flush door set flush with the wall. No way out but down the pole. And me in a tight skirt and high heels. No way I could fling myself at the pole and wrap my legs around it.

I was an hour late getting back to the office. Heard terse words for not signing a camera back in on time. But the heftiest line of my ignominity was to be the first person ever abandoned by an emergency squad.

Somewhere in New York state there's a policeman with a pachish sense of humor. I think I paid you back, and we're even but I wouldn't want to put it to a test.

I say you, on a rainy morning as I was driving to work over a road full of potholes. I turned a corner and there you were behind me, you and your flashing blue light.

I pulled over to the curb to let you pass but you pulled in behind me. You asked me for my license and my registration and then then you asked me if I hadn't seen the crowd of patients waiting to cross the street.

At first, it was a repeat of the one-way, with the merchants blaming the landlords for not improving what they were renting. Then they took a new tack, a positive tack.

It began with an explanation of what the merchants must to do. We had lighted the entire street from the railroad to Indian River Drive on Christmas. One person walked into each store and asked for $25 to buy wire and sockets and bulbs — and the merchants had paid the tab.

Then, three of the merchants had put up the lights. It lasted for five years, and anyone coming over the hill at Skyline Drive had to be impressed with the blanket of lights that covered Commercial at the bottom of the hill.

The lights died out after a few get tired of doing it every year. The lighting strings were divided up among the merchants to decorate their own stores. Then, the years took their toll, and the lighting stopped; except for the few that lighted within their windows.

Then some merchants resume the old Jensen Beach, and started joining together to plan their Christmas decorations. They also talked together about doing some cleanup of their premises to make them more attractive to customers.

The merchants, in their excitement about the potential of doing something for themselves, by themselves, were caught up in the spirit of what was the spirit of Jensen a bunch of years back.

They began seeing something (one-way traffic), and began talking about working together in a positive manner to increase their own business.

It was great to be a part of it.

Dick Campbell

One-way, all the way

At last, the term one-way doesn't raise the hackles of the merchants on Commercial Street. At last they are thinking in the best interests of their businesses.

It happened Monday night. The merchants got together to talk about the possibility of making Commercial Street one-way, and accepting a plan that has been lurking around for the past twenty years.

It was twenty years ago that I stood on the corner of Indian River Drive and Commercial Street with Pop Tilton, and learned a little about Jensen Beach.

We donated the right of way for the street to the county. We planned the road for eighty feet of right of way. Tilton said. He pointed up the street, a wide old cut.

At that time, the Fredrickson Building was one story. The front sat right next to the road, with just a token alk separating it from the main east bound artery of busy Commercial Street.

By the way, the Fredrickson Building is now the First Federal Savings of Martin County building, next to the big, round cration of Jim Garvey that kinda memorialized Harry Hoke, who then was chairman of the board of the savings and loan institution.

Jim had the construction men come in the pump concrete into the floors so that the on-story building would be able to support the second story that now is the meeting place for so many clubs and organizations (free) in this area. I know, because The Mirror office was in that building at the time, and the constant banging encouraged our newspaper long enough to get their job done.

The problems at that the building is so close to the road the then State Road Department (now the Department of Transportation) wouldn't accept the one block of Commercial Street, from the Florida East Coast Railroad to Indian River Drive, as a state road. The SRD demanded eighty feet of right-of-way to make it a state road.

Tilton was angry as he said it. The Fredricksons had built where they wanted to, and Pop lost the state maintenance of the road because of what Fredrickson had done.

As the years passed, I learned more about the Jensen Beach. Until a few years ago, The Mirror was a part of it, being in the Fredrickson Building.

Every plan to alleviate the traffic problem on Commercial Street was greeted around like a pariah football. Merchants fought merchants. Most were opposed to anything.

Just as in the battle to eventually incorporate Jensen Beach, the people mellow, and the emotions give way to a more intellectual attitude toward the problem.

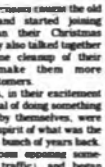
So it was with the merchants of downtown Jensen Beach on Monday night. They got together to intelligently discuss their problems and seek a solution.

After the one-way background information was presented, the merchants realized that neither the Chamber, the county commission, nor the DOT were trying to push something on them that they didn't want.

That was when they decided to talk about what they needed to do to improve the business in downtown Jensen.

Ailsa Dewing

And a Merry FPW to you



Actually, I'd been concentrating on turning a sharp corner with all the lanes filled with traffic but I thought it wiser to say I'd seen the pedestrians.

"You splashed them," you said. "I should charge you with splashing pedestrians, but I won't. Instead I'm going to give them all your name and address to send you their cleaning bills."

"You joke," I said in disbelief. "How could I possibly navigate that corner without splashing?"

You told me I should be more careful when you told me to have a nice day and let me go on my way.

It took me a few hours to recover my wits. And then I telephoned the station and asked to speak with the officer who'd advised me of splashing pedestrians."

The sergeant asked me if I was sure it was a policeman.

"He was driving a police car and he was wearing a uniform so I didn't ask him for identification."

The desk sergeant turned me over to the lieutenant. The lieutenant transferred me to the chief. The chief said the officer had just left for Buffalo and wouldn't be back for three days.

"It's okay," I said. "When he comes back, have him send me the list of names of the pedestrians and what they were wearing. My attorney will send it."

You didn't feel me, you know. I've never believed for a moment that you went to Buffalo.

Well, don't. It doesn't work. By the time the first one had hit the stage, the second had ripped her gown off the sign and was last seated a dozen other stage and globbies.

That night I came very close to [illegible] home with whom I had no intention of harboring.

In the demon game it should be every elf for himself.

But of my Halloween cats, there was only Alexander. Alexander was an elephant of a cat—a big white fellow who ran large chucks of our lives the year around. But mostly at Halloween which was the time for cats to do their thing.

Alexander, this particular Halloween, was presiding over the kitchen totally indifferent to the buzz and stir going on around him about the house or the measuring eye he was getting.

Therefore it was the shock of the week when, on Halloween to have emerging from the upper reaches of the house the biggest white tom cat ever in the memory of his Royal Cattery. An immense massive Tom strolled, looking for all like the lord of the manor. Nobody had forewarned Alexander that Halloween had arrived with it Sister Ruth Anne's Halloween party date.

Alexander took one look, howled one howl and fled. There was no report of low flying [illegible] objects but the papers in those parts were combed for weeks for any such reports.

Alexander was never seen again.

Ghost-to ghost

Come tis the season to be ghostly—when ghostly beings dance and cavort about dark alleys and other dangerous places.

As everybody knows, there are good witches and witches, spirits and little devils of every dimension, but seldom ever any very clever witches. It took a year of attempted cooperation to find that out.

It was a year of natural small-fry pandemonium. This den mother was trying to outdo herself both as a mother for the school carnival and for the Cub Scout shindig. So why not tide the two together?

The best I could come up with was a "Ghost-to-Ghost hookup," tying together all three of my little beasties in a "network of radio lines."

This all looked well on paper, and even was effective in my cheesecloth costuming.

But did you ever try keeping three witches in line in a madhouse full of little devils, goblins and various other fiendalia, all looking suspiciously like each other?

What's more, did you ever tie three naturally animistic little beings, ones who riot together and expect them to get along?

HOPE FOR HEALTH

Keys to Good Health Naturally

By Dr. Jack L. Webb

In these days of deterioration medical "image", it is no small problem to get yourself into the best hands to care for your health.

There are still plenty of good doctors available if you will seek them out.

The worst doctor of all into whose clutches you may ill-advisedly fall is YOUR-SELF. Self-diagnosis and self-treatment are usually incorrect, often hazardous, sometimes disasterous, and never economical.

It is a fundamental principle of good medical practice that correct diagnosis is the primary essential. With the diagnosis established, the cause is sought out. Then, if the cause is one which can be corrected or eliminated, that is the objective and determines the line of treatment.

Most people simply do not know enough to diagnose. Once in a while Grandma can recognize a rash or a symptom, but too often she is fooled. Books will not help either, in fact they seem to do more to confuse than to enlighten.

Diagnosis is really the most exacting and difficult phase of the medical field, as it stands to reason that the layman's snap diagnosis has little chance of holding up.

A case was reported of a woman who twice had her skull opened surgically because she had all the indications of a brain tumor.

None was found. Investigation proved that her symptoms were produced by a long term, self-prescribed home remedy for a purpose which she herself had forgotten.

Don't you be the Dangerous Doctor—to yourself, consult a qualified doctor.

Your Doctor of Chiropractic is a professional, a Specialist in Diagnosing disfunctions within your spinal column. He, too, has devoted his life to healing and conditioning your body to be healthy.

'Mac' MacIntyre killed in Ohio

BY ERNIE CURWEN
Tel: 334-0758

The seniors and AARP chapter members were shocked and grieved to learn that Mr. Charles "CMac" MacIntyre, president of the local chapter was killed in a traffic accident, Sunday, Sept. 28, near Delaware, Ohio. So, there was considerable discussion, how this would effect the chapter operation, then the Iraq-Iran war, along with candidate rhetoric was chewed a bit; but INFLATION continues to be the dominant subject, and it went like this:

Ralph a spry 1960 returee, who had successfully coped with the Great Depression was no sooner seated at a table to help fold bulletins for mailing, when he piped up with. Say did you hear on TV last night about auto sales"

"I sure did." Edith the TV fan, replied with a grin. And I just couldn't believe my ears, how can they think up things like that?"

The rest of the workers were mystified, couldn't figure what they were talking about, so impatient Jal' Immogene, asked, "What's this all about, let us in on the joke?"

There was a noisy thumping down at the end of the table as grumpy Pete whacks his cane for attention, and barks. "I'll tell you, and it's no joke, damn it. On one part of the TV News they reported car sales were still off 25 percent. There, almost on the next breath, they told us GM is going to increase the prices $300 next month. And, with some more cane whacking.

That's not the way we run our business when a thing wouldn't sell, we cut prices until it did. Better to keep going somehow, even if you didn't make as much. And, that way worked darn good for years and years until they tucked us out for being too old to run things right, or something. Thump, thump, whack, whack as Pete sits back angry and disgusted.

Then, Ralph gets back into the discussion. "You said it Pete and here's something else to get riled up about. I saw in a weekly magazine that United Auto Worker's President, Douglas Fraser said, Americans can make better cars than the Japanese — if we put our minds to it, but he sure didn't say they had or ever would.

Did you know that from 1947 to 1965 productivity was increasing 3.4 percent each year, then it fell off each year until now there's an actual decrease. And all this time Japan, Germany, etc. have been increasing their's 4 to 6 percent, right up to last year. So no wonder Detroit can't sell their cars.

Salty Capt. Joe who'd been all ears, quietly said, "Just proves we should have stayed in there working, instead of being put out to pasture. Bet, we wouldn't be in this mess now, hum."

Mildred always seeing the bright side remarked, "You're all probably only too right, but it looks as though the candidates are aware of the problem and are promising to restore that good ol' American productivity, so we'll get our markets back again.

Finally Millie, the letter writer got her say. All this talk will be wasted, unless we tell the candidates, so let's each of us write just one letter. And, with that the mailing workers finished up.

CHAPTER EVENTS

The first picnic of the season was held, Thursday, Oct. 2, at Langford Park. A large crowd turned out to help prepare the bulletin for mailing, and to help with the extra chapter business resulting from the sudden death of President Charles CMac MacIntyre.

President MacIntyre and his wife Irma were returning from Glenwood Springs, Colorado where he had a summer swimming class. They were planning to visit Irma's sisters in Ohio, before coming down to Florida, when they were involved in the fatal accident with a petroleum transport truck. Irma sustained minor injuries, and is now staying with her sisters in Ohio, her plans to return to Florida are uncertain at this time.

John Vance, First Vice President, assumed the presidential duties and responsibilities as required by the Bylaws, and agreed to have his name put in nomination for the 1981 term. Reed Smith who had prepared a new organization plan for CMac's consideration explained how it would simplify the presidential office by having 5 cabinet level chairmen reporting instead of 20 misc committee chairmen. It will be further considered at board and membership meetings, and if approved will go into effect with the 1981 change of officers.

A legislative Questionnaire was given out listing 16 items beneficial to the seniors asking the members to designate the five they felt were the most important. Seven were similar to those proposed by Silver Haired Legislators so there is some cooperation, but most of the items were areas of last year's. Anyway, members are urged to fill 'em out the best they can, so their pet project will come to the attention of the AARP legislative committee.

BOYD SMITH checks out the progress on the Senior Activities Center at Langford Park.

Boyd Smith gives the seniors a start

Boyd Smith must have been preparing all his life for his many retirement activities as he had learned about office management, accounting, editing, and plain hard work during his somewhat varied career. This know how was just what was needed, when Alvin Rupp, president of the brand new MCCA (Martin County Council on Aging) gave him a ring, while he was vacationing up in New Jersey and asked him if he'd be their Executive Director and see about getting this senior service organization off the ground. As can be surmised, very little arm twisting was necessary.

It was up in Wildwood, N.J. that Boyd first saw the light of day, when that area was just plain of country at its best. He grew up there and went to high school and college before he started to sharpen his skills as he moved from one stimulating experience to another. Such things as 25 years of accounting, auditing, office and personnel management was taken in stride with firms along the Delaware Valley.

Then, at 45 years old, he became fed-up with humdrum figures and went to work with 'real people on the faculty of Pierce School of Business in Philadelphia, teaching college students the fine points of business management, systems development and human motivation.

Along the way, he met his wife Emily and she joined him in many of his activities. Boyd has two sons and a daughter, they in turn have supplied him with an assortment of grandchildren and some 'greats'. Emily is also interested in church committee work and the Thrift Shoppe, where she is official jewelry fixer and clothes 'hanger-upper', and of course has many hobbies, including, helping Boyd with his green thumb work that results in flowers and vegetables, galore.

It was in the early 70tees that Boyd got the call from MCCA and as he had not retired from doing', he did. Soon he had an organization set up ready to bring to the seniors of Martin County such things as Courtesy Bus, Escort Service, Outreach workers, Meals-on-Wheels, Visiting Nurses, and many other home services. Since Boyd always felt one task was only the stepping stone to greater involvement, he soon moved on to 'CRISIS LINE' being its first chairman, and also became deeply interested in local, State and National Council of Community Churches.

Boyd was a natural for his present task of editing the Martin County AARP Golden Eagle, News Bulletin, as he got a start back in 1934 with a Radio Critique for the Buffalo Evening News and after that he edited community magazines and house organs. So it's no wonder that he is getting out such an interesting publication.

Of course it wasn't all work in their eventful lives, for Boyd wore out seven boats one after the other, with his fishing and touring. But, right now he has a new venture. It's painting folk-art pictures in three dimensions on six surfaces with shadow box viewing to give that 'in-depth' feeling. Boyd says that now he can at least paint different. Those mystified and interested, call Boyd for details, 334-1244.

So, Boyd goes on and on from one senior helping project to the next, that may be even more stimulating and right now he is concerned with the development of a senior center log cabin at Langford Park. The accompanying picture shows him inspecting the central fireplace.

Lions governor speaks at JB club

Bill Eckerd, governor of District 35-D Lions clubs, commended Jensen Beach Lions in a speech Tuesday night noting their various community activities.

Eckerd was the guest speaker at the Lions weekly meeting held at the Village Corner.

He cited club members for their work with Girl Scouts, organizing ball teams at Langford Park, the Youth Exchange program and in providing eye glasses for the needy.

He urged members to attend the sub-district convention to be held Nov. 9 at the Port St. Lucie Community Center and hosted by the PSL Lions Club.

Eckerd heads a district which includes 36 Lions Clubs with some 1,600 members between Miami and Titusville and bounded on the west by Lake Okeechobee.

Jensen Beach Lion Harvey Schlemmer is a candidate for district governor.

Rummage sale to be held

AN EASY WAY TO REDUCE EXPENSES
QUESTION: A few weeks ago in your column, you mentioned a special shower attachment which reduced the amount of water used in an apartment house. The resulting savings in the cost of heating hot water makes this sound like a pretty good idea. Would you explain how this works?
ANSWER: Surely. The water restricting shower head looks like any conventional shower head. However, it is constructed so that less water flows through the shower head. Its design reduces water usage from a rate of approximately eight gallons per minute on a conventional shower head to a usage rate of three or less gallons per minute.
Obviously, the water saving changes available when the shower heads are installed in an apartment building.
Even more important, however is the amount of energy which is saved through the reduced consumption. Whether the hot water in a building is heated by electricity, gas, or oil, a measurable cost saving will result from the installation of these shower heads. The installation is a simple matter and merely involves removing the old shower head and screwing on the replacement.
Surprisingly, the reduction in gallonage does not materially affect the comfort of the shower. In many cases the tenants who move into apartments equipped with restricted shower heads don't recognize the difference.
Such a conversion makes good financial sense and can provide a better bottom line to your apartment house investment.
Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-4747 or stop by.

THIS IS THAT FAMOUS POND alongside the 15th green (monster) on the Saints Course at Sandpiper Bay where they've had the big alligators (Big Sam for one) over the years. It catches its share of balls, too. (Dick Lundin photo)

The Saints Course, a golfing mecca

(Dick Lundin photo)

THE MONSTER is the name by which the 15th hole is "affectionately" known by golfers on the Saints Course at Sandpiper Bay. There's no telling how many balls have been swallowed up by the broad, deep ditch in front of the green, just beyond the two carts on the right. The golfer out on the fairway is preparing to pitch to the green, hopefully over the intervening water hazard.

THE GOLFING PANORAMA was taken from the 12th tee on the Saints Course at Sandpiper Bay, looking across the ditch and down the fairway. The green doglegs to the right.

THE TURTLES will be on television Sunday night at 7 o'clock as a segment of "Those Amazing Animals." The scenes were taken last summer by an ABC television camera crew filming on local beaches and at the House of Refuge. (Photo by Bob Freer)

Sea turtles on tv Sunday

Scenes of the giant sea turtles nesting on local beaches filmed last summer will be shown Sunday on ABC television.

First scheduled for viewing in September as a segment of "Those Amazing Animals," a batch of aired details at 7 p.m. Sundays on Channel 12 WPEC TV, the film has been rescheduled for Sunday, Oct. 12.

Janet Aiken, promotion and publicity director for WPEC, said she had been in touch with the program's producers and had verified that the turtles will be featured next Sunday.

The films were taken of Ross Witham, head of the state's Department of Natural Resources sea turtle research project, and his assistant, Lou Fallon, measuring and tagging young sea turtles at the House of Refuge. The year-old turtles were then released to return to the sea.

The film crew was in the area for three days while the sea turtles were nesting.

Holiday Outlines

BY RUTH BOWES 334-1946

Assisted by Peg Ray, Betty Leister

The Pavilion Church at Holiday Out will open on Sunday, November 2 at 9:45 am, a new time this year. With Rev. Clark Thompson officiating. See you soon.

A rather unusual story happened over the last week. It occurred when a couple, Betty & Art Nagy who spent a weeks vacation in the Park. And on Friday night, being avid bowlers they stop by at the Jensen Lanes to open bowl. But alas, found only leagues bowling so they sat down to watch. Then heard over the loud speaker a call for Mr. Jack McConnell, was near enough to overhear Jack telling his caller to get two of our men Al Hill, Harry Shetron. Park employees to cut off the water in the park as the water break was causing a gushing fountain. At this time Betty & Art noticed that it was Jack our Park Manager. Jack finished bowling. As the men were digging to find the break. The work was finished quickly when Jack came to help, and the water flowed again.

Sorry to report that Ex-Holiday Outer Gene Gray of Pinelake Village, has been hospitalized again for check ups at Martin Memorial, and Irene Hamm went Tues (7) for an eye operation to Martin Memorial. Hopefully it will be for only 3 days with a 10 week convalescent at home with dear husband George seeing that Irene has the best of care.

An American citizen for two years, who loves U.S.A. originally from Jamaica employed as a nurse at Hollywood Memorial Hospital, obstetrics department. Grace Grant spent the weekend with the Nagys. Grace is also their neighbor in Hollywood.

Betty Taylor is back in Pinelake Village. She will now be a year around resident. Welcome back Betty.

The Bob Bartons expected back soon, presently they are waiting on their son to arrive on a visit first.

Rosemarie Mirenelle has been enjoying the visit of her mother Mrs. Martha Erb from Tampa, for possibly a week or more.

We welcome back Ed Prusts, Morris Brinks, Austin Williams and Wilfred Muse.

Mac & Jean McCabe spent the weekend at Jacksonville Beach, attending the 4-8 Wreck initiation. Florida has the Chef, Mr. Andy Buchta, De (Voiture) Bas Car Chemin De Fer, who was in attendance. Max represented V-334 of St. Lucie. (Need I say more?) All enjoyed the fun, fun.

Al & Peg Ray left on Sunday, Oct. 5th to see mother nature change her attire. North Carolina is usually very pretty at this time of the year, so we will be back in a few weeks.

Catty Ullmann & Dorothy Browne went shopping last week (Thursday) and while out treated themselves to a fancy luncheon. Some secret place.

The mixed league, Holiday Outers on Wednesday night at Jensen Lanes won 3 out of 4 points. Nice going.

Anniversaries Congratulations - Harriet & Dach Dahlen 30-34, Lillian & Edward Sallers 10-15 and Ann & Frank Gilbert 10-17.

Happy Birthday Wishes - Art Nagy, Jean Beauchamp, 10-13, Dorothy Smith, Doris Ann Nourse, Pat O'Ten and Tom Stieler, 10-14, Betty Crawford, Jack McConnell, and Maurice Ahearne, 10-15, Mary Schmidt, Evelyn Frost, Dora May and Jerry Belmore, 10-16, David McDonald and Clarence Knechtges, 10-17, Vicki Butt and Gorden Emaus, 10-18.

KITCHEN WITCHES that bring the cook good luck were among the crafts made and sold by the Norwegian ladies.

Ocean Breeze

BY ERNIE CURWEN
334-0758

There has been a break in the weather, blankets were needed the other night and there has been a "smidgen" of rain to green-up the grass and shrubs, so the folks coming from the chilly northern country will find Ocean Breeze Park just right. After viewing that awful smog of the west coast on TV, OBPers are darn thankful that it's still country around here. Why even the mullet are back with their jumping antics in the Indian River. It's just a darn good place to be.

However, the flow of returnees dropped off a bit last week to a 34 from a 50 of the previous week. Maybe waiting to vote in the primaries, or reports of 95 degree weather held them back, anyway the following did open up their homes.

Orval and DeeDee Mertz; Ken and Mable Brown; Chet and Pearl Wheelock; Dick Leabire; Jack and Edith Dodge; Lou and Lillian Dodge; Mel and Jeanne Geisert; Earl and Lila Ehrmann; Gib Dougherty; Ray and Virginia Whitehead.

Bill and Jeanette Young; Alma Clauson; Dan and Fredeserica Cunningham; George and Ila Mae Nunn; Ruth Miller; Don and Dena Gark; Bun and Rose Miller; Ted and Olive Witmer; Bud and Jan Klear.

opening date has been postponed, the clubhouse floor resurfacing job turned out to be a bigger job than anticipated. Watch the bulletin boards for new announcement.

Camera Club will start, Thursday, Nov. 13, 7 p.m. in clubhouse, according to a notice posted by President Fran Gunn (3 NE 11th St. 334-3097). The notice states that slide shows are needed.

Folks that have good slides, but can't narrate, see Fran as she can arrange for the narration. Also, folks that have slides for only part of a 45 min. show, say 75 to 100 slides; see Fran as she can probably make arrangements for "split-shows."

Many times, folks with new cameras have needed some additional information. Yes, even in these days of completely automatic cameras, further information is needed in order to take pictures that will be pleasing to see and tell an interesting story. So, if there is sufficient interest some workshops will be arranged with talks by experts.

Shufflers are practicing to beat the band for the season that will start, early in November. Right now they are signing up for the different teams as follows: Indian River League, Bill Jones; Evelyn Groves; Ralph Bailets; Inez Bailets; George Dean; Rusi Mertz; Charles Fair; Irma Fair; Pearl Wheelock; Fran Runyan; Ella Lee, Guy Esaco. For Central League, R.L.W.; M.P. Wilson. Buckaroos, E. Lehning; Ray Stewart; Bill Jones; Bun Miller. See list on Bulletin Board.

Also, on bulletin board there was a card from ExOBPer, Adolph Numedahl (Oak St.), saying "Everything OK with him. Hopes the same with the park friends. Gladys Baier and Elinor Martin write to him. Don't want to ever forget OBP as it is his favorite spot." His address: Adolph Numedahl, Aase Haugen Home, Decorah, Iowa 52101.

Art students needed

Senior citizens interested in learning to paint with oils or acrylics are needed to make up a class being taught Monday mornings at the Langford Park field house.

Class sessions began Monday, taught by Helen Walls and sponsored by the Adult Education program, however a minimum number of 15 students is needed to continue the course.

Sessions are held from 9 a.m. until noon Mondays. There is a $5 fee for the ten-week course.

Entertainment for the coming October meeting will be provided by Kim Rantz of the School of Dramatics in Jensen Beach. She is to present innovations in drama procedure. New members and guests are invited. Refreshments will be served.

The next board meeting will be held at the home of Paul Goldberg on Thursday, Oct. 16 at Terre Verdi.

Best fishing is here says Herb Dishman

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Every year many newcomers give fishing a try and not catching their limit on first try, give up. Oscar Dishman says they are missing a lot of good health fun, along with many delicious meals, by being so easily discouraged. And, he should know, as he has been extremely successful in fishing the local water, for over ten years and to this day often gets mentioned on radio or TV as getting the most, the best, or the biggest.

Oscar learned fishing from his dad when a lad on a farm that was right on the banks of the Cumberland River in Michigan. Oscar said that any time at all, they could go down to the river and get a big string of fish for the evening meal. That convinced him that fishing was "for him," and he spent the next 70 years trying to get enough.

Fortunately, Oscar has three brothers and three sisters still living, although he did lose his wife Margret in 1978. However, he has two sons to carry on the fishing traditions. One in Stuart, who at times is out-doing his father on radio and T.V. with "Junior" Dishman, just came in with the biggest fish or that." Also, there is another son up in Michigan, where Oscar goes on his annual jaunts, who has a wharf where Oscar can without much effort get a string of Blue Gills.

Although, Oscar rather fish than eat, he did work 35 years for General Motors in Pontiac, and always liked his work, but best of all he liked building the "Jigs & Fixtures" for the Greyhound Bus production. However, after fishing all the Great Lakes and nearby inland waters, when Oscar retired in 1965, he headed for Florida to conquer new fishing grounds. He first tried all around the state, before deciding that right here was the best fishing and OBP was the place for him, and he has not been sorry one single day.

Sailfishing was tried a few times without too much success, before Oscar found that Snook and Trout fishing were just the thing, but if the Blues were running in the surf, he wouldn't pass them up.

First, he did a lot of competitive fishing, winning many prizes for the most in weight, etc., with almost constant mention on radio and T.V. (and hauling with him a full of clippings to look over, some rainy day). But, now it's fun fishing all the time, and still great fun, says Oscar, to catch a 30 pound snook and a 3½ pound flounder, as he did one week recently and since, back from Michigan, Oscar has caught four of the best eating size snook, so hasn't lost any skill or interest.

When asked how he does it, he just remarked that you have to keep at it, learn your fish and have the proper tackle. Live bait of mullet or shrimp does fine at times and a box full of lures, will get 'em if they are around. And, says Oscar, 100 pound test line is a must for the bridges, as the darn snook will go down under.

In answer to the question, what was your most memorable catch, Oscar said it was a 70 pound Sturgeon in Lake St. Clair on a night crawler, using 30 pound test line. It took over a ½ hour to bring him in with all the other fishermen clearing the area and giving plenty of verbal encouragement, to make sure he did land that big one.

Oscar admitted that he did take time off pinochle, but with this area such a perfect place to do what he liked best fishing — he had hardly had time for anything else. So, anytime you see Oscar heading for a body of water, you'll know what he's "up-to."

Belly dancing, anyone?

Any aspiring belly dancers are sought for a ten-week course to be offered through the Jensen Beach Community Education Center.

Classes will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Mondays in the Community Room of the Jensen Lanes as soon as a minimum ten students register, according to Jay Jarrett, CEC coordinator.

Connie Scapanda, who danced under the professional name of Rahmina for more than 20 years, including appearances at The Dunes in Las Vegas and New York's Latin Quarter, will be the instructor.

Belly dancing will tone muscles, improve concentration and poise and increase self-confidence, says Scapanda. The seemingly enormous and muscle control techniques are similar to those taught in the Lamaze method of natural childbirth.

Fee for the course is $15 and registrations are being accepted by Jarrett at 334-1261 weekdays after 2 p.m.

First Southern holdings announces appointments

First Southern Holdings, the real estate company developing Martin Downs, Inc. announced two recent appointments in the expansion of that company.

Tom Sansbury has been named vice president of Planning and Operations. In this capacity, he will be directing the design and certification of the utility system for Martin Downs. Sansbury is well acquainted with this project, having served as Project Director during the recently completed public approval process.

The second appointment is that of Dave R. Giunta as First Southern's Vice President of Finance. Mr. Giunta is a graduate of Syracuse University and was previously affiliated with the accounting firm of Price Waterhouse & Co. in Fort Lauderdale. In his capacity as Vice President of Finance, Mr. Giunta will be responsible for finance and administration of the company's overall South Florida operations, including the Martin Downs development.

Community Bridge Club

A 10-table Mitchell movement game Sept. 26 averaged 108 with North-South winners Peggy Waring and Dr. Waring, 130; Gus Kang and Dot George 126; Gus Gennerous and Al Mason, 123; Anne Mooney and Steve Stanton, 118; Nelle Seagle and Maree Hagg 118.

East-West winners were Florence Miller and Tom Walker 135; Cora Lee Irwin and Mildred Skinner 133; Bert and Al Dengler 130; Harriet Murray and Kyrtle White 127.

On Sept. 29 the club held an 11-table Mitchell game with an average of 108. North-South winners were Dot George and Al Mason, 130; Sara Clausen and Bob Garcia, 129; Mary Perdomo and Katie Kang 121; Dot McColl and Helen Tokash, 118.

East-West winners were Jean Bergmann and Mildred Skinner 129; Peg Wagg and Al Smith, 125; Wilma Robertson and Bobby Ourwater 125; Jean Matrisse and Jack Wagg [illegible].

Game time is 1 p.m. Mondays and Fridays in the Harry Hoke Community Room of the First Federal S&L Assn. Jensen Beach. All players are welcome and a partner is usually available. Kay Monroe, director, 334-1868.

Singers will note this

In an effort to recruit chancel choir members, Diane Fiore, music director of Stuart's First United Presbyterian Church, is running an unusual "unconvention opportunity" ad in the church's monthly newsletter.

Seeking choir members between the ages of 16-18, she lists under physical qualifications: able to carry light music notes part way across the sanctuary and adequate vision to see the director 30 feet away.

Applicants "must have sung, hummed or whistled in tub or shower at some time" and those who demonstrate unusual courage and ability may be asked to sing a solo, move a piano or set up chairs.

As for [illegible] benefits, Fiore writes, "When your voice reaches the point where it can hit two notes at the same time, you may sit in the congregation."

All Saints rummage sale

Fall rummage sale of the All Saints Episcopal Church Guild will be held from 9 a.m. until noon Saturday, Oct. 11, at the church in Jensen Beach.

WWI Auxiliary party was held

At Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of World War I, Barracks 854, recent card party table prizes were won by Leon LaRoche, Thelma Gordon, Agnes Berg, Anna Schantz, Margaret Rausch, and Therese Wittnebert.

Door prizes were won by Love LaRoche, Mom Cunningham and Hazel Houghton.

The next card party will be held Oct. 23 in Hoag Hall of the All Saints Church in Jensen Beach at 12:30 p.m. For reservations, call Mrs. Julia Gallahan, 334-5406, or Mrs. Eleanor Diffendal, 334-0486.

Rio Civic Club held card party

Rio Civic Club [illegible] at the Sept. 30 card party were Ivy Wahl, Mary Stockwell, Marie Knight, Marion Davis, Genevieve Bell, Jerome Hatch, Edith Beck, Ruth Gass, Emily Stone, Florence Combs, Sabrina Forster, Lila Cunningham, Karen Margaritis, and Bert Allen. Mrs. A. Knapp won the door prize.

Serving as hostesses were Aileen O'Neil, Mary Stockwell, Freda Schimm, and Genevieve Hensley.

The next card party will be held Tuesday, Oct. 14.

Bruce Whitty is athlete of week

Bruce Whitty, varsity cross country runner for Martin County High School, has come in as number one or number two man in every meet so far this year.

The 12th grade letterman now running for his second year in this week's Martin County "Athlete of the Week," in the Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai weekly competition.

"He's an outstanding runner," said MCHS head coach Gary Jones. "He's improved his time each week. He's a consistent runner with good dedication and he's a good team person."

An award is made each week in the school year to an outstanding runner by the Ft. Pierce frontier in cooperation with The Mirror and newspapers in the four-county area.

A monthly winner is selected from among the weekly winners to receive a trophy and at the end of the year an "Athlete of the Year" is selected to receive a $500 scholarship from Ft. Pierce Jai-Alai.

Swimnastics at MCHS

Swimnastics, physical exercises to be done in a swimming pool will be taught in a class beginning Oct. 14 at Martin County High School. Teachers will be Sue Schweer and Marion Caldcart, who designed the program to benefit swimmers and non-swimmers of all ages.

Swimnastics offers a way to improve figure control, reduce weight, and increase [illegible] endurance, the program originators say. It is water therapy for those unable to exercise because of physical limitations.

Classes will meet from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. An eight-class series costs $20. The pool is heated. Registrations will be accepted during the first class session but classes are limited. To register in advance, call 287-0121 or 287-0067.

Regional planners to meet

Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council will meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 16, at Howard Johnson's, U.S. 1, Stuart.

DOUGLAS SLOCKBOWER rides a western and english horse hunters for a number of years, and has a long line of pleasure mare. Douglas has been involved in the Arabian championship awards to show for his efforts.

Arabian horses are for sharing

BY CATHIE MACAULAY

Douglas Slockbower is a broker.

Rather than dealing with stocks and bonds, however, he buys and sells horses. Specifically, Arabian horses.

Horses are anything but new to Douglas. He has been included in almost every facet of the business throughout his career which began in '48. Whether training or showing, he admits his wide ranging enthusiasm for horses stemmed from an early age desire to one day own an elegant animal. Now, some years later, he has specialized that youthful goal into the field of Arabian horse breeding.

As in most other animal championship associations, the climb to the top is steep for a potential prize-winning horse. Douglas says that of the 40,000 registered Arabians today, only 500 of those are championship prospects.

The remaining 35,500 horses are not inexpensively purchased, however. According to Douglas, prices for Arabians have skyrocketed so tremendously over the past six years, that many people can't afford them. He adds that a good Arabian brood mare will cost anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000.

For the few horses that attain a championship level, the selling price is set in the millions.

According to Douglas, a prize-winning Arabian is not the result of pure happenstance. It takes years of cross-breeding to erase defects and promote other positive traits in horses. In the Arabian Horse Association, a family tree is of primary importance, and plays a large role in determining both the potential and price of an Arabian.

Although Douglas lives in Fort St. Lucie, and has his kitchen cabinetry business in Jensen Beach, his consulting work takes him throughout the country. Frequently he travels to Arabian horse farms to render an opinion on the potential of other owner's horses. He admits there have been times when he's been forced to tell owners that their expensive, thought to be Arabian champions were not worth being bred. But, Douglas adds, they come back later to tell him his opinion was valid one.

Currently, Douglas is spending his time and energy on one Arabian, named Ju-Li Paradaisus, who is stabled in a New Jersey farm. Doug believes that Ju-Li will follow in his father's footsteps to become a champion. His sire, Gai Parada, was also owned by Douglas, but has been recently sold to a syndicate.

Douglas says that with the ever-increasing prices Arabians are commanding, syndication is being practiced by more people. The system is organized similar to a corporation. Shares are sold to purchasers, who then own a certain percentage of the horse.

Ideally five people form a syndication, says Douglas. The cost of promoting, breeding, and stabling the Arabian is divided among the owners.

Syndication brings a variety of alternatives to investors looking for a long term profit. Douglas says that the Arabian Association works on a point system that generally takes a horse five years to accumulate the needed marks.

To qualify for the national championship, an Arab must place first in all four divisions. The arena include buggy driving, english pleasure, western pleasure, and park horse division.

To capture the title is a time-consuming process. But for Douglas, the prize is always well-worth the wait. For in his opinion, these originally bred war horses that dutifully carried their riders across the barren desert, have evolved into the most elegant of horses. For Douglas, it's a childhood dream fulfilled.

Jensen's sea turtles on TV Sunday at 7 p.m.

BY DICK LUNDIN

If you can get to a television set next Sunday at 7 p.m., tune in the ABC network for a one-hour show entitled "Those Amazing Animals."

Regularly starring on this weekly show are Burgess Meredith, Jim Stafford and Priscilla Presley, and this week some of Florida's green and loggerhead sea turtles will be in it as featured performers.

Ross Witham, marine biologist in charge of the Jensen Beach Green Turtle Restoration Project carried on at the Stuart Field Laboratory of the Florida Department of Natural Resources, also is to appear in the segment with the turtles he has studied for 25 years.

This show features Witham's current project, begun in 1971, to test the feasibility of head-starting baby green turtles, an endangered species. Threatened loggerhead turtles also get a head start from Witham and his staff, who study the management of sea turtles and the impact of man-made coastal development on them.

Witham says he welcomes the chance for turtles to be on network television, pointing out that it is welcome publicity for the turtle project.

Public education is the most important aspect of our program. Ocean front property owners have been some of the best protectors of the turtles. We've had little old ladies lie down in the sand in front of heavy beach-cleaning equipment to prevent it from crushing nests," Witham said, while commending the public for helping to save eggs and baby turtles.

Teams of researchers were filmed gathering newly laid turtle eggs for incubating and hatching in the laboratory. The young turtles are tagged and released at six months to a year of age and are tracked to determine their oceanic survival rate, growth and dispersal.

If you haven't visited the turtle tanks at the House of Refuge onthe ocean just below the Elliott Museum, make it a point to do so soon. There, in addition to seeing some worthwhile nautical artifacts, you'll see examples of recent turtle hatches, and some mature sea turtles as well. It's open from 1-5 p.m. every weekday.

THE 1980 ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Florida Audubon Society will take place at Wekiwa Springs State Park, Oct. 24-26.

The convention, which begins late Friday afternoon, features endangered species of all types, mammals, birds, amphibians and plants in field trips and presentations, some of which will include live animals.

The overnight and meeting facilities of the Wekiwa Springs State Park Youth Camp are new and attractive, according to the Florida Audubon Society. Those wishing to stay in the cabins (10 to a cabin, dormitory-style) are advised to indicate this on their registration blank and to bring along their own linens. Camping is not permitted.

Registration for the convention is $10 per person, which includes accommodations in the Park. All meals (dinner Friday, breakfast, lunch and dinner Saturday, and breakfast on Sunday) are $25 per person. Participants are encouraged to pre-register before Oct. 15.

For more information and registration forms, get in touch with D. Schofield, Convention, Florida Audubon Society, P.O. Drawer 7, Maitland, Florida, 32751 (305-647-3615).

BASSERS will be interested to learn that Bo Dowden of Natchitoches, La., won the 1980 Bassmasters Classic fished recently up at Alexandria Bay, N.Y.

He won the world finals of bass fishing, and an additional $40,000, including first-place money of $30,000 and a $10,000 bonus for fishing with Du Pont Stren line. His 54-pound, 10-ounce three-day creel was the best among the 41-angler field fighting for a total purse of $86,000 in the "Super Bowl" of bass fishing.

AN ENERGY SAVING BOATING TIP from the United States Power Squadrons: "Reduce distance — Navigating a boat from A to B can represent many widely differing fuel expenditures, depending on the skipper. He can plot the shortest course, not just the easiest. He can steer it more carefully. Courses should be laid out using prevailing winds and tides to best advantage. He can find a weekend rendezvous closer to home. Two boat families can combine and by pooling save half the fuel ordinarily used."

THE 1981 SAILBOAT SHOW ANNUAL of Cruising World Magazine is now on the news stands at $3 per copy. It is packed with sailboaters' lore, including Hiscock's latest crusing tips, 15 pages of practical ideas and details, and specs of 100 yachts.

In the wake of a recent episode of piracy in the Bahamas, the question of carrying guns aboard becomes more grave, according to Cruising World, and more controversial too. In this issue appear the results of a survey of Crusing World readers. Reader response was strong, and the letters ran four to one in favor of carrying weapons aboard.

Also in the 1981 annual is a series of articles ranging from an ingenious approach to constructing an inflatable life raft to a piece on spontaneous combustion.

If you're a sailor or just enjoy reading about sailing and the sea, pick up a copy, look it over, and I think you'll buy it.

THE 1980-81 HUNTING ANNUAL of the National Rifle Association is off the press and you can get a copy by sending $2 to the NRA, 1600 Rhode Island Ave., N.W., Washington D.C. 20036.

This publication seems to be more for the experienced hunter who plans to do some hunting outside the state. It does have some interesting information, however, such as there are an estimated 200,000 javelinas(peccaries) in Texas but only 3,546 in New Mexico. If you are after mountain goats, don't try Oregon where there are estimated to be just 35 but give it a go in the state of Washington where they estimate they have 8,000 and expect to harvest 282 this year. Florida has an estimated 40,000 turkeys, but Arkansas has 150,000 and Alabama a whopping 250,000.

However, if you're a beginning hunter and are planning a big game hunt, this annual tells you what to do.

DOVE HUNTERS, who began the first phase of the dove season on Oct. 4 (it runs through Nov. 2), must observe shooting hours from noon until sunset, but will have extended hours from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset during the last two phases, Nov. 8-23 and Dec. 13 through Jan. 4, according to action taken recently by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Fred Stanberry, director of the Division of Wildlife for the GFWFC, said that there will be five public dove fields which will not offer all-day shooting during any of the phases. Open for shooting between noon and sunset will be the T.G. Lee field in Orange County, Buchalla field in Marion County, Tri-City field in Lake County, Three Lakes Wildlife Management Area and the Apalachicola Airport field in Franklin County.

THE MOON WILL BE NEW on Oct. 8, first-quarter on the 16th, full on the 23rd and last-quarter on the 30th. Apogee moon (farthest from the earth) is on Oct. 9 and perigee (nearest) on Oct. 23 when it's full. The full moon of Oct. 23 is the hunter's moon. Since perigee occurs so close to the full moon this month, you can expect some exceptionally strong tides on Oct. 23-24.

If you'd like to hunt the Orionid meteors, Thomas Nicholson suggests that you scan the skies from 1 a.m. on Oct. 21. They will be about 25 per hour, swift and often bright.

On Oct. 24, Mars and Antares (the bright red star of Scorpius) are in conjuction, both low in the southwest at dusk.

On Oct. 26, set your clocks back on hour early this morning.

On Oct. 30-31, look for Venus (the brighter) and Jupiter on both mornings, in the east at dawn. Venus passes Jupiter at about 3 p.m. on the 30th, with Saturn below the two.

If you want to watch the Leonid meteors, the swiftest, brightest and most famous of all meteors, you'll have to wait until Nov. 15-16.

Remember to keep your cool on Oct. 23 when the tides will run strong and the hunter's moon will flood the evening skies!

OUTDOOR NEWS
by Dick Lundin

THE HOUSE OF REFUGE—is the place to go if you want to see some big loggerhead and green sea turtles and also some baby turtles being readied for release one day when they're six to 12 months old and better able to cope with the dangers at sea. You can get there by going south along the beach from A1A through Indian River Plantation just east of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge.

Those blues are back in the surf! Go get 'em!

BY DICK LUNDIN

WITH BIG SCHOOLS OF BLUES back in the surf, this is the time to do some surf fishing with cut bait or spoons for the feisty 1-3 pound snapper blues around a high tide from daylight up to perhaps 10 a.m.

Although the scrappy little blues are ranging up and down the beach, the best spots for them appear to be just south of the power plant and below the Oceana condo. The area south of the Holiday Inn below the Jensen Causeway is pretty good too.

If you elect to use cut bait, and it's best after the early action dies down, you might do well to buy one of those torpedo bluefish rigs with the fluorescent orange-colored float that has the bait float some 10 inches above the sand, out of reach of marauding crabs bent on stealing your cut mackerel, ribbon fish, or whatever. This rig comes in a whiting size also if the tasty whiting are your quarry.

FISHING OTHERWISE is average to good. There are Southern flounder in the river and if you'll use a three-eighths to five-eighths ounce troll rite hook, hook your live shrimp through the head from the chin up through the head away from the black spot, and bounce it along the bottom in ever increasing concentric circles to cover as much bottom as possible, you should come up with a succulent flounder or two. That wooden pier on the Jensen Causeway just east of Poor Bob's is frequently a haven for flounder.

If you'd like to catch some really big mangrove or Lane snappers, use small live pinfish and fish the deep holes in the St. Lucie Inlet.

Boaters fishing the Weakfish Hole just south of the Ernest Lyons (25 cent) Bridge have been having occasional success with live shrimp on snook and black drum. There are blues, croakers and big river whiting at and just west of the Cross Roads where the St. Lucie and Indian Rivers marry up.

OFFSHORE, there are scattered dolphin to 30 lbs, a few king mackerel, scads of bonito, a few sails in 180 ft. S.E. of the SL Inlet, and some big mutton snappers out at Six Mile Reef off the inlet. Tilefishing is reported good way out in 500 ft. of water where some big dolphin have been taken this past week.

FROM THE LADY STUART, party boat (286-1860) docking at the Sailfish Marina east of Port Salerno off A1A below Stuart, Capt. Martin Moody who reports that his boat is back in action: "We're going out from 8 to 12 a.m. every day, and Wednesday and Friday nights from 7-11. Pretty soon now we'll start going afternoons again, once the winter season begins. Fishing's been decent, Dick, some nice dolphin yesterday, a few kings, lots of sea bass and trigger fish, fishing about four miles off Holiday Inn. At night, we get some nice 1-3 lb. blues there too. The lights seem to attract them."

FRANK DOBSON, from Bluckhead Ridge Marina over on the north shore of Lake Okeechobee, just off SR 78 and west of the Kissimmee River Bridge (813-763-2826): "The boys are starting to pick up some nice bass to 7-0 (7 lbs.). They're getting them on plastic worms at the mouth of the Kissimmee River. I'm expecting some real good speck fishing to start in just any day now. They've been getting some at the river bridge and in the deep holes out in the lake using tiny white jigs with a silver head (Cotton Cordell). Bluegills are still biting but they are smaller now."

FROM THE MANATEE RESORT BAIT SHOP, J. D. Sachs: "There are a few snook being taken early on an outgoing tide at the SL Inlet. There are pompano under those big schools of silver mullet along the beach. Steve Sun of Hongkong had a 6 ft. 7-inch sail this week. There are blues just off the beach. The Spanish mackerel are reportedly working their way down the coast following the schools of silver mullet and should be here soon. They're still getting a few sails in 180 ft. of water a little S.E. of the SL Inlet. Carlos Sanchez had a 7 ft. 9-inch sail this week fishing from the Edna R. There's still good tilefishing and grouper action on the reefs way out. There are big mutton snapper at Six Mile Reef. There are still some big mangrove snappers inside the inlet and blues at the Cross Roads near Sailfish Point. The bonito are back. Bob Starkey got a 35 D bull dolphin but they're scarce."

MURIEL WEIDEMAN, from D&M Bait and Tackle just south of the Roosevelt Bridge on U.S. 1 north of Stuart: "It was a little slow on the bridge this past weekend and on Sunday very few fished there for some reason or another. I hear that they're catching snook at night from the Palm City Bridge, and that there were lots of Spanish mackerel in the Jensen surf Sunday. Here, they are getting a few drum, sheepshead, mangrove snappers and croakers. One fisherman caught an 8-0 seatrout fishing near that little Coast Guard building by the R.R. tracks at the boat ramp just east of the big bridge. There are lots of puffers there."

FROM THE BAIT BOX in Jensen, Chuck Shepherd: "There are a few blues in the surf and some dolphin offshore, Conrad White caught 3 dolphin to 15-0 east of the S.L. Inlet in 400-500 ft. of water, fishing rigged squid from My Gal Sal. Randy Smith caught a 4-0 drum and 10 sand perch on fresh dead shrimp from the Jensen Causeway; Ron and Fran Kohler, 31 blues, a mangrove snapper and a whiting, cut mullet surf; Maurice Levine, 9 snapper blues (1-2 lbs.), Krocodile spoon, Jupiter surf. There were a lot of people fishing this week, Dick."

DAVE LAMB, from Jensen Bait and Tackle: "John Deschamps caught 4 snook to 20-0 and Ken Scott 2 black drum to 15-0 and a 5-0 snook, both fishing with live shrimp just south of the Ernest Lyons Bridge; Joe Ianeri, 5 blues and 2 whiting, cut mullet and sand fleas, the Mudhole just south of the Oceana condo; Peter Thompson, 12 whiting, 4 pompano; and a blue, sand fleas, cut mullet and ribbon fish, south of the Holiday Inn; Bob James, 22 whiting and a pompano on live shrimp and sand fleas, fishing the surf just north of the Holiday Inn.

FROM THE SNOOK NOOK in Jensen, Tom Stewart: "Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the blues were back in the surf in good numbers, hitting 1.5 ounce Krocodile spoons between 6 and 10 a.m. on high tides. The best places are the Mudhole just south of the Oceana condo and Normandy Beach just below the power plant. Later in the day, fishermen are using cut bait fishing way out just off the bottom. Most are using a rig like the torpedo bluefishing rig with an orange-colored fluorescent float, to keep the cut bait out of the reach of crabs. There are not too many whiting or croakers where the blues are feeding.

In the river, the Southern flounder are here and this is the time to fish for them with a three-eighths or five-eighths ounce troll rite hook baited with a live shrimp and bounced along the bottom. Some folks are spearing flounder at night on the flats, using lights to attract them. Around the wooden pier at the Jensen Causeway is a good place for flounder. There are small snook in the river and very few big ones anywhere now. There are seatrout in the river from Herman's Bay to Little Mud Creek, on the grass flats. If you want some big mangrove snappers, fish from the Cross Roads to the St. Lucie Inlet with small live bait. You'll catch nice Lane snappers too. Trolling the S. Fork of the St. Lucie River with a 20S nylure jig tipped with shrimp is good for mangrove snappers and small snook."

The Nook's log: Jack Braddock, 6 blues, Harold Abbott, 3 blues, and Clara Brumeister, 21 blues, Krocs, surf; Tony Battaglia, 20 blues in 2 days, cut bait and Krocs, surf, S. of Holiday Inn; George Lindman 12 blues in 1 hr., Krocs, surf; John and Robbie Blackard, 2 kings to 20-0, trolling rigged mullet in 150 ft. S.E. of the inlet; Darryl Prew, 14 dolphin to 20-0, 80-90 ft. on trolled ballyhoo; Tom Riley, 10 Lane and mangrove snappers, 4-0 to 5-0, live pinfish, SL Inlet; John and Myra Heyburn, St. Lucie River west of the Cross Roads, 30 croakers, 10 "weaks" and 5 big whiting, a nylure jig tipped with shrimp; Bill Ditzel and Charlie Kessler, 3 trout to 4-0, a 4-0 snook, a 5-0 flounder, a sheepshead and a croaker, live shrimp, power line mangroves; Ed and Penny Hughes, 8 blues, cut mackerel, surf; Bob McCourt, an 8-0 snook, red and white plug, surf, Normandy Beach.

Fishing series to be repeated

The seminar series "Local Fish, Catch 'n' Cook" which drew a standing room only crowd of more than 200 in the spring will be held again starting Wednesday, Oct. 15, at the Environmental Studies Center at 7:30 p.m.

The series of five presentations on different methods of fishing is co-sponsored by the Jensen Beach Community Education Center and the Martin County Angler's Society.

The opening lecture will feature Ron Ellis who will discuss bridge fishing and demonstrate various rods, reels, lures and accessories preferred by local fishermen.

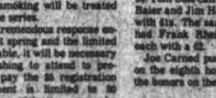
On Oct. 22, Dr. Walter Stokes will discuss fresh water bass fishing with special emphasis on the Savannas.

Surf fishing will be the topic on Oct. 29 when Tony Battaglia explains how he annually catches hundreds of pounds of bluefish on the shore of Hutchinson Island.

Wading the Indian River in search of trout will occpy the Nov. 5 session as Angler's president, Robert Hamberger explains how he does it.

Final lecture on Nov. 12 will feature Lou Smitten discussing offshore fishing methods and equipment. Preparation of the catch and methods of cooking and smoking will be treated throughout the series.

Due to the tremendous response encountered last spring and the limited seating available, it will be necessary for those wishing to attend to preregister and pay the $5 registration fee. Enrollment is limited to 30 students. Pre-registration may be accomplished by calling Jay Jarrett, 334-1363 after 7 p.m. weekdays. Seats are available on a first-come basis.



Men's golf club held tournament

Archie Taylor won flight A with a net of 59 as the Northport Men's Golf Association competed Tuesday morning. Clyde Stettlemayer had a 60.

In flight B Howard Pettinger had a 54. Tom Cole came in with a58. George Baier and Jim Hensel tied for flight C with 61s. The same result in flight D had Frank Rhein and Hal Nowicki each with a 62.

Joe Carned put his tee shot closest on the eighth hole. Ed Beswick took the honors on the 13th hole.

Shelly Babb; a star in golf future

BY MIKE SANDY

The Treasure Coast has produced another sports luminary in the person of 16-year old Shelly Babb of Jensen Beach who many believe has a bright star shining on her future in golf circles. A sophomore at the University of Alabama and a member of that school's women's golf team, Miss Babb scored a one under par tally of 215 to waltz off with the medalist honors in the 54 hole Lady Seminole Golf tournament sponsored annually by Florida State University. Her rounds of 70-70-72 paved the way for Alabama's win over 15 other teams entered in the event with FSU placing third and U. of Miami, fourth.

The 17th hole of the Sandpiper Bay Saints' course continues to be the site of gaiety and joy. This particular hole has produced more "hurdles" than any other on the 18-hole course and has also been the scene of sadness. The 17th was the site of where Bill Jahn almost lost his life when struck by lightning several weeks ago. Last week The Lord chose this hole to claim the life of Al Bonvenci, a member of the Sandpiper Men's Association who was reported to have been stricken with a heart attack as he approached the 17th green. Ironically, it was also the hole where Ben Jahn, wife of Bill, threw up her chip shot to score a birdie. There are those who play the course with regularity who want to play 17-hole matches by skipping the 17th.

Reports have it that Lou Sabo, a noted teaching professional who recently retired from a pro position in Chicago, has come out of retirement to take the head pro job at Martin County Country Club in Stuart. Sabo, a life member of the PGA is making his home at Crane Creek and will continue to participate in area's Pro Am events. Dan Gower will continue as assistant pro at Martin County while J. D. Murchison has moved over to Crane Creek assisting J. D. Pyle and Phil Campoli at the Martin Downs site.

It was also learned that Sheree Cunningham, another golf pro out of the Chicago area who has been around the Treasure Coast area for several years, will be accepting a position with the bowling division of AMF which might curtail his participation in the many pro tourneys on tap throughout the season.

The children and grandchildren of Al and Grace Van Nostrand of Port St. Lucie have carved a niche for themselves in the tennis world, only because of some recent events. Al, now in his 74th year, was a member of the Colgate U. golf team for four years and had designs of pursuing a living in the sport, that is until he was wed shortly after graduation in 1938. He married and found out that it was a struggle to put the "bread" on the table for wife Grace and their two children Allan and Kingbee. With a limited income, Al and Grace turned to tennis where they could play on municipal courts, constantly accompanied by their two boys, both of whom took to the game. Both received scholarships and reached a national status. Both Al and "King" are members of the faculty at Bayshore, L.I. High School where they also serve as tennis instructors. Each has tutored their children "well enough" that all six of the Van Nostrand grandchildren have earned or are receiving their education through tennis scholarships. Four of the kids are rated nationally and King is rated second in the nation in the 45 and over group. King won the National Indoors twice — in 1972 and 73 and won the National Clay court in 72 among the 35 and over group.

Two of Allan Van Nostrand's kids, Allan III is ranked No. 1 in the East's 16 year old group and has been the No. 1 player on his school tennis since he was a sixth grade student. Allan and sister Molly represented the U.S. in the 14-16 year stars in a match against a selected all star English team recently in England. Molly, who still attends Bayshore High, is the youngest ever to win the N.Y. State High School singles title and is ranked No. 1 among 14-16 year old groups in the East. In other hoopla accomplishments for the Van Nostrands finds King Jr. on a four year tennis scholarship at Pfeiffer College and John at Pepperdine U. and Jane a partial scholarship at Furman U. It was also reported that Molly, the baby of the lot was featured in an article in Sports Illustrated Magazine earlier this year. Is it any wonder that Grace Van Nostrand is constantly looking for buttons to sew on Al Van Nostrand's shirts? As far as Al Sr. is concerned he is thankful that his offsprings were such that the game of tennis was economically more within the Van Nostrand budget or the kids and grandchildren might never had been exposed to the game which has brought so many rewards to the family.

Pros and amateurs alike were dazzled in their opinions that the Heritage Ridge Pro Am staged last Saturday at the Hobe Sound executive layout was one of the "best" in which they have participated. They were especially pleased with the money allocated and that the layout is truly "For the Young at Heart". Proving very popular with all the contestants was the "promo" on the par three fourth hole of "challenge" money should you hit the green with your toy shot. You just couldn't lose, "cause if you did not hit the green you received a gift certificate in the amount bet. Tom Cioffi, head pro at Heritage, and Terry Kendrig, co-developer of the facility, are to be congratulated for an outstanding event which we understand will be repeated by a Spring Invitational. Once again, contestants will have a shot at winning a new car for a hole-in-one on the seventh. Many came close in driving home the lucky car Saturday with one shot only one foot out of the hole. Volunteers who helped make the day included Cheryl Buckland, Carolyn Sanborn, mgr. of the Tree House, Russ Barbara, Nancy Sandlin, Dee Swift, Valerie Gowran, Jeanne Stetson, Eleanor Le' Marie, Evelyn Ahern, Ruth Ayers, Chris Shelton, Susan Gould who furnished the art work and Pat Turley. There are many of the pros who are anxiously awaiting another shot at the course and try to erase the competitive course record established by Bob Rosburg of 63 which also recorded a 62. Ironically, Phil Campoli of Crane Creek, playing a practice round prior to the event, carded a 57, one shot of Chuck Koebels's unofficial record of 56.

Simmons shines in Sandpiper Stableford

The bells rung loud and clear along San Jeronimo Road Thursday well into the night calling attention to the entire neighborhood that Ken Simmons a 16 handicap golfer, had entered the charmed circle of the "Break Eighty" club in Sandpiper Bay Men's Association action on the Saints course. Simmons' score of 79 was termed as "sweet as pie" as he compiled 45 Stableford points to capture twofold laurels in the day's action.

The only other score under 80 for the day was posted by Jim Oram who led the field with a 78.

Simmons' point tally was by far the best of the field as he racked up five more points over his closest rivals, 40 points carded by Bob Klinedinst, Lenny Appel and Evan Phillips.

Ed Schneider was all by himself with 39 points followed by Bill Griffin, "Chuck" Heiden and Henry Vinson each with 38.

Among the also rans who finished for "in-the-money" slots at 37 were Henry Small, Harold Roberts and Jim Oram. The 36 point slot was filled by seven, —namely: Howard Chase, Ken Pagel, Fred Schechterle, Bill Kelso, Bob Downing, Bob Turner, "Chuck" Duqual and Roy Rutherford.

With the gradual return of many members from northern summer vacations, the field for Thursday's play should find more than 150 in competition on the Saints Champion ship course. The next event announced by the Tournament chairman, Jim Healy will be foursome play with the best ball on each hole to figure in the scoring.

Sandtrap

BY MIKE SANDY

With many of the north country pro golfers making their way to Treasure Coast homes for the winter months, there are indications that the field in the Pro-Am's scheduled at both the Sandpiper Bay Resort and Mariner Sands courses will be filled to capacity fields, according to pros Chuck Johnson and Ed Knebels.

The next event, which has attracted the leading pros and amateurs of the area, is slated for the Sandpiper course Oct. 10 followed by a similar event at Mariner Sands on Oct. 17.

In Friday's play, which attracted 17 four man teams at Sandpiper Saints, two area stalwarts finished in a deadlock at two under par 70. Larry Rinker, who just came off mini tour events in New England where he amassed more than $10,000, carded a 70 to finish in a two-way tie for top pro honors in the field with David Graham, a member of the greens crew at Sandpiper Bay. J. J. LaFlair abd J D. Murchison were only one shot off the pace in a tie for second place with one under scores of 71 while Dave Turner carded 73 followed by a trio with 74's in chafing Kelly Childs, Mid Rivers; Paul Wyrybowski, Vero Beach and Dan Gower, Martin County C.C.

Top awards in the team event, two best balls of a foursome was shared by a trio of teams deadlocked at like figures of 19-under par 125's and included pros Dave Turner, Scott Perry and Steve Cunningham. Their respective amateur partners were: John Connors, Vic Georgeff, Jay Cohen, Armand Mastrodonardi, John Link, Hal Heffin, Jack Dalton, Ken Kolb and Seymour Fleming.

In-the-money quartets were those of J.D. Murchison, pro; Wayne M. Malmquist, Doug Espeseth and Tom Magno.

Larry Rinker, who stopped off to visit his family in Stuart, led a team to the next slot and included Toby Acierno, John Burmeister and Harold Goldman. A team led by pro J.J. LaFlair tied with the Rinker team at 177 and had amateurs George Garabedian, Frank Perry and Ken Bowers.

Rinker came to the home area with a close friend and colleague on the mini tours Mitch Kemper of San Diego, Calif. Both will take a shot at the PGA tour qualifying round to be tested in Palm Beach next week. Larry and Mitch could earn spots on the money PGA tours with rounds to earn them exempt spots inthe season's tour events.

Tennis

BY TOM FALKENBURG
Director of Tennis — Indian River Plantation

On the subject of tennis elbow, Dr. James Priest, M.D., speaking at the recent US Professional Tennis Association convention, also covered some of the problems and cures we've been sharing with you over the past few weeks.

Some of research included, Stan Smith ex-world champ has a very bad stroke on his backhand. (Stan has had a very bad arm for years.) Forty-five percent of world class players have had some kind of elbow pain. With all this research, he says very little research has been done. Etiology, an enigma, why?! Forty-three forms of non-surgical methods of curing or trying have been prescribed. The elbow band does help.

Most doctors are still not sure about racket change and should it be heavier or lighter, or change string or? Age no barrier — 12-year-olds and 70-year-olds get T.E. He concurred on Lateral Epicondyle as most common type of T.E. (It proved to me that if you use your elbow you are susceptible to tennis elbow.

In one study, 61 percent had T.E.; it lasts an average of one year.

Ninety-three percent of T.E. pain comes from tennis, 14 percent had some other problem that help it along. Findings, T.E. cumulative cause. One very interesting finding, wood rackets are more likely to cause T.E.

Tennis shoulder was discussed by Dr. James Priest and should enlighten you to some little known facts. A tennis shoulder is usually a drooping shoulder. Reason: it has more muscle, bigger bones and weighs more so it droops from the weight of the arm. Thoracic Outlet Syndrome, (shoulder droop). Scoliosis, (spinal deformity), found in a 10-year-old Little League pitcher, also occurs in young tennis players. These two shoulder problems also cause neck problems. Main cause, Rotator Cuff, A.C. Osteoarthritis, and Inferior Acromial Spur all are culprits in the Bursa Sack swelling and causing Bursitis.

Things you should be aware of, good and bad positions for your shoulder to be in when hitting a tennis ball. The first thing you should try and do is relieve swelling with aspirin, ice and no heat. Surgery is the last resort. After swelling is gone you can start your own treatment. Decrease overload, but try to strengthen with movement, flexibility, and light weights. Again, they stress to use Cortisone SPARINGLY and respect the hazards it can cause.

Exercise should be for the whole body, and they stress quickness exercises, as it only take a milli-second for muscles to respond. Some coaches are having their students run downhill to speed up their stretch muscles. Warm-up exercise is very important. Get your body and muscles warm before you try to stretch them. All bodies are full of lard, so increase your body temperature first.

Salt is not good, too many, salt tablets are bad. Just replace fluids while playing and use some table salt.

Dr. Nirschi, who has an article in the current World Tennis Magazine, says there are surgeons and then there are surgeons. He is trying to teach all surgeons better ways to operate. As he disagrees with many, I am sure many disagree with him in some techniques, but he has an excellent track record. He recommends a Cibex exercise machine for pronation, problem number one, they cost $16,000.

An easier way is to extend your arms palm up and rotate the arms. In Dr. Nirschi's studies, he prefers Yonex rackets, and says the Prince Green is the worst on causing problems in the elbow and shoulder. Note: Prince stills outsells all others and was used by 70 percent of all seniors in Nat'l Grass. In surgery, Nirschi says don't move the nerve, move the muscle and meat away from the nerve. (That's for those do it yourselfers.)

At every seminar, there is a drawing. Guess what? I won the prize, a Yonex King Rex Racket. Connie promptly declared it hers.

The USPTA National Team Matches: I was appointed captain of the senior team, and in two days had picked a swinning team to go to Sarasota. It was very exciting, going down to the very last match, John Fieganbaum from Jacksonville and I won the final doubles to take the title. There was a tie between N.Y., Southern, Middle Atlantic and Fla. going into the final match. Texas won the overall championship with a very strong bunch of young players, and Fla. came in second.

Dr. Robert Nirschi did a study on exercise, and how much one gets from playing tennis. You may feel that you get a lot more than the following statistics, but listen to this. In case you're feeling gypped about how little exercise you're actually getting on court, the Borg-McEnroe Wimbledon final lasted three hours 52 minutes over five sets. The ball was in play 33 minutes 20 seconds or 14.3 percent of the time. The fourth set tie-breaker lasted 21 minutes, 42 seconds, but the ball was only in play 2 minutes and 8 seconds, or 9.77 percent of the time. Of the 34 points played in the tiebreaker only two points (the first and the fifteenth) exceeded four successful ball impacts.

I wish he would do a study on how many commercials and how much money was paid for the same during that match.

JB man's death investigated

Investigation is continuing in the death of 48-year-old Thomas Wilbur of Jensen Beach who was killed Monday morning when he drove his sports car into the rear of a St. Lucie County school bus on US 1 north of Prima Vista Road.

A St. Lucie County coroner's preliminary report attributes Wilbur's death to multiple skull fractures. Laboratory reports had not yet been completed but an autopsy revealed no indication of a coronary failure before the accident.

Moments before crashing into the bus shortly before 8 a.m. Wilbur had sideswiped an oncoming vehicle and continued on without stopping. Bystanders estimated the speed of the vehicle at about 80 miles an hour.

The school bus struck by Wilbur was carrying handicapped children. Only two youngsters were aboard the bus at the time, Erica Villanueva, 9, and her sister, Jennifer, 7. The driver, Beverly B. Penn, 56, of Ft. Pierce, and the children were treated for cuts and released, according to the Florida Highway Patrol report.

Just prior to colliding with the bus, Wilbur, traveling north on US 1 sideswiped a southbound car driven by William Goeway, 63, of Lake Harbor Mobile Home Park, Ft. Pierce. Without stopping, Wilbur traveled another mile where the second accident happened. Goeway was reportedly uninjured.

Wilbur, who resided at 12475 S. Indian River Drive, Jensen Beach, was en route to work in Ft. Pierce.

Wilbur's body was released yesterday from the Lawnwood Medical Center in Ft. Pierce for burial services in Miami.

DAVID A. JOHNSON

David A. Johnson, 22, of 1992 S.E. Redwing Circle, Port St. Lucie, died Saturday resulting from an automobile-motorcycle accident on 707A Jensen Beach.

He was a native of Rahway, N.J. and recently was in U.S. Navy. His family moved to Port St. Lucie three years ago from Clark, N.J. He was a member of the Catholic faith, and a member of labor union local of Palm Beach. He was employed at Oceana.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. & Mrs. Herbert C. Johnson; two brothers, Herbert Jr. & Jeffrey of Port St. Lucie; one sister Deborah Podesco of Belleville, N.J.; paternal grandparents, Herbert & Dana Johnson of Leesburg, Fla.; and maternal grandmother Pilir Tarbalfs of Metuchen, N.J.

Services were conducted Tuesday at 10 a.m. at John Funeral Home by a priest from St. Joseph Catholic Church. Arrangements were under direction of Johns Funeral Home of Stuart.

Jaycees plan CF bike-a-thon

The Stuart-Jensen Beach Jaycees are sponsoring a Bike-a-Thon to raise money for Cystic Fibrosis. The ride will be held Saturday, October 11 from 8 a.m. till noon at Martin Co. High School.

Persons who want to ride and help the kids with CF can obtain instruction and pledge forms at Wilcox Gallery Homes, Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, Zellner's Grocery, & Dave's Barber Shop in Port Salerno.

Refreshments will be provided & prizes will be awarded. For information, contact Randy Ahers at 288-0886 or 220-5451 evenings.

ABWA plans Sunday Sail

Captains, mates, and landlubbers will be piped aboard a ABWA Boat-a-cade Sunday, Oct. 12, to sail from Bay Harbour Club at 3 p.m. and arrive at Ostrogger Point at 4 p.m.

A cocktail hour will begin at 4 o'clock followed by a buffet dinner at 5:30. The cost is $7.50 per person.

Road rally to be held soon

On Oct. 12, the Indian River Community College Chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America, will sponsor a car rally.

The course is designed to safety-test driving skills. Contestants must complete the course in the fewest number of miles, by following given clues along the way.

Bicyclists, motorcyclists, as well as car drivers, are invited to join in the event.

Registration will take place from 10 a.m. to noon on Oct. 12. The rally will start shortly after noon, and continue until 5 p.m. All contestants will start from the IRCC west parking lot.

NOTICE

NOTICE

A public hearing will be conducted November 10, 1980 at 9:00 A.M., City Hall, City Hall Plaza (corner of Airoso and Port St. Lucie Boulevards) Port St. Lucie, Florida on the following proposed ordinance:

ORDINANCE 80-44

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIANCE TO 668 AND 682 MURRAY, OF 2396 S.E. BORDEAUX COURT, PORT ST. LUCIE, FLORIDA, FROM THE REQUIREMENT OF A 25 FOOT FRONT SETBACK TO ALLOW A 20½ FOOT FRONT SETBACK, PURSUANT TO ORDINANCE 76-1; PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE

THE CITY OF PORT ST. LUCIE HEREBY ORDAINS:

WHEREAS, the City of Port St. Lucie, Florida, was requested by CUSTOM HOUSING SYSTEMS, INC., in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Murray, the sole owners of the land located at 2396 S.E. Bordeaux Court, more particularly described as Lot 35, Block 76, Unit 5, South Port St. Lucie, to grant a variance from the current zoning classification R-2 (Residential), to allow a 20½ foot front setback; and

WHEREAS, the City Council having determined that the granting of this variance will be in harmony with the general purpose and intent of Ordinance 76-1; and

WHEREAS, the City Council having made a finding that the granting of this variance is for the minimum variance that will make possible the reasonable use of this land; and

WHEREAS, the variance will not be detrimental to the public welfare or injurious to the neighborhood, and the City Council having held a public hearing on the ___ day of _____, 1980, and having considered the same,

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDAINED THAT:

1. The property described as: Lot 35, Block 76, Unit 5, South Port St. Lucie, is hereby presently zoned R-2 (Residential), and the City Council grants unto Mr. and Mrs. Murray a variance under the terms of Ordinance 76-1 for the purpose of allowing a 20½ foot front setback on the property described above.

2. This Ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after its final adoption.

PASSED AND APPROVED on first reading by the City Council of the City of Port St. Lucie, Florida, this 30th day of Sept., 1980.

John J. Corrigan

At 82, John Corrigan has gone out on too many fires with the Rio Volunteer Fire Department to recall just one memorable fire.

John joined the department in response to a letter he received that set him thinking about community service. In addition to the time he spends on drills, John is also treasurer.

He lives with his wife and daughter at 900 NW 15th St. in Rio and is employed as a guard.

Kenneth Konight

Ken, 56, is with the Rio Fire Department, and lives at 851 NE Vine Street, Stuart, with his wife Marion and five children, Ellen, Elizabeth, Kathyann, Patricia, and Larry.

He has served over six years in Rio, based his interest aroused in fire fighting with his concern for his family and their safety.

"I also wanted to be of help to my community, he added.

Spending hours a month at the fire house in training and keeping equipment operating, Ken remembers most an electrocution fire in which his responsibility was boning down the charred body of the victim.

He enjoys his service with the department, and recommends that more public minded citizens get involved.

Capt. Edward Sprague

Ed Sprague is a pioneer member of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department, having served for 22 years.

Ed works fulltime and still manages to attend drills and help keep the department's equipment in shape.

A veteran firefighter, Sprague still recalls as his most memorable experience the massive woods fire that spread from Walton Road south to Baker Road in Rio, with firemen able to keep any homes from being burned along the way.

Ed Wrede

Ed Wrede came here from New Bergen County, N.J., seven years ago, bringing his expertise to the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department after serving with the fire department there.

When he retired as a glass blower with a surgical instrument company, Ed expected to "get in a lot of fishing," but his duties as a volunteer fireman and other interests have limited his angling hopes. Ed and wife, Edna, live on Spruce Ridge Avenue.

Lieut. Nicholas J. Flora

Nick Flora, 70, joined the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department eight years ago after ten years' experience in a New Jersey fire department.

Qualified in first aid, Flora finds volunteer firefighting a good way to stay active in the community. He contributes about 60 hours a month sharing the responsibilities of maintaining the department and taking part in the weekly drills. He also serves as secretary-treasurer of the department.

Nick resides at 379 Flora Rd. in Jensen Beach.

George Ruff

George Ruff is now in his third year as a member of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department.

A great believer in community service, George says that serving with the fire department is both interesting and gratifying.

"Everyone should give their service in one way or another, to the community," he said.

George is 34 and lives at 3106 NE Palmetto Dr.

John A. Recca, 24, has been a member of the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department for almost four years.

He joined after he'd expressed an interest in firefighting to a friend who suggested he join the volunteer firemen.

John has had extensive experience in fighting brush fires, both with the local department and before that, and he continues to spend at least 18 hours a month in training sessions.

Recca is employed as a carpenter's helper.

Tom Neeson

Though most people have an image of a fireman only as a fire fighter, Tom says the duties cover a wide variety of things and actually little time is actually spent at a fire. Keeping things clean, watering plants and trees in droughts, and helping keep the roads clear, such as the firemen did during Hurricane David, are all part of the job.

Tom joined the department in June, 1979, and said his prime motivation for joining is because he feels citizens should be community minded and because he felt it was time for some young persons to serve.

Since joining he has attended all meetings and spends a good many hours at the department.

Here's the line-up for the general election

The Grand Finale, the last heat to be run in this year's election races is coming up Nov. 4, General Election Day, with voters facing an array of contenders

In addition to state and national office seekers, Martin County voters will be selecting three county commissioners, a schools superintendent, a sheriff, an elections supervisor, and a property appraiser.

Here's the line-up in the county election: For Sheriff it's Bruce L'Heureux (Dem.) challenging the Republican incumbent, James D Holt.

For Property Appraiser, the candidates are incumbent A D. "Augie" Mallreggat (Dem.), against Joan Felton (Rep.), challenger

In the race for Superintendent of Schools, it's incumbent V. James Navitsky (Rep.) facing Clifford Lynch (Dem.).

For the post of Supervisor of Elections, Peggy Robbins, Democrat incumbent, against Linda Pelletier (Rep.)

Seeking the three vacancies on the County Commission are: District 1: incumbent Frank A. Wacha (Dem.) and Alex L. Haynes (Rep.); Dist. 3: Sherri King (Rep.) against Rex Andrews (Dem.); Dist. 5: Pamela Boswell (Rep.) and incumbent John Holt (Dem.).

For the first time since 1977 Florida voters will be able to vote for "write-in" candidates this year. Along with the three most prominent presidential candidates and their running mates, there are four dark-horse presidential hopefuls and weeps seeking write-in support plus a US senatorial write-in candidate

So here's how the ballot looks for the presidential voting. President Jimmy Carter and Vice-President Walter Mondale will lead off as Democratic incumbents for re-election. Ronald Reagan and George Bush will be listed as the Republican candidates for President and Vice President, respectively

The Libertarian Party will offer the choice of Ed Clark for President and David Koch for Vice President. And the Independent candidates will be John B. Anderson for President, Patrick J. Lucey for Vice President.

Then come the write-in hopefuls for election as President and Vice President, respectively: Clifton De Berry and Matilde Zimmermann, Deirdre Griswold and Larry Holmes, Gus Hall and Angela Y. Davis; David McReynolds and Diane J. Drufenbrock.

Some voters may be under the impression that write-in votes are no longer possible in Florida elections but Martin County Elections Supervisor Peggy Robbins relates that after the state legislature did away with write-ins in 1977 the Florida Supreme Court ruled in 1978 that voters have the right to vote for anyone they choose. In 1979 provisions for write-in ballots were reinstated

So in addition to a write-in space for presidential preference, voters who choose neither to vote for Bill Gunter (Dem.) or Paula Hawkins (Rep.) for US senator can fill in the blank. The announced write-in candidate is Andres Baron

There is one other congressional contest. That's the contest between Dem. Richard D. Sparkman (Sparky) and L. A. "Skip" Bafalis, Republican incumbent for the District 10 House of Representatives seat

On the state level, the race for the 27th Senatorial District seat in the state legislature is between Jeffrey L. Burch (Dem.) and Tom Lewis (Rep.)

In nonpartisan voting, six Florida Supreme Court justices and five District Court of Appeal judges will seek voters' endorsement to be retained in office.

School impact fee facing Sewall's Pt. home builders

Sewall's Point is among Martin County cities being asked to levy a school impact fee on new single residences

Impact fees, usually required of housing developers to defray the expense of expanding those facilities impacted by significant population increases, would also be required of individuals building homes under a new county school board policy.

If the Sewall's Point town council acts on the school board request, the impact fees will be mandated by city ordinance

As explained by Ray Roberts, Martin schools director of intergovernmental and labor relations, the county and the four municipalities within it are being asked to assess the impact fees by adopting ordinances

The fees would help provide the necessary $4,000 to $5,000 cost of adding a new "student station." This is the per capita cost in obtaining land, building and furnishing a school, Roberts said.

No estimate of the proposed impact fee for Sewall's Point is available yet, Roberts said, because information is still being gathered to prepare a sample calculation

The calculation is based, however, on each estimated new house adding at least one child to the school system. But the $4,000 - $5,000 student station cost is also included in that portion of taxes the new resident will pay that winds up as capital outlay.

The Sewall's Point impact fee "could be less than $500" when calculations are complete, Roberts said.

The alternative to charging an impact fee is to tax existing residences higher, he said. School building funds raised through the $12.5 million bond issue will be used up in building the new high school — bids for which will go out late this month or next month. "Once spent, we'd have to go back to the taxpayer or the state for any more money," Roberts said.

The Martin Downs development is the only subdivision to be assessed school impact fees so far, and no individuals building homes in the county have yet paid school impact fees, according to Roberts

"Sewall's Point has supported the plan since the beginning," Roberts said.

Elderly can get free flue shots

Martin County Health Department will provide free influenza inoculations to senior citizens from 1 to 4 p.m. Fridays, according to Dr. Archie McCallister, county health officer

Anyone 65 years of age or older is eligible as well as others afflicted with such chronic illnesses as diabetes, heart and lung diseases. Requests from the chronically ill may come from physicians or through health department nurses, Dr. McCallister said

Health Department clients are reminded that the offices have moved from the courthouse to the old post office building at 131 E. 7th St. in Stuart

THE FUND-RAISING DRIVE is explained to parents of Jensen Beach Elementary school children by Nick Hesniak

Chamber blood bank drive will be Nov. 7

Directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce plan a new blood bank for members of the Chamber. The drive will be held Nov. 7 at Hardee's Restaurant in Jensen Beach from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The Martin County branch, Palm Beach Blood Bank will have a mobile unit on hand to draw the blood from the Chamber members who will be scheduled during the drive hours, according to Donna Doyle, executive director of the Chamber.

Hardee's has offered a free hamburger or cheeseburger to every donor as incentive to take part in the businessman's drive

All members of the Chamber of Commerce will be eligible to draw blood from the blood bank as needed at no cost.

The chairman of the Chamber Blood Bank is Dr. Richard Q. Panick.

Jensen parents will sell spices for school funds

A gourmet salad set of spices, to be sold by the parents of children attending Jensen Beach Elementary School, will be the vehicle to possibly add landscaping and a sprinkling system and other items for the school

The Jensen Beach PTA project has the school classrooms competing against one another for prizes. Cathie Teal, chairperson of the drive, said that the children themselves will not be going door-to-door selling the set of four salad spices. The parents are being asked to do the selling.

Orders will be taken for the spice sets, and the orders then filled with the spice company. A set is $7, with each bottle selling for $1.75. The set includes "assaisgreat" pepper, "cry-proof" onion, seasoning salt and bacon bits.

The fund-raising drive will be held for two weeks only, with all orders to be turned in to the school by Oct. 28. Delivery will be in 30 days.

For further information, call Mrs. Teal at 334-6964, or at the school, 334-1661.

Steak and beans

It will be the men against the women in a membership drive for the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce November 17-21, culminating in a steak and beans dinner at the annual membership meeting, it was decided Monday.

Barbara Torow was named to head the distaff side and Bill Keele was named chairman of the men's team. There will be ten persons on each team, with the winners of a complicated point system eating the steak and the losers having the bean dinner.

The last such drive was two years ago and resulted in record membership for the Chamber. Amid cries of "fraud" and "cheating," the two teams, headed by Ron Mitchell and Dick Campbell, compiled an enviable list of both renewal members and new members, totalling 219 sustaining (business) members and 60 contributing (individual) members.

President Dick Campbell, recognizing the need for rules in the contest, and having himself been one of the former drive chairmen, told the Chamber directors that he would take neither side in the competition, but would help both sides with advice and ideas in the campaign.

The drive teams will meet Monday morning, November 17, to select the present member cards. Team captains will pick cards alternating selections. New members will be contacted on their own by the teams.

A point system will be used, and a deadline for turning in memberships will be set.

"To be entirely fair, we will use the Stuart Chamber rules for our contest," Campbell said.

Ray Navitsky, executive director of the Stuart Chamber of Commerce, said, "It doesn't make any difference. They'll figure out a way to beat the system. No matter what rules we come up with, and they change each year, the teams figure a way to hold back or sandbag to beat the other team."

The teams will be announced following the November board meeting of the Chamber.

CARD PLAYERS at Senior Activities Club talk to their president Leon LaRoche at the regular Wednesday meeting in the Stuart Recreation Center. (Photo by Ernie Curwen)

Fun Day at the Senior Activity Club

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Jensen Beach seniors are an active bunch when it comes to entertainment, take Wednesday afternoon for an example.

Every Wednesday at 1 p.m. they traipse over to the Stuart Recreation Center for one 'heck' of a good time, playing cards, doing craftwork and enjoying refreshments. And one of the reasons this continues to happen, is that Leon LaRoche of 3446 NE Clarissa St. took over as president of the Senior Activities Club, when genial fiddle-playing past president Joe Forsberg had to give it up.

President Leon LaRoche is 73 and doesn't care who knows it, and "sure don't look it, came down to Martin County from Springfield, Mass. in 1972, where he had been sales manager for McLean Trucking for 35 years. Back in Springfield he met and married Love, and although they have no children, Leon has three brothers and a sister and Love has one brother, so there are plenty of folks for them to visit on their travels.

In World War II found Leon well qualified to handle his duties as a regimental motor sergeant and besides keeping the vehicles rolling he was with the Paris Visitors Bureau and at one time taught auto mechanics in England.

Leon has been interested in senior doings since coming to Florida, first as V.P. of local AARP chapter and now in second term as president of 'SAC'. Then, as side issues, he became involved with bike paths, log cabin; environmental alliance; angler's club, masonic lodge, wild life groups, photography, tennis, camping and touring, there was plenty to keep him busy days and evenings.

But, now let's take a look in on the seniors at play, on a Wednesday afternoon, in the Stuart Recreational Center. Our first thought: what a hub-bub, as 108 members (250 in season) talked about their games, talked about events and just talked. It was a very happy, and noisy group. The 'UNO' table back in the corner, could easily have won a prize as the noisiest. The YAK-YAK and laughter was overwhelming. Wonderful that seniors could have that spot to enjoy being with each other.

This club got its charter in 1970, with first meeting January 1971 in Langford Field House, but as it grew, moved to Stuart Recreation Center. It is open to all seniors 55 and over, with dues only $1.25.

Joe Frosberg as president guided the group until 1978 and made it grow 'n' grow. Leon is continuing now with these officers: Sec-Treas. Agnes Berg, Chaplain Gladys Wogan, 1st Vice President Joe Forsberg, 2nd Dan Pichulo, 3rd Horace Hurst; Directors Rene Malnati, Harry Baylis, Laura Shennet, Hostess, Sylvia Barton.

The SAC has at times sponsored dances and other entertainment events, all built around the 'Senior Swingers,' a musical group led by Joe Forsberg on his fiddle, that plays 'toe-tapping' country music at the drop of a hat.

So, Leon has found an avocation that keeps him on his toes and probably the busiest from 1 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, when the seniors get together for cards, and refreshments. And, let's not forget the crafts table down back, that is called the 'gabbers table' as the faster they talk the faster their fingers fly making beautifully handicraft work.

Also, Leon has started up his 55-Alive Mature Driving classes that were given to about 300 folks last year, possibly making the roads safe for all of us. These classes are especially for the elderly, showing them how to cope with driving problems even though they don't hear and see as well as they did 50 years ago. Those interested call Leon at 334-0416.

LONG-RANGE INVESTMENT PLANNING

QUESTION: It seems like investing in real estate is a rather better shelter proposition. While certain insurance company programs outline plans from the cradle to the grave, I seldom see real estate investment planning which has precise long-range options. Would you care to comment?

ANSWER: Real estate can fit nicely into most estate plans. It is difficult to project the operations of a real estate investment into the future with a high degree of accuracy and certainty. But we can make certain assumptions regarding an estate plan and the real estate which has been or will be acquired to assist in the accomplishment of the plan's goals.

Estate planning that utilizes real estate involves the same basic strategies as most type of investment. Therefore, we start by recommending to our clients that they have a well balanced portfolio. This includes savings for liquidity, insurance for protection (most likely term insurance) and real estate for growth, tax savings and equity build up.

Next, we determine where the client is financially by developing a detailed net worth statement that lists assets and liabilities.

Finally, we help the client establish a financial goal. For example, how many dollars will be required to provide for the children's advanced education? How much net worth should be created in order to provide for a comfortable retirement?

Once these goals are established, it is a relatively uncomplicated procedure to determine the necessary rate of equity return.

I would be happy to sit down with you to discuss your current investment position, your short and long range goals, and to assist you in the selection of an appropriate real estate investment which will help to achieve your goals.

Let's discuss your investment program. Call me at 334-0747, or stop by:

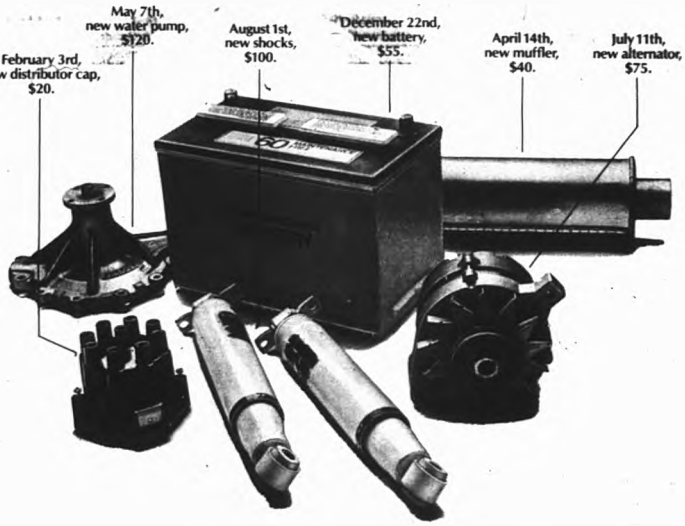
You can buy a new car piece by piece. Or you can get it all at once through Southeast.

February 3rd, new distributor cap, $20.
May 7th, new water pump, $120.
August 1st, new shocks, $100.
December 22nd, new battery, $55.
April 14th, new muffler, $40.
July 11th, new alternator, $75.



If you're willing to spend the money, you can probably keep your old buggy running forever.

But no matter how many parts you replace, you've still got an old car on your hands. And it's going to take more and more money to keep it going.

Maybe it's time you thought seriously about buying a new car.

Southeast can make it a lot easier than you think. By giving you a new car loan on terms that make sense for your budget.

Right now, the new models are beginning to roll in. And you can be sure that a lot of them will be more cost- and fuel-efficient than your present car.

So why not come in and talk to us soon.

Instead of buying all new parts, you can buy an all new car.

Carl Engel ... artist designer, inventor

BY ERNIE CURWEN

Some folks, when they retire, just sit back and watch the world go by, while others scramble around trying to find entertaining things to do that will fill-in their empty retirement hours. Then, there are others, who carry on into retirement all their pre-retirement activities, only more so, leaving hardly a minute they can call their own.

Carl Engel of 15 Key Lime Dr. Ocean Breeze Park is one of the later, as he continues to make strange little gadgets, paint pictures to beat the band, and continues to design historical murals. That's what OBPer Carl Engel is doing right now.

Carl was born in Dorcester, Mass., but did all his growing up in nearby Medford. He attended high school there and met his wife Gladys, who he married 59 years ago. Carl emphasized that Gladys is a wonderful cook and when not cooking makes sweaters, which she gives away by the dozen. She was the middle girl of a 5 sister, 7 brother family, and her growing up was eventful, so that Carl's many achievements are taken in stride. However, she is justly proud of her man.

Even back in high school days Carl was busy as a 'free lance' illustrator, so when he got out of the service (WWI) he was ready to go with Donnelly Sign Co., and for 18 years was their staff artist. Carl was self taught and much interested in history, so he haunted the theatres near and far. They built a summer place in Tyngsboro, N.H., and enjoyed it for 38 years until they came to Ocean Breeze in 1963 for a visit. They returned permanently in 1973, when Carl retired from Donnelly's.

When asked about hobbies, Carl had to admit that his vocation was his avocation, but he is an avid Dolphin football fan and often goes with Chairman John Ross to the games. He also sends novelty cards to celebrities and generally receives interesting replies. Carl was one of five, three brothers and a sister. He has only one brother left, in Medford, who he often visits to get acquainted with his niece and nephew.

Remember the Bicentennial Year? Well Carl was paractically the local Mr. Bicentennial, as he designed that beautiful mural showing Philadelphia, the Liberty Bell and all the other symbols of America's historic independance. The original is temporarily exhibited as a show piece in the mirror office. It was the basis for the bicentennial license plate that was much used in Florida and elsewhere. Carl's efforts helped make Jensen Beach's celebration greater than that of many larger communities.

Away back when Carl designed and built many 'Man-about-Town' lamps with a 1890 dude, in long coat and tall hat. The first one went as a wedding present to Donnelly's daughter when she married politician Michael Curley. Carl still has a bin full of parts and if he ever has time he plans to assemble a few.

Also, along the way, Carl got tired of banging on his head when touching up paintings, so made himself a rotary board that puts all parts of painting within each reach. He never marketed it, but an English firm has made something similar.

Then, to make it easy for himself, he rigged up a slide projector, so that interior slides can be projected along side the board just like he was viewing a scene through a window. In fact his whole shop was full of useful 'gadgets'. However, when asked, "What's next?", he said he was going to get back to a big wall size mural that needs some changes, before he donates it to a school or library. It's a scene of a Jenston School, cerca 1829, with Capitol Hill the background. All the people, kids, chickies, etc. of that era are clearly and accurately depicted. Each brick and cobble stone is in place.

It looks great, but not to Carl, as his research showed the position of the building such that his shadows were not realistic.

He has a bushel of research material, notes, plans, and clippings that he uses to make sure everything is authentic. There is one horse without a harness. Carl just painted it off when research proved it wrong. Carl is meticulous to the nth degree and his painting shows it.

Between times he paints pictures of his neighbor's grandchildren and their pets, so he's a busy, busy man, saying 'work' is more fun at 83 years than ever.

The streets of Ocean Breeze Park ring with joyful greetings at this time of the year, as the winter residents (snow birds) return. Every street and block has its excitement, when an out-of-state car pulls up in front of a closed up mobile home, and all the neighbors and friends rush out for a handshake, a hug and kiss, and the usual query, "How have you been and did you have a good summer?" The answer generally was, "Yes, we're OK; had a good summer; but oh boy was it hot; and are we glad to be back."
